The number of television sets, even after the boom of Radiolympia, in use privately is still inconsiderable, although the manufacturers' statement that technically they will remain static for some years must stimulate sales to some degree. The sales they will stimulate to the public houses and public halls where gratuitous television shows are given are for British exhibitors a more urgent consideration.

Documentaries and World's Fair

Growing concern has been manifested among British short film producers, makers of documentaries and other democratic forces, at the manner in which British films are being selected for show at the New York World's Fair. Criticism has been leveled in such circles against the committee which has been elected by the Government to choose these films, notably on the grounds that no member of the trade, beyond a representative of the newsreels, has been invited to sit upon it. The selection committee, chairman of which is the independent writer, Philip Guedalla, numbers members of the Department of Overseas Trade, the Foreign Office, the Travel and Industrial Association, Members of Parliament and one representative of the British Film Institute.

The subject reached the House of Commons Tuesday night with a member challenging the Government on the constitution and work of the joint committee selecting the films.

It is claimed that the films made by those banded under the Associated Realist Film Producers group, many of them made for municipalities, public institutions, social welfare groups and industrial corporations, provide a more graphic and catholic canvas of democratic Britain today than is found in the travel films of newsreels which have already taken the first step, so to speak, on their way to New York.

Gainsborough-20th Fox Deal

Twentieth Century-Fox quota pictures will be made by Gainsborough (Gaumont British) under 20th-Fox supervision at the Gainsborough studios, with Robert Kane directing the arrangement. Twentieth Century obtains full access to the services of all Gainsborough players, writers and scripts. The deal includes the services of Maurice Ostrer and Edward Black, Gainsborough producers. Eight pictures, it is understood, will be required.

The County Councils Association of England will recommend general adoption of theatre seat price regulations similar to those recently passed by the London County Council, and opposed by the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association. The regulations call for prominent display of the theatre's seating plan in the lobby, with fixed prices, and indication in the lobby of the number of vacant seats to avoid standing.

HOLLYWOOD DEMANDS A PLACE IN "TELEVISION SUN," DUE IN TWO YEARS

Research Council Sees Possible a Vast Market for Specially Designed Films When Television Arrives

Hollywood is determined that it is rightly and properly the motion picture industry's business to devote itself to the development of television and to take "those steps which may be required to exercise intelligent influence with respect to the form and function it may take on."

Addressing the industry through the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which it finances for film technical development and study, the large producers and studios of Hollywood on Monday predicted that when television comes into its own it may well open up a vast market for films especially designed for television distribution.

Forecast of a possible competitive battle, probably in two years, between broadcasters and motion pictures over the creation of the material for televising was made by Hollywood in the third annual report on "Television from the Standpoint of the Motion Picture Producing Industry," as prepared by the scientific committee of the Research Council, of which Carl Dreher is chairman. Participating in the study with Mr. Dreher were the committee's seven other members: Gordon Chambers, L. E. Clark, J. G. Frayne, Barton Kreuzer, Wesley C. Miller, Hollis Moyse and William Mueller.

Tracing the developments of television in England, Germany, France and the United States, the report said that experimentation now takes on a larger scope, with emphasis shifting from technical research to economic and social aspects, the public from the role of spectators to participants shortly. On the extent and manner of that participation the effects on the motion picture depends," said the Dreher report.

"That such effects will be evident in the next two years is altogether to be expected. That the repercussions will result in revolutionary changes in motion picture production and exhibition within that period is unlikely. . . . The complexity of television and the magnitude of its artistic and financial problems are an automatic brake in this respect.

Broadcasters' Stake

"Should (broadcaster-film) competitive factors predominate, it is quite obvious that the strongest interests in the television field cannot afford to ignore their own very substantial stake in the business of aural broadcasting.

"Although radio is nowhere near the end of its growth, financially it has become a mature industry, mindful of its investment in the present while looking into the future, and this tendency constitutes a protection, if one is needed, for the other entertainment industries as well."

Describing television as still a new industry, the report said: "The situation is one which calls for continual observation and analysis by the motion picture industry, and to an increasing degree as events take their course. Accordingly the committee is of the opinion that the Academy Research Council should immediately proceed to a more thorough consideration.

"This investigation should cover the artistic, technical, legal and economic phases of the subject. Therefore in order that future activities may encompass all phases of the subject, the committee recommends that it be enlarged to include representation from those other branches of the industry in a position to contribute a wider background to its considerations."

Sees Entertainment Quality

Tracing developments of television in the United States during 1938, the Dreher committee, pointing out that the period of preliminary experimentation appears to be on the verge of transition to commercial application, declared there is definite entertainment quality at present in the medium.

Describing the RCA-NBC transmissions in New York, among the most advanced in the U. S., the committee reported:

"Although too small for convenient viewing, the pictures are bright and sharp and carry sufficient detail to depict emotions, when rather broadly played in close-up or semi-close-up. Medium and long shots merely show the figures and are used mainly for entrances, exits, establishing settings, etc. (However, when the action is sufficiently dynamic—fights, acrobats, etc. —the long shots do have entertainment value.) In the main, the story must be carried with two-shots; a three-shot is on the borderline of effectiveness. Film takes of exteriors are sometimes intercut to good advantage.

"The principal weaknesses of the run of NBC studio productions have been mediocre dialogue, stereotyped situations, and similar remediable faults of material. When the material has been up to the mark the results have been definitely entertaining, even with the small screen. One of our members who witnessed some of the demonstrations found it difficult to concentrate on the engineering features—his attention was constantly diverted to the action. This is as good a test of entertainment quality as any.

"The real test of public response will come next year, when regular service is initiated and receivers become available in a number of types and sizes.

"Engineering developments in the United States have been mainly in the directions outlined in our 1937 report, and parallel those reported abroad. Progress is slow and laborious, but steady. In general, the advances listed by the foreign field are either the results of American invention, or they can be duplicated here whenever it becomes expedient.

"A considerable number of applications for experimental television licenses are on file with the Federal Communications Commission, and one of them, which indirectly involves a motion picture company (Paramount), has just been granted to the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories of Passaic, N. J., for a station in that neighborhood. Paramount has purchased an interest in DuMont and advanced an amount, reported to be $50,000, toward the expenses of research for one year.

"The Farnsworth Television System was demonstrated in Hollywood last summer. . . . The picture was bright and had considerable entertainment value on close-ups. The longer shots were not as effective."

England's "Mystery"

Concerning England: "Notable progress has been made (in the last two years) on the technical side and in the quantity and quality of entertainment, but these advances have not been reflected commercially. . . . Considerable mystery surrounds the question of how many television receivers are actually in use. . . . The most probable total appears to lie between 3,000 and 4,000 which in a population of 10,000,000 within the service area of Alexandra Palace is a melancholy showing. And yet no one conversant with the situation as a whole can or does regard it as an evidence of failure. The reason is that, while sales have lagged, public interest has been sustained, and where there is interest there is a potential market."

English television, under government subsidy, has advanced much more rapidly than television in the United States, according to Mr. Dreher, but he sees no reason why American television cannot "catch up" speedily and "perhaps go a little ahead."

Advertising sponsorship of television programs in the U. S. is not, in the Dreher view, an immediate potentiality. There are, he thinks, probably less than 1,000 receiving sets in operation here. The price per set is high and it is not likely that it will come down as rapidly, probably never as far, as the price of radio receiving sets came down. The reasons are technological. Even on a mass production basis, he estimated, television receivers could not be brought into the economic reach of the so-called average citizen, or any considerable number of citizens in the upper buying brackets, within two years. By the same reasoning, television cannot become a factor operative in the cinema box office scheme of things in less than the same or a longer period," he said.

Freeman on Coast; Zukor Delays Trip

Y. Frank Freeman arrived on the coast Thursday to take over his new post as head of the management of the Paramount studio. He was accompanied by members of his family. His former duties at the home office in charge of theatre operations, temporarily are being handled by Barney Balaban, president.

Mr. Balaban, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee and a score of other Paramount executives and theatre partners, gave Mr. Freeman a farewell dinner Sunday night at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. (Pictures on page 11.)

Arthur Israel, for the last 10 years a member of the home office legal staff, has been appointed an executive assistant to Mr. Balaban. Leon Netter has been assigned increased duties in the theatre department.

Mel Shauer, associate producer, formerly in charge of the talent department, resigned Tuesday.

Adolph Zukor, Paramount board chairman, whom Mr. Freeman relieves at the studio, postponed his departure from Hollywood and is not expected in New York for another week. His departure for London to take over his new post as head of Paramount's European operations has been postponed to shortly before Christmas.

Robert Gillham, director of advertising and publicity, planned to leave New York this week for another visit to the coast.

Morros Leaves Paramount

Boris Morros, musical director and associate producer at Paramount, has resigned, effective January 1st. Mr. Morros joined the studio in 1936 after having been musical director and producer of stage shows for Paramount theatres for 13 years.

Hollywood Office Of Drive Closing

With the completion of its task of correlating studio activities with the nationwide industry campaign, the Hollywood office of Motion Pictures' Greatest Year drive will close Saturday.

The Hollywood office, under the direction of Gabe Yorke, lent by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, handled west coast publicity for the campaign, and organized studio activities. It was maintained as a publicity bureau in the middle period of the drive, with George H. Thomas in charge.

Campaign headquarters estimated this week that 20,000,000 persons in 48 states were reached by newspapers printing special editorials on the drive in the past three months. The estimate was based on the circulation figures of the 604 newspapers which carried this editorial comment. New York led in the number of editorials and circulation figures, with California second and Ohio third.

Trailer No. 10 for the drive and announcing the closing date of the Movie Quiz contest, which is ready for distribution, completes the campaign's trailer program.

Columbia Reports $2,300,000 in Cash; $233,612 Net Loss for First Quarter

Columbia Pictures Corporation for the first fiscal quarter ended September 24, 1938, reports a net loss of $233,612, after all charges and provisions for federal income and other taxes, comparing with a net profit of $147,311 in the corresponding period one year ago. Last year's income equaled 27 cents a share on 349,468 shares of common stock, after preferred dividends.

Working capital amounted to $10,740,000 on September 24th, of which some $2,300,000 was in cash. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was over eight to one.

"The management expects that the second quarter, which will end December 31st, will show an improvement," said a statement from the home office.

Reflecting the quarter loss, the consolidated statement of operations shows heavier production amortization writeoffs. In the corresponding quarter a year ago gross income on film rentals totaled $4,510,345 and production amortization totaled $2,806,530, whereas in the last quarter rental income was $4,469,770, a drop of $40,575, and production amortization reached $3,093,769, an increase of $287,239.

Consolidated balance sheet, as of September 24, shows current assets amounted to $12,179,473 and current liabilities were $1,439,276. This compares with cash of $1,308,205, current assets of $12,719,464 and current liabilities of $2,412,742 on September 25, 1937. Inventories were $9,214,154, against $10,179,398.

Total assets on September 24, last, were $15,390,297, comparing with $15,596,330 on September 25, 1937; capital surplus was $67,515, against $67,398, and earned surplus was $3,787,825, against $4,429,008. Funded debt amounted to $1,250,000.

Consolidated income account for the quarter ended September 24, 1938, compares as follows:

	Quarter Ending Sept. 24, 1938	Quarter Ending Sept. 25, 1937	Quarter Ending Sept. 26, 1936

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Bewhiskered George Bernard Shaw, in the full flush of his easily provoked temperament, will probably screech with hysterics when he sees the press announcement from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer stating that his "Pygmalion," which Metro will distribute, has absolutely nothing to do with pigs or pygmies.

Only the other day, addressing himself to "my very dear friends in America," Mr. Shaw explained that he has no objection to seeing his work made into films (for a price, of course), provided the perfection of his lines is not damaged. He does not know "whether he will live long enough to educate America, but I am still trying."

Maybe the idea of possible fighting has something to do with an order just issued by the Belgium Government prohibiting the setting up of any kind of publicity within the woods or forests of the country at a distance within 100 meters from the roads—and that includes billboards, posters and other outdoor advertising messages for theatres and motion pictures.

In the old side show days, a snake charmer was called a snake charmer — but Walter Wanger calls his snake charmer a "herpetologist," which is okay in zoology but not in side shows.

Anyway, Mr. Wanger's "herpetologist," Grace Olive Wiley, charmed some of her own snakes for the producers's new "Trade Winds," and then tried to transport them from Hollywood to New York. But neither the plane companies or railroads and express companies would take on the Cobras as passengers. "The disappointment of the snake and his mate in not being able to visit New York will probably never be known," peeps United Artists's explanation to the press.

Herbert Wilcox, British producer who at present is in this country with a print of his new "Sixty Glorious Years," was walking across Leicester Square, London, from the press showing of his picture, to Scotts, London oyster bar, there to play host to the reporters at a luncheon. A London Daily Mail sleuth hailed him in the Square, not knowing what or who he was.

"I am doing a story on the man in the street," apologized the reporter. "Will you please tell me what you are thinking about just now?"

"I was just thinking," said Mr. Wilcox, "that it can be a terrible mistake to show your biggest picture to the press and sit among them watching their reactions."

Cecil Blount DeMille's press agents out on the Paramount lot in Hollywood are telling the press that the director has been looking for a wooden Indian for appearances in his forthcoming "Union Pacific," but that Mr. DeMille has given up the search in disgust because he has been unable to find one with the "proper amount of ferocious umph."

Lyn Harding, the Welsh actor, was honored last week by the villagers of St. Brides, Monmouthshire, his birthplace, on the occasion of his 71st birthday, and was chided by the local bishop for having been seen visiting three different churches. He explained that he is a "Pan-inter-co-interdenominationalist."

THE WHILE David Sarnoff, for RCA, is telling how his company will be ready to televise by the time the New York World's Fair rolls around next April, and Stanton Griffis, for Paramount, is explaining that his company will be ready for television even before that, Columbia Broadcasting, which also will be a factor in the field, is going ahead quietly with the business of trying to move a transmitter for its anticipated telecasts, all the way up to the 74th floor of the Chrysler Building in New York.

For the first 60 floors things aren't so tough in the matter of hoisting the 10,000 pounds of machinery. A freight elevator takes it up that far. But then it must be transferred to a hoist and hauled the remaining 14 floors through a ten-foot-square fire tower.

CBS workmen, discovered on the job by a reporter for Printers' Ink, were seen tearing up the floor on the 74th where the transmitter is to stand, and stuffing the hacked concrete into potato sacks which are stacked around the walls to be hoisted below later. It's a pretty husky job to get rid of all the concrete that has to be taken up so that the transmitter can be strapped onto the steel beams of the building. Another little point —saving a couple of thousand bricks during the tearing up is helping things financially. A brick raised 900 feet above sea water costs twice as much as a normal earthbound brick.

The transmitter was dismantled into the smallest possible units for transfer from the factory at Camden, N. J., to the Chrysler Building. Even at that the Chrysler freight elevator had to be restrung with heavier cables and rebalanced with additional weights for the loads.

And even then the elevator was unable to lift the huge electric transformers, but some bright boy hit on the idea of draining out the thousands of pounds of oil the transformers held. Then there was the technical difficulty of specially filtering the oil again to make it simon-pure. If any moisture gets into the transformers their performance will be ruined.

The men who are working on the job have their troubles, too. Before the hoist was installed, for example, the crew had to climb 14 floors up a narrow winding staircase. As for lunch in this metropolitan Siberia, they have to bring their own. It's quite a jaunt down to the street floor in the freight elevator that stops at every floor on signal. Recently they chipped in and bought a coffee percolator, so hot java now warms their vigil.

David Sarnoff once said that television is just around the corner; the CBS boys say theirs is just over the clouds.

With all of the grass running over this country, Sam Goldwyn sent all the way to Puerto Rico to buy grass weeds for his "Last Frontier" film. He even had to bring the stuff in under government bond and close guard to prevent any escape of the seed while being grown just outside Hollywood.

According to United States Department of Agriculture's experts—according to Sam Goldwyn's press agent—the grass is a "pernicious" weed, robbing the earth of nourishment to such an extent that little else can take root where it is or has been grown. In gaining permission to grow the grass Goldwyn had to furnish guarantees that it would be cut and destroyed before it came to seed.

When Sam Goldwyn wants "pernicious" weeds for his motion picture making, he wants "pernicious" weeds.

Ride a Crooked Mile

(Paramount)

Father-Son Melodrama

Showmen proffering this powerful film can shout from their marquees that Akim Tamiroff proves here beyond question his brilliant performance in "The Buccaneer" was no fluke. His portrayal of a modern American big scale cattle thief, true to the traditions of his Russian Cossack youth, is among the most convincing and vigorous acting achievements of the year. His vehicle is far off the beaten path.

Secondary billing goes to Leif Erikson and Frances Farmer, back in pictures and better than before, who play the up-to-date rustler's son and his sweetheart for what's in the roles instead of the closeups. The romantic side of the story is relatively minor but genuinely a part of it. Lynne Overman's handling of a straight part into which he puts only a suggestion of his humorous talent is another item to tell the customers about.

Produced by Jeff Lazarus, with Dale Van Every as associate producer and veteran Alfred Green directing in his best form, the film is from an original screen play by Ferdinand Reyher and John D. Moffit. "Original" is used, this time, in the true and rare meaning of the word. The customers will have to think back to Frank Keenan and Charles Ray in "The Coward" to find a father-son theme to compare it with, and the pictures are as different as then and now.

The Tamiroff rustler is owner of a packing house who has amassed great wealth by illegal acquisition of livestock and fitted out a Texas ranch in the manner of an imperial Russian estate wherein he preserves the customs and pastimes of his Cossack youth. His long divorced wife brings to him a son he has not seen since infancy, and after a ruggedly competitive introduction they become pals. The FBI finally proves a case against the father and he goes to Leavenworth. The son joins the Army and gets himself assigned to the Cavalry at Fort Riley so that he can effect his father's escape. Successful in this, his sense of duty to the Service overcomes his paternal devotion and he determines to bring his father back to prison. In a dash for freedom pursued by the Cavalry the father meets death.

There are no hollow heroics in the picture as played, and a high degree of suspense attained in midpicture is retained steadily until the finish.

The scene is a Texas city and the Fort Leavenworth area of Kansas, the time now.

Flirting with Fate

(MGM - David L. Loew)

Comedy

So far as entertainment is concerned, "Flirting with Fate" is a typical Joe E. Brown picture. It's not as sound as some he has made, yet contains a lot of funny stuff. It provides plenty of showmanship material and, in addition to the star's name, makes available those of Leo Carrillo, Beverly Roberts, Wynne Gibson, Steffi Duna, Charles Judels, Stanley Fields and Leonid Kinskey.

Stemming from one basic idea, the picture actually is a parade of gags. All are comical, some ridiculous. They do make for laughter.

"Dan Dixon's" theatrical troupe is hopelessly stranded in South America's Gaucho land. After several minor misadventures, most menacing of which is one that earns the enmity of the operator of a chain of theatres, "Dan" decides to commit suicide and let the insurance pay-off take care of his artists. All his plans go awry, however. The ant poison he drinks turns out to be volcanic firewater. All the insults he heaps upon bandit "Sancho" further endear him to that desperado. He escapes the perils of a revolution, and is saved from a firing squad.

In every way the efforts of the original story writers, Dan Jarrett and A. Dorian Otvos, of the screen play writers, Joseph Moncure March, Ethel La Blanche, Charlie Melson and Harry Clork, of the director, Frank McDonald, and the antics of the star and his supporting players, have been aimed to provide typical Joe E. Brown comedy.

El Trovador De La Radio

(Paramount-Faralla)

All-Spanish Musical Melodrama

Second of Paramount's all-Spanish productions, starring Tito Guizar, El Trovador de la Radio ("The Radio Troubador"), hits the target at which it is aimed, the widening Spanish language market.

A fast moving piece of romantic melodrama, the picture can be ranked as among the best to come from Hollywood for that field. It broadly displays the singing and acting talents of Guizar, star of Latins, introduces as leading woman Robina Duarte, formerly known as Jeanne Kelly, and provides comedy intelligible in any language. In support are Tana, Paul Ellis, Paco Moreno, Barry Norton, Carlos Villarias, Lucio Villegas, Martin Garralaga, Jose Pena Pepet, Sarita Wooton, Luz Segovia, Mario Borello, Helen Martinez, Rosita Granada, and El Charro Gil And His Caporales.

This is the first of four productions by Dario Faralla, who has set a high standard.

Richard Harlan directed the picture, and before the preview was signed to direct the following three.

The screenplay was by Arthur Vernon Jones, with Spanish dialogue by Gabriel Navarro. The script is based on a story by Bernard Luber and Nenette Noriega. Guizar sings five songs written by himself, Nenette Noriega and Rafael Gama.

Previewed in the projection room in Hollywood.—V. K.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Director, Richard Harlan. Screen play, Arthur Vernon Jones. Spanish screen play, Gabriel Navarro. Based on the story by Bernard Lubert, Nenette Noriega. Musical compositions by Tito Guizar, Nenette Noriega, Rafael Gama. Musical director, Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld. Musical supervisor, Abe Meyer. Production manager, Irving Applebaum. Dialogue director, Gabriel Navarro. Art director, Ralph Berger. Cameraman, J. H. Hallenberger. Sound, Hugo Grenzbach. Assistant director, Herman Webber. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4887. Running time, when seen in Hollywood, 60 minutes. Release date to be determined. General audience classification.

Little Orphan Annie

(Paramount)

Sinew-and-Bone Cartoon

Producer, director and the several writers of this piece appear to have sought to duplicate in sinew and bone that curious quality of fantastic unreality which, in the pen and ink drawings still known in the vernacular as comic strips, keeps a certain type of newspaper reader following the daily adventures of Little Orphan Annie and other imaginary personalities. In this they have achieved a measure of academic success. It must be added here, however, that this academic success did not impress a large proportion of a Glendale, California, preview audience as sufficient reason for sitting through the initial exhibition of the film to the finish.

In their allegiance to the comic-strip technique the fabricators of this film have sacrificed realism, plausibility and logic as the screen audience knows it. Ann Gillis is a charming young person but she is made to do strange and improbable things. Robert Kent is a likely young boxer but the story makes him pretend to be inordinately dumb. June Travis and J. Farrell MacDonald are equivalently handicapped.

The tale brings Annie into a poor section of New York City and the voluntary guardianship of "Pop Corrigan," janitor and former fight trainer. Together and with the financial aid of their impoverished neighbors they train "Johnny Adams" for a boxing bout which seems to be in the bag until a loan shark, to whom the backers are indebted, kidnaps him. The women of the community attack the loan shark's gangster buddies with rolling pins, protractedly and in the slapstick manner, after which he escapes, wins the fight and so forth.

Previewed at the Alexander theatre, Glendale, where it drew some laughter from the very young for a short time, many oldsters leaving before it was finished.—W.R.W.

Distributed by Paramount. Produced by Colonial Pictures. Producer, John Speaks. Director, Ben Holmes. Screen play by Bud Wilson Schulberg and Samuel Ornitz. Story by Samuel Ornitz and Endre Bohem. Edited by Robert Bischoff. Photographed by Frank Redman. P.C.A. certificate No. 4771. Release date, Dec. 2, 1938. Running time, when seen in Glendale, 58 minutes. General audience patronage.

The Glory of the Faith

(French Film Exchange)

Religious Theme

Subtitled to the program announcement of this picture is a line that the film is "based on the immortal story of St. Theresa, the Little Flower." Rather it would seem that "The Story of a Soul," the autobiographical tale of the young Carmelite Nun, has been made an annex to a story of the mutual love of a devout seamstress and a young child of the house in which she is employed, and the sparing of the lad's life from meningitis by her prayers to her patron, the Little Flower.

The story's connection with the life of St. Theresa lies in the device of having the dressmaker read to the youngster passages from the life of the Little Flower, which sections dissolve into tableaus. The story sequence is jarred in the editing. French players were used. English titles are superimposed.

Appeal for American audiences will be found primarily among the fellow members of the Little Flower's Faith.

Seen at an afternoon performance at the Squire theatre, New York, where a fair sized audience, mostly feminine, sat engrossed in the religious theme.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Produced by Films de Kosder, Paris. Distributed by French Film Exchange. Director, Georges Pallu. Music, Jean Bos. Running time, 75 minutes. Release date, November 24, 1938. General audience classification.

Ballerina

(Mayer-Burstyn)

Ballet Life

Jean Benoit-Levy, who directed "La Maternelle," has made in "Ballerina" a drama of the life led by the children of the ballet school of the National Opera in Paris. The story is backed by the ballet music of Chopin and Gounod, which, together with incidental music by J. E. Szyfer, is played by the French National Opera Symphony.

"Rose Souris," young ballet student, selects the star dancer of the ballet, "Mademoiselle Beaupre," as her "godmother." Hearing that a new dancer, "Nathalie Karine," is going to supplant her idol in part of the ballet performance, "Rose" secretly opens a trapdoor on the floor of the stage and "Karine" is crippled for life. "Karine" accepts a post as a teacher at the Opera, and develops a strong attachment for "Rose," her most promising pupil. Jealous of "Rose's" success, her guilt is revealed by one of her classmates, but "Karine's" love of the dance, coupled with her belief that "Rose" will be a great dancer, keeps her from denouncing the girl. "Rose" runs away, but she is found, to continue her career.

The cast sustains the interest inherent in the story itself. "Karine" is played by Mia Slavenska, one of the stars of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, which is now on tour in America, while the part of "Mademoiselle Beaupre" is taken by Yvette Chauvire, premiere danseuse of the Ballet of the French National Opera. Janine Charrat, who plays "Rose," is a student at the French National Opera.

'Ballerina" possesses story interest, fine acting, well-paced direction.

Reviewed at the Little Carnegie Playhouse, New York. The audience applauded the performance.—WALTER SELDEN.

Distributed by Arthur Mayer and Joseph Burstyn. A Cineatlantica production. Adapted by Jean Benoit-Levy and Marie Epstein from Paul Morand's novel, "La Morte du Cygne". Choreography by Serge Lifar. Photography by L. H. Burel. Settings by Carre and Negre. Running time, 80 minutes. General audience classification.

Eine Nacht an der Donau

(Casino Film Exchange)

Comedy-Romance

A story of the poor but aristocratic young man and his efforts to find true love, "Eine Nacht an der Donau" ("A Night on the Danube") shows the marks of general productions shortcomings, in settings, characterizations and story. Dialogue was in German, with no superimposed English titles.

"Prince Wolfgang Derlingen" composes a symphony which is a failure. His fortune gone, his mother insists that he go to Budapest to court the richest heiress in Hungary. On the boat he meets "Steffi," leader of an all girl band, whose pianist has missed the boat. She begs the Prince to play. He falls in love with her. At the estate of the wealthy Baroness, the Prince and his hostess both confess that they are in love with others. Finally the mother consents.

Reviewed at the 86th Street Casino Theatre New York, where, save during one or two comedy sequences, a sparse audience was apathetic.

Robbin' Good

(Warner Brothers)

Good Gambling Exposé

A slight vehicle is used to introduce Luis Zingone, card expert. He is produced again as witness in a gambling house case, then demonstrates to the judge how various tables, dice, machines, and card games were manipulated fraudulently. His exposes are fascinating to watch, especially his card tricks.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Pictorial, P8-5

(Paramount)

Of Interest

In this number of the Pictorial series three subjects are covered. The first shows unusual camera studies of a 17 year locust throwing off its shell. The second is a study in color of beautiful scenes. They are the work of Robert C. Bruce. The third has the Eton Boys singing in quartet songs that were popular 30 years ago and more while appropriate scenes from early films illustrate the period of their popularity. The narrators are, in the order of their appearance: Stan Shaw, David Ross and Alois Havrilla. Running time, 9 minutes.

Music and Models

(Universal)

Mentone Brevity

Singing, dancing and a style show share equal billing in this two-reel subject. Jack Arthur is master of ceremonies and introduces Carolyn Marsh, singer; the Six Debonairs, male dancers; Rolly and Verna Pickert, dancing team; Theodore and Denesha, also a dancing team, and Irene Vermillion and company. The dancing is versatile and one sequence in particular, in which Rolly and Verna do a version of the Shag while on stilts, is outstanding. After the entertainment a style show is held. Running time, 18 minutes.

Madeira, Isle of Romance

(MGM-FitzPatrick)

Traveltalk

This is another beautifully filmed FitzPatrick Traveltalk heightened by FitzPatrick's narration. The subject is Madeira, the island discovered by Columbus. It was also visited, it is said, by Napoleon when the Corsican was en route to exile on St. Helena Island. The countryside, natives, their customs and costumes are depicted. Running time, eight minutes.

The Stranger Rides Again

(20th Century-Fox)

Excellent Cartoon

The Terry studios certainly have enlivened their product. This latest, a takeoff on "The Lone Ranger," has a handsome, curly headed masked hero who resembles the "Hairbreadth Harry" of the comic strip, and has as many narrow escapes, finally vanquishing "Bad Bill." Of course, our hero's sidekick is the Indian, Tonto, who obtains the evidence with his candid camera. Running time, six minutes.

Stardust

(Warner Brothers)

Pleasing Comedy-Musical

The chief attraction is Benny Davis, the song writer, surrounded by an array of talent. Presentation is novel. An announcer narrates for an industrial short, which follows progress of the night club applause device known as the "clitter-clatter," from the cutting of the trees to the processing of the wood in a factory, then introduces the audience to the company "president," Benny Davis. Davis then shows how the device is tested for breakage and sound, meanwhile allowing talent to dance, sing and do acrobatics. Seen are dancers Bobbie Joyce and Jackie Strong; singers Dorn Brothers and Mary; stilt dancers Rollo and Vernon Pickert; comic dancers Arline and George Colston. Davis tops the short singing his own compositions, including "Margie."—Running time, 22 minutes.

Frolicking Frogs

(Paramount)

Sportlight

A Grantland Rice Sportlight on the subject of frogs, this is a cleverly photographed production. The trick camera angles and magnified frogs at times present an eerie spectacle. The film opens with a re-enactment of the jumping frog contest made famous by Mark Twain at Angel Camp, Cal., and ends with trained frogs in a swimming race. In between there are frogs and more frogs. Ted Husing is the narrator. Directed by Jack Eaton. Running time, 10 minutes.

Disobedient Mouse

Cartoon

The star of this Walter Lantz Cartune is Baby-Face Mouse. Baby-Face is admonished by his mother against crossing the railroad tracks, but he crosses them, nevertheless. Baby-Face is set upon by Rat-Face, notorious public enemy, who tries to teach the young one how to become a criminal. Baby-Face has other ideas, and calls the police. Baby-Face's mother accepts the situation by complimenting him for his heroism and spanks him for crossing the tracks.—Running time, 8½ minutes.

Mechanix Illustrated

(Warner Brothers)

Good Factual Novelty

One of the E. M. Newman Color Parades, this depicts the New York weather bureau in action, and its intricate weather detecting instruments; methods of extracting vitamins from food substances; the New York fire department answering an alarm; a television broadcast and its reception, from the National Broadcasting Company's station atop the Empire State Building. All clips are interesting, especially the last.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Honduras Hurricane

(MGM)

Good Cartoon

The "Captain and the Kids" series, which started slowly, is "hitting on all six" now. This is fast and funny; it has a laugh a minute; the gags are really good. Long John Silver has the Captain on "a spot," forcing him to match his puny rooster against Long John's tough and rough battler. The Captain's bird takes terrific punishment, until the Captain's two kids substitute a baby eagle for the Captain's rooster. Long John eats the wooden ring platform, which he had said he'd do if his bird lost.—Running time, eight minutes.

Going Places, No. 55

(Universal)

A Bargain and a Fortune

The material for this newest edition from the Going Places group is divided into two sections whose subjects are worlds apart yet closely connected. The initial portion of the subject is devoted to an exposition of what is, perhaps, the biggest real estate bargain in the history of man, the purchase of the island of Manhattan from its Indian owners for the staggering sum of twenty-four dollars. To illustrate the saving entailed in this ancient transaction, the camera conducts the spectator around the sidewalks of New York to view some of the landsites and buildings, which today are valued in figures as steep as the skyscrapers of the metropolitan city. The final section of the material will appeal primarily to the feminine patrons with the scenes of the raising of that fabulously valued four legged animal, the chinchilla, for the manufacture of coats. Running time, nine minutes.

The Daffy Doc

(Warner Brothers)

Excellent Cartoon

This continues the "Looney Tune" series from the Schlesinger studios, depicting the wild, weird adventures of "Daffy Duck." Here Daffy is a doctor, assisting a more famous doctor ("also a quack") in an operation. Wild as the doctor is, Daffy is wilder, and the doctor throws Daffy out. Whereupon Daffy looks for patients, spots Porky the Pig on the street, hits him over the head with a hammer, attends him in the hospital, prepares to operate with a hacksaw. Porky tries to escape; they both land in an artificial respirator; and final clips show them trying to recover from its effects. This should have any audience holding their sides.—Running time, seven minutes.

Hal Kemp and His Orchestra

(Paramount)

Headliner

A Headliner subject, this features Hal Kemp and His Orchestra. Appearing with the band are Judy Starr and 6-year-old daughter, who sing "Small Fry"; Bob Allen, singing "If I Loved You More," and Saxie Dowell doing "Beating Around the Mulberry Bush," while the orchestra goes to town with a jam session. Other songs are "Moments Like This" and "How I Miss You." Directed by Leslie Roush. Running time, 10 minutes.

Baby Kittens

Cartoon

In this Walter Lantz Cartune three friendly kittens innocently cause an equally friendly dog to lose his doghouse. When the kittens try to be friendly with the dog he runs away. Failing to lose them, he becomes agreeable and adopts them. The kitten's mother comes after the little ones, but the dog chases her away. The mother gathers all the neighbor cats and the dog is quickly ousted. Running time, eight minutes.

You're An Education

(Warner Brothers)

Ingenious Cartoon Musical

While the device is not new, it still appeals, especially when done by the Schlesinger studios; we mean the animation of familiar labels—of book covers, food boxes, travel folders, etc. In this case, it is travel folders, in a travel agency. The Dutch do Dutch dances; the Turks smoke "hupble bub" pipes; the Hawaiians sing "Aloha"; and so on. A slight plot closes the show. The villainous Oriental steals a diamond from the Kimberly Mines; but united forces from all the folders capture him.—Running time, seven minutes.

Stranger Than Fiction, No. 56

(Universal)

Oddities

Seven items of unusual happenings are contained in the latest issue of the Stranger Than Fiction series. In Atlanta, Ga., a man's hobby takes the form of transforming privet hedges into animal shapes. In Bay Springs, Miss., an 84-year-old justice of the peace moves his portable office around with him wherever business may be. The other items are: The Swedish custom of watching the longest day of the year out; dolls modeled from images of purchasers; a floating chapel in Louisiana; a crippled sheep employing a wheel chair to get about, and a dog who rides on the top of his master's auto. Alois Havrilla is the narrator.—Running time, nine minutes.

A Date to Skate

(Paramount)

Popeye

The one-eyed sailor induces Olive Oyl to take up roller-skating, but she learns slowly. The upshot of the roller-skating experiment comes when Olive loses control and starts careening down the street, causing havoc with traffic. Popeye in swift pursuit is ineffectual in stopping Olive until the inevitable spinach is consumed. Running time, 7 minutes.

Hot on Ice

(MGM)

Sport Subject

Pete Smith in customary fashion presents the highlights of hockey. In slow motion are shown the various formations and scoring plays. It is a particularly rough game accented by the comedy element typical of all Smith's subjects. Here he has the players fighting at the drop of a hat or, more appropriately, the dropping of a hockey stick on an opponent's head. Running time, 10 minutes.

Dude Ranch

(RKO)

Excellent Sports Subject

With the Rockies as background, the cameraman takes us to various dude ranches, showing the guests at play and work; at their fishing, horse wrangling, church services, campfires, hiking, games. The camera work is outstanding.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Cafe Rendezvous

(RKO)

Good Musical

Set against the night club background common to the Schwartzwald productions, this has a singer of Latin songs, Armida; The Samuel Brothers and Edith Fleming, who tapdances; and Oshins and Lessy, who sing comically about the French Foreign Legion.—Running time, ten minutes.

Seek Laws Against ASCAP In Iowa and Colorado

New legislation against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, with exhibitor backing, has been prepared for introduction in the Iowa and Colorado legislatures next month. ASCAP ascribed the action in part to the encouragement given anti-ASCAP legislation at the recent MPTOA convention in Oklahoma City.

E. C. Mills, chairman of the society's administrative committee, on Wednesday protested to large distributors against identification of the score charge as a "music tax" within the industry.

Depinet Will Address Carolina Convention

RKO's sales chief, Ned Depinet, is to address the annual convention this Sunday and Monday in Charlotte, N. C., of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina. His topic is the progress made in formulation of an industry trade practice program. Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, will discuss the same subject.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Columbia

COLORADO TRAIL, THE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—One of the best westerns we have ever played. A good story and plenty of action. Running time, 55 minutes. Played November 4-5.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown, June Travis—Don't believe we have ever had a real poor picture by this comedian (Attention: Ritz Brothers), and while I don't think this his best, it was plenty good and good enough for any weekday dates. Too much trick photography and not enough of the actual Brown acrobatics marred the value of the picture. But a big prevue crowd came, saw and liked it. Played November 12.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant—Good picture and all characters okay. We had a very unfavorable time to run it, but it is okay. Running time, 94 minutes. Played November 2-3.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

HOLLYWOOD ROUND-UP: Buck Jones—A novel change for Buck Jones. We did fair business, but our customers think the producers should keep Buck Jones in the typical westerns. Played November 5.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie, Barbara O'Neil—A wonderful picture of this type and Edward G. Robinson does some fine acting playing the law instead of the gangster as in his former pictures. It is bound to please in most situations. Played November 3-4. Running time, 83 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie, Barbara O'Neil, John Beal—Excellent. Robinson seems never to disappoint the entertainment seekers. Wonder if he couldn't try some sort of story that gets away from murder or crime? Just bet such a story, if down to every-day life, would up his box office, which is still low with us. Played November 2-3.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LADY OBJECTS, THE: Lanny Ross, Gloria Stuart, Joan Marsh—Lanny Ross seemed to have a very distinct following, especially women, and they turned out to see him in even this weak program picture. Many of our regular Tuesday nighters, action fans, turned it down. Ross should be cast in musicals. Played November 15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

OVERLAND EXPRESS, THE: Buck Jones, Marjorie Reynolds—A good western with the Pony Express as its theme. Background scenery was very attractive. A better production than the last Buck Jones which we used some time ago. Drew the kids but fell down on adult trade. Played November 11-12.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PAID TO DANCE: Don Terry, Jacqueline Wells—A nice programer that was played up from the sex angle and did satisfactory business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PENITENTIARY: Walter Connolly, Jean Parker—For those who like gangster pictures and lots of action this has it. Business average.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

REFORMATORY: Jack Holt, Bobby Jordan, Charlotte Wynters—Definitely better than we expected. The best Holt picture in some time. Bobby Jordan impresses and stands out in every scene he plays. Good business for Tuesday. Played November 8.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

START CHEERING: Jimmy Durante, Walter Connolly, Joan Perry, Charles Starrett—Pretty good picture, but none of the stars have draw at the box office. It will please. Played June 30-July 1. Running time, 75 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

THERE'S ALWAYS A WOMAN: Joan Blondell, Melvyn Douglas, Mary Astor, Frances Drake—A pretty good little picture. We have to play third run here in Torrington and, considering that fact, we got a pleasant surprise. We gave dishes with this show. Running time, 81 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

UNKNOWN RANGER, THE: Robert Allen, Martha Tibbetts—Just an average cowboy picture. Let's hear from you. I'm back in the columns this time to stay, I hope. Running time, 58 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins—A very novel picture with unusual twists to the plot that made it a very interesting mystery drama. Robinson for some reason has lost his pull with us, and although it was a good picture it was a flop at the box office for us. Bogart was excellent in the cast; Miss Trevor was terrible and Robinson is always good. Running time, 87 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Gaumont British

MY SONG FOR YOU: Jan Kiepura—My advice is, don't play this one. There is very little to it and your patrons will be dissatisfied with it. It should have been titled "My Sorrow for You," as every exhibitor who plays it certainly will be sorry. A word to the wise is sufficient. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 15-16.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert—I disagree with you, Mr. Inks of the Crystal Theatre. This wasn't any showmen's prayer, at least to me. I will agree with you, though, and say it was a good Laurel and Hardy picture. But upon second thought, pardon me, Mr. Inks, maybe your prayer was different from mine. Maybe it was the answer to your prayer. Would you be good enough to inform me what your prayer was? We played this one on a double feature and did a nice little business, that because our feature was Metro's "The Crowd Roars" with Robert Taylor, but alone, when I played in Schroon Lake, N. Y., it flopped. I will end the way you did, too, Mr. Inks. All in all, just a good show. Running time, 57 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Henry Hull—We nominated Mickey Rooney for the Academy Award for this picture. He is excellent in the unsympathetic role he plays. You cannot say much about this top picture by the number one company of the industry because when they are tops all is said and done. We expected a great picture and as usual MGM kept faith with the exhibitor. Our extreme congratulations and deepest thanks for the making and allowing us to play such a picture. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, Lionel Stander—As usual Metro comes through with another smash picture. Robert Taylor is at his best and the femmes sure will go for him in this picture. O'Sullivan her usually good self. Nice little plot and plenty of real fast action besides the love angle. Running time, 92 minutes. Played November 20-21.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

EVERYBODY SING: Allan Jones, Judy Garland, Fanny Brice, Billie Burke—This flopped completely on Sunday.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice, Nat Pendleton, Claire Dodd—Just fair. While they seemed to enjoy it for the time being, they realized the next day that it had been somewhat pretty soggy. Too much frivolity over serious things. Murder isn't really comedy. Played November 16.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FIRST HUNDRED YEARS, THE: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Warren William—Good dialogue picture. Virginia Bruce among the best, to my notion. I admire her in every picture. No picture could be so terrible with Virginia to put it over. She is beautiful and a swell actress. Played June 21-22. Running time, 73 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon—Very good opera; Sunday business just fair.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

HELL DIVERS (Re-issue): Clark Gable, Wallace Beery—Good picture, but the print and sound terrible. If you can get a new print, play it. Running time, 95 minutes. Played November 14-15.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

LISTEN, DARLING: Freddie Bartholomew, Judy Garland—Very good.—Hobert H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Judy Garland, Ann Rutherford, Lana Turner, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—To such a swell picture I repeat herewith the same report I wrote when I was at the Paramount Theatre in Schroon Lake, N. Y. Since that time Fawcett Publications were so impressed with my report that they copied it and inserted it on page four of their December issue of Screen Book. Here is the report: "Tops. Surpasses all of the 'Judge Hardy' series. This is doing a big business all over the country. Beats all of the real big pictures that Metro has put out. Mickey Rooney brings down the house every other scene in this picture. Marking my words, Mickey, you are headed for real big things. Rooney is real box office at any theatreman's box office now, and now is the time to cash in on his name. The picture is one laugh from start to finish and I, personally, endorse this as one of the best all around pictures that I have seen, not just this year, but any year since the start of the moving picture industry. Congratulations are in store for every actor and actress in the picture besides the producer and director. Orchids to you, one and all, and may you produce more to compare with this masterpiece." And thus ends a report that Fawcett Publications saw fit to quote in their Screen Book, which is released to the general public. Running time, 91 minutes. Played November 13-14.—Pearce Parkhurst. State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—This is tops as entertainment. A good clean comedy drama. They will come and see it and be glad they did so. Running time, 91 minutes. Played November 5-6.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney. Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—Another fine production from this popular family with Judy Garland, Gene Reynolds and George Breakston added. It looks as though Mickey Rooney is the future Clark Gable. Running time, 91 minutes. Played November 11-13.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, John Barrymore, Anita Louise, Robert Morley. Joseph Schildkraut, Gladys George—This is an unusually depressing picture, we believe. If it were not for the beauty and strength of Miss Shearer's performance, there would be little else to entertain one.

Robert Morley does splendid work also, while Tyrone Power seems rather out of it some way. Played November 6-7.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power—A lavish production by any standard, which will please the small percentage of your patrons who are at all interested in French history. We could have gotten better box office results from almost any program picture produced at a small fraction of the cost of this one. Running time, 140 minutes. Played November 12-13.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

OF HUMAN HEARTS: Walter Huston, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi—Good Civil War story; got by on Sunday.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

PARADISE FOR THREE: Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Florence Rice, Mary Astor—Clever comedy; slim midweek business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Lew Ayres, Ruth Hussey, Guy Kibbee—Another good picture from Metro. A highly amusing story, a good cast of actors and actresses who have not yet reached stardom. They carried the story very successfully, and if the way the picture went over here means anything I think Metro should put out a series of this type of picture. Running time, 72 minutes. Played November 19.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Ruth Hussey, Guy Kibbee, Lew Ayres—A very entertaining little picture. Not a special, but it has plenty more than most of the specials have in entertainment value. Enjoyed by everyone and Ruth Hussey is bound to go places. Robert Young was grand. Played November 1-2. Running time, 72 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Walter Pidgeon, Alan Curtis—As I said when I was manager of the Paramount Theatre in Scroon Lake, N. Y., a swell picture that should do big things at the box office. How are you, Harland Rankin. Let's hear from you. Running time, 85 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart—Rather a "screwy" story, but is very well put on and gave very good satisfaction. I would call it a satisfactory B-class picture. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 29-30.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—An excellent Beery-Rooney horse racing picture.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy—Did fairly well on Sunday.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—A good little comedy drama with lots of laughs. Each one did well. This is the type of story our patrons prefer for Robert Montgomery, but Franchot Tone not suited so well for his role. Very entertaining little picture of its kind. Played October 23-24. Running time, 69 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

TREASURE ISLAND (Reissue): Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Lionel Barrymore—Picture okay. Good crowd. Wallace Beery good draw here. Our first reissue. Running time, 103 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage

VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—Very amusing farce comedy which failed to draw, probably because it lacked star power. Played November 20.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown, Jane Wyman—Good story for Joe E. Brown; good Saturday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

LAST MILE, THE: Preston Foster, Howard Phillips—A good picture that should hold its own. We played it with "Shopworn Angel" and did okay. Running time, 75 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Monogram

BRIDE FOR HENRY: Anne Nagel, Warren Hull, Neil Hamilton—Don't put too much faith in this one. Pretty light entertainment. Will get by on the second half of dual bill.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GUNSMOKE TRAIL: Jack Randall—Just another western picture, a tip from your old friend Park. Running time, 57 minutes. Played November 19.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

MARINES ARE HERE, THE: June Travis, Gordon Oliver—This one's okay on a double feature. Running time, 60 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

PORT OF MISSING GIRLS, THE: Harry Carey, Milburn Stone, Judith Allen, Betty Compson—I suppose this one could pass on a double feature program as a co-feature providing you have a giveaway, too. We backed it up with RKO's "Vivacious Lady" and free china to the ladies, so didn't fare bad at all. In some theatres playing this feature only, exhibitors better put out the following sign: "Port of Missing Patrons." Running time, 64 minutes. Played November 17-18.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, Irvin S. Cobb, John Beal, Jean Parker—Good picture which failed to do the business I expected. Played November 16-17.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Jean Parker, Fay Bainter, Irvin S. Cobb, John Beal—This was real box office for us. I thought the story terrible, but dozens of my patrons said it was swell, so I must be wrong.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, John Beal, Jean Parker—Closest thing to Rogers since his death. Grand picture with a new Bob Burns. Packs a grand wallop. Boost to the skies when you sell it. Played October 24-29.—Helen Ulman, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

ARTISTS AND MODELS: Jack Benny—Played this late, but enjoyed by my patrons. Jack Benny through his popularity carried himself through some very difficult situations where the pace was very slow. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 3rd.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

BULLDOG DRUMMOND IN AFRICA: John Howard, Heather Angel, H. B. Warner—A good co-feature with laughs, thrills and chills. Not good, not poor. An in-between picture that should be taken fairly well by the movie-going public. Running time, 58 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Betty Grable, Hank Luisetti, Eleanore Whitney—Fair little programmer. The young bunch liked it and the older ones didn't kick. Running time, 65 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

DOCTOR RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Beatrice Lillie, Mary Carlisle, Andy Devine—Fair picture, but nothing to compare with Bing's late picture, "Sing, You Sinners," which is the best that he has made in a long time.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. Good patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting—Everyone enjoyed this except the assistant manager and so—well, so what! Business okay, due in part, it seems likely, to the companion feature starring Gene Autry. Played November 4-5.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

IF I WERE KING: Ronald Colman, Frances Dee—Grand. One of those costume things you will say that never drew your hat off. No, it's different and well done and will please in any spot, big or little. Colman and his lady love are grand. Go after it and remember what McPhee said.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PARTNERS OF THE PLAINS: William Boyd, George Hayes—Good western picture, but not the old entertaining qualities Paramount used to have in their western pictures such as "Wagon Wheels." The singing number was terrible. Why not introduce more musical numbers in the Hopalong Cassidy series and they would be more popular. Running time, seven reels. Played November 10.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

PRIDE OF THE WEST: William Boyd, Charlotte Fields—A fine western and up to the standard of "Hopalong Cassidy."—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander—Harold Lloyd has seen his better days and the people don't take to him now like they once used to. The picture was only fair, and with so many of our newer and modern comedians why put Lloyd in the picture? It's tough on you, Lloyd, but isn't it the truth? Take a tip from Park and when you play don't expect too much and you won't be disappointed. Running time, 93 minutes. Played November 15-16.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SING, YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Donald O'Connor—Donald O'Connor very good with Bing and Fred. Mighty good entertainment.—Hobart H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—We credit Dorothy Lamour as the reason for this picture doing a good local business. Our folks like her plenty. The rest of the cast is fine also and deliver nice portrayals. And the seal was a wow! Strong drama and good. Played November 13-14.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Dorothy Lamour, Henry Fonda, John Barrymore—Excellent picture of Alaskan salmon fishing.—Hobart H. Gates, Garlock Theatre. Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

TEXAS TRAIL: William Boyd, George Hayes, Judith Allen—Hopalong Cassidy westerns usually please. They are among our best western shows for box office appeal. Played June 27-28. Running time, 65 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

Republic

CALL OF THE YUKON: Beverly Roberts, Richard Arlen, Lyle Talbot—Good snow picture; fair Saturday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

FEUD MAKER, THE: Bob Steele, Marion Weldon—The poorest western we have played. They had better find some new stories for these westerns. Running time, 55 minutes. Played November 11-12.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry—Played this with "Kentucky Moonshine" (Ritz Brothers), Twentieth Century-Fox. This double bill did top business for us. Just whom to credit for the special draw? Let us divide the honors. Give the proper credit to Gene Autry and the Ritz Brothers and not forgetting Smiley Burnette, because without Smiley things would not be quite the same.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

LADY, BEHAVE: Sally Eilers, Neil Hamilton, Joseph Schildkraut—Fair programer; sound poor; Sally Eilers okay. Pleased on Bargain Night. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 16-17.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

OLD BARN DANCE, THE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—A very satisfactory piece of entertainment. It was well liked and we feel it did stimulate business, but because this is our first Autry picture since his popularity has increased, we are not positive he's draw for us. Production value is much improved, however. Played November 4-5.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PRAIRIE MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Shirley Deane—Good picture which played to nice business and pleased. Three tough boys from the city helped put it over. Smiley Burnette good as usual. Played November 18-19.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers—Another RKO picture that did less than normal business. Although it pleased Astaire-Rogers fans, it didn't please the majority. I'm afraid this team is washed up. Too much repetition and sameness of story. Even the musical numbers lack kick. Running time, 82 minutes. Played November 17.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Terrible. Should have pulled it the first night. It takes Metro to keep our box office intact with good pictures and their 24-sheet poster advertising.—Ben Brinck, West Point Theatre, West Point, Iowa. Rural patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—The answer is "No." The picture has everything except entertainment. A weak story, a few silly attempts at comedy and that is all. I doubt whether it will do as much business as an average program picture for any exhibitor. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 22-23.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

LITTLE WOMEN (Reissue): Katharine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Paul Lukas, Frances Dee, Jean Parker—Still about as good a picture as yet produced. When a producer has only to observe Katharine Hepburn in this all-American role and can see how nicely she does it, why will he go out and cast her in such unfortunate vehicles as those which have killed her box office value. A satisfactory reissue. Played November 17.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MAD MISS MANTON: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda—Good programer. Little away from the beaten path. Pleased generally. Plenty of action. Good cast and will stand alone in any spot. Running time, 78 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MAID'S NIGHT OUT: Joan Fontaine, Allan Lane—A good picture for laughs, more comedy than anything else, but that is what our customers like most. They seemed to like this fine. Played June 19-20. Running time, 65 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

MR. CHUMP: Johnnie Davis, Lola Lane, Penny Singleton—A very good picture for a dual bill. Got by nicely with us as such. Nothing remarkable but good entertainment for the younger fans. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Fay Bainter, Anne Shirley, Ruby Keeler, Ralph Morgan—Just an average picture that did less than average business, as we have found with most RKO pictures. A very simple story that satisfied a few. This company will sure have to pep up their pictures if they want to go places. Running time, 82 minutes. Played November 3.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Ruby Keeler, James Ellison, Anne Shirley, Fay Bainter—I must be the world's champion optimist, for after eight years in the show business I tried to sell 'em this family picture. I even advertised "all children under 12 admitted free if accompanied by their parents," and not one family came. After this it is going to be easier for a needle to go through a camel's eye than for a salesman to sell me family pictures. This is an excellent picture of the horse and buggy days. No star names except Ruby Keeler and she is a total loss in this type show. Little Virginia Weidler is the one who really goes to town. Her reading is a scream. Walter Brennan, Alma Kruger and Donnie Dunagan are outstanding. A good picture, but, "quoth the raven," etc.—Running time, 82 minutes. Played November 4-6.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

RENEGADE RANGER: George O'Brien, Rita Hayworth, Ray Whitley—We could not tell much about this picture as the photography was so dark that we could only see "the white of their eyes." All this season this series has had the plot happen at night, and, doggone it, the night is too dark. With us O'Brien is the lowest draw of any of the western stars we play. The plots are good, but that is all. No draw. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RENEGADE RANGER, THE: George O'Brien—One of the good George O'Brien westerns. My town likes him. Pleased all. Will go nicely if your town likes westerns. Running time, 59 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers, Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson—The Marx fans left in disgust. It lacked the punch and too little action. Many expressed their disappointment at no harp and piano numbers. Whatever RKO paid for this story, they got stuck. Running time, 85 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

SKY GIANT: Chester Morris, Richard Dix, Joan Fontaine—Too long, slow moving. Poor recording, poor modulation, too much variation in volume level. Dix is through and doesn't know it. No draw here. This will get over on Bargain Night or on a dual, providing you get a better print than we did. Played November 18-19.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

SMASHING THE RACKETS: Chester Morris—Good little picture. Stand alone in small towns. A dandy second half in the big spot. Pleased all who saw it. Angles are different. Everyone does his and her part fine. It's as good B product as anyone will give you. Running time, 69 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

STAGE DOOR: Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds—RKO can be proud of this picture. Good acting and a human story interspersed with delightful comedy combine to make this picture swell entertainment. This was the first appearance of Katharine Hepburn since January 19, 1936, when she appeared in "Alice Adams." The boys were again impressed by her fine work and regard her an excellent dramatic actress. Comments regarding the acting of Andrea Leeds were much more favorable than after her showing in "A Letter of Introduction." Ginger Rogers proved beyond a doubt that she needs no Fred Astaire or "musical productions" to get along in the acting world. Many think that she stole the picture with her "snappy wisecracks." Adolphe Menjou—well, as said before, he's a natural, so what more can a person say? The picture might be old, but if you haven't shown it as yet, do so. You'll not regret it. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 19.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart. Very good entertainment. Our patrons enjoyed it from start to finish. Ginger and Jimmy fine. Plenty of comedy. James Stewart liked very much and Ginger Rogers pretty good box office star. Played May 19-20. Running time, 90 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart, James Ellison, Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn—A very good plot to this picture. Acting excellent. Why the devil James Stewart does not "take" and become one of the real leading male stars in Hollywood is a question to me. Stewart is such a good actor and acts so sincere and natural that he shouldn't miss real stardom. "That voice" of his, too, seems to fit his parts perfectly. He seems so plain, realistic and decent that his real stardom time shouldn't be too far away. Attention, Sid Skolsky: When you quote me in your "Hollywood Column" in the future will you be kind enough to send in a tear sheet. I sure would appreciate it. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 17-18.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND Tyrone Power, lice Faye, Don Ameche—They don't make them any better than this.—Hobert H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Joan Hersholt, Claire Trevor, Cesar Romero, Joan Davis, Slim Summerville, John Qualen—A mighty pleasing piece of entertainment aside from the Quints part. As usual, a good cast, fine photography, fair sound and plenty of the "Grown Up Quints." To better than average business for three days. While comparisons possibly should not be made, our Hollywood child stars need not worry about competition from the Quints, from the mental angle, any way. Played November 13-14.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

GATEWAY: Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan, Lyle Talbot, Gregory Ratoff, Binnie Barnes—Bad box office results. Played November 11-12.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HAWAIIAN BUCKAROO: Smith Ballew—After playing Autry, Cassidy and Rogers westerns, it's pretty hard getting the public to go for Ballew. Business below par.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Tyrone Power—Very fine production and each star gave a swell performance. Nice business two days. Played June 26-27. Running time, 110 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

JOSETTE: Simone Simon, Don Ameche, Robert Young—This will please the majority if you can get them in, but Simone Simon no draw for us. Robert Young and Don Ameche are always grand. Played June 27-28. Running time, 73 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY (Reissue): Will Rogers —An average Rogers production which pleased less than average attendance. Played November 16-17.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple—An average Shirley Temple production, but our business was off nearly 50 per cent. Personally we do not tire of Shirley, but we have heard some people state that they think she has grown up beyond the cute little girl stage. Played November 9-10.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—A little too much of family affair. A little too simple. My folks don't seem to enjoy it any more. One or two of them got by nicely. If your town likes it, okay.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jones Family (Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane)—Average Jones Family comedy which pleased but failed to draw. Played November 14-15.—E. M. Freiburger. Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—Too much of the same pattern. My patrons are getting tired of them.—Hobart H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Brothers, Richard Arlen, Phyllis Brooks, Ethel Merman—More belly laughs than anything we have had for some time. Pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Brothers, Richard Arlen, Phyllis Brooks, Ethel Merman—If the Ritz Brothers are funny, then I have had a mistaken conception all my life of what constituted comedy. Played November 15-17.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

SUEZ: Loretta Young, Tyrone Power, Annabella—An epic truly. Excellent for audiences that like historical films. School children should be compelled to see such films as this. Extra selling should pull them in. Played November 14-19.—Helen Ulman, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

TIME OUT FOR MURDER: Michael Whalen, Gloria Stuart—Average murder mystery which pleased but failed to draw film rental. Played November 14-15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WALKING DOWN BROADWAY: Claire Trevor, Phyllis Brooks, Leah Ray, Michael Whalen—Nothing special but pretty good entertainment. Pretty good cast, but none have very much drawing power in our town. Claire Trevor and Michael Whalen both good in this picture. Played June 26-27. Running time, 75 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER: Tommy Kelly, May Robson—Pleased 95 per cent. Extra business and an increase second night. Running time, 91 minutes. Played November 7-8.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

DRUMS: Sabu, Raymond Massey—In a city where foreign pictures are as sour as last year's cider, this picture did swell business. Sell Sabu and color. Get out your drums and beat them loud and long on this one. Played October 30-November 5.—Helen Ulman, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly—Another good comedy that was unusually well received by the cash customers. Where Patsy Kelly is liked, be sure to let them know about her. She won't disappoint them. Played November 7-12.—Helen Ulman, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

Universal

"CRIME" OF DR. HALLET: Ralph Bellamy, Josephine Hutchinson, John King—Fair picture, but it couldn't stand up against bingo competition.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

GOODBYE BROADWAY: Alice Brady, Charles

Winninger—Fair to a medium sized audience. Played Novemmber 12.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charley McCarthy," Andrea Leeds—Just as nice entertainment as one could wish, but for some reason or other failed to do business we anticipated.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MAD ABOUT MUSIC: Deanna Durbin, Herbert Marshall, Gail Patrick, William Frawley—Very fine entertainment; fair Sunday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

MAD ABOUT MUSIC: Deanna Durbin, Herbert Marshall, Gail Patrick—Very good picture. Deanna Durbin always good and a fine singer. Do not be afraid of this one. Played June 16-17. Running time, 96 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday—Mighty cute story to less than Sunday average business. Can it be possible Deanna is slipping? Running time, 100 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson—Terrible. Walkouts the worst I have ever seen. Should never have been released.—Hobart H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. Small town patronage.

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson—Terrible. More complaints and walkouts on this picture than we have had in a long time. Absolutely silly and none of the stars rate here. Worth about half the money we paid for it. Played November 8-9. Running time, 86 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

JEZEBEL: Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, George Brent—Good southern story and fine acting. About the best Bette Davis has made for box office appeal. She does not do so good for us, but business good on Jezebel. Played June 19-20. Running time, 104 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

SISTERS, THE: Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Anita Louise, Jane Bryan, Ian Hunter, Dick Foran, Beulah Bondi, Henry Travers, Alan Hale—Very good drama. Davis and Flynn excellent.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, Charles Bickford, John Litel, Alan Hale—Kept the audience interested to the end. Alan Hale stole the show.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper—Although I consider this an excellent picture, it did only average business. Pleased those persons that read the book or were familiar with Douglas' other books. Received lots of complaints from country people who couldn't get the drift of the story. Splendid acting by Fay Bainter and Claude Rains. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 31.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BIG SQUIRT, THE: Charlie Chase—A good two-reel comedy that pleased. Plenty of laughs.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

CADET CHAMPIONS: Special Sport Thrills—A fair short showing the activities of those young men enrolled in West Point. Not enough to it to make it real interesting. However, it will pass. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SCRAPPY'S NEWS FLASHES: You will have to take your hats off to this series of cartoons as they are excellent. This one is exceptional. Do not waste it. Running time, six minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SNOWTIME: Color Rhapsodies—A good short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Educational

RETURN OF THE BUFFALO, THE: Treasure Chest—Excellent.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SING FOR SWEETIE: Lee Sullivan—Okay enough.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SKY FISHING: Treasure Chest—Splendid outdoor reel.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BRAVEST OF THE BRAVE, THE: Historical Mysteries—We played this the same week as "Marie Antoinette," and since every one got sick of French justice in that one, this fell short of satisfying. Produced okay, however.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX: Robert Benchley—No good. Running time, nine minutes.—C. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

HOW TO READ: Robert Benchley—Too dry and not as good as some Benchleys we have run.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HOW TO READ: Robert Benchley—Another good Benchley.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

JUNGLE JUVENILES, NO. 2: Pete Smith Specialities—Fair short. Running time, 10 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

LITTLE RANGER, THE: Our Gang—Amusing.—E. M Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LITTLE RANGER, THE: Our Gang—A really good Our Gang effort. The oldtime burlesque sure kept the folks jovial.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PIGSKIN PALOOKA: Our Gang—Our gang still packs a lot of entertainment but not as good as the two reelers.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PYGMY HUNT, THE: Captain and the Kids—Very good cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PYGMY HUNT, THE: Captain and the Kids—Not as good as some others in this series, but with their comic strip being syndicated all over the country in daily and Sunday papers, the series has great possibilities. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

STRANGE GLORY: Historical Mysteries—Average. Mildy interesting.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Miscellaneous

WORLD IS OURS, THE: A great reel for the motion picture industry. Entertaining, educational and should sell the industry to the public. Give us more like this.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

BE UP TO DATE: Betty Boop Cartoon—This short is okay. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

LISTEN TO LUCAS: Headliners—An entertaining orchestra short that will be a good filler for any program. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

MUTINY AIN'T NICE: Popeye the Sailor—Average Popeye.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NEWS: Issue 28—Okay. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS, NO. 26—Okay. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT PICTORIAL: No. 8—Fair. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

RKO Radio

DUDE RANCH: Reelisms—A fair travelogue in the western country.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GOOD SCOUTS: Walt Disney Cartoons—One of the best to date.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOCKSHOP BLUES: Nu Atlas Productions—Have read some bad comments on this reel and differ with most commentators as we feel that it is better than average. The only poor part was the ending. All the acts are excellent, especially the dance team. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

INTERNATIONAL RHYTHM: Nu-Atlas Productions—A good variety short. Singing, dancing (the little lady who did it knew how, too), Hawaiian music and a swell rendition of "Alabama Barbecue" by a Negro chorus. Would have made an excellent two-reeler. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

WYNKEN, BLYNKEN AND NOD: Walt Disney Cartoons—Good but nothing outstanding. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

GLASS SLIPPER, THE: Terry-Toons—A fair colored cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: Okay Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

NEWCOMER, THE: Terry-Toons—A just fair black and white cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

NEWCOMER, THE: Terry-Toons—Fairly good cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STRANGER RIDES AGAIN, THE: Terry-Toons—Black and white cartoon and a takeoff on "Hi! Ho! Silver." Okay.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TRAILING ANIMAL STORIES: Adventures of Newsreel Cameraman—Your audience will recall many of these from recent newsreels and consequently lose partial enjoyment of the reel.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WOLF'S SIDE OF THE STORY: Terry-Toons—Nothing wonderful about this. Just a filler-in of a cartoon. Hope Twentieth Century makes them better. Running time, eight minutes.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Vitaphone

AFRICA SPEAKS ENGLISH: "Charlie McCarthy," Edgar Bergen—This reissued reel lacks a good script and so is rather flat. Not really funny in the expected tradition of "Charlie."—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

DOCTOR CUPID: Ken Murray, Oswald—A fine Murray and Oswald comedy two-reel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MY POP: Henry Arnetta—Very poor; pass it up. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STAR IS HATCHED, A: Merrie Melodies—Very good. We like the Merrie Melodies as good as the Disney cartoons. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

TRAPPED UNDERGROUND: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure"—A good subject.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

UP IN LIGHTS: Pat Rooney—An excellent musical that went over big. Best of the series this season. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WAITING AROUND: Broadway Brevities—Fairly good. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Serials

Columbia

SPIDER'S WEB, THE: Warren Hull, Iris Meredith—Played second chapter. A good serial which if given the proper exploitation should build up matinee business to a considerable extent. Columbia has put out some swell accessories on this one. A neat little press book, too. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SPIDER'S WEB, THE (Episode Three): Warren Hull, Iris Meredith—A swell little serial for the kids, but a little bit too fantastic for the older folks. There is great opportunity here, Mr. Exhibitor, so take advantage of it for those extra $$$$. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

IN COURTS

Action Due in Suit Against Two Unions

Delayed by a crowded calendar, the application by Opera On Tour, Inc., for an injunction against the American Federation of Musicians and the International Alliance of Theatrical Employees, was due to come before the supreme court, New York county, this week.

The "opera" company seeks to prevent the two unions from "interfering" with its right to use union stagehands. This "interference" first was expressed in Birmingham, Ala., this month, when the IATSE stagehands, induced by the cooperation of their organization with the musicians' union, which expressed the first and only opposition to the company, walked out. The troupe gave "Faust," the only number in its repertoire without scenery and costumes, and with a pianist delivering the entire musical accompaniment.

Dismiss "Pilot" Suit

Charges by Dolores Lacy Collins, widow of Jimmy Collins, who wrote the book, "Test Pilot," that the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film infringed on her husband's work, has been dismissed by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe in New York. Judge Coxe declared that he had compared the book and film and found only "superficial similarities" which he described as "mere coincidences."

Gillespie To Represent Rights to Sousa Film

James F. Gillespie has been awarded exclusive selling rights to motion picture product on the life of John Philip Sousa, famous American bandmaster, who wrote more than 150 marches and composed six operas and numerous suites. The deal was negotiated through W. Herbert Adams, attorney for the Sousa estate.

Mr. Gillespie plans to submit the title "The Stars and Stripes Forever" as a suggestion for screen use, that being the title of Sousa's most famous composition.

French Socialists Cut Film Propaganda Budget

The Socialist Party in France is curtailing its use of films as a propaganda medium, its national council (SFIO), in Paris, cutting in half the annal expenditure of 300,000 francs on propaganda films, according to Choisir, weekly radio and cinema publication of Paris.

The Communists, says Choisir, have seriously indicted the results of film propaganda. The Communists had contributed the largest sums to production.

"Orage" Has Premiere

The American premiere of the French picture, "Orage," which Tri-National Films, Inc., is distributing in this country, was held at the Belasco theatre, Washington, D. C., November 25th. The picture stars Charles Boyer and features Michele Morgan, new French film personality.

Eddie Cantor's program for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company has been renewed for 26 weeks of additional broadcasting over Columbia Broadcasting System network, effective January 2d. The series has an 89 station hook-up. William Esty and Company is the agency.

Marilyn Miller's Will

Mrs. Ada Thompson Miller, of Hollywood, was the beneficiary in trust, for life, of the residuary estate of Marilyn Miller, the motion picture and musical comedy star, who died in November, 1936. This was revealed by a tax transfer appraisal, filed in New York this week. The gross estate was $97,407, the net $47,573. Chester L. O'Brien, Miss Miller's husband, was not mentioned in the will, but is listed by the appraisal as sharing in one-half the net estate, under the decedent's estate law.

Louise Sydmeth

Louise Sydmeth, former actress, died November 26th in New York. A native of London, she came to this country in 1890 and appeared in many stage productions.

John Ryland

John Ryland, the last original employee of the Empire theatre in New York, died November 25th after nearly half a century as Negro doorman and later as the unofficial superintendent of that Broadway landmark, which was built by Charles Frohman, the producer.

Edward Baughan

Edward Algernon Baughan, British music and dramatic critic, died November 26th in London. He was 77.

Miss Jessie Peck, Fostoria, Ohio, has been appointed assistant censor by E. N. Dietrich, state director of education.

OBITUARIES

Richard Ince Dies In Motorcycle Race

Richard Ince, 23-year-old son of the late film producer, Thomas H. Ince, was killed Sunday in a crash with two other motorcycles in the 200-mile Pacific Coast motorcycle championship race at Oakland, Cal. Mr. Ince was thrown headlong into a fence. Mr. Ince's mother, Mrs. Elinor Ince, of Beverly Hills, had tried to dissuade him from riding as a career and had won his promise to quit. Thomas Ince, an elder brother, and Mrs. Ince, the deceased's 19-year-old wife, witnessed the accident.

Last year an uncle, Ralph W. Ince, actor and director, was killed in an automobile accident in Kensington, England.

Mother of Walt Disney Dies in Hollywood

Mrs. Flora Disney, mother of Walt and Roy Disney, was found dead in her North Hollywood home on Saturday from inhalation of what police said were fumes from a faulty gas heater. Mrs. Disney was 71. Mr. Disney's father, Elias, 73, and a housemaid were unconscious and were removed to Hollywood hospital.

The Disneys would have celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary on January 1st.

Charles Horn Dies

Charles S. Horn, Sr., 76, of Rehoboth Beach, Del., died last week of a heart attack. Mr. Horn established the first amusement pier in Rehoboth 40 years ago and later constructed the first theatre at the resort now operated by his son, Charles, Jr.

Stanford Remington

Stanford Remington, 48, died at his home in Cincinnati of a heart attack. Mr. Remington at one time operated a theatre in Kankakee, Ill., later moving to Cincinnati, where he became manager and owner of Excelsior Film Quality Pictures.

Peter Ridgeway

Peter Ridgeway, actor and founder of the Players Theatre, one of London's tryout theatres, died there November 22nd at the age of 44.

Willis Goodhue

Willis Maxwell Goodhue, writer for the stage and screen, died November 22nd in City Hospital on Welfare Island, New York. He was born in Akron, 65 years ago. The film, "The Sin of Nora Moran," produced by Majestic in 1933, was based on a story by Mr. Goodhue. His widow is the former Carolyne McLean, actress.

Edward Garly

Edward Garly, 60, minstrel man, vaudevillian and screen actor, died in Hollywood November 25th while dancing in a film scene.

"I always thought National Screen Service was too rich for my blood . . . figured my little theatre out here in the sticks couldn't afford your trailers . . . but I guess the best is the cheapest when it comes to trailers . . ."

Right you are, sir! National Screen Service is geared up to serve the smallest, most obscure theatre in the land . . . and from there, right up to the biggest first-run Palace. . . .

And the same showmanship, the same thought and care goes onto every one of the 12,000 screens we serve.

No form of theatre advertising costs so little as National Screen Service Pre-vues. This is one form of advertising that the smallest theatre can use at its best; can equal every other theatre in showmanship and quality. Every theatre can afford National Screen Service! In fact, NO theatre can afford to be without it.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

NO, SIR, NO "BULL"

Where it all started, we can't say, but no doubt back in the early Roman times. One of Caesar's press agents, seeking for an idea to advertise the weekly Games at the local Coliseum, dug up a goat, blanketed it with a banner reading: "Goat to the Coliseum today. It's the biggest show you ever saw"—and had the critter led up and down the main street.

Then there's the ancient story of the tavern keeper on the waterfront. He placed a swallow in a cage with a sign: "One swallow doesn't make a drink. We serve the biggest whiskey in town." Another that started long ago was the mule stunt. You know, the one with the sign: "I'm a donkey. That's why I'm not going to the Opera House tonight."

It might have been P. T. Barnum who first used the cow bally. If he did, it's a cinch that he was told the gag was an "oldie". But P. T. stopped a lot of traffic with it. Over the intervening years, the exact stunt and variations of it continued to attract attention. Evidently, it continues to do so, as reported recently by Manager John Robinson of the Ritz Theatre, San Bernardino, on "Cowboy from Brooklyn", as here illustrated.

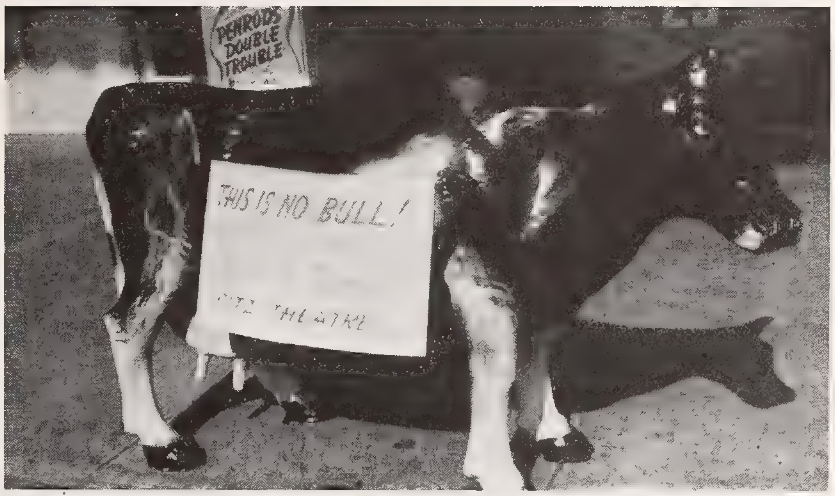
CARRYING ON A TRADITION

Publicity at its best may well be claimed for the most thorough job done by showmen generally in projecting their annual Thanksgiving matinees. Campaigns to hand reveal all manner of page-one breaks, editorial mentions, other important comment and endorsement.

The institution of Thanksgiving benefits for the underprivileged has an honorable tradition, of course. But it is hardly to be denied that this tradition has become even more significant because of the enthusiasm and cooperation displayed by the theatremen of America.



EXPLOITATION, ONCE OVER

Dropping down to the neighboring shop for a bit of tonsorial attention, your Chairman was handed a cardboard folder enclosing, of all things, a safety razor blade. Front cover read: "What has never been done before?"—and inside: "A barbershop presenting you with a razor blade".

Questioning revealed some inside barber information: that only three per cent of the customers requested shaves. Thus, the giveaway, a promotion returning positive reaction—in fact, creating "favorable comment".

Theatremen bewailing showmanship's passing should dry their tears. It is far from lifeless. Tired of snubbing from the industry which gave it birth, showmanship has moved over to other lines of business where a warmer welcome is assured.

In a recent issue of the paper's Sunday magazine, Frank Nugent, New York Times motion picture reviewer, wrote a piece headed "What's Wrong With the Movies". One quick answer might be the army of critics who harp on what's wrong with the movies.

Round Table in Pictures

Despite the theatre sign, the panic is not on in Paris, at least at the Le Paris, where "Room Service" under the title "Panique A L'Hotel" is reported to have brought to the boxoffice boulevardiers in great numbers. Aiding the campaign no end as reported by Mike Hoffay, RKO foreign publicity director, was lifesize giant cut-out heads of the Marx Brothers planted on either side of the entrance.

Majority of campaigns reported on "Drums" disclose that in most instances, best attention was gained by simple inexpensive tieins. Arranged by Les Pollock, Loew's, Rochester was street bally. Two men and a little colored boy in costumes of India, beating drums paraded throughout the downtown sections. Only advertising carried was two conservative hand banners with imprinted title.

For "Too Hot to Handle," Manager Albert Gutterman at Loew's New York City Delancey Street Theatre used the street ballyhoo shown at left. Replica of modern sound camera was used, with sound cable, control box, etc., and mounted atop small truck that cruised through the entire neighborhood. On truck, Gutterman planted one of his ushers dressed as cameraman. Lad pretended to take pictures of pedestrians. Idea was conceived and created by Murray Lenekoff and H. Cooke of the house staff.

What is reported to have been the first Hawaiian Band to appear in Soerabaja, Dutch East Indies, was engaged by Manager Fred Young at the Luxor Theatre for the engagement of RKO's "Hawaii Calls." Band played hit tunes from the picture in lobby ahead, and then on stage as an added attraction during entire run. Specialty was reported to have attracted huge crowds to the theatre.

During the Broadway premiere of Monogram's "Mr. Wong, Detective," starring Boris Karloff, at the Globe Theatre, a large display of Chinese objects created unusual attention in the lobby.

Measuring approximately fifteen feet in height and entirely camouflaging the boxoffice of the Rialto Theatre, Allentown, Pa., was setpiece for the engagement of "Drums," created and designed by Manager Leo Trainor. Primarily to create the proper background and carry out the Moorish effect, the eye-arresting display is reported to have created much word-of-mouth comment, and remained in lobby ahead and during run. For his front, Trainor used giant blowups of Sabu on his fiery steed together with large cut-out title letters spotted prominently below marquee.

Shaffer Ties Contest To "Cowboy from Brooklyn"

The girls from Harrisonburg, Va., were given an opportunity to compete in the search for Miss America, which Frank Shaffer tied in to his opening of "Cowboy from Brooklyn," the State Theatre having been appointed as official headquarters in that region. Daily News-Record conducted a local contest to select candidates for the Virginia State finals.

Each cooperating merchant sponsored a girl and presented their choice with a gift after the contest, and plugged the event in their ads and throughout store. Radio stations cooperated, urging all unmarried girls to enter, and station WSVA plugged the hit tunes.

Marxmen Shoot Works For "Room Service"

The Mad Marxes were on the loose in Miami, when Alfred Weiss, Jr., dressed three lads as the famous brothers and sent them out on the streets to ballyhoo the opening of "Room Service" at the Olympia. These same boys put on a demonstration between halves of the Miami-Oglethorpe football game in Miami's Orange Bowl Stadium. Carrying large suitcases with "Room Service" copy distributed sample bags of peanuts promoted from merchant in exchange for envelope mention.

Imprinted menus were planted in leading restaurants, card tieups made with various hotels and large book was placed in lobby preceding and during run in which patrons were invited to register.

Bowling Alleys Exploit "Banners"

Special tieup was effected by Rodney Collier, Stanley Theatre, Baltimore, with recreation center whereby 100 of their bowling alleys had "White Banners" one sheet cards with theatre and playdates spotted prominently. Passes were also awarded to leading bowlers each week.

Window cards were placed in all leading store windows as were midget cards in restaurants and hotels. Special spot announcements were secured over Station WFBR on the program, "Trailing All Stars," which is broadcast each Sunday morning. For this broadcast, passes were given as prizes on the program. Mention was also secured over WCBM on their "Movie Gossip" program.

Directional Arrows Lead to "Boys Town"

American Legion drum and bugle corps paraded through the business section of Titusville, Pa., as part of F. C. Brown's "Boys Town" campaign at the Orpheum, winding up in front of the theatre where they went through formations. Cards were spotted in selected locations around town and in surrounding communities, as were directional arrows all leading to the theatre.

Screening held for the clergy, school officials, heads of civic and fraternal organizations, city officials and others was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, which brought additional publicity to the engagement. Y.M.C.A. tied in their membership campaign by recommending the picture.

Picquet Praised for Church Aid

C. W. PICQUET

Discovering that a local congregation, due to construction difficulties, was temporarily without adequate church facilities, Charles W. Picquet, operator of the Carolina Theatres, in Pinehurst and Southern Pines, N. C., and for years president, M. P. T. O. A., of North and South Carolina, recently offered his Southern Pines unit for Sunday services. In recognition thereof, and of other cooperations on civic projects by Mr. Picquet, the Southern Pines Pilot had this to say editorially:

"When Charlie Picquet's final labors are accomplished here on earth and he finds himself at heaven's door, the guardian angel won't have to bother the weary stranger very much with an immediate query as to what he did for his brethern down in the Sandhills. Surely the Accountant-General has been busy in days past jotting down in the Register of Facts good deeds committed by Charlie Picquet. And if that accountant isn't careful he may find himself acquiring the habit of writing ditto day after day from unconscious repetition, and that would be a bad habit even for a recording angel to get into.

"One of the last marks made on the big books was when he befriended preacher Barber's flock. The struggling Presbyterians have met with disappointments in the construction of their new church. Deferred plans are discouraging. Charlie Picquet, a Methodist minister's son, absorbed enough of the teachings of wise old Solomon that he recalls 'Hope deferred maketh the heart sick.' So he promptly offered his theatre to the homeless church. Without a place of meeting, further difficulties were looming up ahead of the established congregation and Sunday school. Now on Sunday mornings, automobiles take their place on the street vacated by the late Saturday night theatre crowd. Barber, with his hopeful band of followers, is carrying on his services and holding the church together.

"Someday, whether it be tomorrow, or the far away future, Charlie Picquet, through habitual generosity, will be recognized as an important factor in preserving the first Presbyterian church of Southern Pines."

Junior Jitterbug Jamboree Inaugurated by Moss

With swing winging its way merrily across country, Dick Moss, Fox Carmel Theatre, Hollywood, has started a junior jitterbug jamboree with entry limited to those from six to 16. Contest was announced on stage, screen and through lobby cards two weeks ahead. Through cooperation of local dance instructor for the younger set, the jamboree was plugged in all dance school ads, story also landing in the Los Angeles Examiner.

Jitterbug Contests Reported Clicking In Various Sectors

Counted as a real aid at the boxoffice is the Jitterbug Jamboree, at Shea's Buffalo, according to Charles B. Taylor, Shea Theatres publicity and advertising head, who credits the house as among the first to start this type of contest. Idea put on every Thursday night, at 7:30, is the outgrowth of a Jeep and Truckin' contest and amateur show, used effectively for the past three years. Tiein is made with the Buffalo Evening News, which prints daily entry blank and gives important publicity during week.

Local master of ceremonies, who supervises the contest, introduces dancers, etc., is paid $10 per night, and three cash prices totalling $100, split $50, $30, and $20, given to winners. Six to seven teams compete weekly. When their entries arrive they are notified to appear for audition on Tuesday night, where weeding out is necessary.

Taylor writes that winners in a recent contest won first and second places in the state championship contest at the state fair. Winners appeared on the Buffalo stage as added attraction with Rudy Vallee and are now on tour with Hal Kemp.

"Jitterbugs" Big in New Jersey

Reported also as a continuous click at the Warner New Jersey Theatres, by Bob Paskow, division ad head, the Jitterbug contests at 20 of the houses, held weekly, are attracting wider attention each week. Contests are put on at different theatres on Mondays, Wednesday, Thursdays and Fridays. Semi-finalists selected compete in the finals at the Branford, in Newark.

Individual contests run about 20 minutes with eight couples. Cash prizes are offered and on tiein with photographer, pictures of winners are run in cooperating papers and displayed in theatre lobbies. Newspaper tieins are sought but where they are not available the general campaign of trailers, heralds, lobby advertising and newspaper advertising copy has been found to cover all avenues of publicity. Paskow stresses the necessity of a competent master of ceremonies and points out that no specified time is set for the semi-finals, campaign building up the fact that the contest runs continuously which is proven to hold up interest.

Ohio Theatres Report Success

The jitterbug craze is also being capitalized in the Warner Ohio theatres, Dick Wright also reporting, the success of a series of these "nights" in the different houses. Sid Dannenberg, district publicity director, has organized a comprehensive campaign and a manual with all the dope in advertising, publicity, exploitation, trailer copy and tieins has been sent to all managers.

General plan is to run six weeks with cash awards on Saturday nights. On the seventh week, winners in all towns, compete for grand prizes. Audience reaction to date has been remarkedly receptive to the additional entertainment, says Wright, with Knox Strachan, Doc Elliot, Julius Lamm and Lou played in lobby. Full-page co-op ads by lead- with their "jitterbug" openings.

Awards Rulings

Competitions are now divided into four Quarter Periods:

Jan. 1—Mar. 31; Apr. 1—June 30; July 1—Sept. 30; Oct. 1—Dec. 31.

Entrants will compete in five classifications, according to population and situation:

A—Cities, 250,000 and over.
B—Cities, 100,000 to 250,000.
C—Cities, 25,000 to 100,000.
D—Cities, up to 25,000.
E—Neighborhood and subsequent-run theatres.

Quigley Quarterly Awards will be given as follows:

Silver Plaque to best entry in each classification.

Citation of Merit Sheepskin Certificate to runner-up in each classification.

First and Honorable Mention Sheepskin Certificates in each classification to be awarded other entries deemed worthy of recognition.

An additional Citation of Merit will be awarded each Quarter to the entry selected as best from among that Quarter's Plaque winners, regardless of classification.

Every contribution, including institutional campaigns, to the Round Table will be considered in determining the Quarter winners. Although it is not necessary to forward complete campaigns, they are also eligible for consideration.

Entrants will be judged on their contributions to the Round Table over each Quarter period and not upon single picture campaigns, as heretofore.

Although their participation is not discouraged, theatremen contributing only one campaign on one picture during any one Quarter will not be given the same consideration in the judging as theatremen who enter more than one campaign during any one Quarter.

Entrants will all "start from scratch" in each Quarter. Winners of the Annual Awards will be selected from among contestants making the highest scores over the four Quarters of the year.

"Boys Town" Prize to Cashier; Brown Promotes Election

It is the practice of Manager H. A. Albright, State, Washington, Pa., to award each month a prize of $10 to the staff member submitting the best idea or campaign during that period, winner selected by committee of local names. Prize last month was voted to Miss Mary Reihner, cashier, who suggested and aided the campaign on "Boys Town," set down here and reported by Charles Baron, MGM exploiteer in the Pittsburgh area.

Miss Reihner arranged to contact every possible church executive, starting with the local parish priests, who agreed to endorse the date to their congregations, Knights of Columbus, Knights of St. George, ladies' church auxiliaries, etc. Principal of local parochial school, next interviewed, was sold on the possibilities in the picture for moral uplift and persuaded to announce the date on school bulletin boards. In addition, it was agreed that special school periods be set aside when pupils would use "Boys' Town" for composition material in their studies. Meetings were scheduled with all prominent locals who were in a position to make quick contacts with other church groups.

The prize winner also saw to it that the picture was publicized at a Catholic church bridge party and Bake Sale, coming two days ahead of opening. Head of the organization took pains to emphasize the engagement to all attending. Same procedure was adopted at private home entertainments where Miss Reihner was invited to announce the picture and endorsements of the various hostesses.

Paper Cooperates First Time

The unusual newspaper cooperation obtained from the local Herald-News by Bill Brown, for the picture at the Durkee, Fall River, Mass., and reported in a recent Round Table picture section, proved to be part of a citywide campaign in which the paper further cooperated on an election of local boys to run the city for one day. The daily assigned a special feature writer to the project for daily stories which told of the participation of leading organizations and city heads. Day selected was the opening of the picture. Ballots were printed and distributed, photos of winners published by the paper and displayed in lobby. Full-page coop ads by leading merchants also were effective and other stores contributed window displays.

Brown credits the picture for getting the paper to cooperate and reports this tie-in a "first time" for such participation in local theatre history.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Star Gives Away Pup

Arranged by Chick Evans, Loew's State, St. Louis, was giveaway of one of Janet Gaynor's sealyham pups through contest planted in the St. Louis Star. Public was invited to pick a name for the pooch and, through tieup with TWA, the pup was taken off plane in care of the hostess and greeted with due ceremony at the St. Louis airport.

The Feminine Touch In Theatre Operation

The Gals Discuss Advantages or Disadvantages of Sex "On the Job"

Numerously though they cannot be counted in the ranks of managers and publicists, there are women concerned with various phases of exhibition who play important parts in the conduct of their individual operations. It was thought that among them there might be some who would care to comment on the place of women in the theatre and on this page is set down what two of the gals have to say about it.

Miss Nadel handles publicity and advertising for the Filmarte, New York foreign film theatre. Miss Alch manages the Shady Oak, in St. Louis.

by LILLIAN NADEL

Filmarte Theatre, New York City

TO deny that being a woman has its advantages—even in the film business—would be unfair to my fair sex. I do not propose, therefore, to refute the laws of nature—or man. Nor do I mean to hark back to that ancient slogan: "Equal Rights for Us Gals." I simply intend to state our case for the benefit of those mugs who still think they have the edge on us. Merchandising, I believe, is the one profession in which no special hurdles are erected for the woman, and in which she is accepted on an equal basis with her masculine colleague, The retailers realized long ago that if Miss Lizzie Smith is the consumer, Miss Tillie Jones should be the buyer. This was conceded in the interest of salesmanship, which translated into film terms means showmanship.

LILLIAN NADEL

But women not only betray their amazon instincts at the counter. They are equally vociferous in their appraisal of Bob Taylor making love to Greta Garbo on the screen of a darkened theatre. And just as Danielle Darrieux's coiffure becomes the rage of the nation, Tyrone Power's dimples make his admirers swoon in their seats. For even if the woman doesn't always pay at the box office, she is, by and large, responsible for the shekels that flow through the wicket. (Papa goes where Mama goes, or else.) Not that producers, distributors and exhibitors are ignorant of this phenomenon in our industry, but they frequently forget it, judging by their attitude towards the women in the business.

Says Merit Counts, Not Sex

The woman, by virtue of the fact that she is a woman, has no advantage in this business. By the same token, she has no real disadvantage. The issue (remote though it is) would then seem to simmer down to a question of individual ability. And it's true that once the Lucy Stoner learns her job and what goes with it—squelching the wiseacres, spotting the phoneys and occasionally turning a stone ear to retain her girlish laughter, she stands, to rise or fall, on her own merit.

In exploiting pictures, particularly in publicity channels, a woman faces keen competition from her virile rivals. Frequently the feminine approach smooths the path, but actually to plant a yarn with a film editor the femme p. a. must produce a good story. There is really no favoritism in publicity as far as the woman is concerned. It is her job to find an angle, tie it up with the picture and work it into a feature fit to print. In placing the publicity story the personal element enters, of course, but it is over a period of time, during which a critic or editor comes to respect the integrity of the press agent—man or woman.

No Discrimination Found

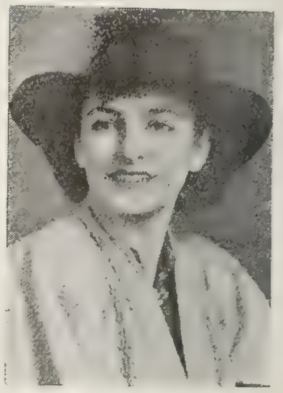
In advertising, which on the exhibition end is usually relegated to the same person, the woman's point of view is especially important. For one thing she is in a position to write copy that will attract members of her own sex. Secondly a woman brings a certain "taste" to advertising, which should dress up ads and make them palatable not only to the women but men folk as well—if the woman's function in the home can be taken as an illustration. And so with exploitation where a woman may have just as many practical selling ideas as the most seasoned showman. It is even possible that, given the opportunity, the feminine publicist might suggest a few stunts that were not overworked in the nickelodeon days.

The fact is that, by no means, are women being discriminated against in the film industry. But neither do their opinions and reactions receive the same consideration given to those expressed by the men. That there is room for female counsel is proven by the film executive who, stymied by a problem, consults his secretary and frequently finds her advice well worth taking. And there is an embarrassing number of men who, consciously or unconsciously, have formed this habit. At that, it is not a bad habit. For women provide a certain balance, essential to real showmanship. The woman also brings a certain amount of finesse and understanding—in addition to decorating an office and supplying the usual charm. And since the motion picture business today is so inextricably involved in producing pictures for women the world over, it may be that the women in it have something to contribute.

by ROSALIND ALCH

Shady Oak Theatre, St. Louis, Mo.

FAR be it......for any female of theatre exhibition to ask for trouble by giving the advantages and/or disadvantages of being a "femme" in business, especially show business. But in answer to your kind letter (frankly, I couldn't resist seeing my name in print,) I'll write about something, even if it's all plugging the Shady Oak Theatre in Clayton, Missouri. Upon entering the exhibition end of show business I tried a hand at advertising and publicity. A greener "cub" there never was. Thank my lucky stars I worked for a gentleman who knew every angle of the business and for the first two months (and even today) I was like absorbent cotton. This great, fascinating method of making a living got into my blood and I couldn't learn enough about the whole set-up.



ROSALIND ALCH

Came a new policy introduced into a little 700-seat suburban house, nestled among the best residential and apartment sections of St. Louis County, namely the Shady Oak Theatre. The policy and price set-up was ideal for the neighborhood, i.e., good foreign pictures, to run a week, at reserved seat prices (nominally) 55 and 75 cents.

Woman Manager Selected

The organization for whom I work decided upon a female theatre manager for the new type operation to make the necessary contacts among women's clubs, foreign organizations, foreign newspapers, foreign consuls, and so forth. Don't mind saying the advertising, publicity and special contact experience I had packed away was invaluable at the Shady Oak (rechristened) "Cinema."

But came the dawn fourteen weeks later when the "cinema" customers evidenced signs of choking on their foreign diet of pictures, and we reverted back to the good-old systematic split week policy, double feature programs 'n'everything!

Here am I at the Shady Oak—nearly a year's anniversary—and it's a neat little house to run. Have a conscientious janitor who knows how to catch the dirt before I see it, a doorman who does everything around the theatre but nip-ups, two charming usherettes who know how to handle the unruly children of luxury, and a tiny cashier who smiles and says "Thank you" to the socially-prominent customers. Oh yes, two grand, competent projectionists who, to date, don't mind working for a girl.

Feminine Touch In Showbusiness

Since orchids are flowing about the page, I'll even go further. When in the business but a few days, I soon learned the value of reading and keeping each and every copy of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, and that holds true even more so today, when we're digging around for the old-and-good revivals.

My age (herewith attached birth certificate) is twenty-three. If the photograph says otherwise, it's because I worry a lot. And in this business, who wouldn't.

But seriously, couldn't say there is an advantage or a disadvantage in being a member of the feminine variety. Whenever possible, I try to apply common sense, also to learn the likes and dislikes of the patrons who attend the theatre and make informative digest of available product so that it may be spotted to its best advantage.

Newspapers Best Medium

In a recent experience at this house it was proved beyond a doubt that our most important medium was advertising in the metropolitan newspapers. Helpful cooperation with local smaller publications has proved advantageous because these editors have granted large concessions in many instances.

There's another thing we've discovered here in the wilderness, that occasionally there is a "natural" for your neighborhood and when you can pick it up and sort of extend yourself in selling it, it pays in the long run. Speaking of long runs, when they show signs of doing big things we always retain the program.

A large university within walking distance has made it possible for us to have art-drawn window cards for a year. They're costless and attractive.

Keeping the Shady Oak clean for our patrons' enjoyment has been fun for the house is similar to a residence. It has, too, been reflected in patron comment who also think the theatre is clean and pleasant.

The aforementioned is not to be construed as a "job put over" for we're still looking for a a box-office hypo, one to hammer out fifty-two successful weeks every year.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 136

Question No. 136 was: (A) In what various diameters are SRA carbons made? (B) What is the result of their overloading? (C) How may the approximate candle-power production of light resulting from various amperages be computed?

The following made acceptable answers: S. Evans and C. Rau; J. R. Prater; H. Edwards; G. E. Doe; C. Oldham; W. E. Limmroth; R. and K. Wells; L. H. Kelley; L. Johnson; G. H. Payne; M. B. Stout; J. A. Zachritz; R. W. Groton; W. Schoeneman; G. Burdis; M. and J. Devoy; C. Hawkins; D. N. Logman; M. and B. Walker; F. H., S. and P. Dalbey; T. and W. Turk; E. and F. Wentworth; S. T. Adams; L. Day and W. S. Daniels; E. Exline; E. Lomax; S. True; H. T. Mandrake; S. Robbins; K. K. Robinson and R. E. Bullard; B. B. Kent; D. and W. Porter; G. L. Goss; H. T. Plum and D. A. Shea; W. B. Hennesy; K. Irwin; G. L. Baxter; F. A. Ludney; M. Samuels and P. L. Goldstein; T. Lavenburg; W. R. Matthews and J. R. Davidson; F. W. Brandenburg; W. B. Hunter; P. and L. Felt; L. C. Finney; L. D. Tomlinson; H. I. Pendelbury; G. Thompson; T. Watkins and N. S. Ried; H. N. Owens, J. Walsh and D. Powers; M. F. Robinson and L. A. Beachwood; C. H. Lowrie; F. Hess; S. M. Stillman; N. F. Sheldon; H. H. Todd and L. E. Dodson; A. and B. Richardson; J. C. Lathrope; A. W. Baxter; E. J. Brandell; W. Jones and T. L. Ward; W. R. Allen and M. Samuels; R. R. Robbins and W. Winkler; M. D. Cohen and F. J. Bernstein; P. Somers; B. L. Morris and H. M. Jackson; R. W. Groton; T. W. Redhouse; S. M. Tomberg; M. Mitchel; P. Slobodny; L. M. Richardson; B. L. Oden, T. S. Taylor and R. Smith; D. R. Spencer; M. D. McGuire; L. F. and G. Brown; H. J. Benjamin; G. N. Cohen; R. Davis and M. F. Brown; M. B. Dillon; C L. Williams and T. D. Brady; L. B. Daniels and O. Ordel.

R. W. Groton replies to Section A, "The SRA carbon combinations are designed for low-intensity, reflector type lamps, which draw approximately 28 to 42 amperes. Positives may be secured having diameters of 10, 12, 13 and 14 mm. Their current ratings are: 10 mm., 21 to 24 amps.; 12 mm., 28 to 32 amps.; 13 mm., 32 to 42 amps.; 14 mm., 42 to 52 amps.

(B) Messrs. Evans and Rau say, "Overloading SRA carbons will produce a very unsteady light without gain in screen illumination, but with added current consumption, which represents waste."

Charles Oldham says, "Results of overloading SRA carbons are (a) possibility of spindling, (b) possibility of sections of the core being blown out, (c) waste of carbon, (d) poor and unstable screen illumination."

(C) J. R. Prater says, "The approximate candle-power production of light resulting from various amperages with SRA carbons may be computed by multiplying the average crater brilliancy per square millimeter by the area of the crater in square millimeters for any given amperage. The average crater brilliancy of SRA carbons, burned with d.c. is approximately 165 candle-power per square millimeter, regardless of amperage, within the recommended amperage limits.

"However, the area of crater increases as amperage is increased. A 12-mm positive burned at 28 amperes forms a crater with an area of approximately 49 sq. mm. The same carbon burned at 34 amperes forms a crater having an area of about 60 sq. mm. This represents approximately 8,085 candle-power for 28 amperes, and 9,900 candle-power for 34 amperes.

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 142

(A) Describe the effect of sound upon the human ear.

(B) What is meant by sound "frequency". Cite some analogous examples.

(C) Just what is the relation between the pitch of a sound and its frequency?

"These light values, however, cannot be considered as even a rough estimate of how much light the audience can receive from the screen. The collector (mirror) of the lamp cannot pick up all the light produced by the light source. Possibilities of loss are many, and certainties not a few, therefore the question of actual light production, and the reception of light by the eyes of audiences are very different matters. It is possible that inclusion of possible losses were not intended, but I shall nevertheless briefly name them.

"Some light is absorbed by the mirror itself, mostly through inevitable reflection from the outer surface of glass and at the silvered surface itself. A large proportion is lost at the spot, since but a small proportion of the light reaching that point falls upon and therefore passes through the aperture opening (see figure 103 of the Bluebook). A considerable percentage is lost by reflection from the surfaces of the projection lents elements, which is increased if the surfaces are unclean. There may be further loss if the light beam does not all enter the projection lens, as too often is the case. There is some loss if the light beam must pass through an atmosphere impregnated with dust or smoke. Some (about one-tenth) of the light passes through the screen perforations and is lost; some will pass through the outer layer of the screen's reflective surface. There will be reduced value that amounts to loss if the screen's reflective surface be of low value. There will be loss in proportion to the amount of reduced reflective power the screen surface may have because of possible chemical change due to age, or to accumulations of dust from the atmosphere; and, last of all, loss if between screen and eyes the light must pass through dusty air or atmosphere filled with smoke."

True, it was not intended that these losses be enumerated, but Brother Prater has done such an excellent job of it that his answer was accepted as written.

Norman B. Rydge, head of Greater Union Theatres, has established a school for theatre managers in Sydney, Australia.

India Year Book Shows American Pictures Lead

From 1933 to 1937, inclusive, more American films were shown in India than of any other country, according to the first annual edition of the Indian Cinematograph Year Book, recently issued by the Motion Picture Society of India, which was started in 1932. The figures are: America, 1,581; India, 1,054; Britain, 446, with the pictures of six other countries totaling only 20 shown in the five-year period.

The Year Book, a 700-page analysis of the film industry in India, is edited by B. D. Bharucha and dedicated to outstanding native film figures; D. G. Phalke, in the production field; Jayshanker Dwivedi, cine-journalism; the late J. F. Madan, exhibition; Mayashanker Bhatt, distribution; Dhanji Desai, cine-laboratory, and K. B. Ardeshir M. Irani, pioneer in sound and color work.

Divided into sections, the book includes articles and statistics on production, distribution, exhibition, legal phases of the industry, amateur cine, who's who, trade and fan publications throughout the world, and equipment and supplies. Also included are lists of Indian producing units, feature films and short subjects, as well as articles on screen censorship in all countries, and a list of books on subjects pertinent to the motion picture.

Thomas to Distribute Tri-National Product

Harry H. Thomas has entered into a distribution contract with Tri-National Films, Inc., importer of foreign product, to handle its films in the eastern territory, including the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia. Mr. Thomas was formerly president of First Division Exchanges.

John E. Otterson, president of Tri-National, said: "The association between Tri-National and Mr. Thomas is of a partnership nature and is in line with the general policy which has been adopted by Tri-National of making arrangements with distributors of standing and experience in various territories of the United States."

Reade Acquires Plaza

Walter Reade, New York circuit operator, has purchased the Plaza theatre on 58th Street and will take possession September 1, 1939, when the present lease held by Leo Brecher expires. The purchase price was said to be $450,000. This makes 39 theatres in the Reade circuit. He will remodel the house at an estimated cost of $25,000.

ALPHABETICAL INDEX TO THE RELEASE CHART

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com.; Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Three Outstanding

NEW FILMS

EASTMAN announces three important new negative films for the professional motion picture field.... Plus-X: fast, fine-grained. Unsurpassed for general studio work.... Super-XX: super-speed, surprisingly small grain. For difficult newsreel shots, or for use wherever exposure is a problem.... Background-X: ultra-fine grain, ample speed. For backgrounds. Also excellent for all-round exterior work.... These films not only make dramatic advances along their particular lines, but offer the high reliability and photographic quality typical of Eastman sensitized materials. Vol. 133, No. 11 December 10, 1938

FOR DIVERSITY

MOVEMENTS on the march to give Exhibition a new freedom, whether by law or concession, will presently be found also to have bestowed upon the motion picture theatre a new responsibility.

Latitude in programming the presentations of his screen while enabling the showman to serve his audiences more precisely will make it also obligatory that he does. Both buying and selling will be new jobs.

It is most probable that both Exhibition and Production will be making some surprising discoveries as product more responsibly and responsively selected is presented to the tests of audience reaction.

The current and long standing impression of Hollywood production that this is a nation of one public is likely to be disturbed. A probable consequence in sight is that the studio preview zone now extending from San Francisco to San Diego will have to be considerably extended, for sake of a diversity of guinea pigs.

There is much vociferation from one sector in demand of motion pictures more intimately related to the issues and problems of the day. It is most obvious that preponderantly this vociferation comes from persons, groups and movements more interested in their political and social devices than in the theatre as an institution purveying entertainment. Possibly you may have seen that said before on this page. You will see it again. But there is another sector of demand that does not vociferate because it has no message for the screen, no desire to rule or invade it, but which does have a considerable willingness to buy from the screen wares of a diversity of interests.

ADDRESSING an audience of showmen in the Middle West the other day, Mr. M. A. Lightman of Memphis, dealing with this aspect of appeal, reached about for a title to illustrate his contention and found he had to go back to so remote a release as the pictures of Commander Byrd at the South Pole. It has been that long since the American screen has presented an unalloyed expeditionary feature sized picture.

Progressively since the initial days of the adventure picture with Mr. Paul Rainey's African hunt the film of fact has been increasingly subjected to the ministrations of artistry, ever the artistry of Hollywood so consummately skilled at addressing its one public. The last expeditionary picture that got anywhere was "Simba" by Martin Johnson, sold by Frank R. Wilson and Max Weisfeldt, substantially in an independent market, for $1,200,000 at the box office. Somewhat earlier, somewhat better made, enjoying a vastly better press, "Grass" did in world gross film rental about $75,000, "Nanook of the North" around $350,000, "Moana of the South Seas" less than $150,000, all being sold under auspices committed to the one-audience Hollywood notion. All of these pictures mentioned are famous in the lore of the industry. Each of them succeeded financially in the ratio of exhibitor attention, as encouraged by Distribution.

It is clear enough that Hollywood knows very well how to interest the most people the most of the time. That's averaging.

It is not quite so clear but probably accurate to say that the largest success for the industry can be had by attention not to the majority alone, but also with attentions to sizeable minorities.

MASS merchandising, which includes production with the mass audience concept, restricts the Exhibitor to such portions of his public as coincide with the national, perhaps international, mass average.

All the competition of the picture makers is at the bull's-eye of the preponderant majority.

Striving, imitative Hollywood reminds one of that classic line from Miss Anita Loos' famed Lorelei Lee, who remarked that when Mr. So-and-So was in town "we just seem to do one thing."

The imitative repetitive formulæ are easy, and ultimately costly. Take just for instance the case of Mr. Henry Ford, riding easy in the groove of the "Model T" for years and quoted as saying that anybody could have a car in any color he wanted, so it was black. Now Mr. Ford is making three kinds of cars in a multiplicity of models and colors.

Diversity is the new order in merchandising. Rights of minority tastes are winning recognition in terms of their buying powers.

The motion picture will come to it yet.

THIS WEEK—Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, at press audience in Hollywood in connection with the employment of a new vice-president, was quoted: "I always have an idea." . . . The Treasury Department officially states that the new five-cent piece with the head of Thomas Jefferson is a success, a hit in fact. It would be interesting now to hear what they think of the dollar. As for nickels we'll prefer always the old one with the profile of Chief Two-Guns White Calf, because a couple of decades ago we put him on the screen. . . . Now that the new subway builders have completed $5,000,000 worth of legs to hold up the Sixth Avenue Elevated railway at our front door, it has been foreclosed and sold for junk. There's genius in government. Meanwhile it will be nice for Mr. Van Schmus to get the old "L" out of the Music Hall lobby. The world's greatest theatre has been operating under the world's worst approach. . . . Just beyond the Music Hall roof there's a new garden, formal with clipped evergreens, going on top of the Associated Press building. There'll be tulips there in the spring. There's no "pie in the sky" hereabouts, but the upper reaches of Mr. Rockefeller's Center are getting right Babylonian with their patterned greenery. The artfully bucolic intimations on the AP building remind one of the story of the re-write man, city bound toiler under a green eyeshade, who while taking a murder story from a reporter far out at dawn on a Jersey farm, asked him to hold the line in silence a moment. "Now go ahead," he said, "just wanted to hear that rooster crow—first I've heard in twenty years." . . . The Hollywood wire just reports that a British correspondent has asked Mr. Goldwyn if he contemplated an offer to employ David Windsor. "No, I'm going after the King," Mr. Goldwyn responded.

This Week

"Contents Noted"

Exhibitor organizations, the Department of Justice and the White House this week received copies of a "memorandum of understandings" containing the first draft of the distributors' proposals for trade practice revision. Exhibitor comment on the document, expressed by officials of the MPTOA and Allied, centered on criticism of the memorandum's "vague phraseology," lack of provision for a date of enactment and of the fact that no mention was made of the establishment of conciliation boards, a point considerably stressed in the preliminary discussions.

Reactions to the proposals, made by the parties concerned immediately after the copies were received, are on page 12 and the proposals themselves are printed in full on pages 13 and 14.

In Washington, Department of Justice officials accused the large distributing companies of "stalling" in the Government's anti-trust action against them, and the Department was reported ready to insist that the case be brought to trial in January. An agreement for day by reports on theatre deals was reported to have been made.

The story appears on page 14, column 3.

A federal jury in Indianapolis on Monday brought in a non-guilty verdict in the seven-year-old trust suit of Indianapolis Amusement Company vs. major distributors. The plaintiff laid its receivership in 1937 to the block-booking practice of distributors, and asked $250,000 damages.

Balaban and Katz and other major company defendants in the Government's criminal contempt suit in Chicago were scheduled Thursday to ask Federal Judge Woodward to order the Government to supply a bill of particulars, to deny the Government's request for subpoenas for the impounding of documents and the appearance of witnesses and to grant the defendant's petition for an extension of time to answer the Government's charges.

Time for filing Paramount's appeal to the United States supreme court on the North Dakota theatre divorcement law was extended Wednesday from December 15th to January 5th.

May Drop WPA Play

Plans of the Federal Theatre of the midwest for production in Chicago of John McGee's "Horse Opera," a satire on the motion picture industry, of which he was co-author, may be dropped. The Federal Theatre does not own the play. Mr. McGee resigned as director of the Federal Theatre to engage in private business.

Ruling Aids ASCAP

Federal statutory court rulings have enabled the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to resume music tax collections in three states where hostile legislation had been enacted, Tennessee, Florida and Nebraska. Awaited this week from the United States supreme court was a ruling on the constitutionality of similar legislation against the Society in Washington, states a ruling which may decide the fate of the whole ASCAP setup. In not opposing the federal court injunction on the Tennessee legislation last week, the state attorney general's office indicated it was awaiting the supreme court decision. One other state in which anti-ASCAP legislation has been enacted is Montana.

To Bar Minors

The City Council of Cincinnati is studying a theatre licensing ordinance which would prevent the attendance of children under 16 on school days and prohibit the selling of tickets to them after eight P.M. on evenings preceding school days even if accompanied by their parents. The measure was opposed strenuously by Charles D. Mervis, representative of the local suburban exhibitors' association, and was tabled pending discussion and adjustment of its provisions. Licenses for theatre operation to be issued annually at a cost of two dollars and to be revocable by the city manager for violations are contemplated.

Circuit Buying

Contract signing for the 1938-39 season, delayed during the summer and fall by uncertainties consequent upon legislation, litigation and speculation, has accelerated sufficiently in the last few weeks to bring the market somewhere near the normal for the period. A total of 83 large circuits, representing because of their buying power the key to the market in most situations, have signed 453 franchises with distributors for approximately 22,650 playdates. The total are somewhat less than those of other years on corresponding dates but the rate of increase during the months since the summer gives an optimistic tint to the picture.

A survey of the product bought to date by these circuits and the records of past years are incorporated in the story and table starting on page 15.

Italian Move

Official extension of the effective date of the Italian film monopoly decree from December 31st to June 30th has been proffered to the distribution agents of United Artists, RKO, Universal and Columbia only.

Under the terms of the extension these Italian agents either must adhere to the ENIC monopoly regulations at the end of the six months or liquidate their distributing organizations. Under this procedure such distributors eventually would have to sever their connection with the four American companies which they now represent, join the state monopoly and handle what other films ENIC gives them to distribute.

No indication has been given as to whether or not the extension would be made applicable to Loew's, Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners on the same or comparable basis. Meanwhile, however, those companies have not rescinded their orders for liquidation there by December 31st.

Industry opinion in New York is that the move by Rome is probably a strategical maneuver to break the solid opposition of the American companies to the monopoly.

Hays Report

Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, left the coast for New York by train last Friday following submission of his semi-annual report to the full membership of the MPPA. In his report Mr. Hays spoke of the trend of the European and South American markets, and urged production for South America.

Cliff Work of Universal and J. R. McDonough of RKO were elected to the board of directors.

The trade practice conferences and the production of a picture representing the industry at the New York and San Francisco World Fairs were also discussed.

GB Distribution

Under plans being discussed this week 20th Century-Fox may assume the handling of all Gaumont British business in America. The move, it is understood, is in the interests of economy on the part of the British organization and would assure the continued distribution of GB films in this country. Under the prospective plan GB product not only would be booked through 20th Century-Fox exchanges as at present, but the American company would handle the actual sales and distribution as well.

Mr. Arnold Joins

What with his official position and the implications of it as a function of public service, the joining of Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, as a sponsor of Films for Democracy, announced Wednesday, was of some surprise to the world of the motion picture. The anti-trust suit against the major producers and distributors of the motion picture is presumably addressed to adjustment of the industry to existing law. The Films for Democracy movement represents a militant movement toward dictation of a nature held by some mature observers to be rather outside the purposes of democracy when reinforced by color of federal encouragement and authority.

U.S. Statistician Says $2 a Day Wage Rise Would Lift Receipts 45 Millions

Motion picture theatres would take in an additional $45,000,000 a year if the income of the nation's lowest paid workers was increased by 50 per cent, members of the Temporary National Economic Committee were told at the opening of the Administration's monopoly investigation last Thursday, in Washington.

The advantages which would be derived by exhibitors were cited as an example of how various industries and trades would benefit if the income of the 5,200,000 wage earning families—not individuals—receiving a present total income of not exceeding $1,250 a year was increased by no more than $2 a day.

Appearing as the first witness at the committee's hearings, Dr. Isador Lubin, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, disclosed that an official Government study of the loss occasioned by the 1930 depression placed the figure at $132,000,000,000, of which $119,000,000,000 was attributable to unemployment, and to show how narrow is the margin between lack and plenty said that an increase of $2 per day in the income of these families, not now on relief, would wipe out the surplus capacity of most industries and treble the amount spent by that segment of the population on luxuries.

Opening the Administration's Legislative-Executive investigations into "big business" of all type, the committee seeks to determine the state of affairs and welfare of the Nation, and the relations of "big business" thereto. A long line of witnesses will testify over a period of weeks, with the committee expecting to get from their testimony material recommendations to be made at the next Congress for changes in the federal trust and monopoly laws.

Save for an expected analyzation of patent pools the probe is not expected to touch directly on motion pictures. That matter evidently will be taken care of through the government's pending trust suit against the eight large film companies.

A $2 a day increase in the earnings of the low-income group, he said, would mean an additional $234,000,000 a year spent on recreation and luxuries, $800,000,000 a year on food, $416,000,000 on clothing, $613,000,000 on housing, $213,000,000 on fuel, light and refrigeration, $224,000,000 on house furnishings and equipment, $73,000,000 on personal care, $208,000,000 on medical care, and $385,000,000 on automobiles and transportation.

Mexican Ban

The Italian picture "Scipio l'Africano" has been banned throughout Mexico by the Confederation of Mexican Workers, the country's most powerful labor organization, on a complaint that it extols imperialism. The Confederation forbade showing of the film on the eve of the premiere at the Cino Palacio, a first run Mexico City cinema, after both distributor and exhibitor had spent considerable money advertising the picture.

Allied Birthday

In celebration of its tenth anniversary, Allied States will hold a "Founders' Day" dinner at the Carlton Hotel in Washington on January 17th. The dinner, to which independent exhibitors generally will be invited, will be held in conjunction with the annual directors' meeting, January 17th and 18th. The Association began operation on Jan. 15, 1929.

Games Prohibited

Operation of "bank nights" is in violation of Oregon laws prohibiting lotteries, circuit Judge Robert Tucker ruled last week at Portland, sustaining a demurrer of District Attorney James R. Bain. Defendants were headed by Carl R. McFadden of the Laurelhurst theatre.

District Attorney Edmund R. Dewson of Norfolk County, Mass., notified police chiefs in Norfolk and Plymouth counties that they must halt all theatre use of Bank Night and similar games within their jurisdiction.

Next month will see a decision on Bank Nights in Mercer County, Pa., when Patrick Natero, manager of the Columbia, in Sharon, is arraigned on a charge of operating a lottery. District Attorney E. C. Moon banned all Bank Nights last spring.

Balaban and Katz is reported to have extended the use of premiums in outlying houses. Hal Burriss, distributor for Coulter Premiums, has opened a Detroit showroom.

This Week In Pictures

THE London office of United Artists is host to visiting members of the Selznick International production and executive personnel from Hollywood and New York. MAJORS SUBMIT REGULATION PLAN, EXHIBITION AND U. S. SAY "SO WHAT?"

MPTOA, Allied Are Cold to "Memorandum of Understandings"; Conciliation Plan Not Definitely Included

The majors' committee on trade practices this week issued to exhibitor organizations, and supplied to the Department of Justice and the White House, draft of a document which was called a "memorandum of understandings" reached in principle by distributors and exhibitors. Also, contrary to arrangements and contemplations, the document became public.

MPTOA—" . . . vague phraseology" . . . . . "does not provide for local conciliation boards" . . . "no provision for date of enactment".

ALLIED—" . . . mistake to conclude the draft is acceptable," says Nathan Yamins. " . . . not the end of the road," says Abram Myers.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE — Indicates that no proposals would meet all the points raised, but considers it progress toward consent decree.

WHITE HOUSE—Standard "no comment", but suggestion that the Department of Justice had the matter in hand.

Exhibitors, as represented both by Allied and the MPTOA, are not in agreement on several points that the "understandings" represent what they expected to be the full solution of the problems they have been seeking to have adjusted for years.

The MPTOA objects to the majors' draft on three counts: (1) It contains vague phraseology "all the way through"; (2) It does not provide specifically for establishment of local conciliation boards, which the MPTOA will insist upon; (3) No provision is made for a definite date of enactment; the MPTOA is prepared to fight for enactment immediately upon ratification, whereas the distributors suggest application to 1939-40 product.

Further Meetings Postponed

The MPTOA indefinitely postpones its "final" negotiating meeting with the distributors, originally scheduled for December 8th and 9th. When the MPTOA set those dates it did not expect a written draft would be completed prior to the meetings. The exhibitors had expected to have incorporated in the first draft any additional concessions obtained.

Now that the draft is in writing, the MPTOA's committee will make recommendation to its board which will result in set instructions from the directors through the negotiating committee to the distributors later.

Yamins, Myers Comment

From Allied States Association, through Nathan Yamins, its president, came the statement that "it would be a mistake to conclude that the draft as submitted this week by the distributors is acceptable to Allied's negotiating committee."

Mr. Yamins, from Fall River, Mass., declared: "When certain other matters have been worked out, and submitted by the distributors' committee to our negotiating committee, the program will be turned over to the board of Allied for final action."

DEPINET DISCUSSES SELF-REGULATION

Describing the industry as a self-governing body at a meeting of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, held this week in Charlotte, Ned E. Depinet, vice-president of RKO Radio, said that self-regulation has proved successful during the last 10 years, and that if the producers are to maintain their present high standard of production, it is best that they continue to be a self-governing body.

Mr. Depinet also commented upon the importance of the new 20 per cent cancellation privilege, and said that the producers selling policies steadily are tending to favor the exhibitor.

Abram F .Myers, general counsel, in Philadelphia, Tuesday, said that while the first written draft had advantages, "it does not represent the end of the road" (of Allied's campaign for adjustments), "nor is it self-executing, and it doesn't mean that in it exhibitors will find every solution." Certain Allied groups have been insisting upon theatre divorcement and block booking elimination.

Mr. Myers also noted the absence of mention of rules and machinery for local conciliation boards.

Cole in Hospital

Allied's negotiating committee is "handicapped," observed Mr. Myers, in that its chairman, Colonel H. A. Cole, of Texas, is in Baylor hospital at Dallas and will not be available for active work for several weeks. "This, however," explained Mr. Myers, "does not necessarily mean that the committee will be delayed that long." Allied is not expected to make known its own position until after January 1st.

Transmitting the tentative draft to the exhibitor organizations, the distributors' committee appended a note, as follows: "If this accompanying memorandum substantially expresses your understanding of these proposals, we suggest a joint conference with the Department of Justice at the earliest possible date for the purpose of obtaining its approval of these proposals and considering methods for putting them into effect."

The Department of Justice evidenced on Wednesday the attitude that no proposals which the distributors could draft would meet all points raised in the Government's anti-trust suit against them. It was suggested, however, that the draft could be made part of negotiations pointed toward a consent decree.

White House Silent

Department of Justice officials pointed out that they intentionally had refrained from sending a representative to the industry meetings at which the program was variously discussed. How the Department arrived at the conclusion that any of its representatives would be invited to these discussions was not disclosed.

At the White House, official comment was withheld, but the impression was left that the matter of motion picture practice is being left entirely to the Department of Justice.

William F. Rodgers, MGM, for the distributors' committee, in submitting the document to the exhibitors, observed: "To cover all subjects considered as national in their scope, it has been necessary to synchronize the thoughts expressed by the different theatre groups, and the draft form of memorandum represents only such subjects, it being the belief that another and subsequent method will apply to those topics purely local in their application." Exhibitors were wondering what the distributors had in mind by "another and subsequent method."

S. R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, said the draft "represents the first attempt on our part to put into writing the spirit of the majority of the things discussed."

16 Proposals Made

The distributor draft contains 16 proposals the full text of which is printed on page 13.

1. Cancellation privileges with certain restrictions, shall be 20 per cent where rental averages $100; 15 per cent on $100 to $250; 10 per cent on over $250.

2. Distributors agree to make as complete as possible announcement of pictures for the season.

3. Distributors agree to a lesser number of pictures than offered due to inability of an exhibitor to play all offered, but reserve right to offer complete output to a competitor.

4. Preferred playing time shall not be designated when film is sold on flat or rental or on percentage when a guarantee is included, but when on straight percentage, designation shall be by mutual agreement.

5. Theatres shall be able to obtain some run of a distributor's product, provided theatre is not obsolete and exhibitor is reputable, with arbitration in event of dispute.

6. No exhibitor shall be required to buy shorts, newsreels or trailers as a condition of getting features.

7. Score charges, if any, on the current (1938-39) product shall be consolidated with film rental when on a flat sale, but in 1939-40 there shall be no score charge on percentage pictures.

8. Distributors will notify exhibitors of price classification of each picture on rendering notice of availibility, except for first runs in the keys.

9. Features shall not be sold to non-theatrical accounts if arbitration determines they constitute unfair competition.

10. Each distributor will use its best efforts to simplify its form of licensing agreement.

11. On selective deals, exhibitors must exercise such right within 21 days after notice of availability is mailed.

12. Distributors will not prohibit exhibitors delivery of a picture if a prior picture on release has not been delivered through latter's failure under agreements where accounts are obligated to play product in order of its release.

13. No distributor shall coerce an exhibitor into a contract on threat to build or otherwise acquire a theatre for operation in competition to him.

14. Practice of false boxoffice receipts is condemned.

15. Principles and factors involved in matters to be determined by arbitration and machinery are open to further discussion.

16. These provisions to become effective with the 1939-40 product, except where affecting any license agreements now in force.

TEXT OF DISTRIBUTORS' PROPOSALS

Following is the text of the first tentative draft of the trade practice program for self-regulation as proposed by the eight large distributors. It was written by a special distributor committee, headed by William F. Rodgers, of MGM, following formulation conferences of all the distributors, and after discussions with exhibitor committees. The draft was sent last weekend to exhibitor groups for inner-organization analyzation prior to final conferences with distributors on enactment.

1. Cancellation Privilege

If the total number of feature motion pictures offered at any one time to an exhibitor by a distributor for any run in any situation shall have been licensed by the distributor, the exhibitor, if he shall have substantially performed the license agreement, shall have the right to exclude therefrom without payment therefor not to exceed 20 per cent of the total number of feature pictures so licensed if the license fees of all thereof average not more than $100 per picture, 15 per cent of the total number of pictures so licensed if the license fees of all thereof shall average in excess of $100 per picture and not in excess of $250 per picture and 10 per cent of the total number thereof if the license fees of all thereof shall average in excess of $250 per picture provided the exhibitor shall give to the distributor written notice of the exhibitor's election to exclude each of said motion pictures within 10 days after the mailing by the distributor of the first notice of availability thereof. If any dispute should arise as to whether or not the exhibitor has substantially performed the agreement such dispute shall be determined by arbitration. Upon the exclusion of each feature motion picture the license therefor and all rights thereunder shall terminate and shall revert to the distributor and shall be charged against the number of exclusions to which the exhibitor may be entitled whether or not a new license agreement for the exhibition thereof be subsequently entered into by such exhibitor. In determining the number of pictures that may be excluded under the foregoing percentages fractions of one-half or more shall be counted as one and fractions of less than one-half shall not be counted.

If the license fee of any feature motion picture specified in the license agreement is to be computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the gross receipts of exhibition, such license fee (for the purpose of computing the average license fee of all the motion pictures licensed) shall be determined as follows:

1. Average the license fees of all of the distributor's feature motion pictures of the preceding motion picture season exhibited for the same run in such situation upon a percentage basis at the exhibitor's theatre(s).

2. If none of the distributor's feature motion pictures were exhibited for the same run in such situation upon a percentage basis such theatre(s) during said period then the average license fee shall be determined by agreement at the time of the making of the license agreement.

For the purpose of this section, "Westerns" produced in connected series or groups (connected by a common star or continued story), re-issues, and features produced in any foreign country (except such as may have been produced outside of the U. S. in the English language by an American producer or distributor or subsidiary thereof) shall not be counted in determining the number of features offered or licensed or the number of features which may be excluded and if listed on the same license agreements as the distributor's other feature pictures shall be listed as a separate group.

For the purpose of this section only, "Westerns" (produced as aforesaid), features produced in any foreign country (except as aforesaid) and "re-issues" shall be deemed to be separate groups of pictures and each such group shall be subject to exclusion by exhibitors on the same basis and subject to the same condition as herein set forth.

The exclusions under this section shall be exercised proportionately among the respective price brackets provided for in the license agreement, provided, however, that any number of exclusions may be made out of the lowest price bracket. For example, if the license agreement shall license 48 pictures and the highest price bracket shall relate to eight pictures, the next highest price bracket relate to 12 pictures, the next highest price bracket relate to 16 pictures and the next or lowest bracket relate to the remaining 12 pictures, and if the exhibitor shall have the right to eliminate a total of 10 per cent or five pictures, then not more than one picture may be eliminated from the highest bracket, not more than one picture from the next highest bracket, not more than two pictures from the next highest bracket and the remaining one picture from the lowest price bracket, or all or any part may be eliminated from the lowest price bracket.

Exhibitors shall have the right, in addition to the exclusion privilege provided for above, to exclude from the license agreement any picture which may be locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds provided that exhibitor shall give distributor written notice, within 14 days after the conclusion of the first exhibition thereof in the exchange territory out of which the exhibitor is served, of the exhibitor's desire to exclude such picture as so offensive and specifying the grounds thereof. In the event of any dispute as to whether or not a picture is so offensive, such dispute shall be determined by conciliation or arbitration.

CENT OF RECREATION DOLLAR TO MOVIES

A survey just completed by Dr. Arthur Todd of the Sociology Department of Northwestern University reveals that money spent for recreation in Chicago is diverted in the following proportions:

Out of every dollar spent for recreation, the survey shows that:

.08 c.	is spent for liquor.
.06 c.	is spent for gambling.
.04 c.	is spent for schooling.
.02½c.	is spent for vice.
.02½c.	is spent for public recreation.
.01½c.	is spent for newspapers.
.01 c.	is spent for movies.

The total amount spent yearly on liquor is estimated at $100,000,000. On gambling the amount is estimated at $75,000,000. Vice brings in $30,000,000, Dr. Todd's report says.

Movies, it is estimated involve an expenditure of $20,000,000 annually.

2. Trade Announcement

Each distributor will make general announcement at or prior to the beginning of each of its seasons, containing such information as it may be practicable to give of all pictures completed or actually in production then intended for release during such season, and of any other pictures then intended for release during such season, it being understood that the completion of such pictures actually in production and the making of such other pictures which it is intended to produce are subject to the hazards and uncertainties of the business and they may not be completed, or produced, as planned.

3. Exhibitor's Limited Playing Time

When a number of pictures is offered for license to an exhibitor by a distributor and the exhibitor refuses of the minimum number of pictures agreed to be exhibited under the license agreements theretofore entered into by such exhibitor it is impossible under such exhibitor's operating policy to play the entire number offered, then such distributor will offer to such exhibitor such lesser number of pictures as may be agreed upon or determined by arbitration as the maximum number of pictures that could be played by such exhibitor, provided that distributor shall always have the right at any time before or after making such offer to such exhibitor to solicit or license all or any of its pictures to any other exhibitor.

4. Preferred Playing Time

Preferred playing time shall not be designated by the distributor for a feature picture for which the rental is either a fixed sum or computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the admission receipts with a minimum fixed sum guaranteed. In respect of each feature picture for which the film rental is to be computed wholly upon a percentage of the admission receipts, the number of such pictures to be played on preferred playing time as well as the days constituting preferred playing time shall be determined by mutual agreement between the distributor and the exhibitor at the time of the making of the license agreement and the distributor shall then be free to designate the pictures to be played in accordance with such agreement.

If the distributor pursuant to the provisions of its license agreement shall designate for preferred playing time a picture the film rental for which is based wholly upon a percentage of the admission receipts and if the exhibitor shall, within five days after the mailing of a notice of such designation, give distributor written notice that such picture is deemed by the exhibitor unsuitable for such playing time in that theatre and specifying the reasons therefor, then upon the determination of such unsuitability by agreement between the distributor and exhibitor or by immediate conciliation or immediate arbitration in the event of failure to agree, the distributor may, at its option, either designate said picture to be played upon the same rental terms on other days of the week or then or therefore substitute another picture to be played on preferred playing time at the originally designated terms; in the latter event the film rental for the picture originally designated shall be such as is designated by the distributor and provided for in the license agreement. Nothing herein contained shall decrease or increase the number of pictures to be exhibited in each price classification in the license agreement.

5. Runs and Existing Customers

(A) Provided an exhibitor and a distributor can mutually agree upon terms, an exhibitor

shall be able to obtain some run of a distributor's pictures provided that each exhibitor's theatre is not of obsolete character, is in good condition and operates under a policy which is not destructive or which would not substantially affect the business of any other run of distributor's pictures and further provided that such exhibitor is of good reputation as a theatre operator and financially responsible. Any dispute as to whether or not the exhibitor's theatre is of obsolete character, is in good condition; is operated under a policy which is destructive or which would substantially affect the business of any other run of distributor's pictures or whether or not exhibitor is of good reputation as a theatre operator and is financially responsible, shall be determined by arbitration.

(B) Exhibitors have complained that distributors have licensed their product away from an existing customer to another exhibitor because such other exhibitor operates a circuit of theatres in the same or other situations and licenses the distributor's product for such circuit.

It is recognized that a distributor has the right to select its own customers and it is also recognized that a change of customers is sometimes a hardship to an existing customer, but that in order to be entitled to continue to receive consideration as a customer, the exhibitor should have substantially performed his previous license agreements with distributor, maintain and operate his theatre in a modern and up-to-date manner and be financially responsible.

Having regard for these principles, product will not be licensed away from an existing customer to a new or another exhibitor for the sole reason that the new or other exhibitor is a customer of the distributor in the same or other situations and any dispute as to whether or not a distributor has licensed its product away from an existing customer for the sole reason that such other exhibitor is a customer of the distributor in the same or other situations shall be determined by arbitration.

6. Short Subjects, Newsreels and Trailers

No exhibitor shall be required, as a condition of licensing feature motion pictures, to license short subjects, newsreels or trailers, but nothing herein shall be deemed to prohibit any effort by the distributor to license short subjects, newsreel and trailers.

7. Score Charges

In respect of license agreements commencing with the season of 1938-39 all score charges, if any, for pictures licensed on a flat rental basis shall be added to and consolidated with the film rental and commencing with the season 1939-40 there shall be no score charge in respect of pictures licensed on a percentage basis.

8. Allocation of Pictures

Except as to first runs in key cities, each distributor shall upon giving notice of availability of each picture, notify each licensee to whom such notice is given, of the price classification of such picture.

9. Non-Theatrical Competition

Feature pictures will not be licensed to a non-theatrical account if such non-theatrical account shall have been determined by arbitration to constitute unfair competition to a regularly operated motion picture theatre, provided, however, nothing herein contained shall be interpreted to prohibit the licensing of motion pictures for exhibition at Army posts or Government camps or on board ships of the U. S. Navy or ships engaged in carrying passengers to foreign or domestic ports or at educational, or religious institutions where attendance is confined to members of such institutions, or in institutions housing "shut-ins," such as prisons, hospitals, orphanages and the like.

10. Form of License Agreement

Each distributor will use its best efforts to simplify its form of license agreement.

11. Selective Contracts

Whenever an exhibitor shall have the right to select a minimum number of pictures out of a larger number, such exhibitor shall be required to exercise such right in writing with respect to each picture within 21 days after the date of mailing of the notice of availability of such picture. Upon the exhibitor's failure to give such written notice within said period, each of such pictures shall be deemed to have been selected by the exhibitor.

12. Playing of Pictures in Order of Release

If under any license agreement the exhibitor is obligated to play pictures in the order of release the distributor will not refuse to deliver a picture if the failure of the exhibitor to exhibit prior pictures of such distributor is due to the failure of such distributor to make the prior pictures available.

13. Acquiring Theaters

No distributor shall coerce any exhibitor to enter into any contract for the exhibition of motion pictures, by the commission of any overt act evidencing an intention to build or otherwise acquire a motion picture theatre for operation in competition with each exhibitor, but nothing herein shall otherwise in any way abridge the right of a producer or distributor to build or otherwise acquire a motion picture theatre in any location.

14. Box-Office Statements

The practice of rendering to a distributor false reports of the box-office receipts in respect of the exhibition of pictures the film rental of which is based in whole or in part upon a percentage of such receipts is condemned by exhibitors as well as by distributors as a practice which not only results in loss of earned revenue to the distributors, but is also unfair and detrimental to the business of honest exhibitors. Exhibitors will endeavor to discourage and eliminate such practice.

15. Arbitration

The principles and factors involved in the matters to be arbitrated, the rules and regulations to govern submissions, hearings and awards, the methods of selecting arbitrators and other matters in connection with the arbitration proceeding have not yet been fully discussed. Subject to agreement thereupon, all matters herein specifically made the subject of arbitration, all controversies concerning performances of existing contracts between a distributor and its customers and all claims that clearance or zoning now or hereafter existing is unreasonable and that an exhibitor has licensed more pictures than are required shall be subjects of arbitration.

Conciliation also may be found to be a speedy and feasible method of settling certain classes of disputes preliminary to or in lieu of arbitration as may hereafter be determined.

16. Effective Date

These provisions shall become effective with the license agreements for the season 1939-40 and continue thereafter, except that nothing herein contained shall be deemed to effect any license agreements now in effect.

Majors 'Stalling,' U.S. Charges; May Speed Trust Trial

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

The Department of Justice may ask the federal courts to "crack down" on the major company defendants in the Government's anti-trust suit with the idea of bringing the case to trial in January.

That the Department stands ready to go to trial next month was stated last week, but now it has decided to insist, Department officials on Wednesday accusing the majors of dilatory tactics and making it clear that it will not willingly agree to any further delay.

Department officials said the defendants are "stalling," pointing out that they were given a 90-day extension on top of 30 days which had been provided for filing answers to the Government's complaint, and then the defendants set up three different bills of particulars, each with many items. The Department seeks only 10 days to go through the mass of files to prepare a response, but the companies sought another 90 days to prepare their answers.

Much of the irritation informally expressed Wednesday by Department officials is based on the apprehension that the public will mistake delays caused by tactical moves of the defendants as Government unwillingness to prosecute an important industry, a reaction which capital observers said was not lessened by the employment this week of James Roosevelt by Samuel Goldwyn, even though he is not a defendant of the suit.

Thurman Arnold, U. S. assistant attorney general, was scheduled to confer with Harry Brandt and Milton Weisman of the Independent Theatre Owners of New York City, but was prevented from meeting them because of the Washington hearings of the Temporary National Economic Committee, of which he is a member. Together with Arthur Mayer, also of New York, however, Mr. Brandt and Mr. Weisman met on Tuesday with Paul Williams, special assistant to the attorney general in charge of the film suit.

No details of the conference were made known, but it was said that these exhibitors were not the only film men who have communicated with the Department in the last few weeks in connection with the anti-trust suit, and that Department officials are being kept in close touch with developments by independent interests. Elsewhere it was learned that the talks pertained to the legality of theatre acquisitions by independents as well as affiliated

Indications are that the Department is determined upon divorce of production from exhibition regardless of the majors' self-regulation

The companies are understood to have agreed to submit to the Department day-to-day reports on theatre details, in lieu of an outright "standstill" agreement as the Department previously sought. The Department presumably would have the right to enjoin any deal which may be undertaken by a circuit defendant.

Broadway heard this week that the defendants in New York had engaged Steve Hannagan, press agent of Florida Beaches, Chicago's racetrack, Indianapolis Speedway and other well known resorts, to represent them in putting their case before the public, Mr. Hannagan having been specifically mentioned as first assigned to prepare the majors' announcement on the aforementioned agreement.

Negotiations between buyer and seller in the motion picture market, slowed down during the summer and early fall by a variety of factors, in recent weeks have begun an acceleration which has brought total sales to a point of favorable comparison with other years and particularly with the brisk pace set by the contract signers last year. A Motion Picture Herald survey, an extension of tabulations compiled twice during each season for the last three years, shows that to date 83 circuits representing 3,518 theatres have signed 453 contracts with nine distributors covering about 22,650 playdates.

The total number of contracts signed by the circuits considered in the survey, selected because through their buying power they represent the key to the film market in their various territories, is a decrease of 15 per cent from the number shown in the survey as published on November 6, 1937. At the same time the ratio of increase from the number shown in the tabulation as published on August 6th of this year is approximately 176 per cent compared to increases of 103 per cent in 1936 and 75 per cent in 1937.

On November 6, 1937, the same circuits had concluded 533 contracts for 28,800 playdates compared with 305 contracts representing 16,470 playdates on September 4th of the same year. The total on December 19, 1936, was 702 franchises for 36,000 playdates compared with 346 contracts for 17,600 playdates on October 10, 1936.

Following the delays of the autumn weeks the large distributors now report that key contracts have been closed in nearly all territories and that independent buying is showing satisfactory acceleration. Most of them have announced an increase in total contracts signed as compared with the corresponding period last year.

Trade Practice Problem Factor

Chief among the factors having important bearing on franchise signing this year has been the attention focussed on discussion of trade practices within and outside of the industry and the disputes revolving around proposed revision of present policies either by voluntary regulation or by legislation.

Congressional action on the Neely anti-block booking bill last winter which resulted in the passage of the act by the Senate early in the summer introduced the first factor of hesitation in the market for the 1938-39 product. During the summer the distributors announced the appointment of a committee to consider voluntary trade practice regulation through conferences with exhibitor representatives. This development, in turn, was interrupted by the filing of the anti-trust suit in equity against distributors by the federal Department of Justice. Buyers, regarding these actions, felt that important changes in long established procedure might result and consequently hesitated to commit themselves until the situation cleared. The Government suit is still in abeyance but distributors this week issued a tentative draft of their trade practice proposals which still must be approved by exhibitor organizations. (See page 12.)

A table showing what product 83 of the larger circuits of the country have contracted to show during the 1938-39 season starts on page 16. In addition, the product purchased by these circuits for the two previous seasons is tabulated in parallel columns.

The deals, except in a few indicated instances, are for the entire product of the companies listed, only this type of contract having been considered for purposes of the survey.

The circuits listed represent 3,518 theatres, about 22 per cent of the total number operating in the country, but important enough, through their buying power, to constitute the key to the film market.

The table shows for this year a total of 453 contracts signed, representing 22,650 playdates. On November 6, 1937, there were 533 franchises signed by the same circuits for 28,782 playdates, and on December 19, 1936, there were 702 franchises for 35,802 playdates.

During August and September when 1937-38 commitments began to run out and the new product appeared in the show windows of most distributors it was reported that many companies were allowing the larger circuits, such as those listed in the present table, to date the new season product pending negotiation of full-year contracts.

Obstacles in the way of marketing the new product were most numerous in the Chicago area where a long-standing dispute between independent exhibitors and Balaban & Katz and the distributors was climaxed by the filing of a comprehensive anti-trust against the major companies. After the signing of a few deals by the important circuits film buying came almost to a standstill with the filing of the suit early last October. The outcome of the case is expected to affect buying procedure and have important bearing on sales in the territory.

The Chicago situation has been troubled for several years. When the survey was first published in October, 1936, a delay in that territory was reported because of uncertainty aroused by reports that Balaban & Katz intended to adopt a double bill policy for their houses. That policy was later adopted and the present dispute is based in part on that development. Clearance at that time, too, was the subject of heated discussion and independents even then threatened the suit which is now in progress.

Many Recent Deals

Many of the more important deals listed in the present survey were concluded only in the last two or three weeks. In the list as published on August 6th many outstanding circuits were shown as having purchased the product of only one or at the most two companies. In a majority of cases these circuits have now contracted for a more complete quota of product, although their programs are not yet completely filled.

Ten distributors were considered in the survey. The circuits included in the list usually complete their deals with the major companies before turning to the smaller independent producers to supplement their programs.

The distributors and their product totals promised for the 1938-39 season are: Columbia, 56; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 44 to 52; Monogram, 42; Paramount, 58; RKO, 48; Republic, 55; Twentieth Century-Fox, 56; United Artists, 30; Universal, 52, and Warner Brothers, 52.

Grand National, included in the survey in previous years, started its new selling season late this year after reorganization proceedings and a merger agreement with Educational Pictures under which Earle Hammons is the new president of the company. Conventions were held during October by the sales department under the leadership of Edward Alperson and an intensive drive for contracts is now under way.

An important change in the Canadian exhibition field was brought about last month with the settlement of a long-standing dispute between N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian circuit and United Artists. The distributor sold away from Famous Players last year after Mr. Nathanson filed suit in London claiming that Alexander Korda's "Drums," having started before the cameras in September, 1937, rightfully should have been delivered to him under an original deal with London Films for Canada which expired in October, 1937. The matter was settled between Mr. Nathanson and Murray Silverstone of United Artists.

THREE YEAR COMPARISON SHOWN

The following table shows the product purchased by the larger circuits of the country for 1936–37, 1937–38 and for 1938–39 season as far as sales have progressed. Long term franchise deals are indicated where such information is available. Many circuits affiliated with distributors have long term contracts but under terms which provide for negotiations each year, the contracts thus amounting to continuing options. Opposite the name of each circuit are the approximate number of theatres included and the territory in which they are situated. The three columns under each circuit's name indicate the product bought for each of the three years. The name of a distributor followed by a figure in parentheses indicates that the product of that company was bought only for that number of theatres.

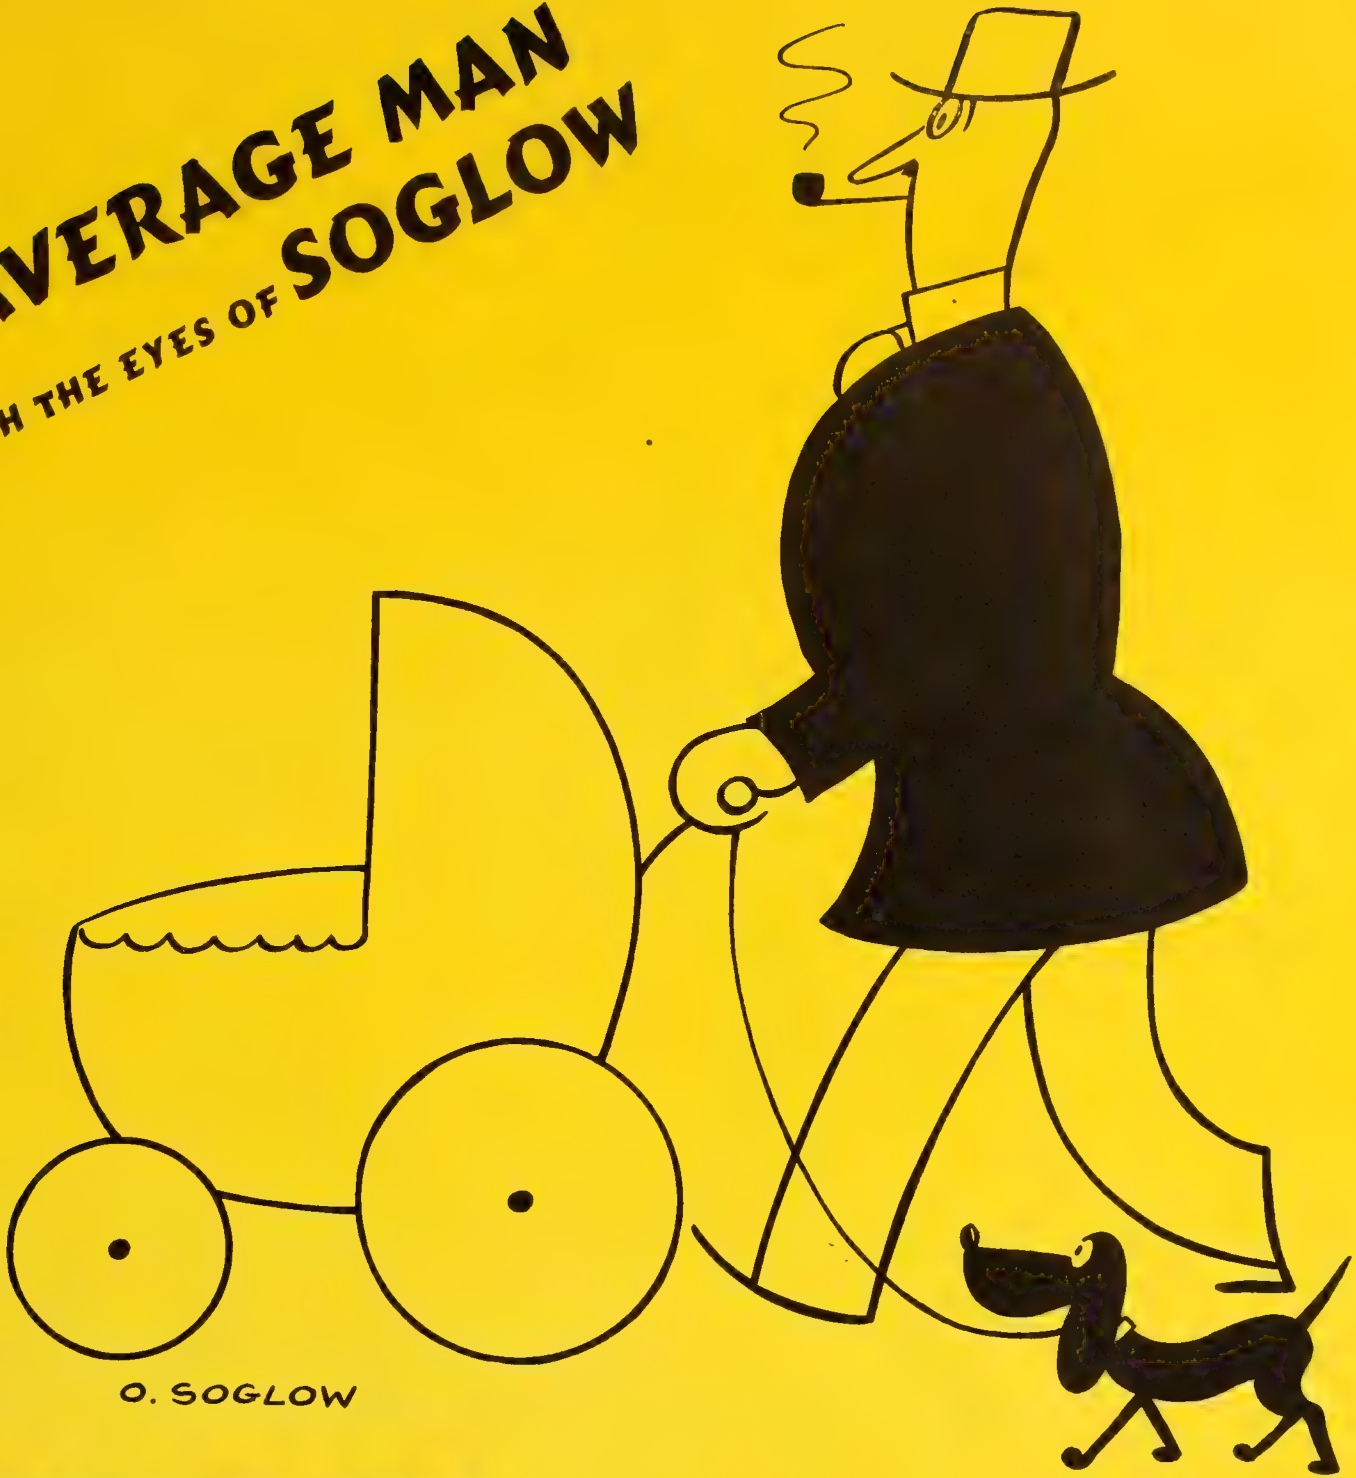
MISTER AVERAGE MAN

—AS SEEN THROUGH THE EYES OF SOGLOW



ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER, of King Features, sums him up this way:

"The hat of the average man is size 6⅞ . . . he does not think what he thinks, he thinks what he hopes."

The freshest comedy idea 20th Century-Fox ever grabbed out of its entertainment surprise bag!

"THANKS FOR EVERYTHING"

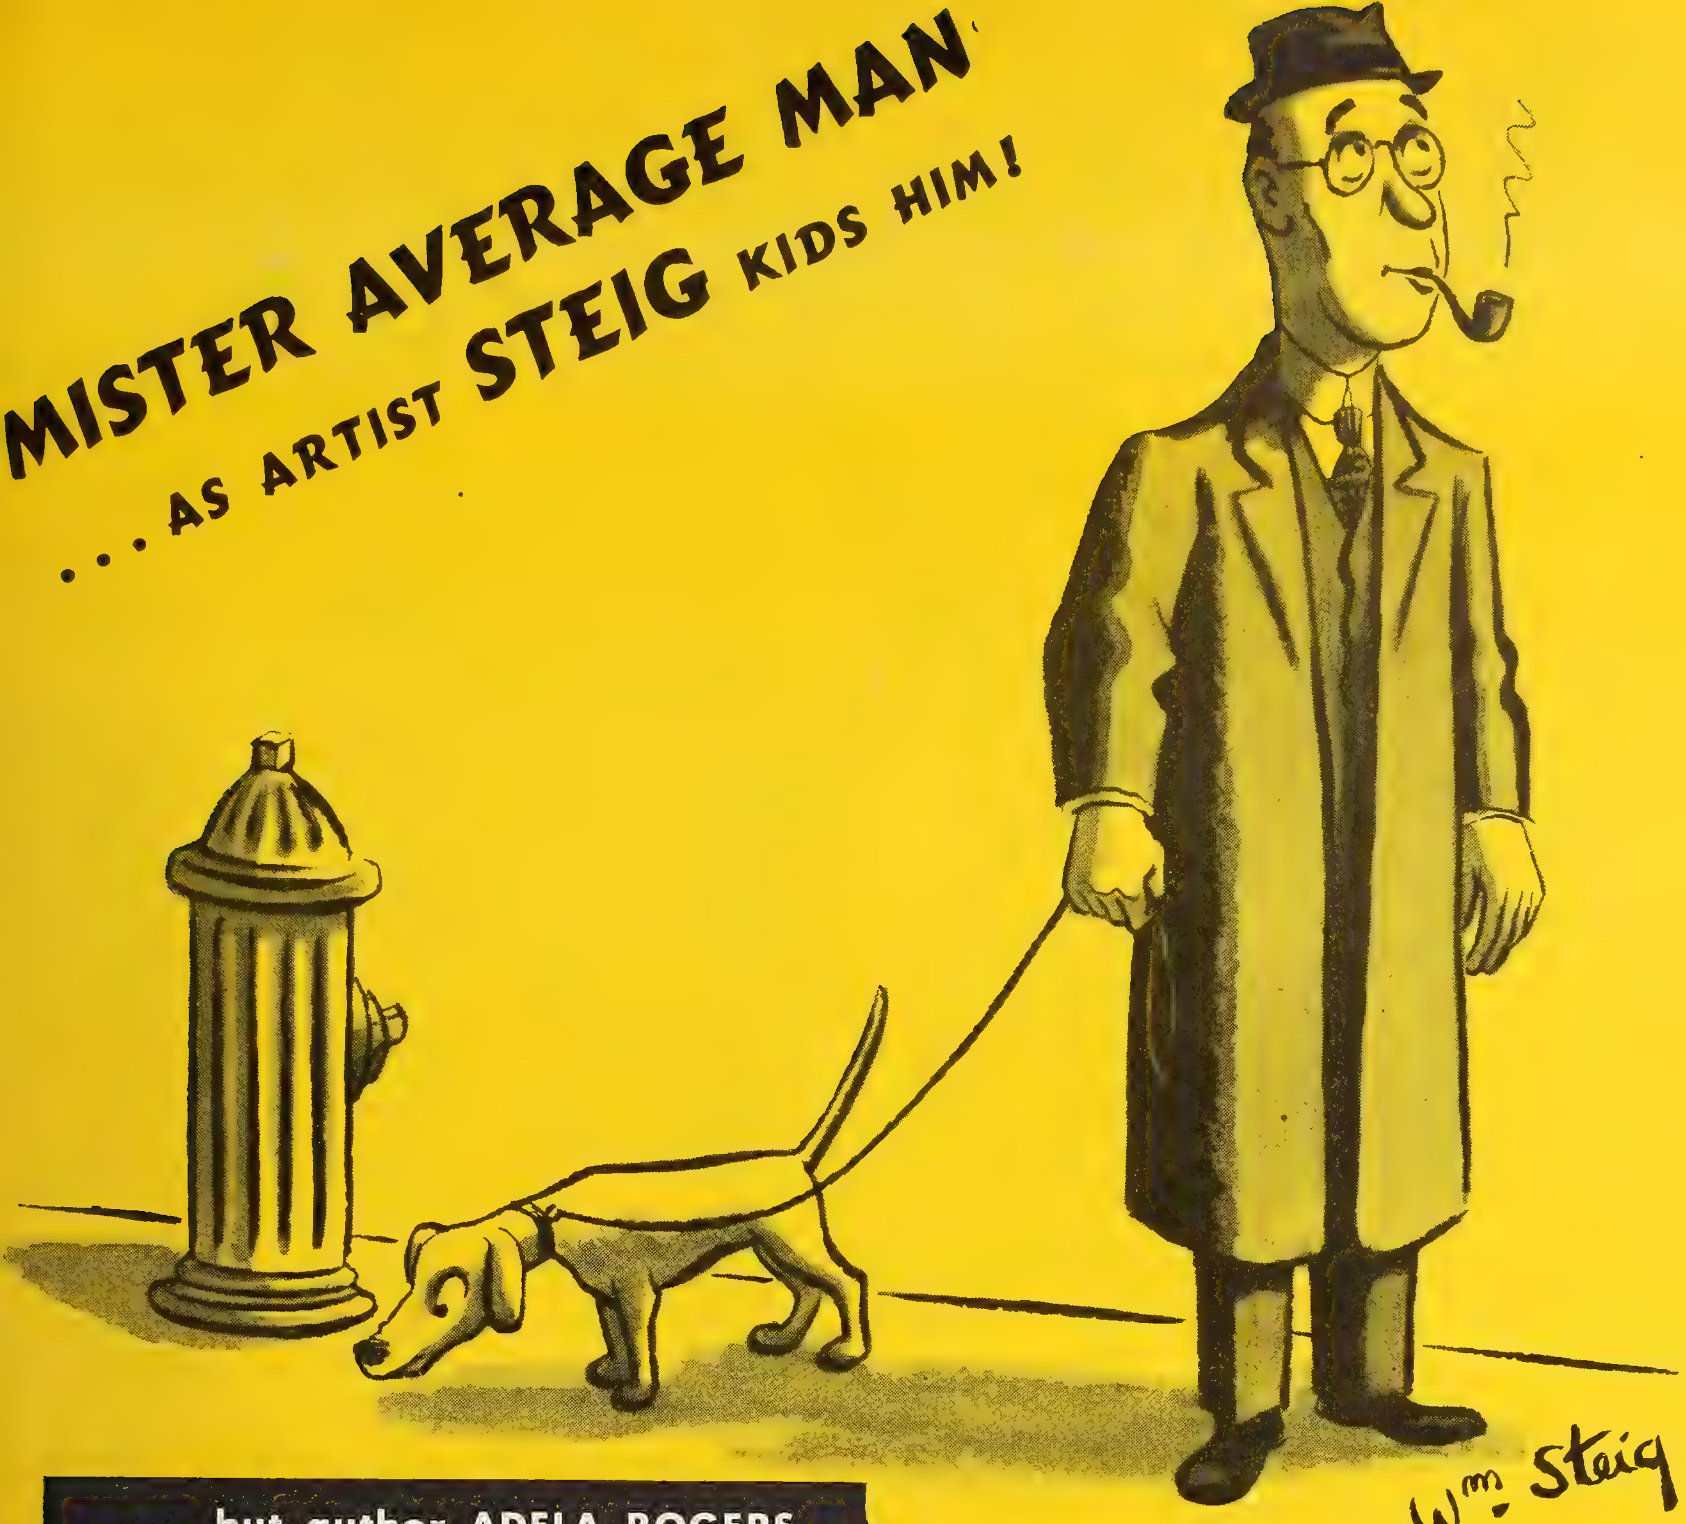
MISTER AVERAGE MAN

. . . AS ARTIST STEIG KIDS HIM!



. . . but author ADELA ROGERS ST. JOHNS takes him seriously!

"The Average Man is the guy who today, as yesterday, comes forward in times of trouble . . . he is the keystone of the world's greatest democracy."

Christmas comes but once a year . . . but a comedy idea like this comes once in a lifetime . . . and 20th has it!

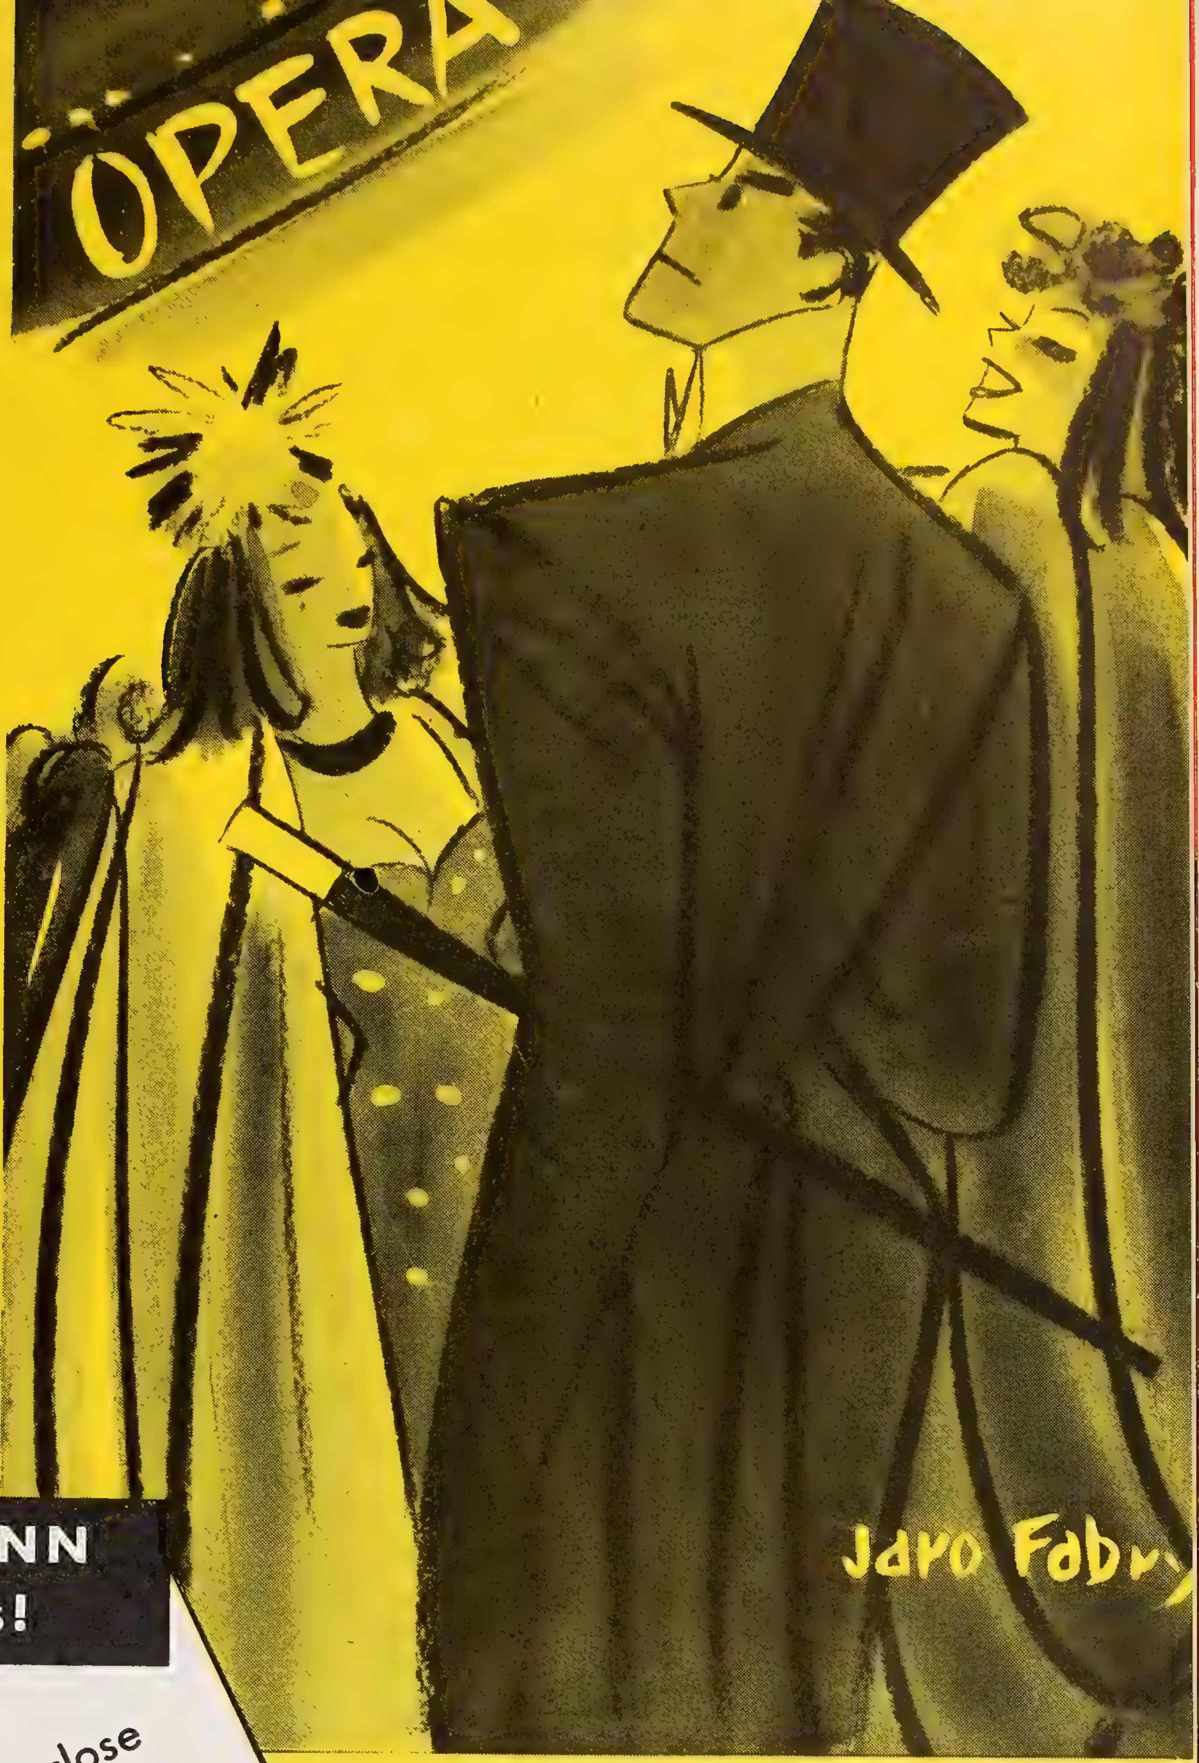
MISTER AVERAGE MAN ...AS FABRY FLATTERS HIM



But WALTER LIPPMANN doubts if he even is!

"I never met an average man. One hears about them only at a distance, but close to, no such person seems to exist."
—Walter Lippmann, Herald-Tribune Syndicate

Now Hollywood gives Mister Average Man the works—in a scandalously funny picture!

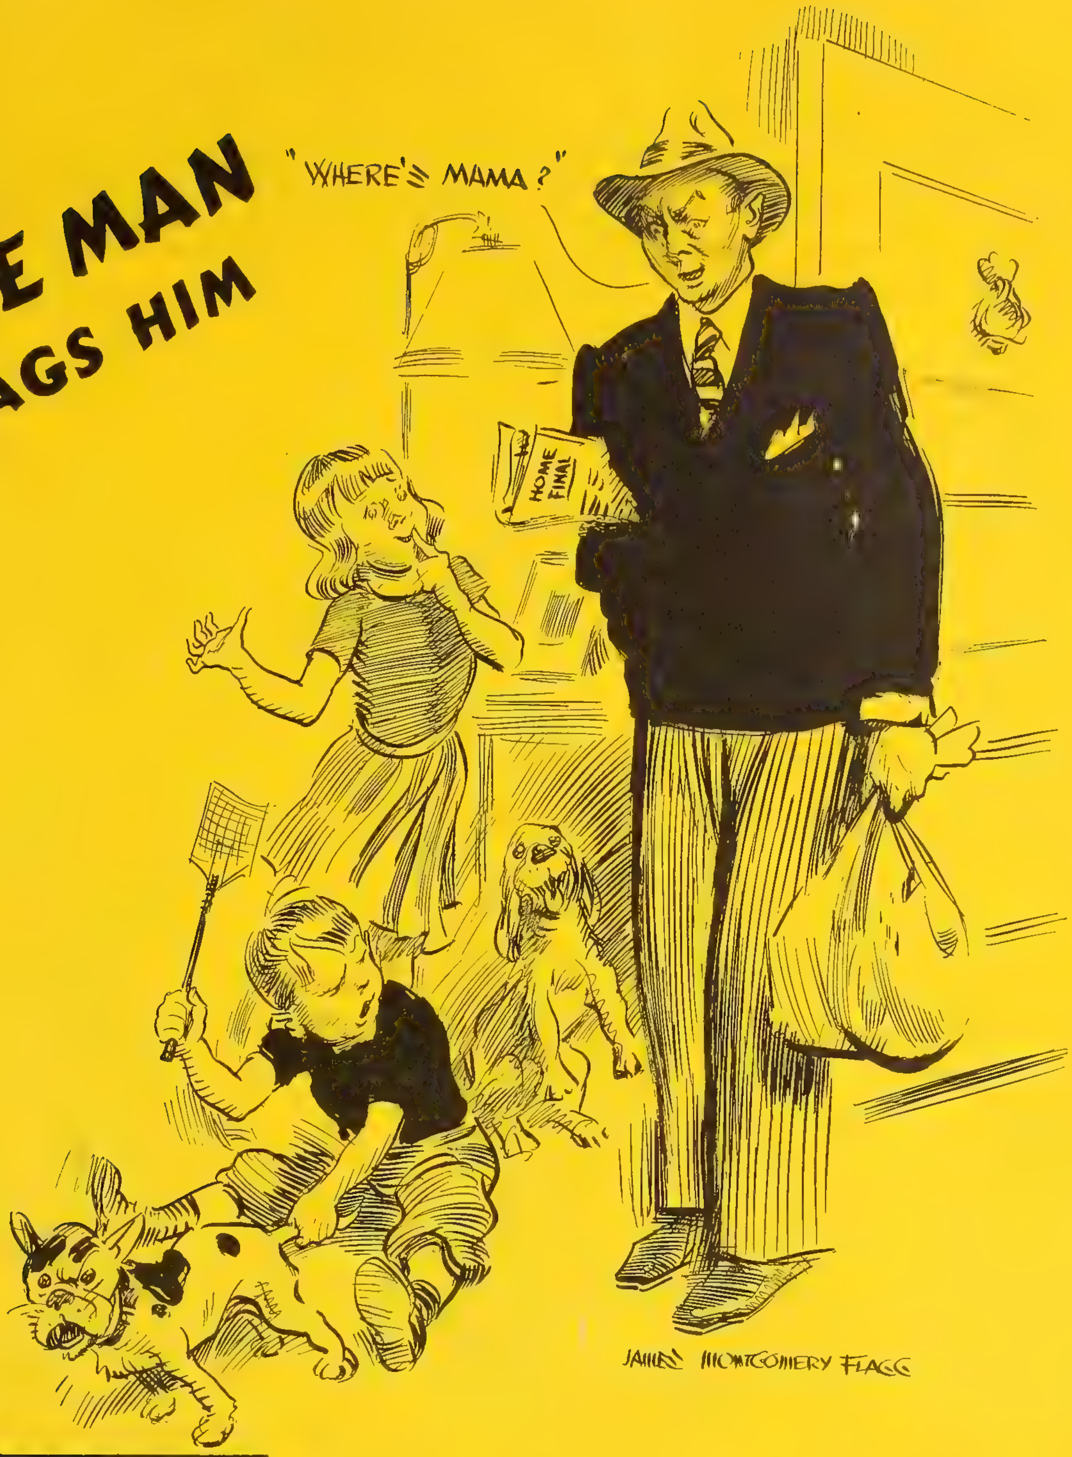
MISTER AVERAGE MAN
. . . AS FLAGG TAGS HIM



"WHERE'S MAMA?"
HOME FINAL
JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG

Columnist SOBOL sizes him up so:

"The Average Man . . . has never had his name in the papers . . . never been stopped by a cop . . . or been wooed by a lady not his wife."
—LOUIS SOBOL, N. Y. Journal American

So new in slant you can't compare it . . . more chuckle-full than champagne has bubbles!

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

'Better' Films Up To Public Itself, Says Dr. Potter

The forum audience at New York's Cooper Union Friday heard Dr. Russell Potter, director of the Division of Film Study at Columbia University, declare that Hollywood will give the movie-goers better pictures when they have indicated a widespread demand for better pictures. The present tendency, he remarked, seems to be for "bigger," not "better," pictures.

Sharply criticizing those critics of the movies who go in for "appreciation" and for discussions of the art of the motion picture, the speaker emphasized the basic industrial organization of the movies.

"Let's start frankly by recognizing the basic fact that the movies are an industry," he said, "and an industry the capital investment of which throughout the world is three billions of dollars, according to figures of the Department of Commerce for January 1 of this year.

"That is Big Business, and its production center is that quiet, unpretentious little village out on the west coast—Hollywood; its financial control, in the last analysis, is in Wall Street, and the majority of it is in the hands of two great banking companies; the consumers of its product are to be found all over the world—226,000,000 individuals go to the movies every week in 90,334 motion picture theatres scattered from Nome to Singapore.

"Now all this is important, and any serious consideration of the movies is apt to go off the deep end if it is lost sight of. Too much has been written about the art (usually spelled with a capital 'A') of the motion picture by persons who are blind to the fantastic corporate structure of the industry. Scholars, critics, intellectuals, preachers, school teachers join in scathing criticism of the 'Hollywood product' without ever troubling themselves to study the tempestuous history of the motion picture and the complex financial and industrial organization of the set-up that produces those motion pictures.

"But the end product of that industry is an art, or at least an art-in-the-making. As such it is just about the most exciting thing in this exciting twentieth-century world of ours.

"The fact that most of the 16,961 features that have been released in this country since 1915 were rubbish (now happily forgotten except by the scholar of the film) is beside the point. Most of the dramas written in England during the reign of Queen Elizabeth were rubbish, too; but we do have the golden plays of Shakespeare and a couple each by Jonson, Dekker, and Marlowe.

"In the case of the movies, let's look at the record. We have had Paul Muni's 'Louis Pasteur' and 'Emile Zola,' Fritz Lang's 'Metropolis' and 'Fury,' Pabst's 'Loves of Jean Ney' and 'West Front, 1918,' John Ford's 'The Informer,' and D. W. Griffith's 'Birth of a Nation.' Charlie Chaplin is at work on a new picture, and we can thank the gods for Walt Disney.

"Better movies will be made in the future, and Hollywood will make them; there is, I am sure, the will. But Hollywood will not make us better pictures until it stops trying to make us bigger pictures—and it may not stop its dizzy rush for the 'super-super colossal' until it has bankrupt itself. And it will not give us better pictures until there is a widespread demand for them. We must create that demand. As the game stands now, we have on the whole better pictures than we deserve; and the future of the movies is really in our hands."

FTC REITERATES STAND ON ANTI-MONOPOLY

The Federal Trade Commission repeated, this week, its recommendation to Congress that the federal anti-trust laws be amended so that a corporation would be forbidden to acquire stock or assets of a competing concern with the idea of curtailing competition.

Phone Company Derides Charge Of Film Control

The Federal Communications Commission this week was studying a written protest filed Monday by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, against a contemplated report of the commission recommending stringent control of the company.

The A.T. and T., is chief holding company for the many Bell manufacturing units, including several in motion pictures.

In the company protest, it is emphasized that "the report presents an imaginative and theoretical plea for expansion of the authority, jurisdiction, and powers of this commission—the kind of plea often made by those who want additional power badly and who seem to trust that fervor in pleading will prevent scrutiny of the validity of the reasons asserted in support thereof."

Charging that the FCC's investigation was unfair, the Telephone Company also derided the allegations that it had achieved a substantial control over the industry through Electrical Research Products, Inc.

Answering Commission charges that vast sums had been collected from non-communications activities, the company said the total royalties from public address and other equipment, provided to theatres and others, amount to $135,000 over a period of five years and the gross amount received for providing equipment during 16 years was $3,921,000.

From all of its non-communication activities in twelve fields cited by the Commission, a gross revenue of $830,000 was derived in 1937, it was stated.

To Commissioner Walker's charge that the "basic non-communications policies" of the Bell System are exemplified in its activities in the motion picture field, it was declared, "This statement is not true; indeed, the contrary is the fact."

The taking over by ERPI from Western Electric's original licensee of commercial exploitation of the licensed equipment, installation and service activities necessary, especially in the early days of sound, for effective operating condition, it was contended, "was an exception to general Bell System policy in non-communications fields; it was not sought by ERPI but imposed upon ERPI by conditions which seemed at the time to be of compelling force.

The brief pointed out that the number of anti-trust suits filed against ERPI by producers and exhibitors was not 22 but 24, and it also was commented that the report failed to state the number—18—which had been settled and discontinued and dismissed or to mention that in the two cases which have been tried the complaints against the Telephone Company were dismissed.

NLRB Head Has A Plan to Solve Labor Problems

Dr. Towne Nylander, Los Angeles director of the National Labor Relations Board, personally entered the troubled Hollywood studio union situation on Monday, and in the unofficial capacity of voluntary mediator, offered a four-point program to solve the problems arising out of charges of "company unionism" filed against the IATSE by two studio locals—Utility Employes Local No. 724 and the Motion Picture Technicians Committee.

Basic Agreement Affected

Dr. Nylander called union officials and studio labor representatives to his NLRB offices and presented his four-point program, as follows:

1. Suspension of the basic studio agreement insofar as conditions affecting the IATSE were concerned.
2. Posting of notices in studios that membership in the IATSE was not a necessary condition of employment.
3. Cessation of alleged coercion of studio workers into IATSE membership.
4. Agreement of all parties in the dispute to a "consent" election to determine whether the IATSE or some other organization represent studio workers in four IATSE locals; 659 (Photographers), 37 (Studio Technicians), 683 (Laboratory Technicians), and 695 (Sound Technicians).

The Utility Employes and Technicians Committee locals had officially filed "company unionism" charges with the NLRB against the IATSE. The NLRB let the charges rest for three weeks during the absence from Hollywood of Regional Director Towne Nylander. Returning over the weekend, Dr. Nylander called the mediation conference for Monday, explaining it was in keeping with the policy of his office to seek an amicable settlement of differences through round-table discussions, rather than have them assume an official NLRB status.

Taken by surprise, IATSE and studio union officials asked Dr. Nylander to postpone until February 14th the time for answering his four proposals. Their request was granted.

Studio union observers saw little likelihood of the studios agreeing to a "consent" election, because in previous NLRB cases involving collective bargaining certification petitions, the studios insisted that the NLRB has no jurisdiction over the production industry. However, if the studios did agree to the election, it would probably be only on condition that a stipulation be entered to the effect that they were not waiving their rights.

The IATSE had not decided on whether it would agree to the election, Harold V. Smith, IATSE Hollywood representative, declaring after Monday's conference that he would have to talk with George Browne, IATSE national president, before any decision could be made.

Hollywood Studios Tackle Wages-and-Hours Problems

Hollywood studio heads on Monday opened discussions on the relation of the federal wages-and-hours law to production workers, Pat Casey, producers' labor contact, stating that the question causing most discussion is that of classification of workers, there being some 80 different groups at the studios. Some of them may be declared "professional" and thus not subject to the law.

A definite program and plan of procedure is expected to evolve from the meetings before the weekend.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Hitting On High

Unpredictable as ever, Hollywood again is running against the form chart. Usually, at this season of the year, production of all sorts ebbs to low levels. But it was just the other way around during the first week of December. Sixteen productions were started. Meanwhile, eighteen moved on to the editorial rooms.

Paramount started four pictures. For the first time in his career, Buck Jones, long a leading western star, will play a straight dramatic role, in "Me and My Girl." The supporting company will feature Helen Twelvetrees, Robert Armstrong, Donald O'Connor, Dorothy Howe and Grant Withers. Leading players in "Heritage of the Desert," a Harry Sherman production, will be Evelyn Venable, Donald Woods, Robert Barrat, Russel Hayden, Sidney Toler, Paul Guilfoyle, C. Henry Gordon and Paul Fix. "The Lady from Kentucky" will star George Raft and Ellen Drew, with F. Hugh Herbert and Zasu Pitts featured. Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland will be the top names in "Sudden Money."

Another "Jones Family"

Two pictures were started at Twentieth Century-Fox. "The Jones Family in Hollywood" will present Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane, Russell Gleason, Kenneth Howell, George Ernest, June Carlson, Florence Roberts, Billy Mahan and Billy Tracy, Wally Vernon and June Gale. The cast of "Winner Take All" will be headed by Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Joan Woodbury and Henry Wilcoxon.

Columbia also started two films. "Flying G Man," a serial, will feature Richard Craig, Lorna Grey and Robert Paige. The leads in "First Offender" are Walter Abel, Diana Lewis, Rita Hayworth and Iris Meredith.

At Universal work began on "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." The girls will be Deanna Durbin, Nan Grey and Helen Parrish. Nella Walker, Charles Winninger and Ernest Cossart are in support. Many more names will be added.

MGM's contribution to the new work is "Broadway Serenade." Jeanette MacDonald is the star. The support lists Lew Ayres, Ian Hunter, Frank Morgan, Virginia Grey, Rita Johnson, William Gargan, Katherine Alexander, Esther Dale and Maurice Moscovitch.

Producing Again

Sam Katzman returns to production with "Outlaws' Paradise," in which Tim McCoy and Joan Barclay are the stars.

Another Samuel, this time Goldwyn, resumes production with "Wuthering Heights." The film will feature a practically all-English cast, as Merle Oberon, Lawrence Olivier, Flora Robinson, Hugh Williams, Cecil Humphreys, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Leo G. Carroll have been assigned the important roles.

"Mysterious Miss X" started at Republic. The cast includes Michael Whalen, Mary Hart, Chick Chandler, Mabel Todd, Frank Thomas, Dorothy Tree, Don Douglass, Regis Toomey and Wade Boteler.

RKO-Radio put "Twelve Crowded Hours" into work. It will offer Richard Dix, Lucille Ball, Donald MacBride, Bradley Page, Allan Lane and Dorothy Lee.

A KURTZ NOTE, SO TO SPEAK

Artist, historian, student of Civil War lore, and, incidentally, in Hollywood to act as technical adviser during production of a picture entitled "Gone with the Wind" which is on the agenda of producer David O. Selznick, Wilbur G. Kurtz informed Hollywood listeners on his first day among them:

"The willingness to fight to the last for states' rights lives on in the South. It is a permanent safeguard against overcentralization of power in bureaucratic national government. Nearly three-quarters of a century after the Civil War, we now find the South a stronghold for the preservation of the Union. So long as there is a solid South, America need not fear for the safety of its national government."

It is, however, with the South of the Civil War period that Dr. Kurtz's services to the screen will be concerned.

Monogram adhered to its start-a-picture-a-week schedule by beginning "Parole to Exile." It will feature Ann Nagel, Robert Kent, Sidney Blackmer, Joan Barclay, Ben Alexander and Sarah Paden.

Cast for Warners' "Hell's Kitchen" are Humphrey Bogart, Stanley Fields, Gale Page and the "Dead End" kids.

Three studios, each of which completed two, accounted for six of the ten finished pictures. Both MGM efforts are in the potential big picture classification. Franciska Gaal, Franchot Tone, Walter Connolly, Barnett Parker, Rita Johnson, Reginald Gardiner, Franklin Pangborn, Charles Judels and Priscilla Lawson will be seen in "The Awakening of Katrina." Eleanor Powell is the star of "Honolulu," which also will present Robert Young, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Judith Allen, Jo Ann Sayers, Eddie Anderson and Rita Johnson.

"Charlie Chan in Honolulu" was checked off the active list of Twentieth Century-Fox. Sidney Toler takes up the late Warner Oland's Chan role, and Sen Yung, an American born Chinese, succeeds Keye Luke as his son, "Lee." Other players are Phyllis Brooks, Eddie Collins, John King, Claire Dodd, George Zucco, Robert Barrat, Richard Lane, Marc Lawrence and Layne Tom, Jr. In the second finished film, "The Three Musketeers," the Ritz Brothers will have the assistance of Don Ameche, Gloria Stuart, Pauline Moore, Binnie Barnes, Joseph Schildkraut, John Carradine, Lionel Atwill, Miles Mander, Douglas Dumbrille, John King, Russell Hicks and Gregory Gaye, in satirizing Alexandre Dumas' classic.

Monogram also wound up two productions. Frankie Darro will be seen with Dick Purcell, Judith Allen and Lillian Elliott in "Tough Kid." Jack Randall, Dorothy Short, Walter Long, Charles King and Warner Richmond are the principals in "Fighting Thoroughbreds."

"Newsboys' Home" was finished at Universal. It will present Jackie Cooper, the Little Tough Guys, Edmund Lowe, Wendy Barrie, Edward Norris and Samuel S. Hinds.

With Rosella Towne and William Gargan featured and Dennie Moore, James Stephenson, Peggy Shannon, Maris Wrixon and Edgar Edwards in support, Warner Brothers finished "The Adventures of Jane Arden."

For RKO-Radio release, Sol Lesser completed "Fisherman's Wharf." A Bobby Breen picture, it also will present Leo Carrillo, Henry Armetta, Lee Patrick, Rosina Galli, Tommy Bupp, George Humbert, Leon Belasco and Neal Dodd.

"Shine On, Harvest Moon," in which will be seen Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, William Farnum, Chester Gunnels, Lulu Belle and Scotty, Stanley Andrews, Matty Roubert, Dan Hennings, Joe Whitehead and Frank Jaquet was completed by Republic.

Elaboration

The conflagration originally produced for "In Old Chicago" did not quite come up to Darryl Zanuck's expectations of what a truly great fire should be, so he spent many additional thousands of dollars to provide the spectacle seen in the release print. Similarly, the desert storm in "Suez" didn't measure up to his conceptions of such things, when it was first done, so more thousands of dollars were expended to create the one the public saw.

Now, with "The Little Princess" finished, it has been discovered that Shirley Temple has been taking a course in ballet dancing for a year. More thousands of dollars were dug up, and shooting on the film has been resumed to include a spectacular ballet number in which Shirley will be revealed as accomplished in the art.

News In Brief

Mae West and Empire Pictures are negotiating for headquarters and producing space at United Artists. Wherever the star and company locate, her first picture will be "Catherine the Great," shooting on which is planned to start after the first of the year.

Forearming against the annual seasonal holiday slump, Fox West Coast Theatres will resume auto giveaways in the local territory. Two cars will be passed out with 26 houses participating.

Paramount will inaugurate the new year by starting two big pictures. Jack Benny and Dorothy Lamour will star in "Man about Town." "Invitation to Happiness" will feature Irene Dunne and Fred MacMurray.

Remakes of popular old pictures are the order of the day. MGM will remake "Within the Law." Paramount has "Me and My Girl" in work. Oddly, Robert Armstrong, who was featured in the last picture version of "Within the Law," is featured in the "Me and My Girl" cast.

FILMS ACT MAKING PLIGHT WORSE THAN EVER, BRITISH INDUSTRY SAYS

Labor Groups Demand Quota Percentages Be Increased at First Opportunity, Citing Half Year Operation Results

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

With more than half its first year of operation now concluded, the Films Act (1938), immediate and ultimate objective of which was ostensibly to stimulate and protect British film production, is currently the target of the combined critical potshots of producers, distributors, exhibitors and labor unions.

It is the direct and emphatic complaint of three of these actions that, far from improving matters, the Act has made them worse, that the plight of the makers and exhibitors of British films and the rank and file who once assisted in their production is in most respects worse than it ever has been.

The Films Council, born of the Act and the legitimate trade and legislative body for its interpretation and enforcement, already has been the scene of forcible complaints and debates, and more, it is obvious, are to follow. The not least determined plea which they will have to consider in the immediate future is that made by the labor groups, representing studio employees, that the quota percentages be increased at the first opportunity, a process for the institution of which the Council has elementary powers.

60% Unemployed

An unemployment figure of 60 per cent is pointed to by the Association of Cine Technicians as the most vivid human and statistical argument. When the Act was introduced the figure was 80 per cent. Twenty per cent membership has seceded, following the depression, with technicians and labor operators leaving the Association for other fields. The representative total of out-of-works remains where it was, though recent events probably have swelled it.

It is a fact that in the first seven months of the Act 52 films have been registered, but some of these were concluded before the new measure came into force.

The figure, however, is deceptive. Of the films so far registered five were made on the treble quota basis, that is, at a labor cost of four times the stipulated £7,500 ($37,500) minimum or over, and eight on the double quota basis, at three times the labor cost minimum. The rest are mainly straightforward single quota films at an approximate cost of £15,000 ($75,000), or at any rate at a labor cost of £7,500 each, or—a fair number—exhibitors quota films made at an even lower figure.

No Boom Production Signs

Production, meanwhile, does not show any signs of boom with a round half dozen films on the studio floors or on location. One of these, MGM's "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," is on the treble quota basis. Three of the others are double quota subjects.

Exhibitors facing these figures fear that they are facing a serious shortage of product, a situation menaced even more bitterly, they charge, by the booking situation which gives the circuits a monopoly of whatever product is available. They, too, will place before the Films Council a case for cooperative booking, a weapon with which they say they may be able to fight the problem.

'LUCKNOW' DROPPED ON INDIA OFFICE PROTEST

Production and release of "Lucknow" by Butchers Film Service, Maurice Elvey director, is being abandoned following the objection of the India Office to the picture.

Shooting began a week ago on the production, based on the relief of Lucknow in the Indian mutiny of 1857-58.

Government executives in London met with the Board of Film Censors and an ensuing statement said that "all authorities . . . consider that such a film would revive memories of days of conflicts which it has been the honest endeavor of both countries to obliterate."

Producers, who are reduced to what is the virtual minimum necessitated by the economics of the situation, that is, the minimum necessary to make the minimum number of films to set off the renters' requirements, will back up the promised moves for a quota increase, though the absence of a truly representative body such as the Films Group of the Federation of British Industries latterly failed to be and which the new Producers Association has yet to be woven into, is not likely to assist that process any more than it assisted their ends during the final Parliamentary stages of the 1938 Films Bill.

It is estimated by trade statisticians that the first year of the Act, nonetheless, will have seen over £900,000 ($4,500,000) spent on the distributors' quota requirements. The continued production by MGM and Twentieth-Fox, and the enterprise of Wilcox, Pascal and Toye, for instance, in concentrating on the higher grade films, of course accounts for a considerable portion of that expenditure.

It is dubious whether production of the less expensive films, upon which most of the producers who are now critical of the Act concentrated, will be assisted by a ruling of the Board of Trade that the registration of an appropriate number of films on a single footage basis is required by the Act.

Twentieth-Fox have recently asked the Board whether they could supply the whole of the quota by double and triple films only, and whether films which had been made at double or treble quota cost could be counted as single for the purpose of the Act. It is the emphatic ruling of the Board that the appropriate footage of single quota films must be provided by the distributor. On the other hand, a distributor is at liberty to count in the single quota category films made at double or treble the minimum labor cost.

For the more reputable distributors, among which Twentieth-Fox are naturally to be noted, this Government interpretation of the Act is to a great extent comforting, for it enables them, at the small price they must pay, to continue concentration on the higher grade product.

The Act's stipulation that 50 per cent of the renters registered product must be registered on a net footage basis was naturally aimed to protect in a minor degree the production of small films by smaller producers. These are now incensed that the Board's interpretation seems to remove a measure of that protection.

The Act's precise wording on films made at four times and three times the specified minimum labor cost is that they "shall" count as treble and double quota. The Board of Trade now interpretes that wording as "shall—if the distributors so desire."

It is not easy to forecast whether the net result of this recent incident will be to stimulate or hamper independent production. First guesses are that it will have the last-named effect, while probably appreciating the commercial qualities of the foreign sponsored quota product.

A recent washing of legislative linen has further evinced the Board of Trade ruling that while a renter may count old British films against old foreign films, an exhibitor has to find contemporary quota against old foreign films and reissues.

Exports and Imports

Board of Trade figures for October are:

Exports of exposed positive film for October were 3,515,787 feet against 1,987,623 feet last year and 1,812,655 feet in 1936. Values were: £16,305 ($81,525), 1938; £12,448 ($62,240), 1937; £9,460 ($47,300), 1936.

Footage for the ten months was 20,549,272 feet this year against 18,732,990 feet in 1937 and 18,571,726 feet in 1936. Values were £133,142 ($665,710), 1938; £107,034 ($535,170), 1937; £96,718 ($483,590), 1936.

Film of all other description exported in October was valued at: £22,500 ($112,500) 1938; £36,332 ($181,660), 1937; £21,847 ($109,235), 1936. Values for the ten months period were: £309,252 ($1,546,260), 1938; £316,755 ($1,583,775), 1937; £223,302 ($1,116,510), 1936.

Exports of sensitized photographic plates and films exported for October were valued at: £41,604 ($208,020), 1938; £41,597 ($207,985), 1937; £49,228 ($246,140), 1936. Values for the ten months period were: £399,507 ($1,997,535), 1938; £422,292 ($2,111,460), 1937; £434,478 ($2,172,390), 1936.

Imports of exposed positive film for October were 1,647,742 feet against 1,998,354 feet in 1937 and 2,398,811 feet in 1936. Values were: £13,495 ($67,475), 1938; £15,403 ($77,015), 1937; £21,059 ($105,295), 1936.

Footage imported for the ten months period was 16,386,218 feet against 17,764,973 feet in 1937 and 19,694,000 feet in 1936. Values were: £131,400 ($657,000), 1938; £141,053 ($705,265), 1937; £162,222 ($811,110), 1936.

Footage of blank film imported in October was 4,808,266 feet this year against 5,068,092 feet in 1937 and 6,670,861 feet in 1936. Values were: £16,423 ($82,115), 1938; £18,815 ($94,075), 1937; £27,169 ($135,845), 1936.

Footage imported for the ten months period was 61,634,170 feet against 58,950,887 feet in 1937 and 56,996,671 feet in 1936. Values were: £194,810 ($974,050), 1938; £219,470 ($1,097,350), 1937; £222,306 ($1,111,530), 1936. Values of film of all other description imported in October were: £45,516 ($227,580), 1938; £56,487 ($282,435), 1937; £56,879 ($284,395), 1936. For the ten months period values were: £574,135 ($2,870,675), 1938; £585,149 ($2,925,745), 1937; £604,710 ($3,023,550), 1936.

Values of sensitized photographic plates imported in October were: £8,913 ($44,545), 1938; £9,141 ($45,705), 1937; £8,038 ($40,190), 1936. Values for the ten months period were: £410,474 ($2,052,370), 1938; £385,167 ($1,925,835), 1937; £377,202 ($1,886,010), 1936.

Re-export of films in October totaled 506,400 feet this year against 810,878 feet in 1937 and 593,633 feet in 1936. Values were: £3,943 ($19,715), 1938; £6,035 ($30,175), 1937; £4,147 ($20,735), 1936.

Ten months import footage, for the last three years, of exposed positive film, was 6,389,142 feet in 1938, 6,343,169 feet in 1937 and 8,550,039 feet in 1936, with values as follows: £44,487 ($222,435) for 1938, £42,949 ($214,745) for 1937, and £56,841 ($284,205) for 1936.

FRENCH SPEED UP PRODUCTION BUT "BIG" PICTURES ARE SCARCE

Forty Films Produced in Summer, but Total of 120 or 130 Is Expected for Season; Financing Still a Problem

by PIERRE AUTRE
in Paris

French film production is moving forward again and it is likely that 120 to 130 features will be made this season. Yet, though about 60 features were put before the cameras between January 1st and June 30th, there were not many big pictures to be compared with "La Grand Illusion," "Pearls of the Crown" or "Un Carnet De Bal," hits of the 1937 season. The only two comparable films the first half of this year were "The Foggy Quay," directed by Marcel Carné and co-starring Jean Gabin and Michèle Morgan, and "Prison Without Bars," directed by Léonide Moguy and starring the 17-year-old Corinne Luchaire. Alexander Korda bought the rights for remaking this film at his Denham studios with the same star.

Among other interesting films produced in France were "Altitude 3,200" ("The Kingdom of Youth"), "Les Disparus de Saint-Agil" ("The Runaways"), starring Erich von Stroheim, "Gosse de Riche", "Peace on the Rhine", co-starring John Loder and Dita Parlo, and "Imperial Tragedy", with Harry Baur.

Reasons given for the comparative delay of top film producers were the necessary wait to recover most of their investments of last year and the constant difficulties of obtaining financing.

Since June 15th the studios have been working at full speed. Forty features were produced in the summer months, the highest figure in France since the advent of talking films. The 1938 output now is expected to be at least as good as that of last year.

Eight films scheduled to be the big French productions of the year include:

KATIA, directed by Maurice Tourneur and co-starring Danielle Darrieux and John Loder;

THREE WALTZES, produced and directed by Ludwig Berger, co-starring Yvonne Printempts and Pierre Fresnay, and with music by Johan Strauss, Sr. and Jr., and Oscar Strauss;

WERTHER, produced by S. Niebenzahl, who made "Mayerling," directed by Max Ophuls and co-starring Annie Vernay and Pierre Richard-Wilm;

LA BETE HUMAINE ("The Human Beast"), directed by Jean Renoir, co-starring Jean Gabin and Simone Simon;

RETOUR A L'AUBE ("Return at Dawn"), directed by Henri Decoin, and starring Danielle Darieux;

HOTEL DU NORD ("North Hotel"), directed by Marcel Carné and starring Annabelle;

CONFLIT, directed by Leonide Moguy and starring Corinne Luchaire;

REMONTONS LES CHAMPS-ELYSEES, with Sacha Guitry, producer, director and star.

Besides these eight, several under production which according to their subjects and stars deserve interest are: "Life Is Wonderful," "Alerte En Mediterranee," "Women's Penitentiary," "La Maison Du Maltais," "Cafe De Paris," "Entree Des Artistes," "Lights of Paris," "I Was an Adventuress," "The Chess Player," "Drama of Shanghai," "Gibraltar," "Ultimatum," "Eduation De Prince," "Le Revolté," "Campement 13," "Place De La Concorde," "Trois De Saint-Cyr," "Ymile Sous Les Cedres," "Hostages" and "Accord Final."

Twenty-five films are in production and more than 80 pictures already have been announced, though many of them will not be turned out before next year, and some probably never will be produced.

The average budget for a good French film production has stabilized at three million francs ($75,000). The biggest films, such as "Katia," has not exceeded five million francs ($125,000). Such films as "The Foggy Quay" and "Prisoner Without Bars" have cost about $80,000.

Having a rather small though regular domestic market, when compared to America, and not being able to rely greatly on the foreign markets, French producers have been obliged to make pictures at a small cost.

New Talent

The departure for Hollywood of several French stars and directors a year ago at first alarmed French producers, but the "exodus" had its advantages in the bringing forth of new talent, such as Michèle Morgan and Corinne Luchaire.

The French cinema now has a long list of stars, none of whom is older than 22: Michèle Morgan, Corinne Luchaire, Nadine Vogel, Annie Vernay, Blanchette Brunoy, Dolly Mollinger, Katia Lowa, Jacqueline Pacaud, Madeleine Robinson, Christiane Mardayne, Line Labourdette, Michèle Alfa, Louisa Carletti, Juliette Faber, Gaby Sylvia, Denise Bosc, and on the male side and younger than 25, Fabien Lorys, Paul Cambo, Bernard Lancret, Jean Davy.

Furthermore, even including Charles Boyer and Fernand Gravet, who have become real American stars, French patrons prefer the French stars in French pictures, spoken in French.

Several French stars, such as Jean Gabin, Michèle Morgan and Viviane Romarce, are reported to have refused engagements for Hollywood.

Eric Von Stroheim, in French pictures, has won back his reputation in France. The British John Loder is co-starring with Danielle Darrieux in "Katia" and with the German star, Dita Parlo, in "Peace on the Rhine." John Lodge will star in "The White Slave," Grace Moore will speak and sing in French in the screen adaptation of Charpentier's Opera "Louise." Harry Lachman is returning to direct two films for André Daven.

FRENCH FILMS FOR NEW YORK FAIR

Ten short subjects will be specially produced by the French motion picture industry and will be shown in the French Pavilion of the New York World's Fair. A theatre of 450 seats will be built in the pavilion where continuous performances will be held.

The films will be co-directed by well-known French directors and directors specializing in documentary films. The directors include Rene Clair, Julien Duvivier, Jacques Feyder, Marcel Carne, Marc Allegret, Jean Benoit-Levy, Jean Renoir, Leon Poirier, Abel Gance and Marcel l'Herbier.

The delegate of the French Cinema Industry will be Henri Clerc, ex-deputy, president of the cinema section of the French Tourism Committee.

Park Ave. Opens Its First Theatre

The first theatre on New York's Park Avenue, the Normandie, opened last Wednesday. The Normandie is patterned in part on the lines of the French superliner of the same name, with a stone front complete with portholes. Within, the theatre's seating arrangement and proscenium are reminiscent of the Music Hall in Radio City.

Opening the house to a celebrity-packed audience was "Sacrifice d'Honneur," first feature to come from John Otterson's Tri-National Films. A review of the feature appears on page 49 of this issue.

The theatre itself, built at Park Avenue and 53rd Street by Harry Brandt and David Weinstock, will be operated on a continuous run policy, at $1.25 top price for evening performances and a 75 cent top afternoons. Both domestic and foreign product will be shown, with the operating policy apparently one of living up to the neighborhood.

20% CANCELLATION ON FILMS, CAROLINAS TOLD

Kuykendall Assures Convention of Concession; Depinet Urges Showing of More British Films

by D. G. SPENCER
in Charlotte

Theatre owners will be granted the right to cancel 20 per cent of films for which they contract, Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, told the 26th annual convention of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina at Charlotte Monday. He said the 20 per cent cancellation clause is expected to be included in contracts in the next few months. More than 300 exhibitors were at the convention.

As a result of this new agreement, the president said, the producers will produce fewer and better pictures, and exhibitors will not have to play films they consider objectionable to their communities.

Ned E. Depinet, vice-president and general sales manager of RKO Radio, emphasized the business loss to the industry from being practically barred out of Germany, Italy, Japan and other countries. He said that in order to keep our essential market in the United Kingdom, Americans must show some of the better British pictures.

Mr. Depinet said the distributors had not been guilty of stalling in connection with the trade practice conferences but that it was a problem so complex that much time was required. He added that unless the producers could make profits the theatre would not have pictures.

Lyle M. Wilson of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., was elected president of the Carolinas association. Other officers chosen were H. R. Berry, Hartsville, S. C., and F. H. Beddingfield, Charlotte, vice-presidents, and Mrs. Walter Griffith, reelected secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Kuykendall said theatre owners are not opposed to block-booking, but are against compulsory block-booking. On the other hand, he said, the majority of theatre owners are opposed to the Neely-Pettingill bill which is to be introduced at the next legislature in 1939.

Mr. Kuykendall blamed the recent slump in theatre receipts upon the general business condition. He said the industry's "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign has "undoubtedly stimulated the business of the nation's film theatres and has created much goodwill for the industry." An annual stimulus likely will be necessary, he added.

The convention adopted a resolution expressing the association's gratitude to such distributor organizations as have complied substantially with the 10-point program of the MPTOA.

New York Allied Reelects Cohen

Allied Theatre Owners of New York, meeting in Buffalo Monday, reelected Max A. Cohen president and named the following regional vice-presidents: William Smalley, Charles Wilson, treasurer; Joe Rosensweig, assistant treasurer; Thomas Kelly, executive secretary; Abe Levy, recording secretary; Harry G. Kosch, general counsel. Eighty exhibitors attended.

William F. Rodgers, general sales manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, addressed the meeting. Other speakers included Mr. Cohen and Mr. Kosch.

A resolution adopted said Allied will combat any effort to eliminate giveaways and chance games until the independent theatres obtain proper runs.

Paul Moss, New York City license commissioner, was to address a meeting of exhibitors sponsored by the Independent Theatre Owners Association on Thursday at the Hotel Astor.

LICENSING PRESS AGENTS ADVOCATED BY BIRDWELL

Licensing of all press agents, for the good of publicity clients, the public, the editors of the nation, and the entire field of motion picture advertising and publicity was advocated by Russell Birdwell, publicity and advertising director of Selznick International Pictures, in an address to the Advertising and Sales Club of Long Beach, Cal., this week.

Mr. Birdwell said:

"In the vanguard of men who believe in publicity, not only now, but for all time, are Howard Strickling and Frank Whitbeck of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Harry Brand of Twentieth Century-Fox and Terry De Lapp of Paramount. I could name others."

KMTA Is Planning Regional Meetings

Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association plans a series of regional meetings in Kansas and Missouri December 15 to January 15. Tentatively, the meetings have been set for Pratt, Stockton, Salina, Topeka and Independence, Kan., and Joplin, Eldon and Maryville, Mo.

The purpose is to gain full cooperation of all theatres, affiliated and non-affiliated, and to provide an opportunity to discuss legislative and other problems, Frank Cassil, president, said.

Myers Talks to New Penn Allied on Trade Reforms

Abram Myers, general counsel for Allied States, spoke on the proposed trade practice reforms, at the meeting Tuesday in Philadelphia of the new Pennsylvania Allied. About 45 exhibitors were present, many of them formerly members of the United Motion Picture Theatre Owners. Official title of the new organization is Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania. An annual budget of $25,000 was set, with half the sum pledged Tuesday.

Defer Oklahoma Convention

Plans for holding the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Oklahoma convention in Oklahome City this month have been called off by Morris Loewenstein, president, following a membership canvass. A meeting in the spring is now indicated.

Hearing on RKO Plan Set Dec. 16

Technical objections of a minority stockholder's attorney, who disclaimed intention of causing a delay, have put over till December 16th the final hearing to bring RKO out of 77B by the year's end.

John S. Stover, attorney for Ernest W. Stirn, holder of 1,234 shares of old, unconverted RKO class "A" stock, pointed out to Federal Judge William Bondy in last Friday's hearing in New York that consents filed by majority stockholders to the RKO reorganization plan proposed by Atlas Corporation were improper because they were not affixed with the actual stock certificates.

Judge Bondy upheld Mr. Stover's contention.

Mr. Stover also charged irregularities in the 1931 reorganization proceedings.

The court set a hearing for Friday at which minority stockholders will be required to show cause why physical presentation of stock certificates should not be waived in connection with the filing of consents.

17 RKO Pictures Coming; Mandel Succeeds Dowd

Coincident with the first visit of President George J. Schaefer to the RKO studios as chief executive, the studios report 17 pictures in work or completed; the RKO foreign department says 13 out of 25 foreign exchanges are "over the top" in the "Phil Reisman Flight" foreign sales drive; and RKO theatres' general manager, John J. O'Connor, appointed Harry Mandel as national director of publicity, advertising, and exploitation, to succeed John Dowd, who resigned to join the New York World's Fair organization.

Mr. Mandel, who succeeds Mr. Dowd, served his "apprenticeship" with B. S. Moss.

Industry Wins 2 Legislative Tilts

In their defense against legislation hostile to the motion picture industry, exhibitors and distributors this week counted two "victories" in Georgia.

The victories were won when the state supreme court upheld the legality of a Troup County court decision denying an injunction to citizens who tried to halt Sunday shows in Hopkinsville; and when a Decatur City jury freed Thomas Miller, operator of the Emory theatre, in that city, on charges of operating on Sunday, after they heard testimony that he had given the receipts to charity. This counterbalances the recent sentences, since suspended, given three operators of an Atlanta house, for operating on Sunday.

Opposed only by realty interests, the New York film industry, joined by labor unions, are objecting to a proposed ordinance which would "shave off" to one foot from the property line, all theatre marquees on Broadway from 69th Street to 110th Street, and applying to side streets, 100 feet east or west of Broadway.

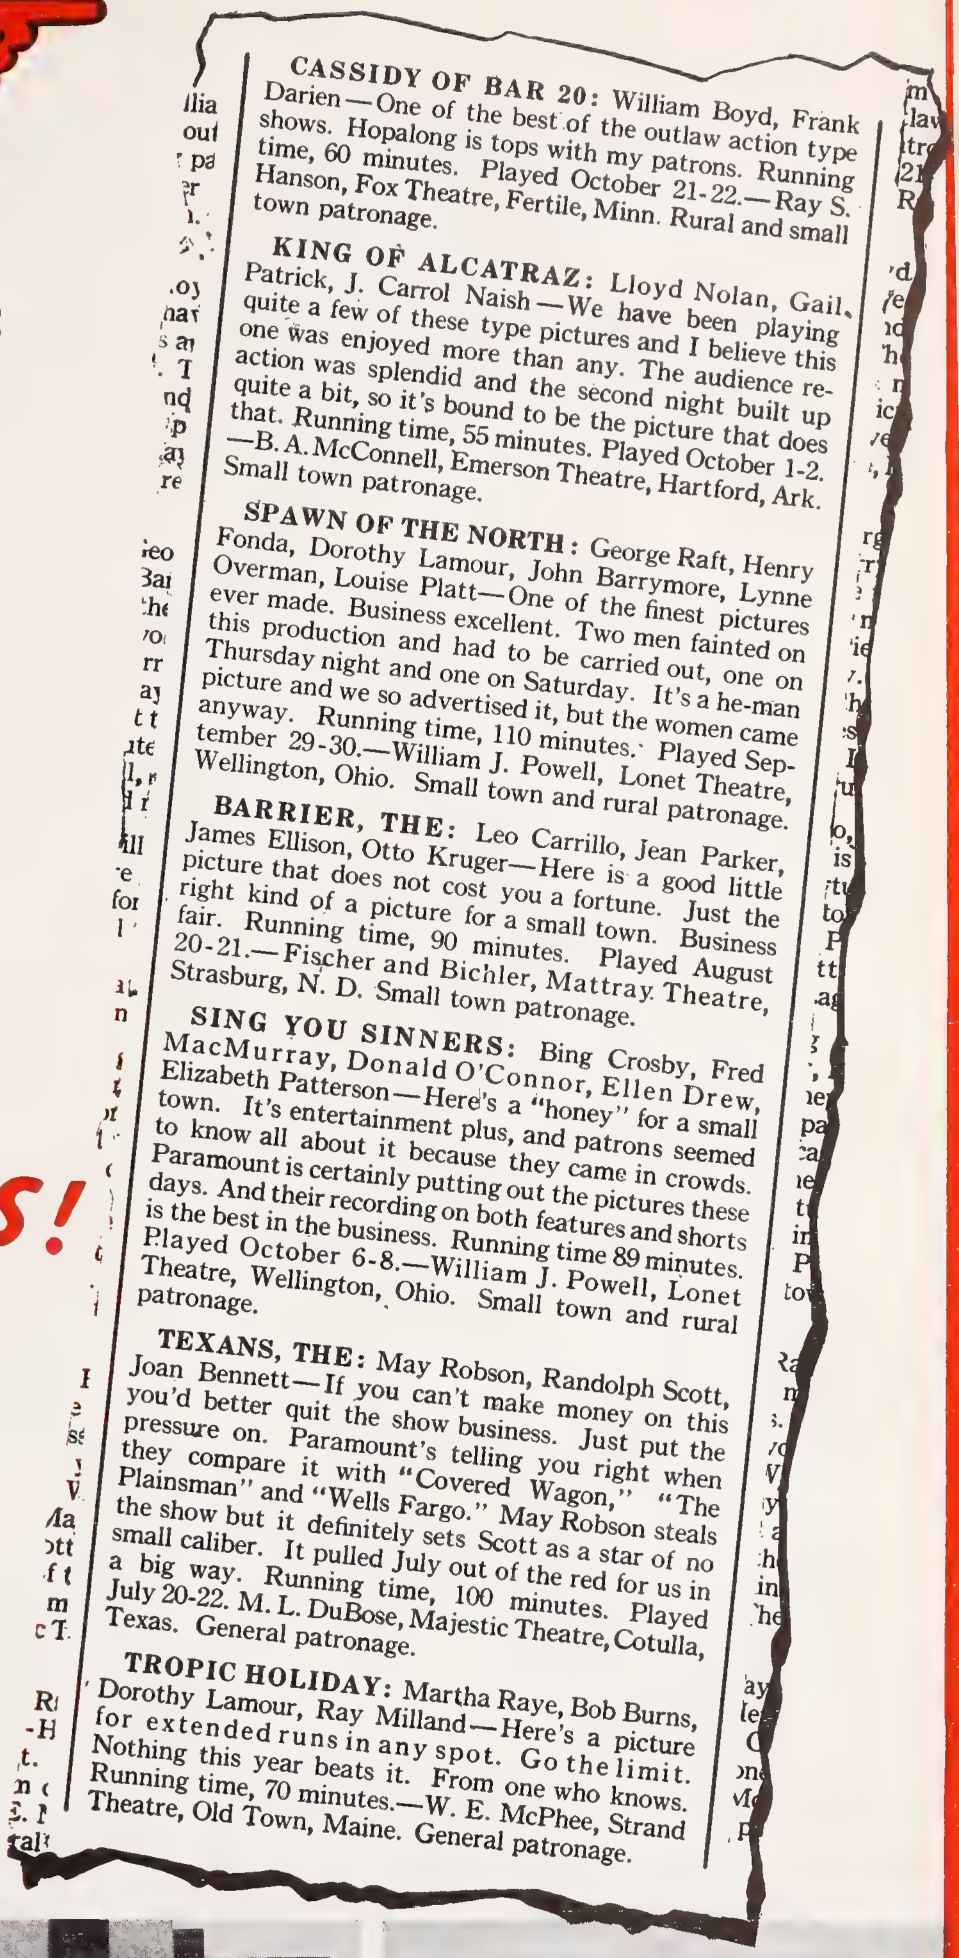
Read these typical small town raves on Paramount Pictures...



CASSIDY OF BAR 20: William Boyd, Frank Darien—One of the best of the outlaw action type shows. Hopalong is tops with my patrons. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 21-22.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Lloyd Nolan, Gail Patrick, J. Carrol Naish—We have been playing quite a few of these type pictures and I believe this one was enjoyed more than any. The audience reaction was splendid and the second night built up quite a bit, so it's bound to be the picture that does that. Running time, 55 minutes. Played October 1-2.—B. A. McConnell, Emerson Theatre, Hartford, Ark. Small town patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—One of the finest pictures ever made. Business excellent. Two men fainted on this production and had to be carried out, one on Thursday night and one on Saturday. It's a he-man picture and we so advertised it, but the women came anyway. Running time, 110 minutes. Played September 29-30.—William J. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

BARRIER, THE: Leo Carrillo, Jean Parker, James Ellison, Otto Kruger—Here is a good little picture that does not cost you a fortune. Just the right kind of a picture for a small town. Business fair. Running time, 90 minutes. Played August 20-21.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

SING YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Donald O'Connor, Ellen Drew, Elizabeth Patterson—Here's a "honey" for a small town. It's entertainment plus, and patrons seemed to know all about it because they came in crowds. Paramount is certainly putting out the pictures these days. And their recording on both features and shorts is the best in the business. Running time 89 minutes. Played October 6-8.—William J. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

TEXANS, THE: May Robson, Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett—If you can't make money on this you'd better quit the show business. Just put the pressure on. Paramount's telling you right when they compare it with "Covered Wagon," "The Plainsman" and "Wells Fargo." May Robson steals the show but it definitely sets Scott as a star of no small caliber. It pulled July out of the red for us in a big way. Running time, 100 minutes. Played July 20-22. M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

BIG BUSINESS BUILDERS F

"SING YOU SINNERS" . . . Small town fans like family pictures. And here's the acknowledged leader in the family picture field, a fast paced merger of comedy, romance and action, introducing the Beebe Family and their horse, Uncle Gus, not to mention such radio song hits as "Small Fry" and "A Pocketful of Dreams." Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray star. Cast includes Ellen Drew, Donald O'Connor (new kid find), Elizabeth Patterson. Wesley Ruggles produced and directed from an original screen story and play by Claude Binyon.

"IN OLD MEXICO" . . . "Best of the Hopalong Cassidy's," says Hollywood Reporter of this exciting addition to Paramount's thrilling series of top flight Westerns. Produced by Harry Sherman from the famous Western novels of Clarence E. Mulford, William Boyd continues his role of "Hopalong" Cassidy, the hero of millions of Western fans everywhere. George Hayes, another favorite of the "Hopalong" public, and Russell Hayden head the usual strong Paramount cast, directed by Edward D. Venturini. Labelled by Film Daily "class production."

"CAMPUS CONFESSION" . . . Small town theatres, as clip on preceding page shows, are doing big business with this first of the new Paramount college life series of youth in action pictures. A big cast of Paramount stars including Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney, William Henry, popular comic Fritz Feld, John Arledge, Thurston Hall, Richard Denning make up the cast. But the big news is that Paramount adds to this stellar lineup "Hank" Luisetti, Stanford's All-American basketball star, in his first film appearance. Surefire action for the young folks. George Archainbaud directs.

"TOUCHDOWN, ARMY" . . . Here's an action picture that has everything. The glamor of Uncle Sam's famous old military academy at West Point. The excitement of football . . . leading up to the thrilling thunder of the nation's biggest game . . . the annual Army-Navy classic. John Howard, Mary Carlisle and Robert Cummings play the leads, with William Frawley, Owen Davis, Jr., Benny Baker, and Minor Watson completing the lineup. Kurt Neumann, who megaphoned "Hold 'em Navy," directs.

"SONS OF THE LEGION" . . . Reports from the field show small town theatres find this Paramount picture made to order for small town selling. Backed wholeheartedly by the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary, this exploitation natural has plenty of surefire entertainment value. For in addition to a dramatic story, particularly timely in its Americanism theme, this picture has the sales value of a splendid cast: Lynne Overman, Evelyn Keyes, Donald ("Small Fry") O'Connor, Elizabeth Patterson, William Frawley, Tim Holt, Billy Cook and Billy Lee. James Hogan directs.

"KING OF ALCATRAZ" . . . Exhibitors everywhere report this a really important money maker. The hardboiled critic on the New York Daily News called it "one of the best action thrillers of the year." An escaped Alcatraz Public Enemy makes plenty of trouble for a couple of lads aboard a coastwise tramp steamer. Gail Patrick and Lloyd Nolan share action honors with J. Carrol Naish, Harry Carey and Anthony Quinn. Robert Florey directed.

"THE ARKANSAS TRAVELER" . . . If any picture produced in recent years could be called THE SMALL TOWN PICTURE it's this homespun drama of small town life starring Bob Burns in a role which gives him, the critics say, the right to be named the true successor of the great Will Rogers. Given a fine sendoff by none other than that Dean of small town journalism, William Allen White, this picture has already made impressive, yes, record-breaking showing in towns from coast to coast. Fay Bainter, John Beal, Irvin S. Cobb, Jean Parker, Lyle Talbot, Porter Hall and Dickie Moore make up the big-time supporting cast for Bob. Alfred Santell directs.

"MEN WITH WINGS" . . . One of the major pictures of the year from any angle. A thrilling woman's picture with a heart throb in every sequence. A great man's picture with the mightiest aviation scenes ever filmed. A tremendous kid's picture with the advantage of giving an inside education on the whole history of American aviation. In flaming Technicolor with Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell, Andy Devine, Lynne Overman, Porter Hall, Walter Abel, and a score of the finest stunt flyers in the world, this epic of aviation is another tribute to the skill of Producer-Director William A. Wellman . . . to the enterprise of Paramount.

Paramount stars are sma

SMALL TOWN THEATRES!

"THANKS FOR THE MEMORY" . . . Radio stars mean plenty to small town business. And right now this picture gives you a chance to cash in on several important radio names. First, there is the title itself, which, of course, is the title of the hit song of the past summer and a network smash. Second, the picture features the new network hit "Two Sleepy People." Third, Bob Hope, one of the present top radio stars, teams with Shirley Ross, Charlie Ruggles and Otto Kruger to punch the swell human, real life story across. George Archainbaud directs. Early box office returns show it a surefire click.

"ARREST BULLDOG DRUMMOND" . . . This latest in the popular series of Drummond pictures has been acclaimed in the field by theatre men and theatre-goers as the best. Packed with the speedy, punchy action that small town fans love, this new Drummond hit has a heart-appeal that will reach right into the hearts of small-town America. John Howard adds to his laurels as H. C. McNeile's famous hero and Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, Reginald Denny and E. E. Clive lend strong support. James Hogan directed.

"IF I WERE KING" . . . Up at the very top of any box office list. Ronald Colman, one of the screen's truly great money-makers, plays his greatest devil-may-care, romantic role; Frank Lloyd, who made such record-makers as "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Wells Fargo," and who knows the pulse of the people, delivers his best to date. Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone, Ellen ("Sing You Sinners") Drew and thousands more make up a brilliant supporting cast that has already proven the small town showman's delight.

"LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE" . . . Hundreds in your town listen to her adventures on the air...hundreds more avidly follow her in the newspaper comic strip. Now Paramount comes across with a warm, human story, tailor-made for small town popularity, guaranteed to bring to your theatre all the "Little Orphan Annie" fans and their friends. Little Ann Gillis, who scored in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," is Annie in the flesh, Robert Kent, June Travis, J. Farrell MacDonald complete a strong cast. Ben Holmes directed.

"TOM SAWYER, DETECTIVE" ...One of the great small town stories of all time with the great family appeal that made Mark Twain America's favorite author. Mom will love its keen understanding of boyhood and its mischief-making... Dad will love the memories it brings back . . . the kids will love it for its thrill and adventure. Starring Donald O'Connor, the lad who walked away with your heart in "Sing You Sinners," with Billy Cook, Porter Hall, Phillip Warren. Louis King directed.

"ARTISTS AND MODELS ABROAD" ...Paramount delivers the top name of the air lanes, Public Comedian No. 1, Jack Benny, in his best picture yet. Small town theatre men know what a great draw he is; all America has been pre-sold by Benny himself on his coast-to-coast Sunday night program. A smash title, a swell cast that co-stars Joan Bennett and Benny, with Mary Boland, Charley Grapewin, Fritz Feld, Joyce Compton and directed by Mitchell Leisen. Here's one with which small town showmen can really go to town.

"THE MYSTERIOUS RIDER" ...Zane Grey's fans are legion—and here's one of his highest-ranking red-blooded action stories designed to bring in and bring back the millions of fans who love excitement and thrills. Produced in the famous Harry Sherman manner which means ace production, strong cast, mile-a-minute action. With Douglass Dumbrille, Sidney Toler, Russell Hayden and Charlotte Field. Lesley Selander directed.

"THE FRONTIERSMEN" . . . All the thrills and hard-hitting action that have made Hopalong Cassidy the screen's stand-out Western series are augmented in Paramount's newest Hoppy hit by one of the outstanding kids' chorus' in the country—Robert Mitchell and his St. Brendan Boys Choir. Bill Boyd in the accustomed role of Cassidy, Evelyn Venable, a proven box office personality, is the heart interest. George Hayes and Russell Hayden complete the cast of what critics say is the best of the Hopalong series to date. Directed by Lesley Selander.

Fisherman's Wharf

(RKO Radio-Sol Lesser)

Father-Son Story

"Fisherman's Wharf" will be Bobby Breen's sixth picture. It will be a father-and-son story, detailing the great love an Italian widower has for his adopted boy. All is serene and happy between them until the man falls in love. Then there is mistrust and discord until the climactic sequences. Here the man tells the boy that he is not his real father, that he took him from an asylum.

The story is not heavy. Stitched through the pattern of melodrama and human interest are broad threads of comedy. The writers, Bernard Schuber, Ian Hunter and Herbert Lewis, were careful to include it in their screen play. Director Bernard Vorhaus is making sure that it will be as important as any other element. It might be remarked that the comedy is of that variety which Leo Carillo and Henry Armetta deliver during their best screen moments.

There will be music for young Breen to sing, a popular tune or two, fisherman's chanties, Italian folksongs and excerpts from operas. The score music is being directed by Victor Young.

The locale is modern San Francisco. Picturesque and famous Fisherman's Wharf is the main setting, but in the story's detailing appear such wellknown features of the city as the Presidio, Seal Rocks and the Cliff House, Golden Gate park, the cable cars, Chinatown and the Golden Gate and San Francisco-Oakland bridges.

Breen, Carillo and Armetta are featured, with Lee Patrick, Rosina Galli, Tommy Bupp, George Humbert and Leon Balasco in important roles as well as "Slicker," the seal that scored a hit in "Spawn of the North."

Release date: About Christmas.

Gambling Ship

Melodrama

For name values this action melodrama, which also is taking advantage of the entertainment values of romance and comedy, will offer a group of favorably known players, headed by Helen Mack, whose latest pictures are "Secrets of a Nurse" and "I Stand Accused," and Robert Wilcox, in "Reckless Living," "Little Tough Guy" and "Swing That Cheer." The small featured support cast will present Edward Brophy, in "The Last Gangster" and "A Slight Case of Murder" and many others; Irving Pichel, Joseph Sawyer, last seen in "The Storm," and Selmar Jackson, featured in "Gangster's Boy."

The story is an original by G. Carleton Brown and Emanuel Manheim and the screen play was done by Alex Gottlieb, former publicity director, collaborator on "Arson Racket" and "Invisible Enemy." Direction is in the hands of Aubrey Scotto, maker of "Little Miss Nobody" and "Blazing Barriers" as well as the recent "Follow Your Heart." The producer, Irving Starr, has been making pictures in the "Crime Club" series.

In the story, when her father is mysteriously murdered, the daughter (Miss Mack) takes over operation of a gambling ship.

Release date: January 12, 1939 (tentative).

Exile Express

(Grand National-Eugene Frenke)

Melodramatic Romance

Showmen to whom the matter of name value is of supreme importance should find much of that in this Eugene Frenke production. Anna Sten, Samuel Goldwyn's protege of several years ago, will be the heroine. Alan Marshall, featured in "The Garden of Allah," MGM's "Conquest" and "Night Must Fall" and Wanger's "I Met My Love Again," is the hero. The principal support includes Jerome Cowan, seen in "Hurricane" and "Goldwyn Follies," Jed Prouty of "Jones Family" repute, Walter Catlett, Leonid Kinsky, Stanley Fields, Irving Pichel, Harry Davenport, now in "The Cowboy and the Lady," Feodor Chaliapin, Spencer Charters, Etienne Girardot, Vince Barnett and Maude Eburne.

Other credits, too, are worthy of notice. Dr. Frenke is probably best known as the producer of "Life Returns." Author of the story, Edwin Justus Mayer, was associated with the preparation of such films as "Buccaneer" and "The Affairs of Cellini." Director Otis Garret has made several numbers in the "Crime Club" series.

Miss Sten is cast as a foreigner, wrongfully convicted by circumstantial evidence as accessory to a murder, and is ordered deported.

Release date: To be determined.

Charlie Chan In Honolulu

(20th Century-Fox)

Comedy-Melodrama

Regardless of other elements that have commercial value in "Charlie Chan in Honolulu," the fact that a new personality has taken up the role created and played for many years by the late Walter Oland becomes the principal matter of exploitation.

After months of intensive search, decision was reached that Sidney Toler should take up the role. Toler has appeared in about fifty pictures, among his latest "Gold is Where You Find It," "That Certain Woman" and "Double Wedding."

Just as there will be a new "Chan," so will there he a new "Lee Chan," the son. Sen Yung, a San Francisco born Chinese and graduate of the University of California, seen before in "The Good Earth," is Keye Luke's successor. Others are wellknown Hollywood folk, with Eddie Collins, John King, Claire Dodd, George Zucco, Robert Barrat, Richard Lane and Marc Lawrence carrying the more important parts.

As usual the story was based on the character created by Earl Derr Biggers and from a screen play by Charles Belden, who did several pictures which featured Oland, including "Chan on Broadway" and "Chan at Monte Carlo." The director, Bruce Humberstone, also has had previous experience with the Biggers stories, having been at the helm of "Chan at the Olympics," "Chan at the Opera" and "Chan at the Race Track."

Release date: January 20, 1939.

Honolulu

(MGM)

Musical Comedy

"Honolulu," being built on the premise that audiences want the most entertainment that can be packed into a picture, will be a comedy romance, with music and dancing, that becomes hilariously complicated. Like the angel in one of Robert Service's poems, the star of the piece (at first) is a motion picture player who has tired of lounging in the golden streets of fame, adulation and personal appearances. He exchanges places with a person who looks like him, and falls heir to the other's troubles until he contrives to escape his dual identity.

Eleanor Powell will be given plenty of opportunity to dance, with production detail elaborately picturesque. The dual role which Robert Young will occupy will demand that he be alternately romantic and serio-dramatic. Parts have been written in that will permit George Burns and Gracie Allen to present their own variety of humor. Supplementing the unique beauty of the dancing numbers will be the visual charm of Jo Ann Sayers; Judith Allen and Rita Johnson, and considerable comedy may be expected from Eddie Anderson, the "Rochester" of Jack Benny's radio moments.

The picture is being produced by Jack Cummings, maker of "Born to Dance" and "Broadway Melody of 1938" which, it will be recalled, also featured Miss Powell. Direction was assigned to Edward Buzzell, whose previous MGM credit is "Fast Company."

The time is the present; the principal locales are Hollywood, aboard a liner, and in Honolulu.

Release date: To be determined.

ASCAP TAXES RESUMED, BUT NEW FIGHTS NEAR

Restrictive Legislation Prepared in Iowa and Colorado; U. S. Supreme Court Ruling Awaited

While hailed by music publishing interests as a victory, the resumption of music tax collections by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in Tennessee, Florida and Nebraska this week was viewed as only a temporary respite by officials of the Society in New York.

The organization this week faced more troubles in the fight by broadcasters, dance halls, exhibitors and other public performers of ASCAP-member music, with new state laws against the Society being prepared in Iowa and Colorado, this time reputedly backed by exhibitor interests, whereas former efforts to block the music royalty collections were for the most part engineered by radio broadcasting companies.

Expected from the United States supreme court this week was a ruling on the constitutionality of an anti-ASCAP law in Washington state, where the Society still is prevented from doing business, as it is also in Montana. If the ruling declares such legislation constitutional, it will be taken as applying to all states with similar legislation, and may pave the way for a flood of laws hostile to the Society.

The socalled temporary victories of ASCAP in Tennessee, Florida and Nebraska were the result of temporary injunctions issued in federal statutory courts, enjoining state from enforcing anti-ASCAP legislation. The writ in Tennessee was obtained last week in Knoxville by attorneys of the Society and was unopposed by assistant state attorney Edwin F. Hunt, who said the state would be satisfied not to enforce the legislation, pending U. S. supreme court rulings this week.

New anti-ASCAP legislation is being prepared in Iowa and Colorado, this time backed by exhibitor interests.

Cognizant of exhibitor irritation with ASCAP and the prevalent belief by the exhibitor that he is "double taxed" for music, once by the distributor's score charge, and again by the ASCAP seat tax collection, the Society last week sent a pamphlet to all licensed exhibitors proclaiming the ASCAP's lack of connection with the "score charge."

E. C. Mills, chairman of the ASCAP administrative board, last week protested against distributor characterization of the score charge "as a music tax within the industry," and warned that if score charges were removed under the new fair trade practice program, they would be added to film rentals.

This prediction was partly borne out in the draft of the trade practice program, made known this week, which provides for the addition to and consolidations with the film rental of all score charges for pictures of the 1938-39 season, licensed on a flat rental basis. The new program also declares that 1939-40 pictures shall entail no score charge for those pictures sold on a percentage basis.

The Canadian Copyright Board was scheduled to meet in Toronto Friday to hear all objections to the fee which the Canadian Performing Right Society, Ltd., will collect for use of its musical works by theatres, radio stations, orchestras, and fairs, during 1939. The Society, which levies according to seating capacity, has not increased its rates over the previous year.

MGM, Columbia Hold Sales Meets

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer held its mid-season sales meeting in Chicago last weekend, and Columbia Pictures will hold its third and final divisional sales meeting in San Francisco this Saturday and Sunday.

Releases during the next three months were discussed at the MGM meeting, presided over by sales manager William F. Rodgers. Attending from the home office were advertising manager Si Seadler; exploitation director William Ferguson; division managers Tom Connors, Ed Saunders; exchange operation manager Alan F. Cummings, and Edward W. Aaron, assistant to Mr. Rodgers.

Abe Montague, sales manager, and the assistant sales manager, Rube Jackter, will preside over the Columbia meeting.

Irving Asher's anticipated arrival in New York this week from London is expected to result in the signing of a new contract on the production for Columbia of British quota films, and mark the completion of a new Columbia setup in France and England, according to the remarks made by Columbia Pictures vice-president Jack Cohn on his arrival last week from abroad.

Columbia is establishing in France six offices for distribution. In addition, Columbia will release in the United States, and probably the British Empire, South America and elsewhere, one film from each of four French producers, on the 1939-40 schedule.

National Decency Legion Classifies 11 Pictures

Of 11 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week eight were approved for general patronage, two were listed as unobjectionable for adults and one was cited as objectionable in part. The pictures and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Adventure in Sahara," "Dawn Patrol," "Father O'Flynn," "Flirting with Fate," "In Early Arizona," "Last Warning," "The Little Adventuress," "Up the River." Class A-2, "Comet Over Broadway," "Shadows Over Shanghai." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "The Story of a Cheat."

Felicia, six years old, daughter of James ("Jimmy"), Sileo New York photographer in the motion picture industry, will appear as "Dopey" in a "Snow-White" operetta to be given during the Christmas holidays at the Lyceum theatre, New York, by the Children's Opera Company.

Interstate and Schenck Benefits To Aid Refugees

Motion picture and allied theatrical interests are extending plans for benefits to aid "non-Aryan" Nazi refugees.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of MGM, conducted a preview benefit performance of "Pygmalion," British-made from the Bernard Shaw play, at New York's Astor theatre, Wednesday evening. Proceeds were divided between the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, American Committee for Christian German Refugees, Committee for Catholic Refugees from Germany and the American Friends Service Committee. "Pygmalion" opened to the public the next morning.

Columbia, Paramount, RKO, United Artists, Universal and Warners donated films for refugee benefits that were staged Wednesday in the 137 interstate theatres of Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell in 30 Texas cities. Additional sums were obtained by collections in the 137 houses. Interstate's campaign was aided by Governor James Allred, by newspapers, civic and other clubs, private citizens and Elliott Roosevelt's 27-link radio chain.

Forty art directors, advertising and publicity executives of New York home offices received a report from Charles Leonard, in Hollywood, that 40 producers and stars, headed by Samuel Goldwyn, would cooperate in their Motion Picture Art Fund for German Refugees, which will conduct a nationwide raffle of paintings contributed by famous American artists. Henry R. Rittenberg, portrait painter, heads a group of artists participating. Emanuel Silverstone, United Artists, and Dick Murray, Paramount, are serving as treasurers. The drawing will take place February 12th, in New York.

Through the Young Men's Philanthropic League, refugees will benefit from the proceeds turned over to the League from the opening of "Two Sisters," last Thursday, at the Continental, New York.

Hungarians Drop Actors

Many Jewish performers were ordered dropped this week from the accepted list of players who may appear on the stage and in motion pictures in Hungary.

Nazi Spy Trial in Film

Warners this week started preparations on "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," a feature to be based on the recent federal trial in New York of four Nazis accused of espionage in the United States. John Torrou, former "G-Man," accredited with bringing the spies to trial, was signed to aid Milton Krims in drafting the screenplay.

Warners also is producing "Concentration Camp," by Mark Hellinger.

Chadwick to Handle Tri-National Product in Western Territory

John E. Otterson, president of Tri-National Films, Inc., has arranged with I. E. Chadwick for the distribution of the company's product in the western territory. Mr. Chadwick's organization will direct distribution of Tri-National films from its Los Angeles office in the following territory: California, Hawaii, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Colorado.

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

A uniformed motorcycle courier, bearing the insignia of Warner Brothers Pictures, dashed into the Hollywood bureau of MOTION PICTURE HERALD the other day, saluted and presented the daily studio spot-news letter. Having obtained a receipt for it, he departed.

The principal story of the day was this, being quoted directly:

"Lead weighted snow is Hollywood's latest movie ingenuity. It was introduced to balk heavy San Fernando Valley winds which threatened to disrupt filming of Warner Brothers' Bette Davis starring picture, 'Dark Victory,' despite high temperature and sunny skies.

"Three different 'falls' of snow, each comprised of nine tons of untoasted cornflakes and gypsum dust, were placed on the grounds of a New England farm set at the Warner Brothers ranch near Calabasas. High winds swept them all away before the company was ready to use the set.

"Studio special effects men solved the problem by dipping corn flakes in white lead. That gave them enough weight so they stayed on the ground, and despite the high wind which again raged the company worked."

Radio's propensity for providing entertainment for America's masses has been vastly underestimated. Daniel S. Tuthill, assistant managing direct of National Broadcasting, told Federal Communications Commissioners probing radio that NBC books everything from trained seals and acrobats to concert stars, and even supplied two goats for a Bock Beer Festival.

Persons in the neighborhood of Delaware Avenue and the Ford Hotel, in Buffalo, will notice the general improvement in the neighborhood in the nature of blazing, gay lights adorning a mighty architectural interpretation of cocktail bar, lounge and eating place. The lights in vivid Neon spell: "Gerry's." Pronounced with a soft "G" as in Gin—that's Gerry's. And Gerry is none other than Gerald K. Rudulph, who after years with Winfield Sheehan, some more years of publicity managing for Fox Film, and still more as advertising director for the first RCA Photophone theatre sound reproducers, quit the picture business back in 1933 to go to Buffalo to work for the Schreiber Brewery. He now has his own name in lights, over "Gerry's."

Will H. Hays has, besides motion pictures, a very definite interest in glycerine, paints, soaps, linoleum, rubber substitutes and printing inks. A little lady telephoning the suburban Plaza theatre in Cincinnati, to inquire the nature of the feature playing, received the reply, "Marie Antoinette."

"In what picture?" was her additional inquiry.

Stanley C. White, of Kodak Park, where Eastman makes millions of miles of raw stock for Hollywood, has thrown 189,000 pounds of iron 40 feet. He's a horseshoe pitcher.

He's been in it for six years now and during that time has taken part in 24 tournaments. There are 45 to 50 games in a tournament—a total of from 1,080 to 1,200 games—and in the average game each pitcher throws 70 horseshoes weighing 2½ pounds each—from 75,600 to 84,000 horseshoes. That gives Mr. White a total iron heave of at least 99½ tons, if our multiplication is correct, which it is.

He's pretty good, too. He has thrown as many as 36 consecutive "ringers," which would constitute a world's record if he was playing in an official tournament; and last summer he had 510 points out of a possible 600—another unofficial world's record. Mr. White did defeat the present world's champion in an exhibition game in Rochester.

Tightest White tussle was during the New York State championship meet in 1936, when he led off with 36 consecutive "ringers," only to be defeated 49-50.

Gypsy Rose Lee, by the way, got a call from a sub-committee of the Dies Congressmen who are investigation un-American activities. "Strip-Teaser Ready to Reveal All—About Hollywood," reported the Associated Press headline.

Mr. and Mrs. Armand Denis are back home at Putnam, Connecticut, from an 11,000-mile airplane trip through the country in the interests of "Dark Rapture," the picture they filmed for Universal in the wilds of Belgian Congo. Traveling with the children were all of their pets, assorted white mice, flying squirrels, pink snakes and such. And they brought every one back alive.

Hospitably, the manager of the Haven theatre, Olean, N. Y., sent a special, engraved invitation to the Reverend G. I. Norman, of a local church, to witness "Four Daughters." Came back the invitation by return post, together with the Reverend Norman's admonishment: "If you were given to deal with the spiritual side of life, you would soon discover that the Theatre plays a great part in the destruction of youth."

The Rockefellers installed the Museum of Science and Industry in their RCA Building at Rockefeller Centre with the intention that always it shall serve as a Museum of Peaceful Arts. If they will but take a peek inside the Museum these days they'll find that Marc Lachmann and Bill Chambliss, Fox home office super exploiteers, have installed enough torpedo, mine and other lethal equipment to start a good sized war.

Having in mind a bit of first class publicity for their company's "Submarine Patrol," and Mr. Chambliss himself being a first class navy man, on reserve, the two scouted torpedo, mine and other lethal equipment headquarters from New York to Boston and Brooklyn, and on down to the Navy Department at Washington. They carted back equipment and models of submarines and subchasers, a nice cutaway torpedo, a nice little harbor mine, one of Simon Lake's full-sized, 28-foot-long submarine periscopes, a 14-foot-high direction finder, underwater listening devices, submarine conning tower—and set it all up in Mr. Rockefeller's "Museum of Peaceful Arts."

"My goodness, you'd think he was Tarzan Weismuller," said the first woman disgustedly.

(20th Century-Fox)

Comedy Plus Songs

By preview test this is a highly effective comedy, in which Jack Haley turns in another of his too infrequent portrayals of the not quite stupid young man while Jack Oakie, Adolphe Menjou, Binnie Barnes, Arleen Whelan, Tony Martin and assorted reliable troupers unwind a complex series of smartly plotted situations growing out of a radio contest that succeeded beyond expectations.

A number of difficult narrative feats are accomplished. Among the contests enumerated in a dash of dialogue is the Movie Quiz. At another point the name of Shirley Temple creeps into the dialogue. Toward the end there is a closeup of the cover of Time Magazine, and earlier there are closeups of pages from a magazine printed accurately in the Fortune formal. The finish of the picture provides, without deserting the comedy field for a moment, an evidently audience-satisfying answer to the question of how the average American feels about war.

Harry Tugend's screen play, from a story by Gilbert Wright, is a snugly integrated series of extremely laughable incidents, some dependent on smart dialogue, most on situations and some on slapstick. William A. Seiter's direction is as sensitive as a seismograph, and associate producer Harry Joe Brown can point to the total enterprise as a considerable demonstration of the merriment-maker's art.

Not to become enmeshed in plot convolutions of extraordinary diversity and number, the thing goes like this. "Henry Smith," small town youth, wins out over 3,000,000 competitors in a radio contest designed to dredge up the "average American," the individual whose personal tastes most completely jibe with the coffee, toothpaste, breakfast food and general merchandise surveys determining the best sellers in 100 market divisions. "Harcourt," head of the advertising agency running the contest, sees in "Henry's" 100 per cent correct score an opportunity to predict future market trends accurately by simply observing "Henry's" reactions. To keep "Henry" an average man it is necessary to delay delivery of the prize money, which would make him rich. The delay breaks up "Henry's" romance, "Harcourt" simulates restoration of same by use of a voice double, and from there on it's all too involved and rapidfire to be told in print. Worked into it without stopping it, are four songs by the reliable Mack Gordon and Harry Revel.

The Last Warning

Mystery Melodrama

Among those at the Hollywood preview of this Crime Club production were many devotees of mystery screenfare who had seen its predecessors in the series. They pronounced this the best of the sequence to date. Your reporter, who has not seen them all, reports this uniform pronouncement as probably the proper promise to make to the customers.

The film is from Jonathan Latimer's novel, "The Dead Don't Care," but the screen play by Edmund L. Hartmann isn't so sombre as that sounds. On the contrary, humor is uppermost throughout and such murders as take place are brushed quickly aside in the course of what is primarily a comedy treatment. Al Rogell directed for associate producer Irving Starr and managed to keep the spectator reasonably well misinformed as to which member of the cast would turn out to be the criminal.

Preston Foster and Frank Jenks head the cast as New York detectives brought to California to find out who is threatening the lives of a wealthy young man and his sister, whose estate is in close-fisted custody of an uncle who won't unbuckle the money belt so the boy can pay gambling debts owed a metropolitan gangster now operating a night spot in the Pacific paradise. The convolutions of the plot are not readily synopsized, but the detectives do learn the identity of the criminal after he has killed two of the less ornamental members of the community and collected a ransom.

Messrs. Foster and Jenks have amusing lines to speak and laughable situations to negotiate. Their interest in the fair sex, which is many-sided, is a source of additional humor. Joyce Compton and Kay Linaker are the chief recipients of the sleuthy amours.

His Exciting Night

Comedy

There's a lot of fun for almost any kind of audience in this comedy, with amusement in characterizations, dialogue, situations and action. In name value, story content and production detail there is basis for lively showmanship.

Fast moving, running but 55 minutes, the show is a quick procession of things that make patrons laugh. Based on a comical situation, it develops a whole host of others.

Office colleagues plan a series of practical jokes for the timid clerk, "Adam Tripp," on his wedding night. The boss, "Carslake," irate because he thinks the clerk is taking a valuable account away from the firm, has other ideas. Though "Adam" fears aunt-to-be "Elizabeth," he and "Anne" marry. Then the fun begins. "Carslake" and prankster "Stewart," hire blonde "Gypsy McCoy" to compromise the groom. A rattle-brained taxi driver (Benny Baker) almost turns that stunt into tragedy. Then with "Adam" very much in wrong with his bride and in-laws, the dumb strong man husband of the blonde, "Doc," searching for his wife, tosses everything out of the frying pan into the fire. "Adam" changes from a Milquetoast to a raging he-man and turns the tables on all and reclaims his bride.

All that has gone into the photoplay is down-to-earth humor. Some verges on slapstick, some is domestic comedy and some is topical of wedding celebrations, but all is amusing. Where laughter is desired, "His Exciting Night" should fill the bill.

Previewed at the Hillstreet theatre, Los Angeles. The audience came under the comedy spell of the show almost from the beginning and gave ample evidence that it was enjoying every minute of it.—GUS MCCARTHY.

I Am a Criminal

(Monogram-Crescent)

Human Interest

As an entertainment item "I Am a Criminal" makes a clear departure from the routine gangster-regeneration theme. The many fresh twists give it unusual amusement and commercial significance. The story is a human interest yarn. Occasionally it gets a bit heavily melodramatic, but, in the main, the treatment is light.

dialogue and establishment of identity of the principal character, don't promise anything exceptional. The condition is altered entirely, however, with the first approach to the real point. With the good work of the featured players, John Carroll and young Martin Spellman, the understanding manner in which the story was prepared by Harrison Jacobs and the quality of direction provided by William Nigh, the show picks up interest and holds it unwaveringly.

"McArthur", gambling czar, finds that he can no longer bluff the district attorney. When, through an accident, he is arrested on a manslaughter charge, it appears that his number is up. However, his attorney, "Collins," gets a hunch that if the gambler can be made to appear to be a philanthropist, he will win public sympathy. "Reynolds," press agent, accomplishes that. His master stroke is to have "McArthur" adopt a waif, "Bobby." The relationship develops into real attachment, but when "Reynolds" and "McArthur's" girl friend, "Linda," who have been carrying on a secret flirtation, are caught in the act, they plan to doublecross the big shot. His trial coming up, "McArthur" decides to jump bail and desert the lad, but when he reaches his mountain hideout "Bobby" is with him. "McArthur" finds real love with "Alice Martin." Innocently, the boy gives the police a clue to the hideout. When the law closes in, "Bobby" is in danger of drowning as he tries to help his pal escape. "McArthur" rescues him and gives himself up, knowing that the boy and "Alice" will be waiting for him when his sentence is completed.

Dramatic School

Career Story

In accordance with the accepted standards by which exhibitors and audiences judge pictures, "Dramatic School" is a woman's picture. True, it is a different kind of "back stage" picture. It deals with theatrical folk—some of them were great theatrical folk—but the theme mainly concerns the adventures of youth, one in particular, who dreamed of and struggled for the fame that would one day be theirs when they became the great stars.

The central character is a young woman. The manner in which her character is developed, the ways in which her story is treated, whimsically, romantically and melodramatically, are designed to win the sympathy of women.

A hasty essaying of the picture might lead one to the conclusion that "Dramatic School," being a woman's picture, might be an attraction of appeal only to those interested in the theatre, but when it is realized that country girl and city miss alike are sure they could be stars if they only had a chance, the show takes on a different significance.

The Cinderella girl of the piece is a talented pupil, one of many students in the Paris dramatic School. Poor, but ambitious, she works all night in a factory, attends school by day. To cover up her poverty, she tells whopping lies. In sharp contrast is another kind of showgirl, one grasping at fame for what she can get out of it.

The romance "Louise" conjures up about herself and "Andre" becomes a real love story.

"Dramatic School" has the repeating winner of the Academy best actress award, Luise Rainer, also Gale Sondergaard, who won the Academy award for best supporting actress, in "Anthony Adverse," and Paulette Goddard, in "The Young in Heart." Then there are Alan Marshall, Melville Cooper, Genevieve Tobin, Henry Stephenson and Erik Rhodes, and a host of MGM youngsters who want to be stars, including Lana Turner, Ann Rutherford and Anthony Allen.

Gang Bullets

(Monogram)

Crime vs. Constitution

The biggest point of departure from the routine gangster melodrama is in the statement of a crusading district attorney that the framers of the Constitution failed to foresee the injustice wherein the modern day mug cloaks himself with the protective provisions of the Bill of Rights. Other than this, the frame of the story follows pattern.

Robert Kent and Anne Nagel as the two young persons involved in the crime crusade, Charles Trowbridge as Miss Nagel's father and leader of the investigatory division, and Morgan Wallace playing the smart but unscrupulous underworld lord, are the principal performers. Lambert Hillyer handled the directorial assignment from the original screen play of John T. Neville.

The campaign of "Dexter Wayne" to jail "Big Bill Anderson" meets opposition when the gangster and his wily "mouthpiece" gain release of the thug on a writ of habeas corpus and by the epistolary campaign of an unknown person by the name of "Junius," who says the district attorney is either inefficient or dishonest.

Next Time I Marry

(RKO Radio)

Trailer Romance

There have been several cross-country-by-trailer romances, but "Next Time I Marry" stands on its own celluloid. It is a gay comedy with many a novel twist, irrepressibly played by Lucille Ball, James Ellison and Lee Bowman. The picture was directed by Garson Kanin, who drew attention recently with "A Man to Remember."

The screen play is the work of John Twist and Helen Meinardi from an original story by Thomas Williamson. It concerns a rich girl who marries a WPA worker in order to inherit the money left her under her father's will. Her next step is to divorce the WPA chap and marry a titled foreigner, but the WPA worker, who has married her for the sum of $793 as a business transaction, balks at the resultant "cinderellaman" publicity and decides to be the one to file for the divorce. To make certain that he will get to Reno at least at the same time as his wife, he locks her in his trailer. The starting point is New York. The titled foreigner gathers his luggage, chauffeur and high powered car, and is soon in pursuit, but by the time the couple reach Reno they are in love.

Entertaining comedy sequences arise in rapid succession on the trip in the trailer.

Produced and distributed by RKO Radio. Producer, Cliff Reid. Directed by Garson Kanin. Screen play by John Twist and Helen Meinardi from an original story by Thomas Williamson. Photography by Russell Metty. Recorded by John L. Cass. Film editor, Jack Hively. Production executive, Lee Marcus. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4729. Running time, 65 minutes. Release date, December 9, 1938. General audience classification.

Abus de Confiance

Melodrama from France

An importation from France, directed by Henry Decoin from a story by Pierre Wolff, "Abus de Confiance," is entertainment, of a melodramatic nature, despite the infrequency of action. Of first importance in billing is the fact that the production, made in the Pathe Studios in Paris by U. D. I. F. Burscholz, was Danielle Darrieux's last picture in France before her debut in Hollywood.

Intelligent superimposition of English titles helps to concentrate the attention of the audience upon a picture which depends in the main upon dialogue in development of the theme. The supporting cast, including Charles Vanel, Valentine Tessier, Therese Dorny and Yvette Lebon, do their share to maintain balance.

The story, built upon a theme of the error of using deceit to find happiness, has a delicate premise of adult concept but is treated seriously throughout. In fact there is little comedy.

"Lydia," law student at a Paris university, unable to find work after the death of her grandmother, enters upon a daring scheme with "Alice," her schoolmate. "Lydia" confronts "Jacques Ferney," French historian, and pretends to be his illegitimate daughter. "Jacques" accepts the fraudulent credentials and takes her into his home, where he explains the situation to his understanding wife, "Helene." "Lydia" completes her studies.

"Helene," her suspicions aroused, gets the whole story from "Alice." The climax of the picture comes when "Lydia" pleads the case of a client, a young girl in circumstances similar to her own. During the dynamic speech in the courtroom "Helene" realizes that "Lydia" is really pleading her own case, and forgives her for the deception.

Miss Darrieux's speech in the courtroom, the one time she shows real emotion, more than makes up for the occasional monotony of her portrayal.

Reviewed at the premiere given by the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents in the United States, at the Belmont theatre in New York. The picture was applauded liberally.—George Spires.

Produced by U. D. I. F. Burscholz and distributed by Columbia Pictures Corp. Directed by Henry Decoin. From the story by Pierre Wolff. Adaptation by Henry Decoin and Jean Boyer. Music by Georges Van Parys. Running time, 87 minutes. Release date, November 30, 1938. Adult audience classification.

Adventure of Giacomo Casanova

(Amerital)

Lover Turns Detective

If non-Italian speaking patrons are attracted by the romantic suggestiveness of this Latin importation, their cinematic curiosity will be balked on two counts, for the foreign dialogue has not been translated with superimposed English titles, and the adventures of the fabled heart breaker of the past are more of an investigatory than an amatory nature.

There is, true, extraneous business of Casanova ogling a tavern maid, kissing the hands of a couple of high born ladies, distributing jeweled tokens to his female public, and the ear raising reaction of the women on hearing the mention of his wicked name. The story, however, concerns implication of the gay blade in the robbing and murdering of a rich traveler.

Nerio Bernardi impersonates the historical romantic in a fustian style of arched eyebrows, knowing looks and elaborate gestures.

Editing is uneven and the picture, when shown, had inadequate lighting and blurred reproduction.

Viewed at an afternoon performance at the Cine Roma, New York, a house devoted to the exhibition of Italian films. A small afternoon audience was non-demonstrative—Joseph F. Coughlin, New York.

Sacrifice d'Honneur

(Tri-National Films, Inc.)

Emotional Conflict

With a cast headed by Annabella, the French film "Sacrifice d'Honneur" contains many fine action shots. Sequences depicting vessels of the French navy in combat are outstanding in their pictorial quality, offsetting in a measure a ponderous story.

"Captain de Corlaix," of the French cruiser Alma, is court-martialed for having lost his ship in a surprise attack by a cruiser of a revolting Near Eastern country. The one thing which can save him is corroboration of his defense that the rebel cruiser gave signals which had identified her as French. The only person apparently able to affirm this, one of the Captain's officers, has suffered a lapse of memory.

"De Corlaix's" wife (Annabella), was on the boat, however, though not intentionally. She had recognized a man among the reinforcements going aboard, from a youthful affair, and had sought to pledge him to secrecy. The ship moved out and the young officer hid her in his cabin.

Sacrificing her own honor, she tells the court her story, and reawakens the memory of the other officer to the signals of the rebel ship. "De Corlaix," acquitted, realizes the intense love of his wife.

Superimposed English titles make the film readable to general audiences.

Previewed at the Normandie in New York, Park Avenue's first motion picture theatre, on opening night. The reaction of the audience was varied. The story was not taken seriously at all times, as indicated by hissing of the "villain" in the court scene, but the action sequences were well received.—Walter Selden.

Distributed by Tri-National Films, Inc. An Imperial Film production, directed by Marcel L'Herbier, with music by Jean Lenoir, story by Claude Farrere and Lucien Nepoty, screen play by Marcel L'Herbier and Charles Spaak, and editing and titling by Forrest Izard. Running time, 75 minutes. Adult audience classification.

Santa Fe Stampede

Western

With more to offer than most Westerns, "Santa Fe Stampede" is crammed full of action and has a plausible story to boot. Unusual, too, is the manner in which crooked politics in a small western town is handled. The scenes of mob violence engendered by the politicians against an innocent man are made realistic by George Sherman, the director.

The picture is another in the series starring the Three Mesquiteers, John Wayne, Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune. The girl is June Martel. In character roles are William Farnum, Le Roy Mason, Martin Spellman and Ferris Taylor.

"Dave Carson," whom the Mesquiteers have grubstaked, calls the trio to the Nancy Carson Mine where he has struck ore. He plans to give the boys half of the claim, which he has not yet recorded. The Mesquiteers arrive in time to capture a horse thief. When the culprit, a hireling of "May Gil Byron," is released after a travesty trial, the Mesquiteers obtain signatures on a petition to the governor to investigate the political setup. The real war begins.

Hawk of the Wilderness

(Republic)

Serial

The "Hawk of the Wilderness" is a new 12 chapter serial based on the book of the same name by William L. Chester. It stars Herman Brix and features Mala, native of Alaska; Monte Blue and Jill Martin. The story is set on an "island" in the Bering Sea near the Arctic Circle. The tropical weather of the island is the result of an active volcano. Brix plays a white man who has lived on the island since babyhood having been in a shipwreck. He has been on the island for 23 years when an exploring party arrives. From there the various conflicts begin. The first chapter ends with Brix coming to the rescue of the explorers when they are attacked by natives. The serial is of the "Tarzan" variety with Brix in loin cloth swinging from tree to tree and doing other feats of athletic skill. Directed by William Witney and John English. Robert Beche is associate producer. Running time, first chapter 29 minutes.

Little Blue Blackbird

Cute Cartoon

Mama blackbird is a bit upset when she discovers in her latest batch of fledglings a little newcomer who is strangely off color. When a hawk seizes the brother blackbirds, the pariah, compensating for his lack of flying equipment by a clever utilization of feathers from a duster, flies to the rescue of his bird brethren.—Running time, seven minutes.

Opening Day

That Man Again

While everybody else is in a dither about who are going to be picked for the all-American football team and wondering whether the various Bowl games are going to amount to much, Mr. Benchley is opening the baseball season by tossing (well, almost) the first ball out. He tries first to entertain the fans by speaking extemporaneously and when he runs shy of words he digs up some statistics. But the fans really want to see the ball game so what can he do but toss that ball, but he doesn't have to toss it out of the ball park, does he? Running time, 9 minutes.

Defying Death

(Warner Brothers)

Good Dramatic Reel

One of the Floyd Gibbons' Your True Adventure Series, this is better than many because its characters are apparently more real, their lines more natural, and the story more suspenseful. A tenement house matron, trapped by fire on the fifth floor with her two small children, puts them into a pillow case, ties it around her neck, climbs hand over hand to safety, on a clothesline stretched from her house across a courtyard to the next building. The final episode has Gibbons introducing the principal in the original true story, awarding her the $250 prize check. A good short for most houses, with special appeal for women.—Running time, 12 minutes.

Costa Rica

Travelogue

The Latin American republic of Costa Rica is visited here by wandering cameramen and they have filmed in color the customs, the country and the people of this typical southern republic. Like so many other Latin American countries, Costa Rica is a combination of the old and the new. The natives still lean towards ancestral modes of living. Directed by Palmer Miller and Curtis S. Nagel. Running time, 10 minutes.

CHARGES 'QUIZ' BOOKS VIOLATE A COPYRIGHT

Milton Spitz, Non-Practicing Attorney, Never in Films, Says He Had Rights to Game

Impounding of any profits accruing to the eight large distributors from product released in connection with their "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign is asked in federal court in a suit filed Monday in behalf of one Milton Spitz, a non-practicing attorney in New York, who charged that the "Quiz" booklets used for the contest in the campaign constitute a violation of the contents of an idea he had copyrighted, also in booklet form, in 1936.

Krellberg and Fitzsimons, attorneys of New York, acted for Mr. Spitz, in the United States district court for the southern district of New York. Mr. Spitz, who has never been in the films business and is now associated with the Benjamin Winter realty company, says in his complaint that he obtained the rights to his game from his brother, Edward, who was in the film business briefly, as an independent producer in Hollywood, prior to 1936. Ernest Maas, studio writer, is claimed to have collaborated with Edward Spitz in preparing the game.

Impounding of Booklets Asked

The court is asked to order the impounding of all booklets and advertising matter relating to the booklet; enjoinment of the defendants or their agents from directly or indirectly possessing the booklets, manufacturing, selling or exhibiting them. The complaint further asks for an accounting of and surrender of all profits derived from their use, and for damages.

The complaint seeks damages under the Copyright Law and payment of costs of the lawsuit.

The complainant claims a similarity between the contest and booklet of the industry drive, and the game, copyrighted, but never used, of "U-Spot-It, a New Form of Motion Picture Entertainment," the title of the booklet used with the game. With it also was to be provided a patron identification card with instructions, entitled "U-Spot-It Contest."

Reproduced are copyright certificates for each of these features of "the original contest," which, according to the complaint, was "conceived, originated and devised prior to the 25th day of March, 1936, by Ernest Maas and Edward M. Spitz."

Says Copyright Was Obtained

Edward Spitz prior to that date transferred the game to Milton Spitz, the complaint asserts, adding that Maas and Spitz on March 25, 1936, obtained a copyright on the game. On the following day, it was stated, they filed the booklet and the ticket with the Register of Copyrights in the Library of Congress, Washington. The complaint further lists the fact that Maas and Spitz published notices of copyright both in the ticket and in the booklet.

Said the explanatory booklet: "In the preparation of 'U-Spot-It' pictures, the important details of certain scenes will be so contrived, accented, and psychologically tricked by various treatments and camera devices as to give these scenes a definite significance."

According to the booklet, the game was to be carried on in the theatre, with a judge on the stage questioning those audience members who thought they had seen the item mentioned on their cards in the picture. From the booklet:

"If this identification does appear, and the holder is successful in spotting it, he must, when called upon, present himself on the stage to the judge of the contest and make a declaration to that effect. He must also answer a number of specially prepared questions put to him by the judge. . . . If these questions are answered to the satisfaction of the judge, the holder will then be declared a winner and awarded a prize, if one is given."

The "Movie Quiz" contest of the industry drive does not use pictures specially made or treated; does not have its finale in a theatre; nor does it pre-name any "item" for the patron to identify. It is based on 94 pictures released between September 1st and Decmber 31st; calls for submission to judges of the booklet with questions about 30 of the pictures answered; and calls for an additional indorsement of one picture seen, as best, with reasons why.

Butterfield Resigns From Pathe News

Allyn Butterfield, editor of Pathe News, has resigned, his new picture affiliation to be announced within a week. Frederic Ullman, Jr., vice-president of Pathe, said no successor would be named.

Mr. Butterfield, who started with Vitagraph in 1915, has edited features and serials in many large companies, joining the International Newsreel editing staff in 1923. Starting with Universal Newsreel in 1929 as associate editor, he became editor-in-chief, producing the "Stranger than Fiction" and "Going Places with Lowell Thomas" series. He also edited RKO's "Bring 'Em Back Alive." Mr. Butterfield joined Pathe News as managing editor in 1935, and became editor in 1937.

Film Library to Extend Columbia Film Course

As an extension of the course on motion pictures being conducted by the Film Library of The Museum of Modern Art for the Department of Fine Arts of Columbia University, special showings for the students will be held every Thursday at eight o'clock at the Film Library's projection room, 125 East 46th Street, New York.

The first special showing was held Thursday with two films exhibited. They were "The Battle of the Somme," a war record film produced in 1927 by permission of the British Army Council and "Dawn," produced by Herbert Wilcox in 1928. On December 15th the films will be "Moana of the South Seas," directed by Robert Flaherty in 1925 and distributed by Paramount, and "Berlin, the Symphony of a City," 1927.

James Roosevelt Joins Goldwyn

Samuel Goldwyn, largest producer and owner-member of United Artists, announced in Hollywood Saturday the engagement of James Roosevelt as vice-president of Goldwyn Productions, Inc.

The eldest son of the President had been in the insurance brokerage business in Boston until a year ago when he became confidential secretary to his father. He left the White House two months ago to be treated for a stomach ailment at Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. Subsequently he spent much time in Hollywood during recuperation.

As Mr. Goldwyn's vice-president, the 31-years-old James Roosevelt will divide his time between the Hollywood studio and New York office, on duties yet to be announced. He arrives in New York on January 2nd, the date when his contract, for five years, becomes effective. After two months in the east he will set up permanent residence in Hollywood.

Asked whether he felt his relationship to the President in the White House and his experience as his father's secretary would aid or hinder him in his connection with any motion picture of controversial nature, James Roosevelt said, "Mr. Goldwyn doesn't make controversial pictures," and Mr. Goldwyn promptly affirmed that.

Hollywood reports of a salary ranging all the way from $25,000 to $50,000 yearly were answered by Mr. Roosevelt with the statement that the $50,000 quotation was "high."

Abram F. Myers, chairman of Allied States Association, issued a statement Monday evening deprecating charges that the new position of James Roosevelt was a move to influence the Government's anti-trust suit, and suggesting that exhibitor leaders "wishing him well in his new situation write him in care of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., 7210 Santa Monica Boulevard, Los Angeles, California."

Schine Dinner Plans Are Set

Plans for the testimonial dinner to be tendered J. Louis and Meyer Schine, New York circuit owners, are near completion. The dinner, to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Schines' service in the film industry, will take place at the Ten Eyck Hotel on December 19th. Philip C. Fox, Columbia branch manager in Albany, has been in New York making arrangements for speakers and a toastmaster. Governor Herbert H. Lehman and the mayors of Albany, Syracuse, Gloversville and Amsterdam have been invited.

Attendance of about 500 is expected at the dinner; with reservations already made by George J. Schaefer, Edward Golden, James R. Grainger, Nate Blumberg, Herbert Yates, William F. Rodgers, Thomas J. Connors, Jay Emanuel, Abe Montague, William Scully, Si Fabian, Carl Leserman, Herman Robbins, George Weeks and others.

Leo Meehan, identified with the public relations department of the Works Progress Administration in Los Angeles and San Francisco the last two years, has resigned to join the Caples Company, international railroad advertising agency. He will write the script of a new Union Pacific radio program going on the air early in January over a network of western stations. His headquarters will be in the Los Angeles offices of the agency.

IN COURTS

Loew Stockholders Suit Continues

Trial of the suit brought by nine Loew minority stockholders against the company and its officers and directors continued before Justice Louis A. Valente in New York supreme court this week.

The first day of the actual trial Monday was devoted to the reading of depositions of Louis B. Mayer and J. Robert Rubin, MGM executives. Some 85 exhibits in the form of contracts were admitted for evidence. The complaint was amended on application of plaintiffs to add 20 supplementary charges. Most of the allegations referred to charges of favoritism and concessions granted to relatives of officers.

Norma Shearer, Edward Loew and Bank of America, as executors of the estate of Irving Thalberg, were named as defendants.

On Tuesday the court heard that five Loew employees received $12,800,000 in the period from 1934 to 1937, while common stockholders received $21,612,000 in the same period. Most of the day was taken up with reading of depositions of Mr. Rubin which started Monday.

Charges of "unconscionable conduct" on the part of Loew officers made by Emil K. Ellis, principal attorney for the minority group, in his opening address to the court late last week were met by Joseph Proskauer, attorney for the defendants, with the reply that "there is not a scintilla of evidence to support the charges."

Mr. Proskauer told the court that Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, showed great "business acumen" in making an arrangement which kept Norma Shearer in the part of Marie Antoinette in the film of that title after the death of Irving Thalberg, her husband.

As a result of the arrangement Loew's, Inc., is paying more than $900,000 to the Thalberg estate and Miss Shearer is under contract to do five more pictures, the court was told. The $900,000 item, representing four per cent of Loew's net profits from the time of Mr. Thalberg's death in 1936, is one of the payments challenged by the plaintiffs.

Mr. Ellis declared that from 1927 to 1938 Mr. Thalberg, Mr. Mayer and Mr. Rubin received more than $19,000,000, or 20 per cent of net profits, and that there was "nothing to justify" this.

Bernard Reis, accountant, on Wednesday described a contract made between Allied Owners and Paramount-Famous Players Lasky, under which three theatres were to be erected in Brooklyn for Loew's. On completion, Loew's was to have the option of either paying $9,000,000 in cash or $14,000,000 over 15 years, and Loew's exercised the latter option, Mr. Reis said. He was to be followed on the witness stand by Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox.

Expunge Paramount Claims

Claims totaling $1,397,417 of GB Theatres Corporation against Paramount-Publix Corporation have been expunged by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe upon recommendation of Special Master John E. Joyce. No objection was made.

Settle Weinberger Claim

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe has approved the settlement of a claim of $68,000 filed against Paramount-Publix by Henry Weinberger and the Guarantee Trust Company of New York as trustees for the estate of Eva C. Weinberger for $15,000 in cash and a release of the proceeds of stock valued at $3,700.

Action Lost by Pathe Minority

Minority stockholders of Pathe Film Corporation on Wednesday lost in their attempt to block the December 13th stockholders meeting when dissolution of the corporation will be voted upon. New York supreme court Justice Philip J. McCook denied the minority group's motion for a temporary injunction.

Judge McCook pointed out that 80 per cent of the stockholders must consent before dissolution can be effected and that at least $1,000,000 in taxes can be saved.

The plaintiffs hold a total of 2,445 shares of Pathe stock, and Louis Nizer, counsel to the defendants, asserted that since more than 90 per cent of the stockholders had agreed upon the plan, a small minority has no complaint.

Edward C. Weinrib, counsel for the plaintiffs, said the majority of the stockholders do not comprehend the terms of the plan. He stressed the proposed disposition of the 3,500 shares of du Pont Film Manufacturing Company, owned by Pathe, claiming it was worth $2,500 a share, or between $7,000,000 and $11,000,000.

He said the du Pont company had offered to bid at least $2,500 a share for the stock with Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, for a loan of slightly more than $1,000,000, from which Pathe preferred stockholders will receive $756,000, or $100 a share, while the bank will get about $250,000 in repayment of a loan.

Mr. Weinrib said that under the plan common stockholders are given one week from December 13th to redeem the pledged stock by putting up 171 shares of Pathe common and $300 in cash for each du Pont share. He charged that this was an assessment on the Pathe common stockholders to repay the preferred holders and to pay off the loan.

He also charged that under the plan the defendants would take over $424,000 in quick assets in addition to land, building and equipment in Bound Brook, N. J., and West 44th Street, N. Y., worth more than $200,000.

Settlement Goes to Charity

The New York offices of Walt Disney Enterprises this week received the following cable: "English high court has granted perpetual injunction restraining Lee Bridge Rubber Works from infringing 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs' copyright and ordered delivering up of all offending material and payment of costs. Defendants also to pay agreed damages to charities nominated by English company."

Dismiss Van Beuren Suit

New York supreme court Justice William Collins dismissed the $100,000 damage action brought by Joan Lowell against the late Amedee J. Van Beuren for failure of the plaintiff to prosecute her action. The complaint charged that the defendant had intefered with a contractual relationship between the plaintiff and Van Beuren Corporation.

Reinstate Garden Suit

The New York appellate division reinstated a suit brought by Madison Square Garden Corporation against Universal Pictures, which had been dismissed by Justice Bernard L. Shientag of supreme court. The plaintiff seeks to enjoin distribution of the film, "Idol of the Crowds."

Robert E. Allan, former Chicago newspaperman, has been appointed general manager of Superior Pictures, St. Louis. Alan Rosenberger, formerly with Superior, has joined Grand National.

Jack Flynn, district manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Detroit, has been appointed general manager for the spring convention of Variety Clubs there.

OBITUARIES

Epes Sargent Dies; Writer on Theatre

Epes Winthrop Sargent, 66 years old, of the editorial staff of Variety, died at his home on Tuesday. Funeral services will be held Friday evening at the Sargent home in Brooklyn, with cremation following. Mr. Sargent is survived by his widow, and a son, Epes, Jr.

Mr. Sargent was known as "Chicot" in his early theatrical writings in the 1900's. The name later was shortened to "Chic." Mr. Sargent was born in Nassau, in the Bahamas.

Edward T. Holway Dies

Edward Taylor Holway, secretary-treasurer of the Trans-Lux Corporation of New York, operators of stock tickers and newsreel theatres, died in Pelham, N. Y., December 2nd, at the age of 76. He had been ill since August 4th.

Edward Bucey

Edward Bucey, former stage manager of the Palace theatre, Cleveland, and well known among theatre people throughout the country, died November 30th.

Chester M. Wallace

Chester M. Wallace, play producer and director and professor of drama at Carnegie Institute of Technology, died in Pittsburgh December 1st after an emergency appendectomy. He was 54.

Edna Aug

Miss Edna Aug, who some years ago was known wherever vaudeville was played for her philosophical scrubwoman act, was found dead December 1st at Willow, the artists' colony in the hills back of Kingston, N. Y., where she had made her home in recent years. She was about 60 years old.

Charles E. Bloomer

Charles E. Bloomer, a retired actor, died at his home in Baldwin, N. Y., November 29th, after a brief illness. Mr. Bloomer, a native of Philadelphia, was 73 years old.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tronolone

Mrs. Elizabeth Tronolone, 72, mother of Nick Tronolone of Pathe Film, and Charles Tronolone of Movie Laboratory, died in Hoboken, N. J., December 2nd after a brief illness.

Charlie Allen

Charlie Allen, violinist, and for nine years the orchestra leader at Keith's theatre, in Toledo when vaudeville was in its prime, died last week in Knoxville, Tenn. For four years following his Toledo engagement he directed orchestras in several vaudeville houses in Detroit.

Warner Executives on Coast

Warner executives and their wives were guests in Chicago, on their way to the coast last weekend, of Mayor Edward J. Kelly and John Balaban. The Warner group were Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Warner, Hal B. Wallis and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Einfeld.

Zukor in New York; British Policy to Be Determined Soon

Adolf Zukor, accompanied by Mrs. Zukor, arrived in New York Monday from the coast preparatory to sailing for England to take charge of Paramount's European operations.

Several conferences of company executives will get underway immediately following the arrival from London on Friday of John W. Hicks, foreign head, and David Rose, Paramount's British production representative.

Mr. Zukor said on his arrival in New York that a number of story properties had been withdrawn from the Hollywood schedule in the belief that they were better adapted for production in England. Producers, directors, cast members and technicians will be sent to London for some of these.

Mr. Zukor said he assumed the company would continue to add to its holdings.

He said he had given no thought to relinquishing his post as chairman.

C. J. Dickinson has been named general sales manager for the United Kingdom, succeeding Montague Goldman, resigned.

Y. Frank Freeman Sees Film Upswing

"The taste of motion picture audiences has reached a point bordering on fastidiousness and only by turning out high grade product has Hollywood been able to stem the recent tide of box office depression and bring about an upswing," Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president of Paramount, said on his arrival on the coast this week to take up his duties as corporation representative at the studio.

Mr. Freeman said that "the first nine months were extremely bad from a motion picture box office standpoint and the condition was due to inferior pictures," but that "Hollywood snapped out of it and began to improve the quality of its product and the result was immediately apparent." He added that "November was only five per cent below the figure for the same month a year ago, and December gives every indication, in point of quality of product, of topping November's figure."

May Shift Wilkie

Al Wilkie, Paramount publicity head, may be transferred to the studio under a revamping of the department which is being worked out on the coast by Robert Gillham, advertising and publicity director. C. N. Odell, of the home office publicity staff, would have Mr. Wilkie's duties while the latter is at the studio.

Marc Lachmann, Twentieth Century-Fox exploitation manager, left New York this week for Frankfort, Ky., where he will meet Jim Denton of the studio. The two will escort Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky and his party to the coast for the premiere of "Kentucky" at the Carthay Circle, next Wednesday. The Kentuckians will be guests of Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck and the Governor will broadcast on a coast-to-coast network program on the picture.

Four Groups in Fairbanks Unit

Formation of Fairbanks International, the new producing unit of United Artists headed by Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., was announced Tuesday by Murray Silverstone, U.A. operating head, in New York.

The new company will be financed by American and British capital represented by Sir Adrian Baillie Bart, M.P., and Montagu Marks, and Swiss investment interests. Its initial capital will be $2,500,000, according to Mr. Silverstone.

John Hay Whitney of Selznick International said that he had made and contemplated making no financial investment in the new company but that negotiations were under way in which certain facilities of the Selznick organization were to be made available to Mr. Fairbanks on the basis of a participating interest.

Three productions are planned for 1939: "The California," for which Mr. Fairbanks is endeavoring to secure Raoul Walsh as director; "The Tenth Woman," based on the life of Lord Byron, to be done in color; and "The Three Musketeers," also in color.

Chase Bank Sells 60,200 Fox Shares; Universal Profits

Extensive trading by officers, directors and principal stockholders in the securities of motion picture companies was disclosed Tuesday by the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington, as the highlight of financial developments of the week, including several dividend declarations, estimates of a $100,000 last-quarter profit earned by Universal, and details of the new stock issue offered by Imperial Pictures.

The most important stock transactions reported by the SEC were operations whereby the Chase National Bank disposed of 50,200 shares of Twentieth Century-Fox common and 10,000 shares of the $1.50 cumulative preferred stock, reducing its holdings to 287,158 shares common and 671,916 preferred. Sidney R. Kent obtained 100 shares common, bringing his holdings to 3,455 shares and Darryl F. Zanuck disposed of 10,000 shares common, reducing his holdings to 132,130 shares common and 21,946 preferred.

Universal Corporation in September acquired 2,000 shares of Universal Pictures common stock, making its total 230,927 common, 220 first preferred and 20,000 second preferred.

Jack Cohn in October disposed of 1,400 common voting trust certificates in Columbia Pictures, reducing his holdings to 31,815 of the certificates and 542 common shares.

A report filed for Preston Davie, who became a director of Universal Corporation September 8, last, showed that through Standard Capital Company, he held 26,500 common voting trust certificates and 111,283 common voting trust certificate warrants.

Dividends were declared by the following:

General Theatres Equipment Corporation, 25 cents per share on the capital stock, payable December 22 to stockholders of record December 12, making a total dividend for the year of about $1 a share.

Loew's London Theatres, Ltd., 47 cents per share on 33,741 preferred, the net income being $15,722, compared with the previous year's $15,597, amounting that year to 46 cents per share.

Loew's (Marcus) Theatres, Ltd., $10.64 per share on 7,500 common shares, after preferred dividend requirements, the net income being $125,547 against $111,730 the previous year, which made $8.79 per share that year.

Loew's Theatres, Ltd., of Canada, $3.50 per share on the seven cent preferred shares, payable December 15 to stockholders of record on December 3, total dividend disbursements for the year amounting to $10.50 per share. Now in arrears is the equivalent of $38.50 per share.

Imperial's New Stock

Production and distribution of low cost pictures will be possible from the proceeds of the stock issue of Imperial Pictures, Inc., according to the prospectus of Smith, Frizzelle and Company, the underwriters, who last week offered 424,000 shares of common, with a par value of $1, at $1.50 per share.

William Pizor of New York is president of Imperial; Lewen Pizor, of Philadelphia, the vice-president and treasurer.

Universal Earnings

For the fourth quarter period ended October 1, Universal Pictures showed a net profit of $100,000, the first period in eight years in which the company has displayed a profit.

Gross revenue for the year which ended November 1 was about $20,300,000, over $2,000,000 better than the previous year's $18,150,876. The net loss last year at the same period was $1,084,999.

FLIGHT TO FAME: Charles Farrell—Seemed to please a few, although I wouldn't say too much about this. Running time, 57 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GIRLS' SCHOOL: Anne Shirley, Ralph Bellamy, Nan Grey, Noah Beery, Jr.—This is a dandy picture. I played it too soon. Did not get the city advertising. Should be given plenty of publicity to the younger set. Running time, 73 minutes. Played November 13-14.—Jim Haney, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS ADVENTURESS: Edith Fellows, Robert Paige, Cliff Edwards—Played Edith Fellows in other pictures but patrons never liked her. Columbia talked me into playing her again and I am not sorry because this one is a honey. She is great in this one. But, Cliff Edwards steals it away from her. Why Columbia don't feature this man is a mystery to me. He can sing and act and is a showman of first water. My customers went nuts about him. Running time, 62 minutes.—Will J. Haney, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind., where the corn grows ten feet tall and the dogs bark at strangers but the hicks know pictures because we are only 39 miles from Cincinnati, Ohio. General patronage.

OVERLAND EXPRESS: Buck Jones, Marjorie Reynolds—An excellent western showing the building of the Pony Express. Jones is showing his age but all in all it was good entertainment for the western fans. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

OVERLAND EXPRESS: Buck Jones, Marjorie Reynolds—This Jones feature was very good and pleased. Somehow Jones is getting weak at the box office. A good singer accompanying this star should easily put Buck back again with the best of drawing cards. How about it, old boy? Columbia, do your stuff. Running time, 55 minutes. Played November 4-5.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch—Folks enjoyed this Booth Tarkington story, well played by the twins and their supporters. The small Negro boy should not be overlooked. Picture drew some extra business.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

SHE LOVED A FIREMAN: Dick Foran, Ann Sheridan, Robert Armstrong—When we play a Dick Foran feature, whether a western or action picture, we can always bank on a full house. He is our biggest drawing card and Dick sure earned the right to that. With Dick's last feature we almost had to turn them away from the doors, and this is no exception. Running time, 55 minutes. Played November 18-19.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

SUBMARINE D-1: Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Wayne Morris, Doris Weston—Just what the doctor ordered. Give us more like this. If you can't pack them in with "Submarine D-1," then close up your house. Warners went out of their way in getting a print on this, and what they can't do no one else can. For cash sake, play "Submarine D-1." Played November 16-17.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

General

THREE LEGIONNAIRES: Robert Armstrong, Lyle Talbot, Fifi D'Orsay—A fair comedy and action that did not draw the crowd.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

Grand National

INTERNATIONAL CRIME: Rod La Rocque, Astrid Allwyn—Played this on a double and passed. Not strong enough for a single. Fair entertainment though. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 11-12.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

BRIDE WORE RED, THE: Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone—Poor Joan, she is still trying at the expense of we exhibitors, and how we pay. While she wore red, we saw red. Did not pay for heat and lights on this one, let alone film rental.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

DAVID COPPERFIELD: Freddie Bartholomew—Used this for a high school benefit and it was no draw as the kids didn't push the advance sale. Is, however, a grand piece of film. It seems impossible to put over this type picture in a small town.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

FAMILY AFFAIR, A: Lionel Barrymore, Cecilia Parker, Mickey Rooney, Eric Linden, Charley Grapewin, Spring Byington, Julie Haydon—This was a good picture along the lines of the Jones family but it failed to draw.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud. Minn. General patronage.

GOOD OLD SOAK, THE: Wallace Beery, Una Merkel, Eric Linden, Judith Barrett, Betty Furness, Ted Healy, Janet Beecher—Here was a good picture but they failed to come in on it and the price paid was too high.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

GREAT WALTZ, THE: Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Korjus—This fine, big operetta failed to draw in this small town and probably will do the same in any small town. This new soprano, M. Korjus, is as beautiful as Jeanette MacDonald and sings better and higher. Played November 23-24.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HELL DIVERS (Reissue): Wallace Beery, Clark Gable—Played this to very satisfactory weekend business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power—The ruralites just won't come out for this class of picture. The town folk stayed at home too, as most of them are retired rurals. From the lavish settings I judge this was the most costly of all pictures produced in 1938. The few that chanced it praised it highly.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind—Silly, but pleased and played to good business. Not as good as some of theirs, but okay. Running time, 73 minutes. Played November 9-10.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy—One of the best by any company and also at the box office. Clark Gable cannot be beaten and Myrna Loy is tops. No one disappointed in this show. Played June 2-3. Running time, 119 minutes.—Miss Alice Simmons, Strand and Lyric Theatres, Jefferson, Texas. General patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone, Robert Young—Very good, which pleased all that came to see it but failed to make expenses. Played November 24-26.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—Although the draw was just a fair average it went over as do most of these "screwball" comedies. The picture has a few suggestive spots, but no kicks on that account. All in all, I would say the picture is a lot of fun and will please in any spot.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly, Leo Carrillo—Not a "Test Pilot" by any means. Unusual hokum that left the audience sort of blank. The children enjoyed it greatly but did not get much comment from the adults. The last two reels were sort of "Her Jungle Love" but not being in color did not get the raves that Paramount's picture did. Rather disappointing in entertainment. Running time, 105 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—Very clever farce comedy. With a big name cast this would have been a knockout. Fair business. Played November 20.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Monogram

STARS OVER ARIZONA: Jack Randall—A good western with good action but Randall's singing is a little high class for Western fans.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns—Interesting and that is about all you could say for this. It didn't have any draw here. Burns may in time be another Will Rogers but not in pictures like this. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ARREST BULLDOG DRUMMOND: John Howard, Heather Angel—Just another detective story which failed to draw. No one seems to be interested in this series. Played November 25-26.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Hank Luisetti, Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney—People thought this would have a lot of mushy nonsense. Instead was a right clever college story, with basketball the major sport. They had some splendid photography, and the picture pleased. One neighborhood town sent over all their basketball teams to get Luisetti's play—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting—The best Martha Raye to date. A right good program picture that did well at the box office. Running time, 80 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

HUNTED MEN: Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle—Good picture of its kind. The producers are making altogether too many gangster and racketeering pictures. Running time, 62 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC: J. Carroll Naish, Mary Carlisle—Another gangster melodrama which failed to draw. Played November 21-22.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MYSTERIOUS RIDER: Russell Hayden, Douglas Dumbrille, Weldon Heyburn—A fairly interesting although unexciting western. No draw. Running time, 74 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—This was a good picture but Harold Lloyd is washed up. People do not care for Lloyd any more, it seems. Better rest on your past laurels, Harold, when they used to flock in when they heard Lloyd was in town. Running time, 92 minutes. Played November 18-20.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

SING, YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Donald O'Connor, Ellen Drew, Elizabeth Patterson—This is the best picture Bing Crosby ever made. Fred MacMurray at his best. My business only fair as it played every place around me. Played it on percentage and took a nose dive. Those who came enjoyed it 100 per cent. Running time, 81 minutes. Played November 18-29.—Jim Haney, Milan Theatre, Milan, Ind. General patronage.

SING, YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Ellen Drew, Donald O'Connor, Elizabeth Patterson—Good picture but would have been much better had these producers not made Bing Crosby act drunk. I sometimes wonder just what these producers think the movie patrons are. Do they think for a minute that the average movie patron likes to see their favorite actor drink or acting drunk? I think it is about time that they get wise to themselves and keep these drunk scenes out of the movies. It's a shame to make Bing Crosby act drunk. 95 per cent of the folks that go to see a picture are respectable and don't want such scenes in pictures. Running time, 89 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SING, YOU SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Ellen Drew—This pleased. Some good comedy and music, and an everyday story that patrons appreciated.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour—First rate story of the Alaskan salmon fishing. Drew and pleased. Dorothy Lamour's work was outstanding among a group all acquitting themselves splendidly.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

TROPIC HOLIDAY: Bob Burns, Martha Raye—Down with the flu, I didn't see this. Reports have it that it was pretty close to the worst picture of 1938. I blame the poor business following largely to this. When your fans have to sit through something as bad as this they just naturally stay away for awhile. Comments were all "kicks."—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

Republic

BORN TO BE WILD: Ralph Byrd, Doris Weston, Ward Bond—Here is a hijacking picture that has plenty of action and drew well. Had some good comedy with thrill scenes.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

CIRCUS GIRL: June Travis, Robert Livingston—A very nice little picture and pleased 100 per cent.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

ESCAPE BY NIGHT: William Hall, Anne Nagel, Dean Jagger, Steffi Duna, Ward Bond—A good action picture that was well liked.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

RHYTHM OF THE SADDLE: Gene Autry—This might please but it didn't here. Had a very poor run on this. My patrons want just a little more action even from Autry, and I believe that they would like to hear him sing more western songs rather than any other type. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Polly Rowles—A fine picture for any day with good western songs, music, and Smiley Burnette kept them laughing as usual.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Polly Rowles—A sweetheart of a picture. Played this on the weekend and if we had our chance over again, would play it big on our best days, Monday and Tuesday. Autry sure brings them in and sends them home more than satisfied. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 11-12.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

AFFAIRS OF ANNABEL, THE: Jack Oakie, Lucille Ball—Clever comedy drama that pleased. Hope to see more as good from this team.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—An excellent dance picture that was a flop at the cashier's window. We feel that the public is tired of such entertainment. Good comedy and dancing but no draw. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAREFREE: Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire—They stayed apart too long. Public seems to have forgotten some of their splendid work. Anyway, they did not turn out for this. It's a good picture too, except that they seem to be working instead of playing. In other words, lacks their oldtime pep.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

FARMER IN THE DELL: Fred Stone, Jean Parker, Frank Albertson, Lucille Ball—Just a fair picture but drew very poor at the box office. Advertising and stars were no good for the good of the exhibitor.—G. J. Abeln, State Theatre, St. Cloud, Minn. General patronage.

MAN TO REMEMBER, A: Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis—Used this only one day, but it's good enough to stand alone for two days. Tale of the oldtime country doctor's bravery and sacrifices. Serious, but it pleased our patrons. Humor and pathos well mixed. Played November 23.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

NEW CONTRIBUTORS TO DEPARTMENT

From Maryland and Minnesota come new reporters to "What the Picture Did for Me", this week. They are:

G. J. ABELN, State theatre, St. Cloud, Minnesota.

HELEN ULMAN, Ulman's and New theatres, Salisbury, Maryland.

Read the reports of these exhibitors in the department.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner—Played this on Cash Night. Penner is getting better with each picture. Running time, 76 minutes. Played November 19.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner, June Travis—This did not draw any extra business, although those who like Penner on radio enjoyed him as an orchestra leader, who was made to play football and who blundered into winning the game and the endowment for his dear old college.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers, Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson—Pretty good. These guys are just about through when it comes to being a drawing card at the box office. Running time, 78 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Ellison, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi, Charles Coburn—Perfect entertainment which was enjoyed by all. You'll never regret playing this one.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Don Ameche, Alice Faye, Tyrone Power—Deserves all the good words an exhibitor can say. Held up against strong competition in this town of 1,225.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche—The one and only real box office attraction we have had in the past three months and we have had the best attractions that have been available from the leading majors. Business has been off all fall, but this picture brought them in, like in the days of old. Our fourth highest gross for 1938. Comments were plentiful and all excellent.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers—Passed OK, and that is about all. I believe the public expects just a little more from this gal than they have been getting of late. Eddie Collins stole all the credit here and without a doubt will be greeted with plenty of laughs on his next appearance. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Hersholt—A lovely picture but not quite as good as their first. Will do extra business. Running time, 85 minutes. Played November 13-14.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Hersholt—Very strong box office and a picture that pleased. Use on your best days and you won't regret it. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GATEWAY: Don Ameche, Arleen Whalen—Played this on Armistice Day. Business above average. Running time, 74 minutes. Played November 11.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

HAPPY LANDING: Sonja Henie, Don Ameche, Cesar Romero, Ethel Merman—In this fine production we take a large portion of Sonja Henie, add Cesar Romero, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, et al, spice with some swell music, comedy, and dancing, stirr with the ladle of fine directing, and get "Happy Landing," a dish that will satisfy the most picayune movie goer. We have shown in addition to this feature "One in a Million" and "Thin Ice" and will continue to show Sonja's pictures as long as the present standard is maintained and it is our feeling that this will be for several years to come. This little lady from across the sea continues to steal her way into the hearts of the American public and has upheld the reputation she established after her first effort on the silver screen. She has a personality that is second to none. If you haven't given your patrons this picture as yet, do so by all means. You'll find it will be a "Happy Landing" for all, including Mr. Theatre Owner. Running time, 101 minutes. Played November 26.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver—One of the best of the crop of college action pictures. Murphy is going to crowd some of these other dancers. Don't overlook Joan Davis' comedy and the clever characterization of John Barrymore as a governor who makes a campaign for senator, gambling his chances on the result of a football game.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver—An excellent comedy that pleased all. Joan Davis steals the honors in a big way. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 2-3.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, June Storey, Andy Devine, Eddie Collins—We picked this one as our Thanksgiving Special, so before going any farther let's stop right now and give Twentieth Century-Fox and Zanuck our sincere thanks for the excellent job they did in re-creating this much remembered tragedy of the 1870's. Not since November, 1936, when we played "San Francisco," have we had anything to equal it. It has everything any theatregoer wishes to see. Alice Brady as the hard working, lovable Mrs. O'Leary does an excellent bit of acting and stamps herself as one of Hollywood's best. Tyrone Power, the likeable villain; Don Ameche, the honest politician; the ever popular Alice Faye as "Belle Fawcett," and last, but not least, June Storey as "Gretchen" (although her part was small she impressed our audience very much), all contributed in a big way to make this the fine production it is. Also, let's not forget Andy "Pickle Bixby" Devine and Eddie "the Drunk" Collins, who contributed their share of laugh provoking antics. Any exhibitors who have failed to book this stellar attraction should do so at their earliest opportunity. Running time, 110 minutes. Played November 24.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

JOSETTE: Simone Simon, Don Ameche, Robert Young—Here is a really swell entertainment that I wasted on a double feature (Friday-Saturday change). In fact, I almost passed it up entirely through my elimination privilege. If I had seen it before running, it would have received a Sunday opening. The cast is great: Don Ameche, Robert Young, Joan Davis and Simone Simon. The story is good and the comedy is immense. Sorry that Miss Simon has left us.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple—Our folks liked this, but it did not draw in as many as the Temples usually do, at least for us.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple—A terrific disappointment at the ticket window. Picture is a good entertainment but the Temple fans expect something much better than "good." If this little star gets stories on a par with "Heidi," I believe she can continue to hold first place or come awfully close to it. Big City stories are going to kill her popularity.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—A nice bit of entertainment which failed to do business of her other pictures, but still made us a few dollars.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie—First half very good, but too much of a musical comedy type during the last half. Business only about half of "Happy Landing." Let's have more story and not so much chorus in the next Sonja picture.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF MARCO POLO, THE: Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone, Binnie Barnes—Good picture of its kind but most of the movie patrons do not care for this type of picture. Running time, 95 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER, THE: Tommy Kelly, May Robson, Ann Gillis—This sure is a box office natural if there ever was one. Was afraid to play this right after "Snow White," but was glad I did. It outgrossed proceeds of "Snow White," which was hard to believe. Good story, good acting, splendid color. A small town exhibitor's dream. It takes a picture like this to bring them in and go away satisfied. Running time, 91 minutes. Played October 27.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Universal

ADVENTURE'S END: John Wayne, Diana Gibson—Another from John Wayne that pleased. We find by using plenty of good shorts that the fans are more than satisfied. This is much better than running double bills. Running time, 63 minutes. Played November 18-19.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End Kids," Robert

Wilcox, Helen Parrish—Very good. These kids when it comes to being tough got anything cheated that I have seen so far. Running time, 80 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

NURSE FROM BROOKLYN: Sally Eilers, Paul Kelly—Passed as a single. Used plenty of shorts with this and it went over. Would be much better on a double. Running time, 57 minutes. Played November 9-10.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia. General patronage.

RECKLESS LIVING: Robert Wilcox. Nan Grey—Can only class this as fair entertainment. Played up the star, Robert Wilcox, and with plenty of good shorts it passed as a single. Very good with a companion feature. Expect to cash in on Wilcox's popularity and advertising his name big in all his features. Running time, 68 minutes. Played November 2-3.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

SERVICE DE LUXE: Constance Bennett, Mischa Auer—After showing this thing I'm beginning to think that somebody I know real well and think a lot of got stuck when he bought this. This might please a few ladies but don't try to show it if your patrons are mostly men, and don't try to show it on a Sunday opening, but double feature it. We showed to exactly 15 paid admissions the second night. Running time, 86 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU'RE A SWEETHEART: Alice Faye, George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Ken Murray—A humdinger. Give it your best playing time. Did not draw here but no fault of the picture. Running time, 96 minutes. Played November 7-8.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

YOUTH TAKES A FLING: Joel McCrea, Andrea Leeds—A splendid picture that will hold up on your best days. Played this during bad weather to a fair business. Running time, 79 minutes. Played November 6-7.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

GOLD DIGGERS IN PARIS: Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins—A very good musical. Give it your best playdate. Poor at the box office; nevertheless, we will play many more. Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

HARD TO GET: Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland—Very fine picture and pleased all. Running time, 79 minutes. Played November 20-21.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—Although it had no draw it still gave us a very pleasant surprise as we expected to be showing a crow and instead it turned out to be quite a pleaser. For all the stars in this you would think the public would be taken in, but no more I guess. Running time, 69 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—Very good and pleased.. Wayne Morris and Priscilla Lane are tops. Running time, 69 minutes. Played November 1.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

MR. CHUMP: Johnnie Davis, Lola Lane—Very good and funny. None too strong for a single bill. Running time, 69 minutes. Played November 8.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Louise Fazenda, Frank McHugh, Penny Singleton, Allen Jenkins, Nat Pendleton—A box office wow. Bring more like these and the picture business will be a pleasure. Seen this months before playdate and went after it big. A knockout in any spot. Play it for entertainment sake. Get your S.R.O. sign ready when you start playing "Swing Your Lady." Running time, 79 minutes. Played November 14-15.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor—Thanks to Warners for this one. A very beautiful color picture. Date this as soon as possible and on your best days. Business above the average. Running time, 79 minutes. Played November 23-24.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

CUCKOORANCHO: Broadway Comedies—Didn't come up to expectations. Although some of the music, dancing and singing was fair, it was too "hashed up." The attempted comedy was not too well received. Running time, 21 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

COMMUNITY SING, NO. 5: As I said so often when I was at the Paramount Theatre in Schroon Lake, N. Y., this short can mean a lot to you if you exploit it right or it won't mean a thing if you sit back in the chair and run it off without giving it special mention. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

DOGGONE MIXUP: Broadway Comedies—Good slapstick comedy.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

DRUG STORE FOLLIES: Broadway Follies—Extra good short. Play it. Running time, eight minutes.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

FOOTBALL GIANTS: Special Sport Thrills—Appropriate at this season. Will get by, but not out of the ordinary.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

FOOTBALL GIANTS: Sport Thrills—Interesting short that didn't mean a thing here. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FROG POND, THE: Color Rhapsodies—Very poor. Color. Running time, seven minutes.—Charles F. Dearman, Fox Theatre, Smithville, Tenn. Small town and rural patronage.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: Scrappy Cartoons—A very good Scrappy Cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

HOLLYWOOD PICNIC: Color Rhapsodies—As good a colored cartoon as anyone makes. Again we say do not waste this one. Disney will have to watch his laurels or this company will run him ragged. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LITTLE MOTH'S BIG FLAME: Color Rhapsodies—A good colored cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PLAYING THE PONIES: Three Stooges—These Three Stooges are in a class by themselves. Perfect slapstick.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SNOWTIME: Color Rhapsodies—We have run a lot better. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

THRILLING MOMENTS: Special Sport Thrills—A very interesting and breath taking short showing the thrills and spills of daring sportsmen in the various activities. The boys received a great laugh from the futile attempts at ski jumping made by several skiing enthusiasts. It's a short subject any audience would like, so book it. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ALADDIN'S LANTERN: Our Gang—A little better than the average Our Gang. It pleased—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ALADDIN'S LANTERN: Our Gang—Very good. Enjoyed by all, so do not waste it. These kids are tops for entertainment. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BESIDE A MOONLIT STREAM: Screen Songs—The balance of the series no good. Running time, six minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BURIED TREASURE: Captain and the Kids—A fair filler. Lots better.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

CAIRO, CITY OF CONTRAST: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—An excellent colored travel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CANNED FISHING: Our Gang—Perfect entertainment.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

COME ACROSS: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—An interesting short. Could have been better; could have been worse. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

COURTSHIP OF A NEWT, THE: Robert Benchley—Benchley talks a lot and says nothing. It's all right if you like Benchley.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DAY AT THE BEACH, A: Captain and the Kids—A funny cartoon.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FORGOTTEN STEP, THE: MGM Miniatures—A fair short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

FRIEND INDEED: Pete Smith Specialties—Pleased very much. Running time, 10 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

MAGICIAN'S DAUGHTER, THE: Eleanor Lynn, Frank Albertson—Two reels of tricky magic and laughs. This type short is very enjoyable as a change. Running time, 18 minutes.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

MAGICIAN'S DAUGHTER, THE: Eleanor Lynn, Frank Albertson—Wonderful. Ran it with "Boys Town" and it made an excellent combination. This idea is so novel that it is refreshing. Albertson is a surprise and Miss Lynn her own provocative self. Excellent. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MAN'S GREATEST FRIEND: Pete Smith Specialties—The story of Louis Pasteur and the dog's benefit to humanity.—C. L. Niles, Nales Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MIRACLE MONEY: John Miljan—This two-reeler from "The Crime Does Not Pay" series exposes quack doctors, and it is a dandy. Invite every doctor in town to see it.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THEY'RE ALWAYS CAUGHT: Crime Does Not Pay Series—The best of this series we have run, and that is saying a lot, as in our estimation this is the best of any shorts on the market. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BUSSE RHYTHM: Henry Busse and His Orchestra—This is a swell orchestra short and Henry Busse really plays hot trumpet.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MOMENTS OF CHARM: Headliners—About the nicest short we have run for some time. This was too short. Don't under any conditions pass this one up. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SILVER MILLIONS: Paragraphics—An excellent film story of the life of salmon which so often ends in a can.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SILVER MILLIONS: Paragraphics—An excellent short showing the salmon industry in Alaska. Very good. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SPORTING TEST, A: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Nothing of much interest to this. My patrons took this for what it was and that's nothing. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TANNHAUSER: Paragraphics—With the National Philharmonic Symphony playing this classic music of Wagner's, how could it be other than first rate? You must book it with extreme care, however, to make sure your class audience is there to enjoy it. Unfortunately, the masses still can't appreciate the like of this, or should we say rather they just won't. There's nothing so different about this subject than they saw in the Deanna Durbin picture, "100 Men and a Girl," and they swallowed that symphony. So, why not this? Consequently if you can spot it right your patrons will be certain to thank you. In the wrong place, it may be a tough 12 minutes. We got by with it on a high school benefit show and think many enjoyed it while some definitely did not.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

RKO Radio

JITTERS, THE: Leon Errol Comedies—Leon Errol at his best. His patented drunk and stair step formula appealed to the boys here and had them in a continuous uproar. Running time, 19 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

MARCH OF TIME: Men of Medicine—An outstanding reel that every citizen should see. The tops in entertainment. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MICKEY'S TRAILER: Walt Disney Cartoons—Pretty good. Running time, seven minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

GLASS SLIPPER, THE: Terry-Toon—Just another short with fairly nice color. Running time, 8 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ITALIAN LIBYA: Magic Carpet Series—Interesting and educational.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LEW LEHR'S KINDERGARTEN: Lew Lehr—If they are all as bad as the first one, I won't play any more of them.—H. H. Gates, Garlock Theatre, Custer, S. D. General patronage.

United Artists

MOOSE HUNTERS: Mickey Mouse—Disney really has something in this one.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Vitaphone

CANDID KID, THE: Josephine Huston—This was very good. You will get your money's worth out of this short. Don't be afraid to play it. Running time, 20 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

CHINA TODAY: Color Parade—Very good and interesting. A good thriller. Running time, 10 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

CINDERELLA MEETS FELLA: Merrie Melodies—Very good. All that the name implies. The Penner imitation was excellent. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CINDERELLA MEETS FELLA: Merrie Melodies—Excellent. All these Merrie Melodies are good. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Lowa. General patronage.

CLYDE McCOY AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Too much brass. Not as good as some we have run. Too much noise. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

KATNIP COLLEGE: Merrie Melodies—Nice cartoon. Enjoyed by all. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

LOVE AND CURSES: Merrie Melodies—Good. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MAJOR LIED 'TIL DAWN: Merrie Melodies—Good. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE CRAWFORD: Vitaphone Varieties—Mr. and Mrs. Crawford conclusively prove why they are tops as organists. The person responsible for the continuity of this short deserves plenty of credit. It's perfect. You can't miss on this one; book it. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

PENGUIN PARADE: Merrie Melodies—Very good color cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ROMANCE OF LOUISIANA: Broadway Brevities—A grand colored two-reel subject. Educational and entertaining. Give us more like that.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

RUBINOFF AND HIS VIOLIN: Melody Masters—An excellent short with that master of the violin contributing much in the way of comedy. It will prove a welcome addition to any program. Book it; they'll like it. Running time, nine minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

RUBINOFF AND HIS VIOLIN: Melody Masters—Very good short, especially for music lovers. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SEPTEMBER IN THE RAIN: Merrie Melody—Some of these are better than "Disneys," especially from the standpoint of price. This is one is tops.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

SKI FLIGHT: Vitaphone Varieties—Shelved it after running it once. Poor. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SONS OF THE PLAINS: Mauch Twins—A very fine two-reeler in color. Good in any spot. Running time, 19 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

TRAPPED UNDERGROUND: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure"—Good. Very good as all these Gibbons are. You sure get your money's worth out of these shorts. Give us more of them. Running time, 10 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

UNREAL NEWSREELS: Vitaphone Varieties—Pretty good. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

VITAPHONE FUNSTERS: Big Time Vaudeville Reel—This is knockout and had them rolling in the aisles. You just can beat Warners' vaudeville reels. Play them. Running time, 10 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Serial

Universal

WILD WEST DAYS: Johnny Mack Brown, Lynn Gilbert—Easily one of the best serials made. Full of action and thrills. Each chapter has many more thrills than you get in two features. Running time, 20 minutes each chapter.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Dorothy Reid, formerly associate producer for Scott R. Dunlap, Monogram vice-president in charge of production, has been appointed head of the story department succeeding Arthur Fitz-Richards, resigned.

Radio Starts on Self-Regulation Plan in New York

Two significant actions by the country's top sources of mass entertainment—motion pictures and radio—brought both closer this week to self-regulation of practice and procedure.

The motion picture business completed the first written draft of its program (see page 13), and radio sat down to the writing of a program to govern broadcasting.

Network executives opened self-regulation discussions in New York on Monday with a National Association of Broadcasters committee appointed for the purpose. Radio's move follows the suggestion made by David Sarnoff, of RCA, three weeks ago, at the opening of the FCC probe into radio "monopoly," that a self-imposed code was "the American way" of solving radio's problems.

The opening sessions were devoted to a series of past network program standards and policies and to a review of the old Association code, adopted in 1935. Since then the Association has been completely reorganized, Neville Miller coming in last July as the association's first "paid" president.

The committee admitted that the code in force is inadequate for present day broadcasting, but would not make known what recommendations for change it considers making. Its recommendations will be presented to the board of directors of the NAB at special meetings in Washington December 12 and 13.

Those who attended this week's meetings included Neville Miller, president of NBC; Ed Klauber, executive vice-president of CBS; Ted Streibert, vice-president of Mutual; Edgar Bill of Peoria, Ill.; Ed Craney of Butte, Mont.; Paul Morency, Hartford, Conn.; Ed Spence, secretary-treasurer; Arnold Bennett, attorney, and Ed Kirby, public relations, all of the NAB. Frank Mason and Niles Trammell, NBC vice-presidents, also attended the afternoon session.

Record Grosses For Networks

Gross revenues from sponsored programs on the air continued upward in November, at National Broadcasting and Mutual. Columbia Broadcasting reported a slight decline, but future billings are expected to be heavier.

November was Mutual's greatest month, with the total business 39.7 per cent over the corresponding month the preceding year. The November, 1938, billings are $360,929.

Mutual's cumulative total this year is up 29.6 per cent over the 1937 11-month total, the gross being $2,582,955 for 1938.

NBC's gross hit another all-time high in November, 1938, with a total of $3,899,915. The 11-month cumulative total for NBC was $37,576,603, a rise over the same period last year of 7.3 per cent. The per cent of gain from October, 1938, was 3.3 per cent.

Billings for this November on CBS totaled $2,453,410, a decline of 7.5 per cent from billings the same month last year. However, Columbia's November billings were better by 2.8 per cent than for October.

The cumulative total for CBS for the 11 months of 1938 amounts to $24,816,337, compared to the total for the same period last year, $25,935,500, a decline of 4.3 per cent.

FCC "FORGIVES" WELLES & WELLS

Stations of CBS broadcasting the Orson Welles "War of the Worlds" program, which on October 30th created panics in many areas, were relieved of all threat of punitive action by the Federal Communications Commission this week with the announcement that assurances had been given by CBS that there would be no repetition of the incident.

"While it is regrettable that the broadcast alarmed a substantial number of people, there appears to be no likelihood of a repetition of the incident and no occasion for action by the Commission," it was stated.

In explaining its decision, the Commission pointed out that it had received 372 protests against the broadcast and 255 letters and petitions carrying approximately 350 signatures in favor of it.

RKO Show and Guild Program Set

Two film-radio shows in the making for weeks were set this week; the William Wrigley Gum-Jesse Lasky program, and the Gulf Gas-Screen Actors' Guild program.

Direct tieups with all RKO theatres and the studio will be the basis of the radio series which RKO and Wrigley will sponsor on the CBS network, beginning January 8.

The new program, known as "Gateway to Hollywood," will be directed to the discovery of new talent. Application blanks for tryouts will be obtainable only at RKO theatres. Arthur Willy, RKO eastern talent chief, will interview applicants at exchanges. Regional contests will follow and winners will be guaranteed six months' employment at $125 a week at the RKO studio.

Central Casting Bureau, Hollywood, is participating in the plan.

The idea for the program originated with Jesse L. Lasky, who will supervise the series on the air. Broadcasts will be over a 60-station hookup, Sundays from 6:30 to 7:00 P. M., E.S.T.

The Screen Actors' Guild program for the Gulf Gas Company has also been set, and will start on January 8 from 7:30 to 8 P. M. over the same CBS hookup now being used by John Nesbit's "Passing Parade."

Every detail of the program, from script, production and direction, to the presentation of the players, will be handled by the Guild. All salary payments will be turned over by the sponsor directly to the Motion Picture Relief fund.

Stations WEEU and WRAW, at Reading, Pa., and WNBC, New Britain, Conn., were added this week to the National Broadcasting networks, bringing the system's total to 165.

Butterfield Michigan Theatres Company, E. C. Beatty, president, on Saturday opened the Center theatre at Cadillac, Mich.

McNinch at FCC Says Radio Probe "Will Never End"

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Rattling around in the U. S. Labor Department's 1500-seat Washington auditorium, a varying number of commissioners ranging from one to four; a half-dozen National Broadcasting lawyers and assistants, three or four Federal Communications Commission lawyers, a few aides, a bored half-dozen witnesses-to-be and observers, and two or three weary reporters this week waded through another eight sessions of the Federal Communications Commission's "monopoly revue of 1938," into radio.

While the week's hearings were devoid of interesting developments, they undoubtedly set NBC back aplenty, for one exhibit alone—a 317-page atlas of maps and charts—took 12,000 man-hours to prepare and cost in excess of $50 a copy to print.

The submission of this formidable looking volume caused Chairman Frank R. McNinch to object to the way the hearings were going on. He didn't want to accept the book as an exhibit because, as he said, if NBC kept on offering such intricate exhibits the hearing "would never end." But when he asked William J. Dempsey, FCC counsel, whether he wouldn't object to at least some of the maps and many charts, the counsel was forced to reply that he couldn't object until he knew what they were about—and so the book went in, page by page.

Philip J. Hennessy, NBC counsel, told Mr. McNinch he realized that it was painful for the Commission to have to sit through the explanation of such exhibits, but pointed out that it was equally painful to NBC to have to offer them. Observers declared the round a draw.

Only two or three times did the chairman give any indications of erupting, once when Mr. Hennessy offered, as evidence of what NBC was doing to improve broadcasting, a book descriptive of Radio City and the NBC studios in which, among other things, the number of tons of steel in the building was mentioned, with an introductory pat on the back for the network.

Getting no further than the introduction, Mr. McNinch ruled the book out.

W. C. Lent, RCA engineer, said the field strength of stations which he tested was but half of that required by Commission standards and the latter could not be depended upon at any given moment.

Most of the week was taken up with a discussion of what might happen if drastic steps were taken to eliminate duplication of network programs. During the day this could be done in the primary area of stations by eliminating 19 of the NBC "red" network stations and 23 of the "blue," each of which groups serves approximately 17,000,000 listeners. At the same time, it was contended such eliminations were not necessary, since listeners normally take their chain programs from the nearest clear station.

Increased activity, resulting from last springs' reorganization has made it necessary for the National Association of Broadcasters, to transfer headquarters from the National Press Building, Washington, to a new building, as yet unnamed, on K St., where the entire ninth floor has been leased.

You've Never Seen Anything Like This!

Here is something sensationally new in motion picture theatre showmanship. Here is a plan that offers continuous, ever increasing patronage for your theatre at an unbelievably low cost. Proved principles applied to a new and revolutionary plan of selling seats at your theatre.

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT

A nation-wide radio program—a coast-to-coast club of hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic members—a raging hobby that is gaining momentum by leaps and bounds. Three great sources of untold power, harnessed to a driving force that herds the crowds of paying patrons into your theatre. This is the first time that such a forceful method of seat-selling has ever been applied to YOUR theatre.

YOUR OWN RADIO SHOW

A gigantic campaign that will include sensational broadcasts over important coast-to-coast radio stations. Millions of your potential patrons will be within the range of these broadcasts that will cover the Nation. Every one of these programs will be, in effect, your own radio show, building up business at your box office.

These broadcasts will present dramatically and entertainingly the activities of the Bob Gale Stamp Club and the new Motion Picture Stamps to be issued weekly by the club. These beautiful stamps, unlike any ever issued before, are not pictures of screen stars, but actual, striking scenes from important motion pictures. And these stamps can not be bought . . . from us or any one else; they can not be obtained for coupons or box tops. The only way any one can get these stamps (eight new stamps each week) is by going to YOUR THEATRE for them.

> You can't miss if you tie up your theatre with this revolutionary idea—now is the time to act—allocations are being made in order of application—Write, Wire or 'Phone today for full particulars.

THOUSANDS OF LETTERS WEEKLY

A most gratifying response has poured in from the very first broadcast. Hundreds of letters arriving daily. Letters from children, boys and girls, mothers and fathers, 6 to 60, each and every one expressing enthusiastic interest.

The writers anxious to get these new, different sensational motion picture stamps, which can be secured ONLY from your theatre. This exciting, planned radio campaign will create compelling interest that will bring present and new patrons back to your theatre regularly each week on Motion Picture Stamp Day.

A VERY GOOD SPOT

Consider the holiday shopping season as challenging theatre opposition. At this time, dollars have more numerous bidders for attention. Winter weather is another "reason why" for folks reluctant to leave their fireplaces. Children home from school and visiting relatives may be another.

Such opposition, especially to be met in December, can be overcome with hard work and clear thinking. If December is a month for spending, freely circulating money can be diverted to the boxoffice. If December is a month for homecoming, then entertainment is to be considered a part of the welcome. And if there is a cold-weather obstacle, it can be levelled with strong attractions backed by insistent showmanship.

In selecting winners for the Final Quarter and, later, for the Grand Awards, the Judges will be influenced somewhat in the direction of entrants who take advantage of possibilities in December exploitations. Thus, the last month of 1938 is not to be discounted by those competing in the Quigley Awards.

Undoubtedly, December appears to be one of the brighter periods for theatremen to show their speed.

Status of the theatre in a Midwest metropolis reported by one of this department's scouts:

"Steaks here are still steaks and a grapefruit is a nickel and they give silk hose and dishes with each double feature at the theatres. The department stores put on all the big shows. They do all the exploitation gags that the theatres used to do with parades, dance contests, bands, circus acts, etc. Theatres just put up a few signs, give away a few Movie Quiz books and wonder what's wrong with business."

"CALLING ALL EXHIBITORS"

From the New York Times, Tuesday, November 29:

Employees are an important part of a company's public and must be dealt with more carefully than the average customer, according to George O. Everett, assistant vice-president of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Company of Utica and president of the Financial Advertisers Association, who addressed the New York Financial Advertisers at a luncheon meeting in the Lawyers Club yesterday.

"We can do much to mold a better public opinion by having the men and women who work for us discuss us in public in a spirit of loyalty and friendliness," Mr. Everett said. "We should pay fair wages, play no favorites, nor allow privileges to a special few, and should give a pat on the back when merited. We should confide in them about our business and operating results and be thoughtful of their working conditions."

Stars, story, script, production and direction may all be credited, and deservedly, for the success of Warner Brothers' "Angels With Dirty Faces". To this observer it is most significant that all of these factors have been combined to produce a moving picture that "moves".

ONE OF THE DIFFERENCES

This is a business set apart if for no other reason than the unique talents that go to make it up. Things taken for granted here are often regarded with wonder in other sectors. For instance, the aptitude of theatremen for automatic, fast-thinking in split-second time. Recent illustrations could include Francis J. Gooch's sailboat bally to "steal" the launching of a naval destroyer in Bath, Maine. And currently, Warren Butler's rocket-ship street float, pictured elsewhere in this section.

In other lines of endeavor, the ability to think fast and correctly is unanimously acclaimed. In this business, it's all part of the day's work.

Children invited to a free show at Pete Egan's Palace Theatre, in Calgary, Canada, were requested to bring vegetables for the city's underprivileged in exchange for admission.

Times shore have changed. 'Twasn't so long that vegetables were brought to the theatre only to throw at the actors.

Fireworks Display Helps "Can't Take It With You"

Charity fireworks display and window-tieups comprised the campaign for the European premiere of "You Can't Take It With You" at the Gaumont, Haymarket Theatre, London. Columbia's exploitation head, Dennis Lyons and Manager Seal, working in conjunction with Gaumont's crew under the direction of Arthur Jarrett put over the campaign.

Day ahead there was a gigantic fireworks display at the White City, London, largest greyhound racing track in the world. Event was a charity affair in aid of local hospital and an illuminated 40-foot sign with title as a slogan for soliciting funds lit up the entire grounds. Announcement of playdates came over public address system.

Special teaser trailers were placed on all Gaumont screens in London and shops were widely used for window displays, etc. Special letter was sent to the Lord Mayor of London and Mayors of the 28 metropolitan boroughs suggesting the use of the picture title in connection with Christmas charity appeals.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Aspirin Tied to Horror Show

Distributed on the streets three days in advance of H. M. Rouda's Horror Show at the Roseland Theatre, Chicago, Ill., were imprinted envelopes containing aspirin tablets. In addition to title, playdates, etc., copy read that the tablets were being distributed through the courtesy of cooperating druggist who suggested that they be taken to steady the nerves before seeing the picture.

Physicians Become Critics For "Man to Remember"

Comment cards filled in by some 250 physicians who attended a special screening of "A Man to Remember," were used for a lobby display at the Palace Theatre, Canton, Ohio, by R. H. Shaffer. Campaign included special letters to local hospitals, old prescriptions mounted and displayed in drug stores along the medicinal supplies and first aid kits, with special tiein copy. Displayed also were doctor's old fashioned instruments contrasted with present day implements.

Giant postcards measuring 14 by 22 inches, too large to be inserted in mail boxes, were attached to them in full sight of passersby. Copy read: You'll always remember," etc., etc. Cards bore large stickers with "Please do not bend" on them. Heads of concerns who received them had been contacted in advance and promised to place them on counters, bulletin boards and in windows

Guessing Contest Aids "Port of Seven Seas"

Guess-length-of-rope nautical display was planted in the lobby of the Warner Orpheum, Hammond, Ind., in advance of "Port of Seven Seas" date. Length of rope was coiled up in front of background of stills and title card, and patrons were invited to guess the length of rope. Guest tickets were awarded winners.

Novelty heralds in the form of steamship tickets were distributed by usher dressed in sailor uniform promoted from local Sea Scout troop, with back banner carrying title, playdate and theatre.

Corker Ties Co-eds to 'Four Daughters'

The Dean of Women at the University of Georgia, through the efforts of Moon Corker, Palace, Athens, picked four-co-eds to represent "Four Daughters." Each was dressed in white sweaters with appropriate identification such as "I'm Kay, one of the four daughters", etc., etc. Via special arrangements with the University officials, they were invited to attend a football game being played opening day of picture.

Taking places at the head of the Georgia band, they stood, cheered and manoeuvered around in the crowd. During the half they paraded out on field and were introduced over loud speaker by senior cheer leader, who also boosted the picture.

Two days ahead of playdates, the four co-eds were the guest of Station WGAU on a 15-minute broadcast, script worked up from press sheet on what each seeks in life. As another feature to this program, five passes were offered to the first 20 people calling the station and correctly identifying all four daughters by name and which each represented.

Tieups were arranged with automobile dealer who furnished new bannered cars to drive girls about city and tieup was also effected with bicycle dealer who furnished bikes for the girls to tour the streets. Local hotel furnished room and phone gratis for the girls to call the boys at fraternities telling them which of the four daughters they were and that they would like to make a date to meet them at the theatre to see the picture.

University officials allowed the girls to wear the sweaters in class rooms and on campus. Girls were given house courtesies to future shows for their cooperation.

"Miss Capitol" Chosen By Voting Ballots

Little pre-Christmas idea to gather extra revenue at the boxoffice, is a "Miss Capitol" contest put on by Sid Scott at that theatre in Sudbury, Ontario. Through cooperation of leading jeweler, coupons are distributed at theatre and store each good for ten votes. Girl having most votes will be crowned "Miss Capitol" on stage Christmas eve and receive a diamond ring, wrist watch and toiletware going to runnersup.

Heralds are distributed by the store and their daily ads carry the standings of the entrants. Contest is plugged by merchant and theatre alike.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Keefe Ties Radio To "Three Comrades"

Contest was arranged by Jim Keefe, Ritz Theatre, Clarksburg, W. Va., on "Three Comrades" with Station WBLK, prizes going to those submitting largest lists of picture beginning with the word "Three." Contest ran for 15 minutes daily, six days prior to opening; time was given gratis.

Miniature telegrams with picture plug were distributed in all wires leaving Postal Telegraph week ahead and during run; bookmarks were also distributed by public library, and various window displays with title and playdate credits were promoted.

ROUND TABLERS REPORT NEW YEAR'S EVE SHOWS

Programs of Various Kinds Now Being Arranged; Loew's Sets Shows Saturday and Sunday

While plans for December campaigns constitute the most important "must" at this writing, theatremen are not neglectful of the possibilities in celebrating the coming of the new year. With this in mind, arrangements are now being set for New Year's Eve. Presentations, elaborate and modest, are scheduled in various sectors. A quick look here and there reveals the following:

The Warner Jersey zone houses will have celebrations in accordance with their different operations. Some of the houses will be shut down from four-thirty to six-thirty on Dec. 31, to allow for a complete changeover and entirely new show, to be advertised in advance of course on screen, in lobby and in ads. Increased prices are intended for these later shows. Jitterbug Contests, as detailed in a recent issue, will also be a part of the entertainment, writes Bob Paskow, division ad head.

Since Christmas and New Year's this year will be celebrated on the Mondays following, Loew's are considering the preceding Saturdays and Sundays as holiday nights. Some Loew's theatres in the metropolitan area will have midnight shows on the two nights on both holidays. Houses with regular Saturday late shows will repeat on Sunday. Others will run midnight shows on Sundays only, reports Oscar A. Doob, director of advertising and publicity. RKO Theatres will also celebrate the holidays with late shows.

Five-Hour Shows Used

Among the presentations used in previous years by the Warner Jersey houses was a five-hour show at a slight price advance to make up for the lack of turnover. Typical trailer copy read:

"Come as early as seven and stay until midnight or come as late as nine and stay until two. In either case you get five hours of entertainment. Nothing repeated."

In other Warner Jersey situations, shows ran until three a.m., last show starting just after midnight. Houses with stage shows and house bands scheduled special "name" shows in addition to the screen entertainment and a preview of some outstanding picture before general release date was included at another spot in addition to a premiere of the regular attraction.

Old Ideas Found Effective

Scanning the files for further ideas used previously, one finds a brief presentation by Herman Bamberger wherein house artist decorated reverse of old drop with "Happy New Year" lettered in flitter. Ten seconds before midnight, house lights were killed, drop lowered to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" which continued as, exactly at midnight, operator threw flood on drop.

New Year's Eve is a good time for folks to let off steam, as Fred Souttar discovered with wedding of a colored couple on the stage in conjunction with an old-time movie show. Latter had included an old silent film, song and ad slides, usual film breaks, piano and drums in pit, etc.

An "oldie" that still holds favor is the giant compo clock with moving hour hand. As house lights dim, clock moves slowly to 12 to the accompaniment of appropriate music. At 12, the house lights up, and in costume, old man "1938" limps across the stage, followed by baby "1939."

Local Talent Encouraged

Local talent will continue to play a prominent part in the entertainment where professional talent is unavailable. Programmed shows under the auspices of local dance schools are being considered and in other situations, managers with the proper facilities, will do a bit of home-town producing on their own. One presentation was built around a flock of local girls who represented what various months stood for, such as February—skating girl, May—spring flowers, June—June brides, etc. Where regular costumes are not to hand, cellophane can be designed cleverly and inexpensively.

Where special stage shows are considered, the inclusion of a competent master of ceremonies will contribute to the gaiety. Folks are in a mood to contribute to the scheduled entertainment and the M. C. who knows his business can turn this tendency to his own ends without letting the volunteers get out of hand. The M. C. can also extract many laughs from the usual accessories, such as paper hats, horns, noise-makers and other novelties. He can also bring laughs with community singing, stage games in which the audience participates. Currently the stage auction for adults appears to be most popular. In addition to this, and where time allows, other games may be welcomed. These could take the form of those listed here recently for Hallowe'en, and to be adapted according to local conditions.

Conner Celebrates Rhodes Anniversary

Tieup with neighborhood paper to choose local girl to act as theatre hostess during the week of the first anniversary celebration is listed as one of the featured promotions arranged by Marlowe Conner for the Rhodes, Chicago. Selection was made on the stage on Saturday night, Nov. 19. In addition, local matron who bought the first ticket at the opening of the house was invited to sell the first ticket on the eve of the second year, also to share in the other publicity.

Other contests listed are interesting, including invitations to couples also celebrating their first anniversaries during the week of the theatre birthday. Eligible couples were to bring their marriage certificates as proof. Neighborhood babies, one year of age in November, were also in the limelight to have their photos displayed in the lobby with patron votes determining those to receive prizes. Cash prizes were planned for best letter on why patrons liked to attend the Rhodes.

Planned Special Nights

Set aside were a number of "nights" for various local organizations, preceded by an unveiling ceremony of theatre plaques in the presence of prominent names. The Chamber of Commerce, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Rhodes Community Club, were slated to take part in the events accompanying the special performances. Leaders of these associations were asked to address audiences from the stage. An unusual stage presentation planned was the entire staff of the theatre on "Manager's Night," to receive scrolls of appreciation signed by F. E. Coston, division manager.

City Gives Permission For Sunday Benefit

What is reported to have been a first time in Canadian history, is permission granted Stan Gosnell, Loew's Theatre, Toronto, to keep his booth open on a Sunday. Working in conjunction with S. Branson Hahl, president of Radio Broadcasts of Canada, invitations were extended to orphanages and childrens' hospitals to attend a special Christmas show. Time was arranged for three o'clock, so as not to interfere with any church activities.

After appropriate pictures have been shown, Santa Claus will make his entrance to the stage through a huge chimney and fireplace. The Canadian Broadcasting Company has promised their co-operation to "air" his arrival. Members of the Junior League will aid by handling the refreshments and help Santa. Each child will be greeted by Kris Kringle and presented with a filled stocking, and will receive ice cream and cookies as they leave the theatre. Transportation of the children to and from the theatre has also been promoted.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com.; Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Mr. Harry M. Taliaferro, Pres.,

My dear Mr. Taliaferro:

Both Mr. Beatty and I wish to tell you how very proud we are to have had the honor and distinction of securing the first installation of the new American Bodiform chair in our new 4-Star Theatre.

You are already familiar with our enthusiasm over the new chair to which we can add nothing except to say that from a standpoint of cleaning, the janitor tells us that, because of the fact that the seat is off the floor, the time spent in sweeping is cut at least two-thirds.

But aside from our own approval - you will be interested in the reaction of our patrons. We stressed the new seat quite extensively in our publicity campaign incident to the opening of the 4-Star. We have received many compliments on the theatre and in almost all cases, our patrons have mentioned particularly the unusual comfort of the chair. They like it and, of course, that is what counts at the box-office.

We also want you to know that we appreciate the excellent service and cooperation of your entire organization. It was a genuine pleasure to do business with you in every particular.

Kind personal regards.

Very truly yours,

1939 MODERNIZATION GENERALLY EXPECTED TO TOP 1938 LEVEL

REMODELING and new equipment installation during 1939 will substantially exceed the figures set for 1938, according to reports from key exhibition centers. The closing year, after an initial spurt, slowed down during several crucial months, but the upswing that began in the fall will be carried far into 1939 by plans now formulated and adopted.

Prominent among the causes of 1938 hesitations was the government's suit involving distributor-owned circuits, a move that created much hesitation among the larger operators and resulted in curtailing of expenditures until the future could be seen more clearly. Major exhibitors now expect, however, that that action will be sufficiently disposed of early in the coming year to clear the track for normal operation and for catching up with time lost during the summer just past.

New modern fronts and new marquees were salient features of both 1937 and 1938 remodeling, and their installation was followed by immediate increases in business in most locations. Future plans call for accentuation of this trend in 1939.

In the West particularly, according to one Paramount executive, 1939 will see extensive replacement of simple ventilating apparatus by complete conditioning equipment. This trend, it is confidently asserted, can be reversed only by a major and now wholly unanticipated economic decline in that section. Paramount also looks forward to substantial structural remodeling in addition to the normal progress in the way of modernization and replacements.

The New York offices of the Brandt circuit, metropolitan territory operators, who increased their 1938 expenditures over those for 1937, have definite plans for still greater investments during the year to come. "The coming year will mean even more than the $650,000 spent this year," declares an official of the company. "We feel the temporary business slump to be just that—temporary." The Brandt circuit built four new houses in 1938: the Alden, New Rochelle, N. Y.; the Colony, White Plains, N. Y.; the Earle in Jackson Heights, New York City and the Dale in Manhattan. The Colony was built on existing foundations; the other three are completely new. In addition, one of their theatres, twenty years old, was completely remodeled.

The Century circuit, another metropolitan company adds: "You can safely say that we will spend more on remodeling and renovating next year than we did this year." In addition to remodeling of a comparatively minor nature in thirty percent of that company's houses, the Century circuit during 1938 built four new theatres, two of which are still uncompleted. All four are in heavily-seated sections of Brooklyn.

Renovated Every Theatre

The Cocalis circuit applied some share of renovation to every theatre they own during 1938. This company operates principally in New York City and suburban New Jersey. New marquees were installed at the Castle Hill and the Allerton, in the Bronx; a new cooling system at the Crest, also in that borough, and a remodeled cooling system at the Arden, Manhattan. Elizabeth, New Jersey, saw the completion of a new Cocalis theatre, the Elmore. Plans for 1939, although formulated, are in the case of the Cocalis circuit still tentative, and dependent, company officials say, on realization of the expected business upturn.

RKO's New York office reports only two theatre construction projects during the past year, but officials declare this is "solely because we, unlike many circuit and independent owners, follow a policy of watching our houses closely, so that we are never faced by many repair or remodel jobs coming all at once." That policy will continue without change.

The Loew circuit, like RKO, follows maintenance and modernizing requirements without excessive time lag. Im-

NEW YORK'S SWANKY NORMANDIE

■ After many months of controversy, with Park Avenue interests, politely commercial and haughtily residential, vehemently opposing the proposed establishment of a "movie" in the heart of their midtown section of New York, a motion picture theatre has been opened there. Named the Normandie (for no known reason except that it graces a swanky ocean liner), it is located in 53rd Street, perhaps a hundred paces from the proud thoroughfare. Though marked an intruder from the start, the Normandie opened the evening of November 30, to an invited audience in evening dress, under a policy which caters to a patronage presumably to be identified with Park Avenue. The theatre is part of a real estate improvement along Park Avenue built by the Goelet Estate, and was originally leased by Philip Smith, Boston theatre operator. A few weeks ago, however, his lease was taken over by David Weinstock and Harry Brandt, operators of many theatres in the New York metropolitan area. . . . Visual and auditory requirements of the Normandie auditorium are most carefully provided for within the architectural scheme. First-row vision is achieved and sound quality is much improved by specially shaped interior surfaces and the elimination of a maximum of sound-absorbing materials. The Normandie has a capacity of 600 chairs, of which 200 are on a mezzanine approached from the facia by means of two separate very short flights of steps. Smoking is permitted in the mezzanine. All of the chairs are 24 inches wide and spaced 40 inches back to back. The auditorium surfaces are mostly plastered and painted in softly blended tones of neutral gold and gray rose. The trim is satin-finish aluminum, and the standee facia is finished with inlaid linoleum. All of the lighting is indirect, utilizing light coves placed on the ceiling and side walls. The lounge is a large oval-shaped room on the street level (viewed as one enters the auditorium) and has as a focal point of interest a large glass-brick opening lighted from the exterior. The lounge is amply furnished and has a special pantry in an alcove for serving refreshments to the patrons. . . . Equipment of the Normandie includes American chairs covered in coral mohair (including the back panel), Simplex E-7 projectors, RCA sound system, Peerless Magnarc projection lamps, and Hertner motor-generator. . . . Rosario Candela was the architect, with Ben Schlanger as associate, while C. C. Potwin was consultant on acoustic design.

ANY MANAGER WANT A JOB—IN BOGOTA?

When there are turkeys in Bogota, it's no day of thanksgiving for the theatre managers. Theatregoers in the capital of Colombia haven't the patience of those in most communities. According to Hudson Strode in "South by Thunderbird" (published by Random House, and here referred to as quoted by Reader's Digest), if they don't like the picture, they stamp their feet; if it doesn't improve pronto, the stamping grows louder, and finally they get out the matchboxes! Sticking matches beneath their fingernails, they light them and hold them high over their heads. If the manager has another picture available, he immediately pulls the one showing. If not, his enraged patrons begin to break up the chairs. . . . But Bogota has salubrious climate.

provements were added to practically all Loew theatres outside the New York area during the past year, but locally only repair and furnishing replacements were undertaken. Approximately $105,000 was spent remodeling their theatre in White Plains, N. Y. (the same suburban community where the Brandt circuit built their new Colony, this year). Another $40,000 went for signs, new sound, new wiring, new seats and a renovated lobby at Loew's in London, Ontario.

See Spurt Early in Year

Chicago reports particular interest in new marquees, even through the slack summer months; and, in this connection, a strong tendency to replace long theatre names with new ones having only four or five letters. Considerable activity in general remodeling is anticipated for the early months of the coming year, in view of plans reported by Chicago area exhibitors. The Esquire and Elm theatres were constructed in Chicago during the past year, the first at a cost of $450,000 and the second at $100,000. Theatres remodeled included the Coed and Drake, each $50,000; Roscoe, $45,000 and Clark $40,0000. Numerous remodeling and requipping projects ranging in cost between ten and thirty thousand dollars were reported. At present the Balaban and Katz State-Lake theatre in the Loop is undergoing a $70,000 overhauling which includes modernization of appearance, new seats, new carpets and new technical equipment.

A number of new sound systems were installed in Loop houses during the year, replacing equipment that was seven and eight years old.

In contrast to the use up to today of such antiquated apparatus Los Angeles reports itself fairly well caught up with the trend of the times and in no drastic need of wide-spread renovation. Normal equipment replacement is, however, expected to go forward in 1939 at the usual pace, and a number of new houses are contemplated.

RUNNING AIR SYSTEM AT LOW TEMPERATURE HIT BY DR. CARRIER

THE PUBLIC should be protected against owners of air conditioning systems who misuse their equipment to produce excessive temperature differences, Dr. Willis H. Carrier declared at a special meeting of architects and engineers held recently in Chicago.

"Systems are operated at too low a temperature and too high a humidity," Dr. Carrier maintained. "Sometimes this may be inherent in the equipment, but generally it is found to be due to the desire of the owner to 'show off.' "

Elaborating on the proper use of conditioning equipment, the speaker emphasized that "reasonably low relative humidity with a higher dry bulb temperature is decidedly preferable to a lower temperature with a higher humidity."

Discussing future developments of the science, Dr. Carrier expressed the belief that conditioning costs will be further reduced with respect both to equipment and to operation; apparatus will be simplified and will become more nearly standardized, while heating will grow to be considered an integral part of all conditioning systems. "The ideal system of the future is one that automatically controls temperature and humidity, not only in winter and summer, but in intermediate seasons when there is an abrupt change during the day from heating to cooling." These improvements will appear progressively, Dr. Carrier believes. He does not anticipate that the future will be marked by any single revolutionary change.

1938 INSTALLATIONS OF AIR-CONDITIONING SEEN OVER 1937 TOTAL

THEATRE air-conditioning installations more than held their own during 1938. Occasional serious declines below the 1937 level, as reported from some quarters, were more than offset by substantial gains.

Thus, one of the best-known and oldest manufacturers of conditioning systems experienced a 34% increase of theatre refrigerating tonnage this year as against last. The number of theatres installed with that company's equipment was approximately the same in 1938 as in 1937, but purchasers were giving preference to systems of ampler reserve capacity.

Another large company find their theatre air-conditioning installations to run about even with 1937 figures, but consider that factors outside their control left them with a smaller percentage of total installation business this year than last; in consequence, they believe that theatre air conditioning systems installed in 1938 substantially exceeded the total for the year before.

A third supplier notes a 40% decline in air conditioning sales to the theatre industry, but reports that a greater proportion of 1938 business was derived from the smaller houses.

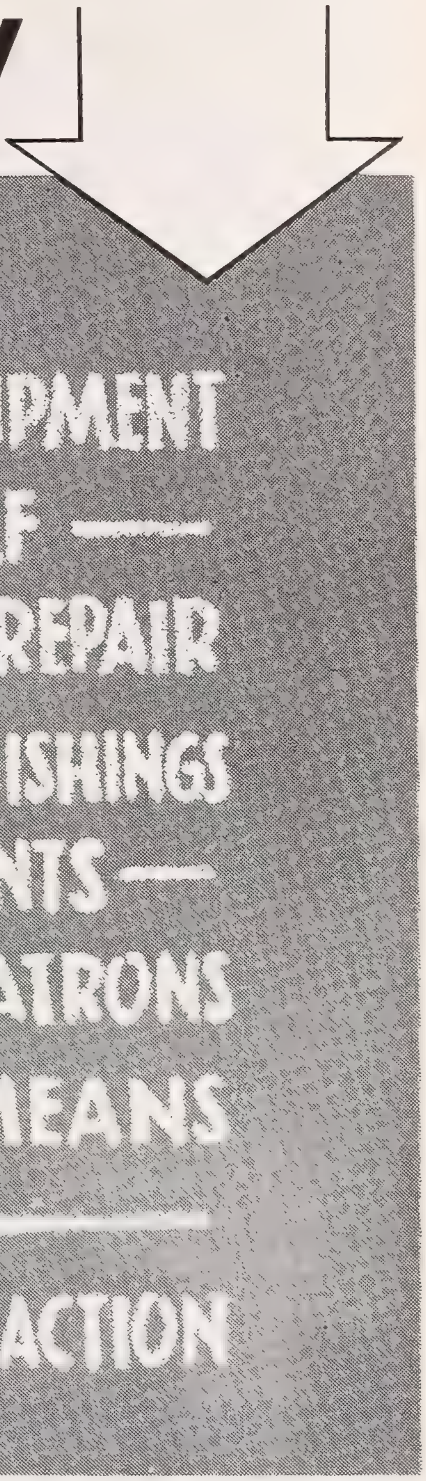
A fourth large manufacturer also experienced a distinct increase in small theatre demand, but at the same time estimates that their total sales to all theatres ran 48% ahead.

NEW LAW COMPELS TWO PROJECTIONISTS

PRESENCE of two licensed projectionists at all times when the theatre is open to the public now is required by law in British Columbia. The provincial government has added an amendement to that effect to the regulations provided for in the Fire Marshal's Act. The regulation applies only to theatres with two or more projectors.

Prompt Repair and Replacement Mean Long-Run Economy

- Here is no preachment, but the discussion of methods—of methods based on the training and the experience of a theatre manager who uses them



FUNDAMENTALS OF THEATRE MAINTENANCE

[The writer of the following article on efficient theatre maintenance has been a theatre manager for many years. Thoroughly trained in the system and policy of a shrewdly operated circuit, he knows both sides of the maintenance picture. Because of the policy of his organization, however, it is necessary to submit his article anonymously.—THE EDITOR.]

EVERY THEATRE manager knows that a single broken thread in a carpet seam will grow in a few days of heavy traffic into a heel-catching hazard, and in a few days more to a permanent carpet injury, more or less expensive to repair; whereas, if a "stitch in time" is taken the same evening the break is dicovered, both the damage and the hazard are avoided.

All trained managers and all well organized theatre circuits follow the "stich in time" principle as the basis of efficient maintenance. They differ only in the methods used to discover faults at the earliest moment, and the organizational policy in applying remedies.

A loose bolt in a seat is a fault to be caught promptly, but no one can possibly examine every bolt in every seat every day. In well-run houses a given section of seats is examined for loose bolts and for every other possible fault each morning before opening. The manager or assistant manager who opens the house, in addition to those in charge of a general inspection of the entire theatre, makes an extremely minute inspection of one section of it—as large a section as he can take care of conveniently. Carpets, drapes, seats, walls, ceilings, fixtures, stairways, doors—every detail, as described more fully below, should be checked with the most scrupulous attention. It may require a week, or two weeks, of such morning inspections before the entire theatre has been covered, but whatever the time needed, nothing is overlooked—and the word was nothing.

Inspection That Uncovers What's Wrong

MANAGERS, however, can do only so much. The staff must be trained to co-operate. Should the manager in his detailed morning check-ups find any fault that cleaners or ushers should have noted, those employes should be queried rather sharply about their oversight. On the other hand, every fault reported by an employe, however trivial, should be treated with respect and the employe be thanked for his zeal. A few experiences of this kind will keep any employe on his toes—if he is worth having at all. In fact, many a young member of a theatre staff has learned carelessness from his manager—at any rate, he thought he sensed indifference in the easygoing attitude of the boss.

Promptness in effecting repairs, aside from its inherent value and necessity, is still further desirable by the way it impresses employes with the importance of even the smallest trouble. For this reason even those very trifling repairs that could safely be neglected for a few days are put through immediately in a well-kept house. The usher who has "turned in" a loose aisle light or other defect of no particular importance is properly impressed when he finds that even that trifle has been fixed.

The Manager's Daily Inspection

The most conscientious staff, however, has its normal duties to occupy most of its attention. The manager's daily inspection is the theatre's real defense against trouble.

In the auditorium, the manager after a general look-around, proceeds to the sec-

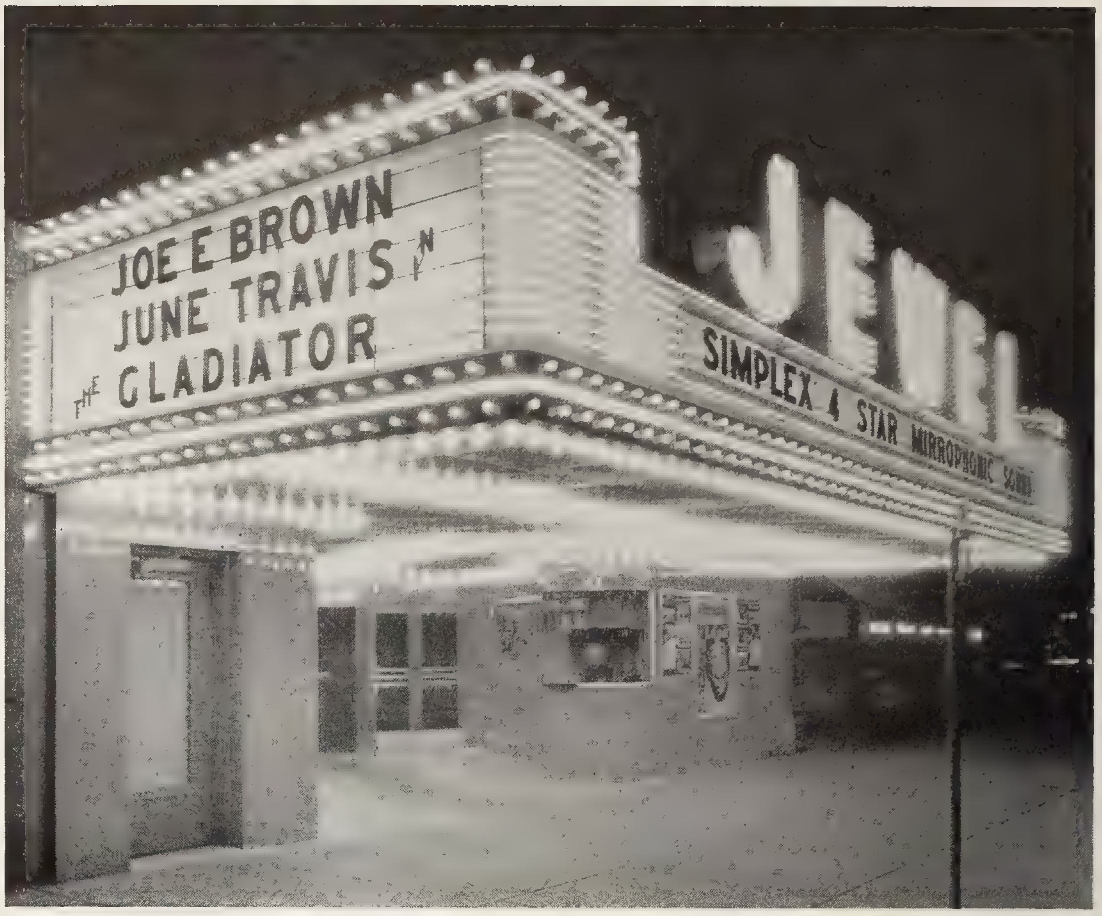
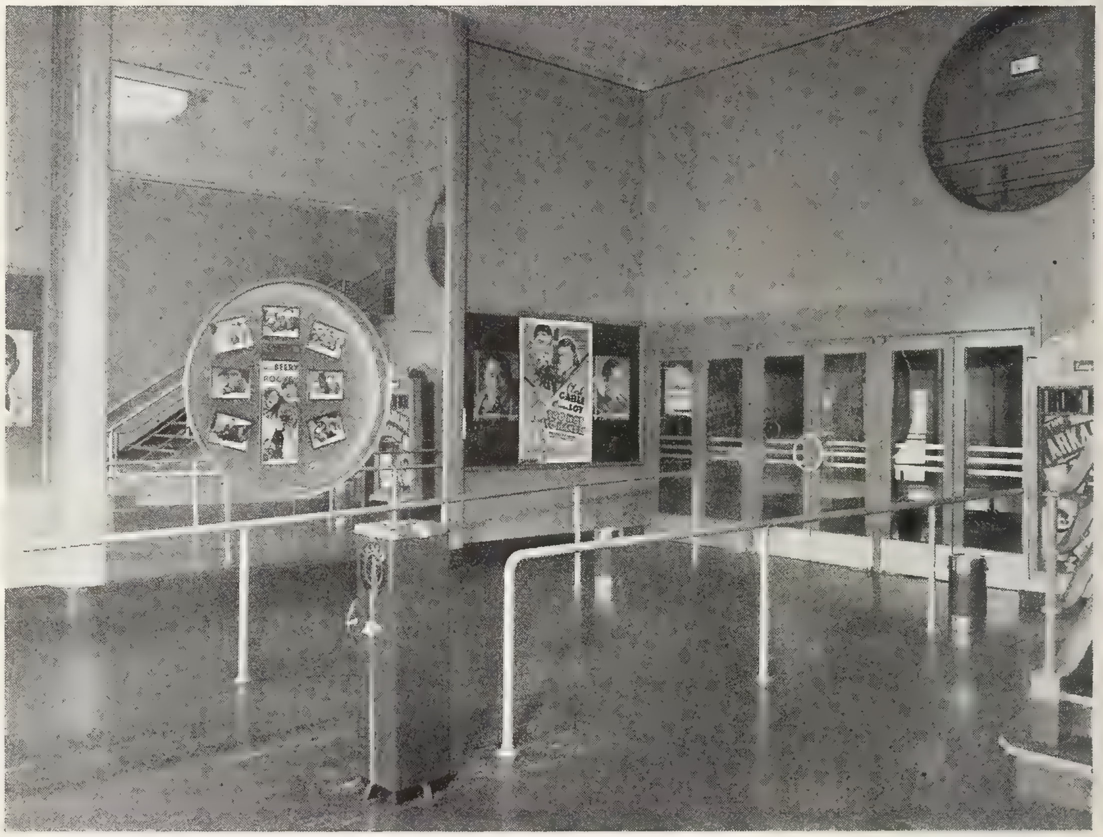
Modernized—Using

• Colorfully remodeled with the materials and furnishings representative of the cinema today, the Jewel in Mt. Clemens, Mich., is essentially a new theatre, occupying the site where its owner started in show-business thirty-two years ago



Red Viotrolite facing, and red and green neon provide an arresting facade.



The lobby has inlaid asphalt tile and both cove and fixture lighting.

R. G. PELTIER presents to his patrons his modern new Jewel theatre on the same site where he showed his first motion pictures 'way back in 1906. It is said, indeed, that he has been in the picture business longer than any other exhibitor in the state of Michigan.

His new Jewel at Mt. Clemens combines functional design with modernistic decoration. With L-shaped plan, having the lobby and foyer forming the stem and the auditorium the base, the theatre presents a brilliant marquee, an unusual sidewalk box office, rounded entrance corners to facilitate traffic, and an attractive vestibule in which Chinese Red accentuates the red of neon tubes.

The box office differs from the usual sidewalk type in that it is not an isolated cubicle at the center of the vestibule, but solidly connected with one of the side walls, from which it projects, presenting a rounded cashier's window that looks across to the other side of the vestibule, and at the same time, by reason of its rotundity, looks out upon the sidewalk.

The Jewel is located in the main business section of Mt. Clemens, where the patronage is more than local, inasmuch as the city of 14,000 inhabitants is a mineral bath and health resort. It seats 1,340, of which 300 seats are in the balcony. It measures 56x135 feet. The shell of Peltier's previous theatre was utilized, but the present Jewel is essentially a new theatre.

Its name is carried in 4-foot letters across the top of the marquee. Each letter carries four neon tubes. Thirteen red neon bands illuminate the rounded corners of the marquee, which is further decorated with a traveling effect provided by double lines of incandescents at top and bottom. There is a single-line silhouette attraction board across the front of the marquee, under the theatre name, and two-three line attraction boards are located at each end.

The Chinese Red of the Vitrolite entrance is matched with inlaid asphalt floor tile in harmonizing colors. The lobby is carpeted with Crestwood velvet, bearing tan and gold figures to correspond with the wall decorations. An illusion of greater size is given by a wide mirror which reaches from floor to ceiling. In the center of this mirror, where feminine eyes cannot overlook it, is a round attraction board. Hand rails guide the traffic. Indirect cove lighting is used, but there is also one large fixture suspended from the center of the ceiling.

SEATING PLAN AND EQUIPMENT

■ The auditorium of the Jewel has 1,040 seats on the main floor, and 300 seats in the balcony, arranged in three banks, with two aisles, on both levels. The distance of the first row from the screen is 20 feet (screen image 21 feet wide). All chairs are Irwin Seating Company "Deluxe" type with multiple coil-spring, deep-cushion seats. The end standard, of simple straight-line pattern, with rounded edges and recessed central panel containing aisle-light louvres which participate in the banded trim, and arm rests "streamlined" with the standard design, is finished in brown and tan with silver trim. Fully upholstered backs, with metal edges, are covered in coral automotive type mohair, while the seats (except for side areas, which are the same as the back) are covered in tan Russaloid imitation leather. The auditorium paneling is in Nu-Wood boards, giving a general color scheme of the blended tans and reddish tones of the material, which is carried into the coral and tan seating coverings and the tan and red tones of the Crestwood Velvet aisle carpeting. Stage draperies, sweeping out to the sides of the proscenium arch. 12 feet beyond the opening, and the curtain, are red velvet.

The foyer walls carry, in place of mirrors, large pictures in gilt frames. They are acoustically treated. The standee rail is completely covered with ivory-colored leather studded with round-head brass tacks.

The carpet of the lobby and foyer extends into the auditorium, which is 56 feet across at the widest point, and 135 feet long. The ceiling rises toward the rear, making the height 38 feet in the front and 45 feet at the back.

Auditorium Treatment

Auditorium walls are panelled with Nu-Wood boards, the mouldings of which run diagonally. The panels are spaced by fluted pilasters. In addition to the central lighting fixture in the orchestra ceiling, an exceptionally attractive feature is provided by large, round, blue glass mirrors against either side wall. Wall lights are mounted in the centers of these mirrors.

Three-bank seating is used, with thirteen chairs in the center section. (See accompanying article of seating.)

The stage serves only as a screen and horn platform. It is richly draped with red velvet, the draperies extending beyond the proscenium into the wings of the auditorium, hung in 50% fullness, to a point approximately 12 feet on either side of the stage opening. Valences and borders are of the same red velvet as the stage curtains.

Complete air conditioning is provided, with cooling by a 75-ton refrigeration plant. The heating plant uses coal.

Men's and women's lounges include smoking rooms fitted with modern chrome-metal furniture. Both have attractive lighting fixtures. The women's room has chrome-fitted shelves and decorative round mirrors.

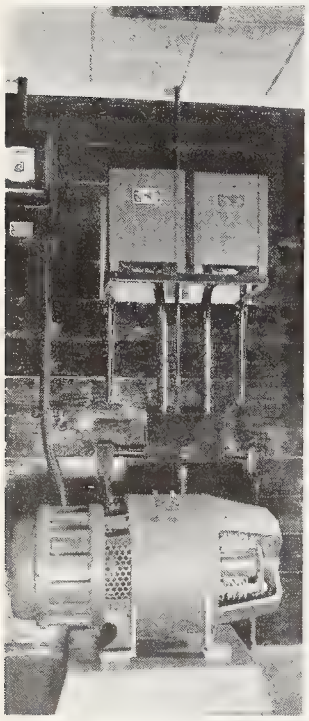
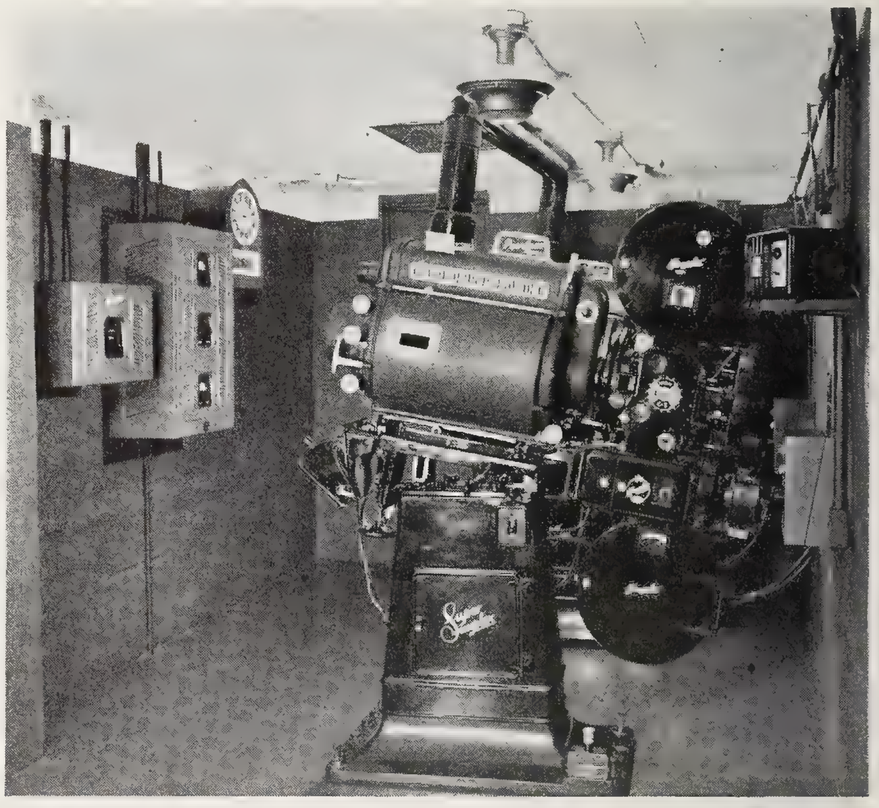
PROJECTION FACILITIES

The projection room of the Jewel theatre is 18 feet wide and 9 feet deep. Adjoining it is a room for the motor-generator, while a lavatory and toilet room is off the other side. All doors are of metal, walls are of concrete. The projection throw is 102 feet at a 7° angle; the screen image is 21 feet wide. Equipment includes two Simplex E-7 projectors, while the sound system is Simplex "B" type, complete with emergency amplifier and switching assembly, special wing baffles and multicellular speakers (see accompanying outline of equipment and furnishings for further projection data).



Equipped with Peerless Magnarc lamps, the Jewel employs the low-voltage high-intensity arc ("suprex" carbon) with direct current supplied by a Hertner motor-generator of HI-65/130 type designed for this arc. It is installed in the motor-generator room (see picture at left) where the high-intensity rheostats are also mounted, together with a 600-ampere Major "Bulldog" switch which controls the house lighting, projection, marquee lighting, and air-conditioning motor circuits. The generator has an r.p.m. rating of 1,750, with a continuous voltage rating of 42 to 45, and an amperage output from 65 to 130, allowing both arcs to be struck simultaneously without noticeable fluctuation of screen light. The generator has a low-resistance squirrel-cage rotor of low starting torque but high efficiency over a wide range of loads. There are two ball-bearings located in conjunction with the rotor. Generator frames proper are of cold-rolled low-carbon steel, and are electrically welded into a ring and are substantially seamless. The shaft is of medium-carbon steel. The sheet steel making up the armature and stator laminations contains silicon for durability and to reduce "iron loss" during operation.



The screen traveller curtain, on Vallen track and control system, is operated from the projection room. Port shutters are Best metal bolt type with fusible links.

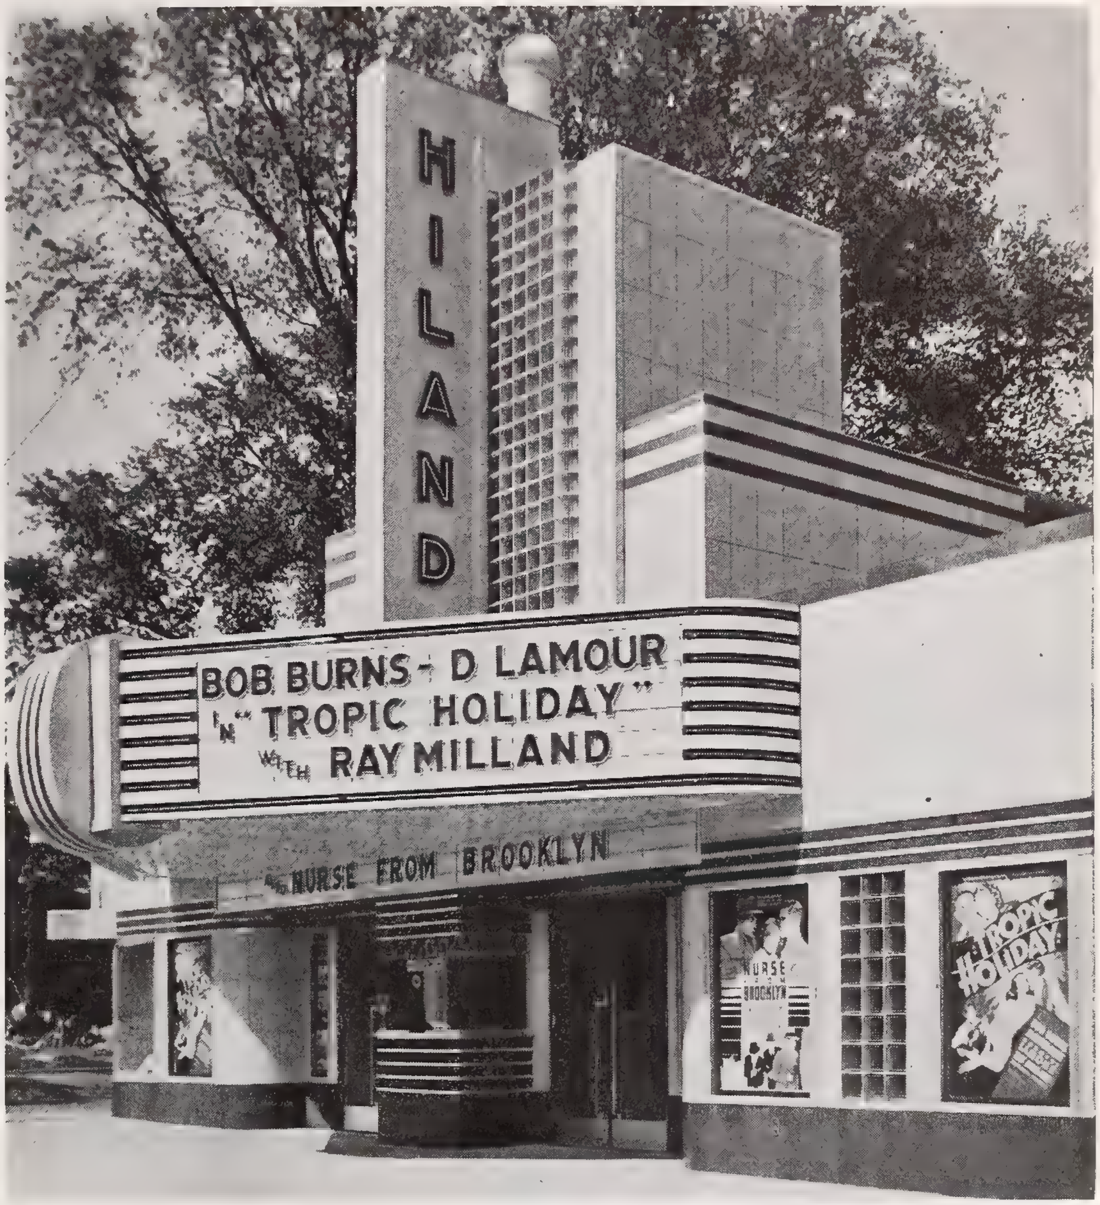
New—Using Leather, Wood and Terra Cotta with Glass Blocks

• Describing the Tri-State circuit's new Hiland, a small theatre designed in a distinguished modern scheme for the patronage of a fine outlying residential section of Des Moines

AT THE TIME A. H. Blank, president of Tri-States Theatre Corporation, Midwest circuit, bought the old Hiland theatre, the only theatre in Hiland Park, a suburb of Des Moines, he did so planning the erection of a new modern theatre that would give that fine residential community the latest in facilities for theatre comfort, and the new Hiland is the result of that planning.

The first consideration, according to David Dewey, who is in charge of theatre construction and maintenance for Tri-States, was a site that would be centrally located and easily accessible to the majority of the people in north Des Moines and also with good parking facilities. The northeast corner of Fifth and Euclid Avenues, being between the two business sections of the suburb and facing the main thoroughfare, was finally selected, and a plot of ground 50x150 feet purchased in order to construct a building with ground dimensions of 50x125 feet, as a zoning ordinance in this district required a 25-foot rear yard. The firm of Wetherell & Harrison, Des Moines architects, designers of a number of theatres throughout this territory the last few years, drew the plans.

A one- and two-story step-back, giving prominence to a glass block tower, was thought to be particularly advantageous due to the corner location and in consideration to the adjoining property, giving an opportunity for lighting effects accentuating the building front and adding height.



A corner location suggested a tower effect, but this one of Insulux glass blocks is also housing for projection and other equipment. The front is faced in terra cotta. The marquee chiefly serves to carry Adler silhouette-letter attraction boards at sides.

The structure was to be fireproof with concrete floors, brick and tile walls, steel roof trusses and a suspended rock lath and plaster ceiling.

The first consideration in designing the interior was the auditorium and the problem of providing the most comfortable seating arrangement possible, with clear vision of the screen. It was found that after giving spaces to the stage ends, exits and aisles, 658 seats could be accommodated. The seating arrangement was planned in three sections, one center section with twleve seats to the row, and two side sections, each having six seats to the row, necessitating only two aisles.

In the planning of the other areas it was felt that all possible space should be given to the lobby and foyer, and adequate space to a women's lounge.

Since the tower idea had been accepted, it was felt this might be put to a practical use, with the result that it was designed to house not only the projection room but also other equipment. This, plus use of a "reversed" floor slope, with the forward section rising slightly upward, made excavation unnecessary.

Treatment of the Front

Terra cotta with aluminum trim was chosen as face material because this material had certain advantages—one, in that it formed a part of the wall (it is applied 4 inches in thickness). The main field of the face was done in a mottled cream and tan, with a trim of deep raspberry. Spaces were provided in the face of the building for built-in poster frames adequate for three 40x60-inch frames and two "still" frames.

• two theatres in tune with the times

Changeable copy space was provided over the box office, using Adler silhouette-letter attraction boards.

The marquee is designed as an integral part of the front design. Its V-shape is particularly suitable due to the heavy motor traffic. Adler silhouette-letter attraction boards provide for three lines of changeable copy.

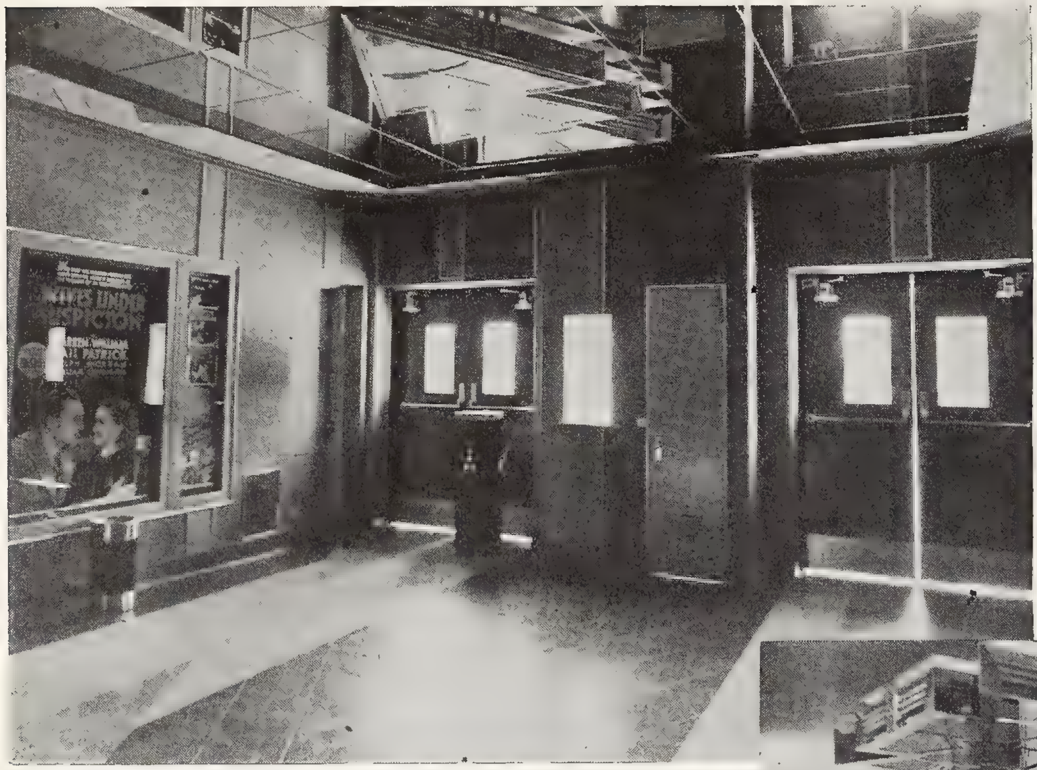
Sign Lighting in Rose

The vertical sign is constructed as a part of the tower and was included in the general contract. The framing of the sign is extended from the tower framing and covered in 20-gauge galvaneal. The letters in the name Hiland present a somewhat unusual effect, giving both a direct light as well as a silhouette effect. The sign lighting is neon (the type here used has the trade-name "Zeon") in a rose color, which blends with the terra cotta.

The step-back arrangement of the facade allows the roof of the marquee to be on the same elevation as the first story, thus eliminating the usual marquee drain over the sidewalk or located in front of the building.

The lobby floor and base are of terrazo in three colors, laid in a geometrical design. The walls are covered in two shades of tan

LEATHER WALLS, FANCIFUL CARPETING IN LOBBY AND FOYER



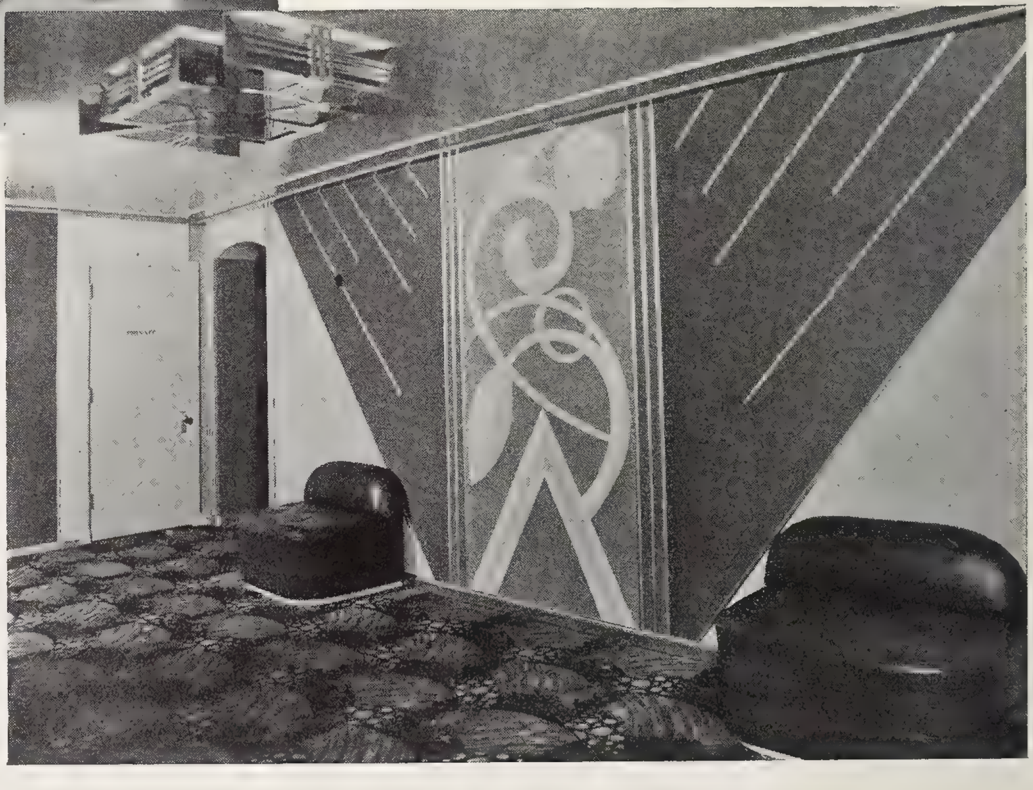
The lobby, looking toward the street.

■ The lobby and foyer of the Hiland theatre employ a number of striking devices to attain a modern elegance with appropriate economy. Notable among these, besides the original lighting fixtures, are leather for wall finish, and in the foyer, carpeting of a more delicately fanciful interpretation of modern styling than the carpet patterns usually found in theatres.

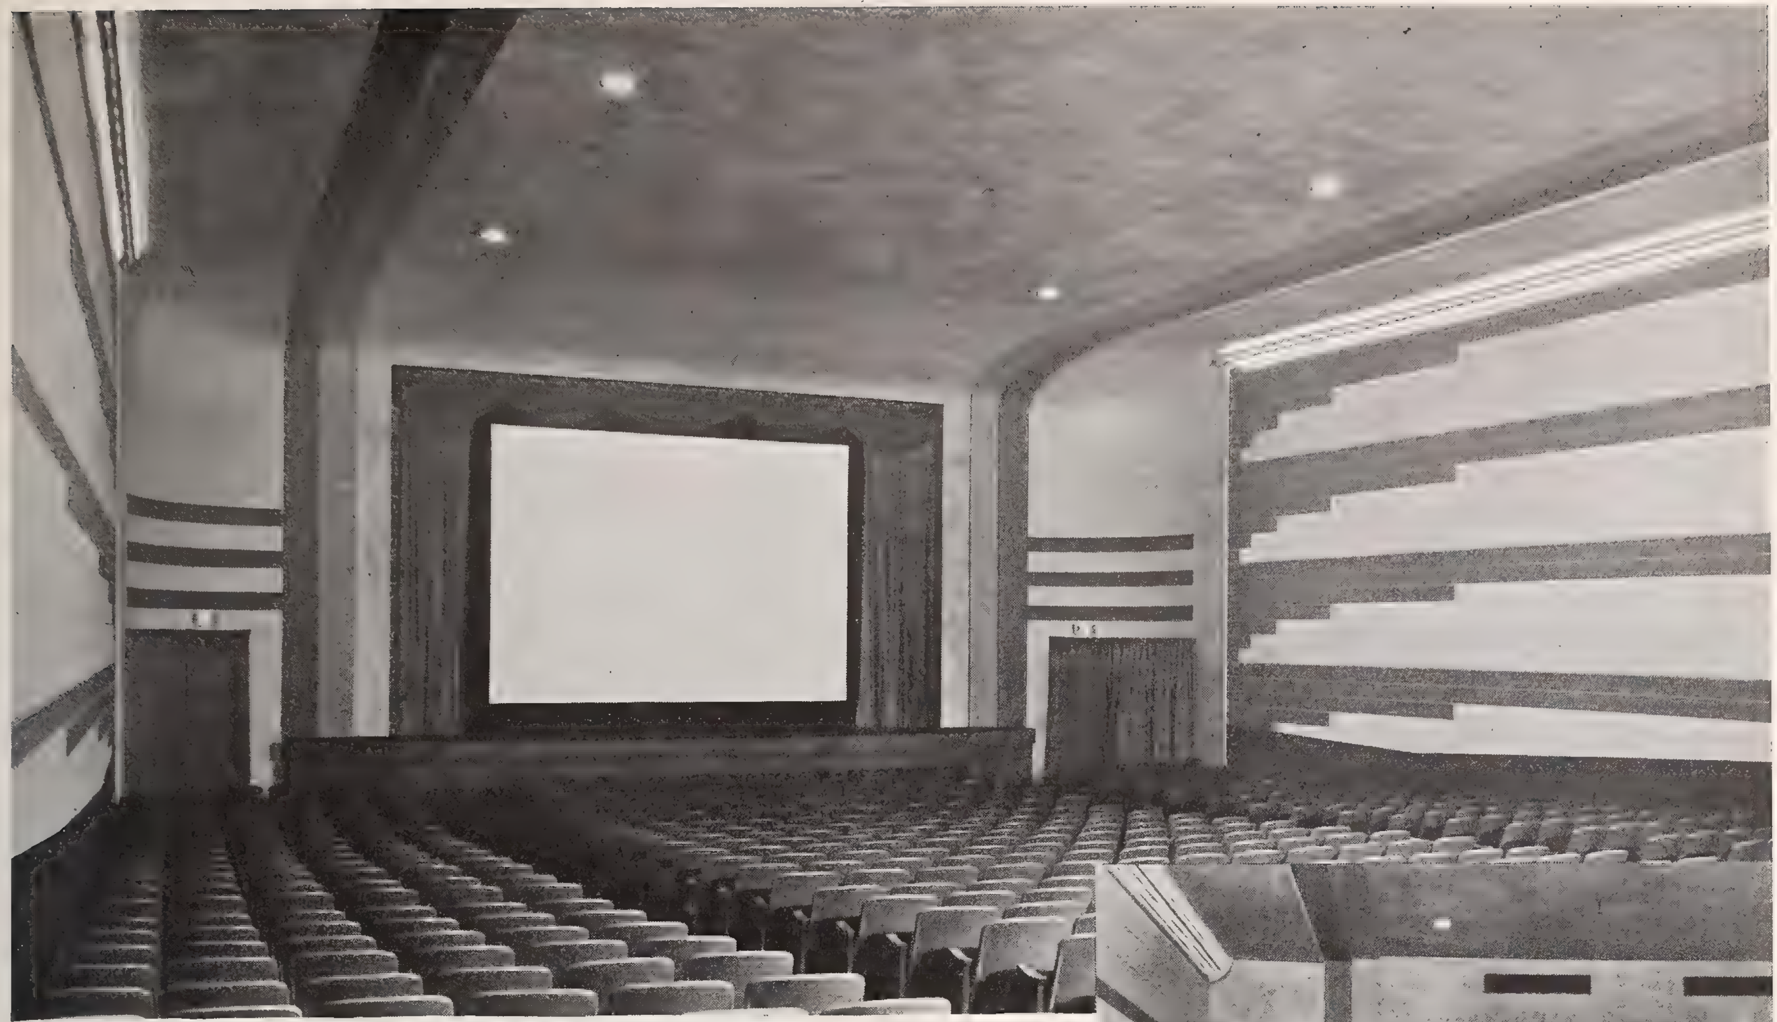
This carpeting, of Crestwood Velvet weave (Alexander Smith), has a complex pattern composed of large, light-toned segments of circles interlaced with "ermine" and "bubble" effects consisting in small circles and dots against contrasting grounds. The ground colors are red and green; those of the "ermine effect," white and gray, while the "bubbles" are in gold, orange and black. As gracefully modeled as one of purely traditional design, this pattern is classified as modern, achieving a feeling of airy fancifulness (so appropriate to the theatre) entirely through the use of abstract forms. This same pattern and coloration is used for carpeting throughout the theatre.

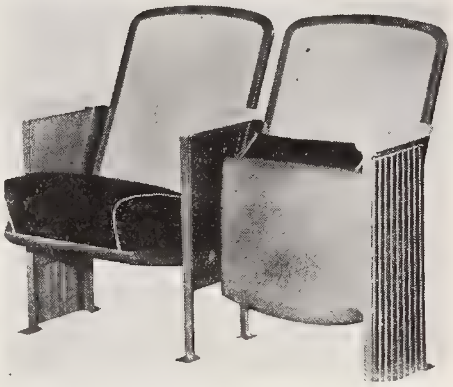
A leatherette fabric called Rocateen (L. C. Chase) covers the walls of both the lobby and the foyer. Rocateen is a special type of Chase "Leatherwove" fabric treated with an oil permitting even outside usage. It can be cleaned by washing with warm water and neutral soap, and is available in many plain colors and designs, though without simulation of leather graining. In the Hiland it has been applied in rectangular and triangular panel formations with aluminum moulding.

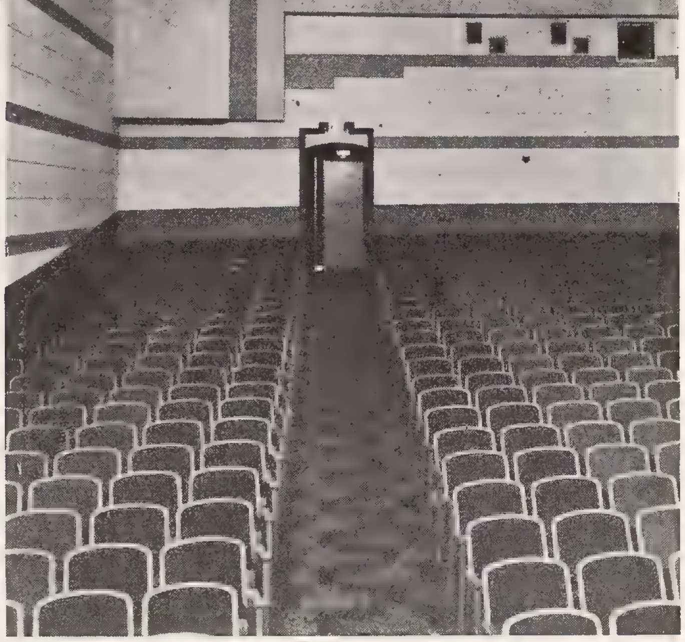
In the lobby, Rocateen is used in two shades of tan, while in the foyer the various panel formations are arranged in five colors—three shades of blue, ivory and buff. Low-backed, deep cushioned settees of a rather "blunt," massive appearance, placed between entrances to aisles, are covered in blue leatherette.



Section of the foyer, looking toward entrances to auditorium.







■ The 658 seats of the Hiland, all on one floor, are arranged in three banks and two aisles, with twelve chairs to the row in the center bank. The chairs are the International Seat Corporation model pictured at right, with steel-paneled, padded back, and multiple coil spring seats; the end standard coloration in the Hiland installation has green for the ground color, with the middle flutings picked out in red. Red and green being the ground colors of the aisle carpeting, they are also the colors of the mohair chair coverings, which introduce an unusual color effect by the alternation of these colors across the auditorium—two red, three green, two red, three green, and so on. The Hiland is one of the growing number of theatres employing the so-called "reversed" floor slope—with the floor sloping at a reduced gradient downward from the rear, flattening out near the center, then sloping slightly upward (see longitudinal section).

leatherette. The ceiling begins in a stepped plaster cornice, while the main field is covered entirely with colored mirrors, the center being flesh-color and the border of blue. A chromium and glass louvred lighting fixture, hugging the ceiling, is placed against the mirror surface, and the light is accordingly reflected so as to give the fixture notable illumination efficiency. Lobby space has been provided for 40x60 posters as well as "stills" and other small acces-

The foyer is carpeted in the pattern and weave used throughout the theatre. The walls of the foyer are also covered with leatherette, laid directly over the plaster with aluminum mouldings employed decoratively. (See accompanying pictures with discussion of the lobby and foyer treatments.) The foyer is illuminated by a ceiling fixture of construction and design similar to that in the lobby.

Two theatres in tune with the times

The women's lounge, opening off the foyer, is finished in a modern manner, with two chrome cosmetic consoles and other furniture of "Swedish Modern" style with rose, blue and ivory upholstery fabrics. The floor is carpeted the same as the foyer.

The walls of the auditorium, from the proscenium arch, are finished in two shades of Nuwood laid horizontally. The proscenium arch area, as well as the ceiling, is finished in tinted plaster. (See accompanying auditorium pictures with discussion of seating plan and chairs.)

Auditorium lighting is provided by two troughs running the length of the auditorium from the proscenium to the rear wall, along the side cornices, which are made up of three louvres, which break up iridescently alter and reflect light in three colors; and by reflector type downlights spaced along each side of the ceiling.

Stage draperies and those used at the exits are of plush in the shades of green and red found in the seat fabrics and carpets.

The projection room located in the tower is reached by a stairway off the end of the foyer. (See accompanying outline of equipment and furnishings for projection and sound apparatus.)

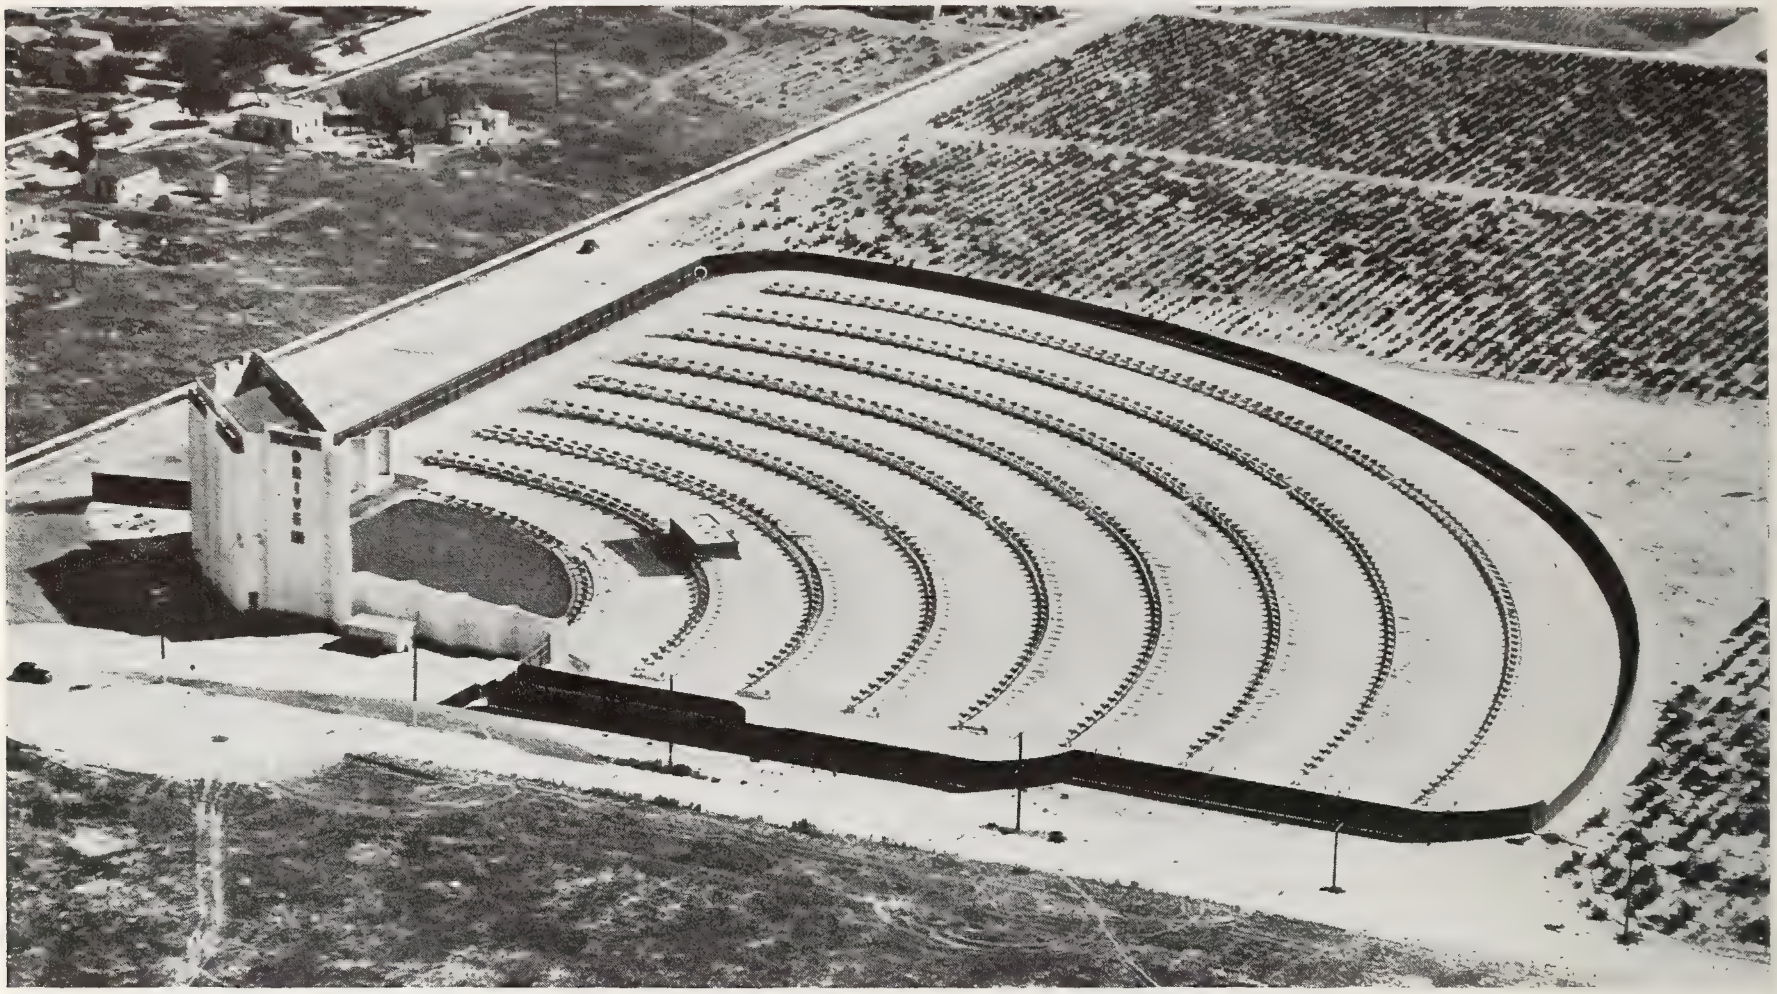
The Plan and Construction of One of the Newest Drive-In Theatres



Located near a Los Angeles suburb, the San-Val sets in the shadow of the Sierra Madre mountains, accommodates 618 cars.

• A gradually expanding newcomer upon the motion picture exhibition scene, the auto-parking theatre itself has been changing. Here one of its latest representatives, the San-Val near Los Angeles, is described

By C. A. BALCH

of Los Angeles
Architect of the San-Val Theatre

[In 1933, the first drive-in theatre was opened near Camden, N. J., and was described in detail in Better Theatres soon after. Since then nearly twenty have been constructed or planned, with various modifications in the original scheme. A rather curious cousin of the motion picture theatre, the drive-in has been the subject of many a recent inquiry addressed to this publication. In this description of the San-Val may lie answers to many of these questions.—The Editor.]

DRIVE-IN theatres in California are feasible and profitable the year round, and the California public has taken them to its heart. The Sierra Madre mountains make a rugged background for the latest of this type of outdoor amusement place to be opened in the Los Angeles area. The second drive-in theatre to be opened by California Drive-In Theatres, Inc., which started its first four years ago, this theatre is located in the beautiful San Fernando Valley, from which it takes its name—San-Val. It is situated on the outskirts of the city of Burbank, an outlying suburb of Los Angeles, in a former vineyard, close to an important highway leading from Los Angeles to northern points. The total area occupied, for screen building, ramps and approaches, is about 10 acres. The San-Val accommodates 618 cars.

Screen Building

The screen building is constructed of heavy timber and steel frame on a reinforced concrete foundation, which is anchored to bell-bottom reinforced concrete piles about 20 feet apart to eliminate any overturning by heavy wind pressure against the building. All exterior walls of the screen building have a double diagonal sheathing with an extra layer of diagonal sheathing on the inside face of stage wing walls. One master truss of the arch-rib type was used for the main span of 115 feet, with nine half trusses at right angles to the main truss and rear wall.

ITEMIZED COSTS OF THE SAN-VAL

Screen building, projection building, concession ticket office and fence, labor and materials	$31,121
Plumbing	1,200
Grading and oiling ramps, complete	4,351
Painting	1,684
Electric wiring and fixtures	4,934
Horns, installed	1,530
Sound equipment, complete	5,609
Projection room equipment	3,236
Other equipment, such as furnishings for manager's office, ushers' room, rest rooms, ticket office and janitor's supplies	898
Total cost	$54,563

The stage floor is located 15 feet above grade with diagonal sheathed flooring covered with a good grade of roofing. The outer edge of the stage is provided with a rail fence hinged at the bottom to be raised for protection when the stage is used for lectures, etc.

The screen is a metal lath and plastered surface on steel studs that are supported at the bottom only and tied to rear wall with heavy wire so that any shrinkage of the timber will not affect the screen surface. The plastered surface of the screen is covered with a good grade of light-weight canvas, bedded in white lead and painted a flat white. The screen is 58 feet wide by 38 feet high, over all, with a 2-foot black margin painted around the entire screen.

The space under the stage is divided into three rooms for the manager, locker room and storage space. The main panel board is located in the manager's office. All the exterior and interior walls of the screen building are plastered.

Wall Construction and Finish

Wing walls were built on each side of the stage and extended 80 feet out on the parking lot at an angle of 45° from the face of the stage; they average 22 feet in height. These wing walls were constructed to eliminate lights from highway traffic on the stage.

A double fire wall is provided on the street side of the stage—the walls 3 feet apart. The outer wall, 7 feet lower than the inner wall, has 6-foot galvanized iron letters forming the words "San-Val Theatre" mounted on its top and supported with rods from the upper wall. Lights mounted in rear of lower fire wall throw the letters in strong silhouette at night.

All exterior plaster has a brush coat of cream color paint, except the plaster surfaces on the inside walls of the stage, which are painted a flat black.

Both side walls of the screen building have large neon signs with 36-inch letters mounted vertically, reading "Drive-In," with vertical and horizontal neon tubes mounted on rear wall to form ornament. The total cost of these signs and ornamental tubes was $2,500.

Projection Building

The projection building is 186 feet in front of the screen building with a floor 24 inches below grade, and an 8½-foot ceiling. The roof of this building is below the line of vision of all cars.

This building was constructed of concrete footings and walls to grade. Above the grade, wood frame, metal lath and

POLICY AND TECHNICAL FACTORS IN DRIVE-IN THEATRE OPERATION

By S. D. PERKINS

President, California Drive-In Theatres Corporation, operators of the San-Val theatre.

S. D. PERKINS

■ In the operation of our two drive-in theatres in the Los Angeles area, of which the San-Val is the newest, the California Drive-In Theatres Corporation is in a rather unique position. I find after four years' experience with the drive-in theatre, that our patronage is really created by what might be termed a "non-theatre-going public." By that I mean people who are in ill health, cripples, old people, especially large people who find that theatre seats are not comfortable, people who have a fear of contagious diseases picked up in any sort of enclosed buildings or auditoriums, people who have little children whom they dislike leaving at home or in the care of a neighbor or nurse, as well as a good number of people who do not feel like dressing up after a hard day's work in order to attend a show at the conventional type of motion picture theatre. Then, too, there are hundreds of people who bring a lunch and who find their automobile has the desired privacy.

GENERAL OPERATING POLICY

During the summer months at the San-Val theatre, we use eighteen ushers—two on each ramp. There are two ticket sellers in addition to the cashier at the box office. As the cars drive in, they take the money for admissions, and in turn buy the required number of tickets, as the case may be. These are not actually "tickets," but are printed to read "Received—one paid admission to the San-Val Drive-In Theatre." These receipts are handed to the purchaser.

There are also two other boys at the box office whose duty it is to clean the windshield of each patron's car as the car stops to purchase the tickets. We have found this especially appreciated by our patrons, and it actually accomplishes three purposes: First, the patron appreciates the cleaning of the windshield; second, with a clean windshield our picture stands out much better. We do not allow these boys to accept tips for this service.

We also have a nightwatchman whose duty it is to sprinkle the lawns and shrubs, as well as to clean up any refuse in the theatre. The dayman's duty is to meet sightseers who wish to drive through the theatre in the daytime, as well as to keep in repair any of the many things which require constant attention. During the busy part of the night, until closing, we keep a uniformed officer whose duty it is, among others, to direct the exit traffic.

ADVERTISING AND EXPLOITATION

The general operation of both of our theatres is essentially the same; however, at the Pico theatre we use a much newer product because of the zoning position as it pertains to product in Los Angeles. The admission there is 35 cents, and the policy generally calls for a single feature program with two changes weekly. In Burbank, at the San-Val theatre, it is necessary to double-bill because the picture product is tied up at the present time in three other first-run houses which charge 25 cents admission, thus compelling us to double-bill as they do, and to charge only 25 cents.

Our advertising policy is essentially the same as that used in other theatres, with the exception that generally this peculiar type of operation lends itself to more unique forms of advertising and publicity.

The San-Val has been offered to all churches for Sunday services during any part of the day, free of any cost to the church. This has created very favorable comment from all factions. The radius of DEAN C. TRIPPLER, editor and exhibitor.

BUSINESS MEN BACK THIS THEATRE IN THEIR TOWN OF LESS THAN 400

CANOVA IS a little rural town of less than 400 inhabitants, located in Miner County in southeastern South Dakota. The city of Howard, county seat, with a population of about 23,000, is but a dozen miles distant. About 25 miles away is Madison, with a population of approximately 25,000. Nevertheless, Canova has had a regularly operating theatre of its own for more than three years, and it is still doing all right. Just recently it was seen fit to complete the remodeling begun soon after its opening.

Like many another extremely small community, Canova has local facilities for the enjoyment of motion pictures because the business men saw in a theatre a builder of trade for them. They went to Dean C. Trippler, publisher of the weekly Canova Herald. Mr. Trippler had operated a theatre in Canova back in the silent-film days. If he would give the town a theatre again, they promised to buy liberal blocks of tickets which could be redeemed at the box office, and each of the merchants pledged about $20 a month for slide advertising.

"I took them up on this," Mr. Trippler relates, "purchasing an old store building in the center of Main Street block and opened the theatre on June 5, 1935. A lobby and ticket office were partitioned off in the front of the building, with a small projection room overhead. The rear of the auditorium floor was raised. That was all the remodeling undertaken at the start. About 200 second-hand veneer chairs were installed, and upon checking up it was found that there were seven distinct styles of chairs in the lot, some wide and some narrow! But they were chairs, and the theatre opened to the delight of Canova people in general.

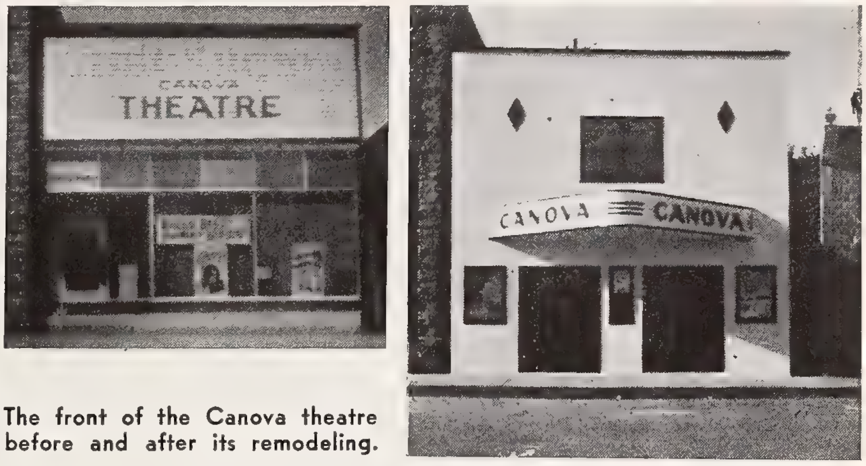
"Looking to the future, new projectors were purchased and a modern sound screen installed. There have never been any regrets that the best in the market was purchased in this line. It was the original plan that starting from the projection room, the theatre would be improved and modernized throughout as finances and patronage would permit.

"The walls and ceiling of the store building were of wood construction and painted, which didn't do a thing to the sound but make it terrible. Drapes, and also panels, of sound-absorbing tiles were placed on the walls, but it was soon discovered that these would never be anything but a substitute, so in the fall of 1935, after the theatre had been in operation just a few months, the ceiling of the theatre was raised about 3 feet, and the ceiling and the walls were covered with Nu-Wood. A plank design in varied colors was used.

"In the spring of this year new spring-cushion, upholstered chairs replaced the veneer seats, and now the front has been remodeled, which completes the original plan to give Canova as good a theatre as possible under the circumstances. In the remodeling just completed, the lobby, ticket office and projection room were also rebuilt.

"The lobby is about 9 x 22 feet, with the projection room overhead. At one side of the lobby is the ticket office, at the other a stairway leading to the booth. The walls and ceiling of the lobby are finished in Nu-Wood, the same as the auditorium. The floor is of asphalt tile. The floor slopes to the street level, eliminating a high-step which formerly was at the entrance.

"There are two entrances in the front, with poster frames between the doors and at either side. Each entrance has double doors. A double window in the center of the top admits light and air into the projection room. A V-shaped marquee adds distinction to the front and carries the name "Canova" on both sides in large letters. The front is of white stucco with woodwork trimmed in black enamel. Doors are varnished."



The front of the Canova theatre before and after its remodeling.

The Canova is strictly a family affair, with Mr. Trippler as the proprietor, Mrs. Trippler the cashier, and their sons attending to projection, exploitation, maintenance and—well, whatever remains to be done. The theatre is operated Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday, with two changes of pictures each week.

Mr. Baker at the Fox, while Ernie Rose moves from the managership of the Liberty to the same post at the State. Willard Seale, former assistant manager at the Orpheum, becomes the new manager of the Liberty. William Coghlan changes from the Seattle to the position of assistant at the Fox, and Jimmy Keefe, former assistant at the Fox, is at the Orpheum in the same position, as well as handling publicity for all theatres.

Herbert Rosener has remodeled the Larkin theatre in San Francisco, Cal. Improvements include RCA sound equipment, new sign, carpets, screen and lounge furnishings.

Frank Bowen, who formerly represented the Heywood-Wakefield Company in the Kansas City area for many years, has taken over the Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri territory for the American Desk Manufacturing Co. of Temple, Texas. His headquarters are in Kansas City.

The Gulf theatre, in Waverland, Miss., was swept by fire, causing a loss reported as $25,000. The house was built in 1937 by Ed Ortte of Clermont Harbor, Miss.

The Royal theatre, in Peterboro, Ont., which has been dark for many years, is being remodeled by Sam Ulster and Sidney Goldstone of Toronto.

Clifford W. Smith, formerly general foreign manager of Electrical Research Products, Inc., has assumed his new post as general west coast manager for Erpi.

The Clarence theatre, in Clarence, Mo., has been sold to A. R. Hickerson by Mrs. Ota Barrow.

The Lyric theatre, in Excelsior Springs, Mo., formerly operated by E. O. Briles of Emporia, Kan., has been reopened by John Wolfberg of Kansas City, following redecoration. George Miller is the manager.

Paul R. Aust, owner of the Broadway theatre in Seattle, and L. K. Brin, former Grand National branch manager in Seattle, have acquired the Empress theatre in Spokane, Wash. They will remodel the house.

M. L. Moore and W. J. Carter

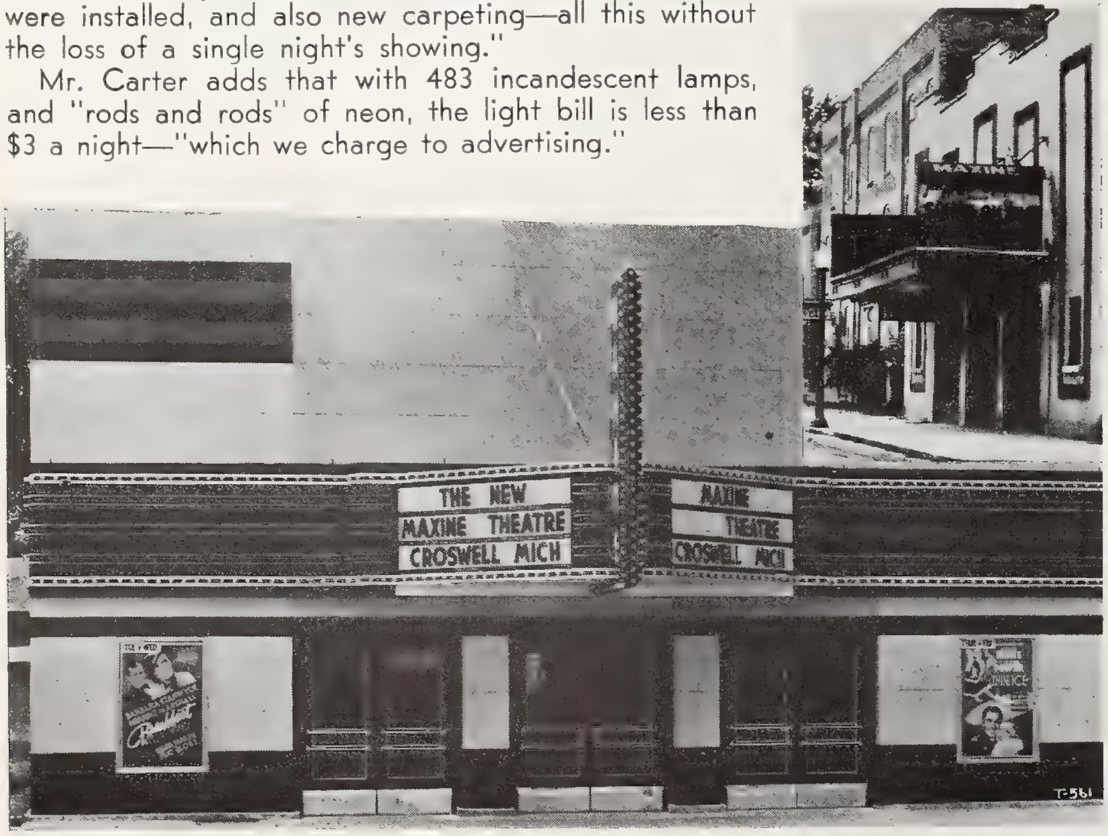
■ W. J. Carter and M. L. Moore are partners twice—once, as the Moore & Carter Lumber Company in Croswell, Mich.; and again, as the proprietors of Croswell's Maxine theatre. A few months ago they decided to modernize their little playhouse. They began at the front, with the results pictorially noted below. And, writes Mr. Carter, "our business increased by leaps and bounds." So they did some remodeling on the inside, too.

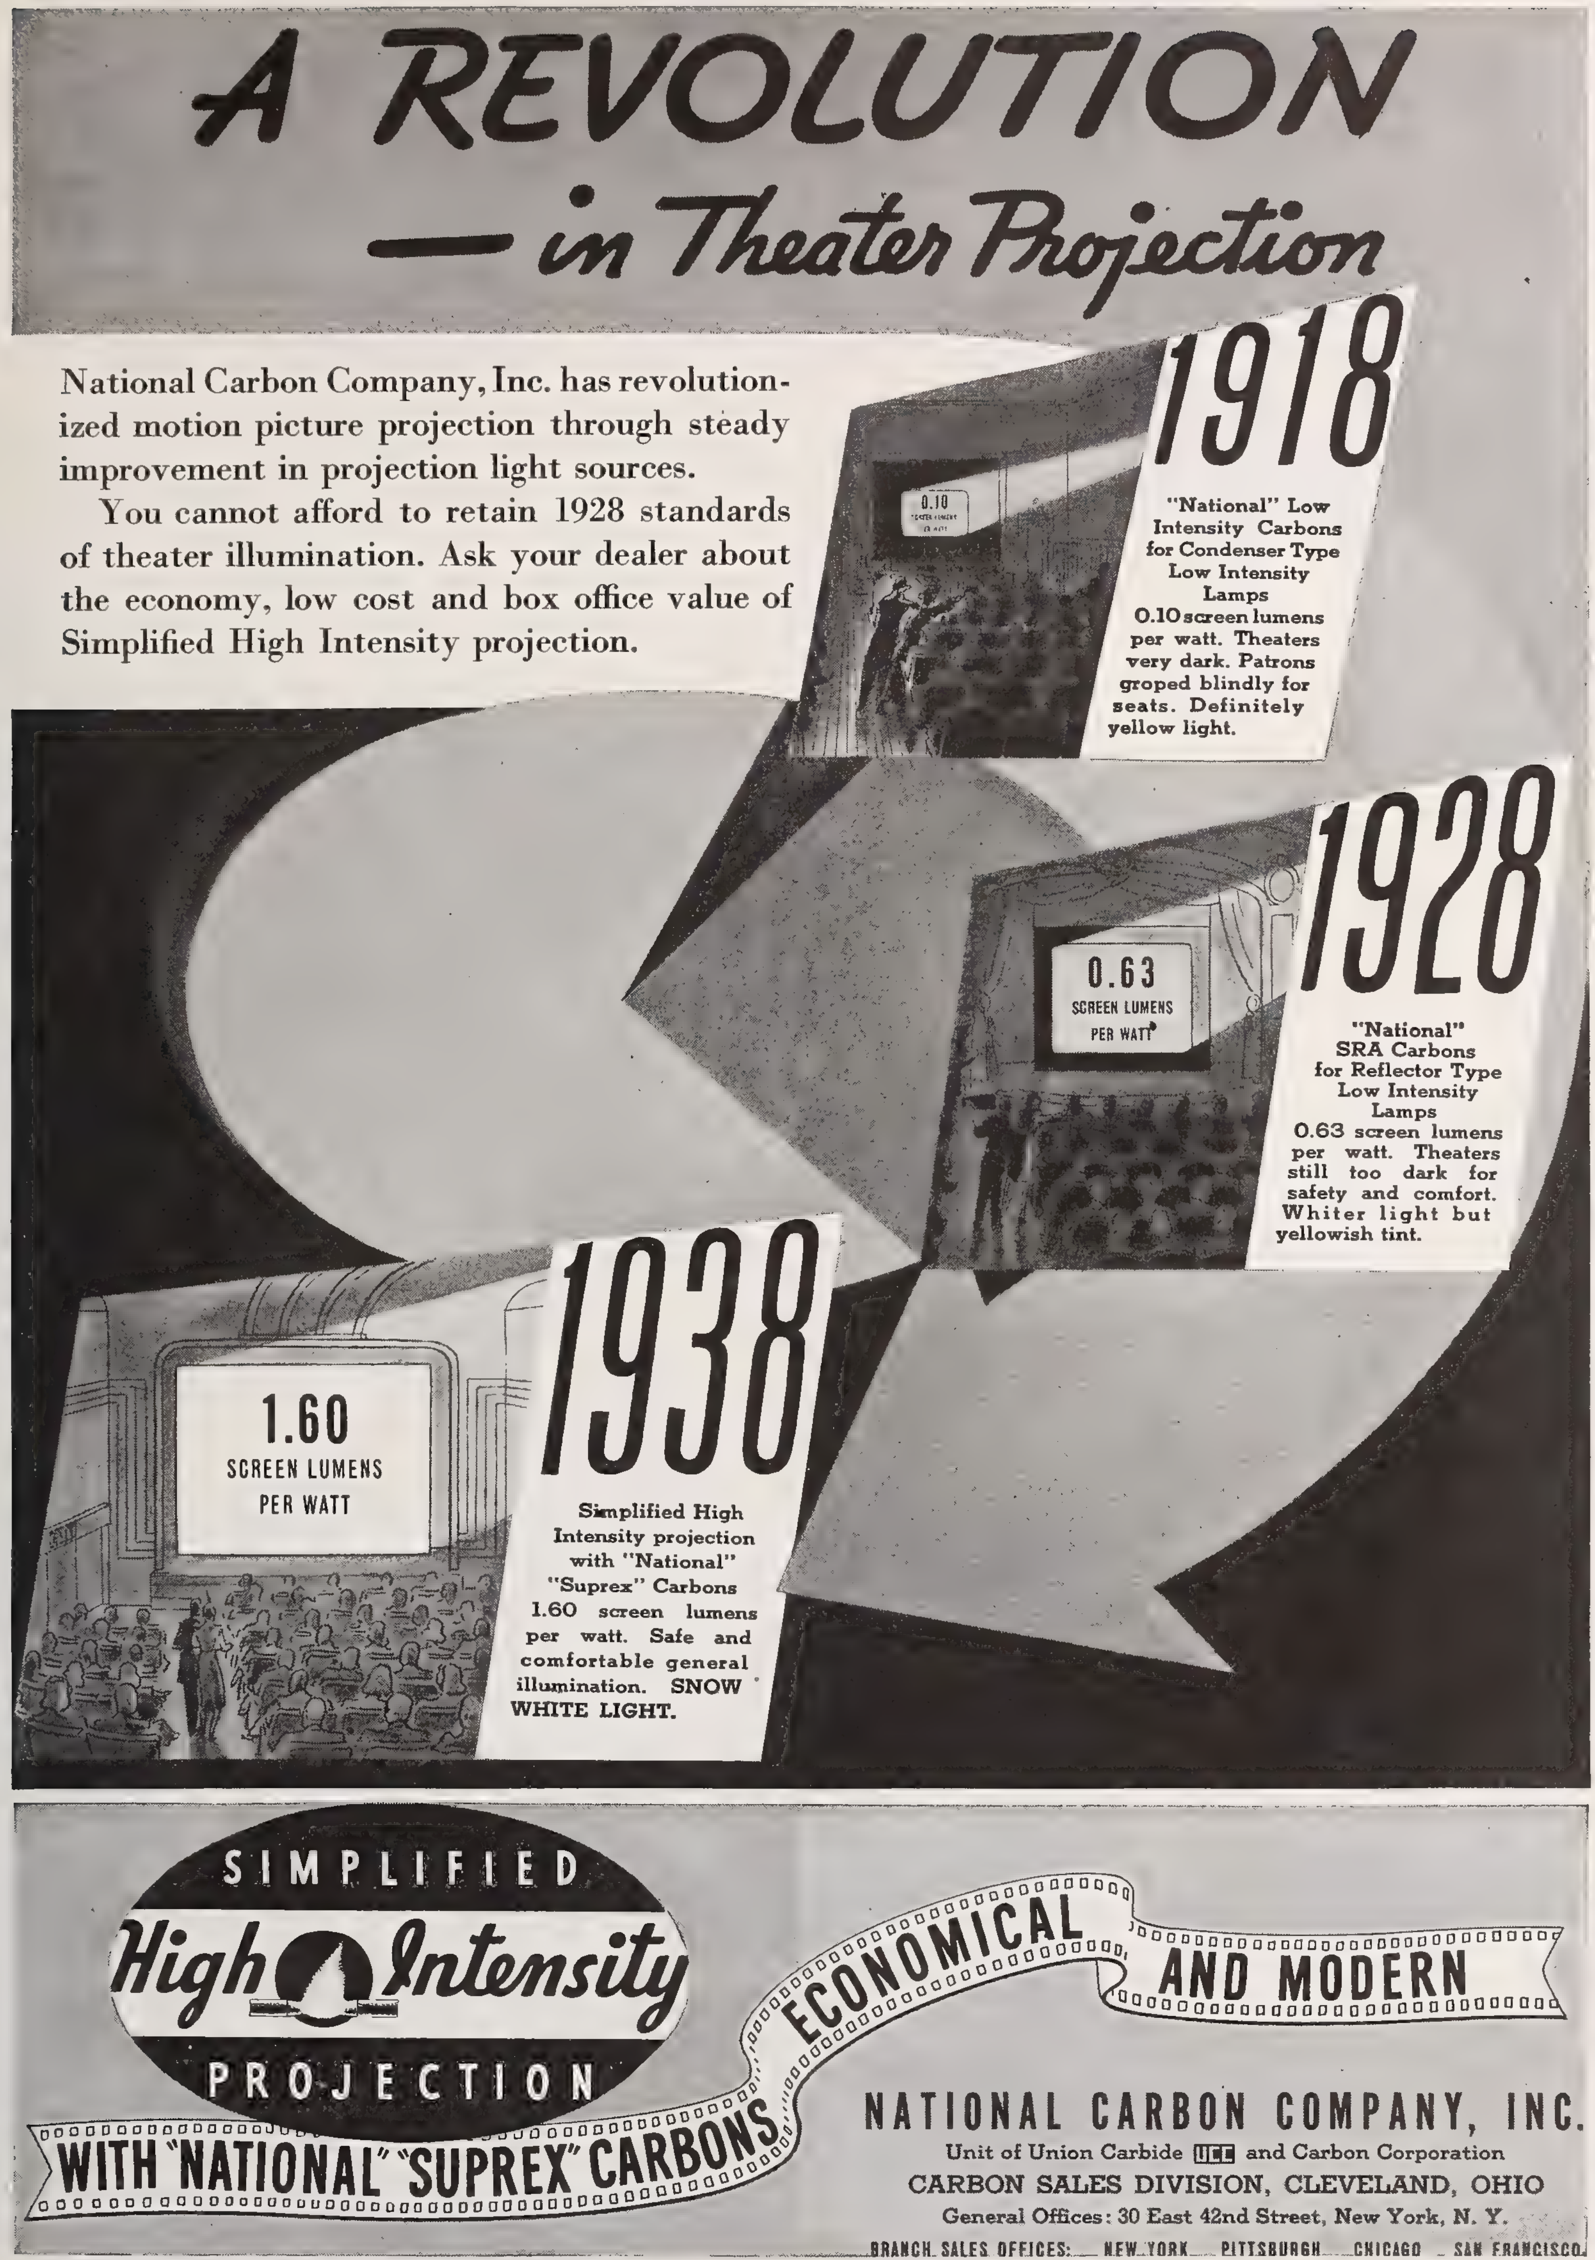
"The marquee," writes Mr. Carter, "was the first job we tackled. We removed all the old stucco, dismantled the old marquee, and two days later the marquee was in place." The marquee and associated sign and attraction boards are of Artcraft prefabricated type, with porcelain enamel finish, and the front was refaced with Artkraft porcelain enamelled metal plates. But to let Mr. Carter tell about it—

"Our building is constructed of tile and brick, and it was necessary to use 2 x 4 x 9-inch furring below the marquee, and 2 x 4 x 10-inch furring above; these were fastened to the tile with expansion shields and lag screws. Incidentally, the horizontal strips nailed to the 2 x 4 uprights were 1 x 4-inch crating used in shipping the marquee.

"After the front job began to boom business, we decided to remodel elsewhere. New plate glass doors with new bars and kickplates were installed, the lobby was redecorated, auditorium walls were refinished in Celotex in ivory and brown, Louv-O-Ray lighting fixtures were installed, and also new carpeting—all this without the loss of a single night's showing."

Mr. Carter adds that with 483 incandescent lamps, and "rods and rods" of neon, the light bill is less than $3 a night—"which we charge to advertising."





A REVOLUTION — in Theater Projection

National Carbon Company, Inc. has revolutionized motion picture projection through steady improvement in projection light sources.

Saves $3,000 When Hurricane, Flood Ravage Theatre

HARTFORD, CONN.—"When the hurricane and flood, that put many New England theatres 'in the dark,' struck our big State Theatre here, we immediately called our Altec inspector, Charles E. Maass," said Martin D. Harris, vice president of Capitol Theatre, Inc. "When he first arrived, the auditorium was full of water, and he had to ride across the stage on a raft to inspect the horns.

"I fully realized for the first time the importance of the testing and other equipment the Altec man uses. By means of it, Maass saved us from having to make almost a complete rewiring job, and enabled us to open our theatre, one of the largest in New England, without any serious electrical troubles.

"Our Altec service contract has saved us approximately three thousand dollars, or the cost of service for many years to come."

Theatres in flood stricken New England with comprehensive Altec agreements received thousands of dollars worth of emergency replacement parts without additional cost. Let the Altec man in your neighborhood explain the value of an Altec agreement to your theatre.

OBSERVATIONS

THE ICICLE METHOD IN THE EXPLOITATION OF SUMMER COMFORT

by THE EDITOR

MANUFACTURERS of air-conditioning equipment are expressing some concern, first, about misuse of the term "air-conditioning" in general, and second, about the icicle-and-polar-bear theme in the exploitation by theatres of summer cooling. With respect to the latter, their fears should be shared by theatre managements—and of course the exhibitor is in a position to eliminate them.

As a matter of fact, a large number of theatre operators have already learned their lesson. During the past summer especially, one noted the widespread substitution of such phrases as "comfortably cooled" for signs announcing an inside temperature so many degrees below that outside, and copy of similar import, commonly carried on banners decorated with snow-clad mountains and other arctic suggestions. Many a theatre manager now knows that too many people are afraid of such abrupt changes in atmospheric conditions as those thus advertised, for such copy to be good exploitation. And it so happens, that when these ultra-frigid promises are on the level, the patron who hurries past is using good judgment.

The truth, of course, is that emphasis on summer cooling misses the point. Air-conditioning is not mere cooling of air, but the effective provision of comfortable "breathing conditions" irrespective of the season or the weather. In the warm months, this usually, but not always, means cooling; in the cold months, heating, though often little or none; and in all seasons, it means maintenance of comfortable conditions respecting a factor that may be the most important single comfort consideration of all—relative humidity. Additionally, the air, to be really conditioned, should be cleansed of dust, soot, etc. In other words, winter or summer, atmospheric conditions that are comfortable, healthful. The theatre should become known as a place where such atmospheric conditions can always be found—here is something to be soundly exploited the year around.

Yet there is no overlooking the fact that it is much harder to escape summer's heat than winter's cold. No theatre operator able to provide that escape is going to fail to exploit it. What the public is interested in of course is comfort. Although cooling is only one way to provide it, unfortunately, the public generally does not know how comfort conditions are really achieved; emphasis on cooling has naturally occurred to the theatre operator as a short-cut to the public mind.

But in using it, notice must be taken of the fears of many people, and also of the warnings of health departments in a growing number of cities. And if theatre managements devote some of this exploitation of their air-conditioning facilities to the education of their patrons as to what they have really provided them—comfort regardless of the season or the weather—they will be taking this equipment out of partial concealment and getting rid of the summer exploitation hazards at the same time.

The air-conditioning equipment manufacturer has his problem in the use of the term air-conditioning for everything from deodorizers to summer shoes with holes in them. The theatre operator's only concern is with comfort conditions. They are what he should sell all the year around. —George Schutz.

Don't Be a Sucker for a Thief

• Winter is the robber's and burglar's busy season. Here's how you may outwit them, or be certain you are still not out of pocket when they outwit you.

By FINTON JONES

COLD WEATHER is stimulating, particularly to robbers. Apparently their expenses, like those of everyone else, go up when the snow starts falling. Cold weather and newspaper reports of amounts stolen (need and opportunity) continue to be the two big stimulants of theatre robberies. Consequently, the present seems to be a good time for the exhibitor to review his arrangements to offset loss by theft.

1. Don't be punctual. Since the first cave man missed his dinner, punctuality has been widely touted as one of the human virtues. But if you operate a theatre, and don't want to get robbed of your money, be late today and early tomorrow. There are two or three other simple rules in connection with loss of money by theft which experience has shown exhibitors should observe, whether they insure or not; for if they insure, they pay the loss in increased rates; if not, they pay it immediately and directly.

2. Don't leave money lying about or hidden in a tin can. This is so obvious, it is trite; yet exhibitors still are out of pocket because they do both. This sort of loss is not insurable.

3. Remember that burglars may cause losses even when they fail to get your cash. Insurance against burglary is a good thing to have when the bills for broken doors, ruined safes, and explosion damage come in.

4. Be sure you know what your protection is—and particularly when it is. Hold-up coverage, for instance, is written for certain hours; 24-hour coverage can be had, but few exhibitors realize that they haven't it when they buy standard insurance.

5. Co-operate with the insuring company when a loss occurs and the latter wants to make an investigation. Thorough investigation is one way to rate reduction.

Risk of Punctuality

Thieves may gamble, but they lack the true gambling spirit. When occupied with business, they want a sure thing and like their victims to follow a strict routine. So probably the greatest precaution the exhibitor can take is not to be punctual. The owner who appears at the theatre at 9:45 every morning, day in and day out, becomes a "target risk." A robber "casing" the layout immediately has something he can depend on—strict habits on the part of his victim. The same person going to the same bank at the same time over the same route is a marked and easy holdup prospect. No thief likes to stand around wating for his victim to show after he has planned to "meet" him at a certain place at a certain time.

The janitor of a Kansas City theatre was tied up early in the morning, and the robbers proceeded to wait for the exhibitor, who followed the normal habit of arriving at 10 a. m. But this day something intervened to prevent his getting to the theatre until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, which saved him embarrassment and the insurance company several hundred dollars. The only damage done was to the janitor, who was still tied up when Mr. Exhibitor arrived. The robbers had gone.

"Sneak" Thefts Not Insurable

Insurance companies do not offer protection against sneak thievery. Evidence of forcible entry is essential to burglary; and an "overt felonious act committeed in the presence of the custodian, of which he is cognizant," is essential to holdup. So if the exhibitor carelessly leaves his money lying about, and discovers that it has disappeared, the loss is out of his own pocket.

The manager of a theatre in a Missouri town arrived one morning, took the money out of the safe, and bagged it for transportation to the bank. At that point he was called to another part of the theatre and put the bag in his desk drawer—without locking it. When he returned, the money was gone. The insurance company denied liability. If he had locked the drawer and it had been forced open, the loss would have been covered under his burglary policy.

It is amazing with what speed information about "hidden" money gets around. Yet some exhibitors follow the age old custom of concealing cash on the premises. When this disappears, the exhibitor can kiss it goodbye. There is no insurance.

However, the following case did constitute an "overt felonious act." A man walked up to the box office with a $20 bill. When the cashier, who had left the twenty lying on the shelf, started to count out change, he grabbed both his own twenty and the change, and ran. The exhibitor recovered $20 from the insurance company.

Whether insured or not, most exhibitors have learned the wisdom of taking bills to the safe occasionally during the day and evening, rather than leaving all the money in a drawer or other place handy for the felon. In some instances, exhibitors have put small safes in the box office equipped with a slot where the cashier can slip bills as she gets them. In a case of holdup she can't get to them, and loss is of the nominal amount in sight.

Property Damage in Burglaries

Thieves broke into the back door of one Kansas City theatre, and, like bulls in a china closet, continued to break up doors throughout a zestful night. One room they broke into was a closet where the exhibitor kept his tickets, records and general supplies. They broke down the door into his office. But they did not find the safe, which was open—and empty. When they went into the lobby on a foray, they left the door open, which effectively concealed the safe in the wall. They did find a metal box, however, from which they chiseled the lid, and they stole a flashlight (apparently they had worn out their own in looking) and a leather bag. Though what they stole cost only a few dollars, they did well over $50 worth of damage. The insurance company paid the loss.

Replacing Damaged Safes

At Wichita, Kas., burglars broke into a theatre and took the safe. After trying a dozen unsuccessful methods of opening it, they threw it into the river. It was so badly damaged the insurance company had to replace it. A similar incident occurred in Kansas City. The ease with which burglars were carting away safes to work on at their leisure led insurance carriers to insist that the safes be "tied" into the floor—usually by metal strips overlaid with cement.

One exhibitor's safe was blown to pieces on the premises. There was nothing in it, and there was a sign on the door to that effect, but the burglars blew it up, anyway, and the loss to the insurance company was $140.

Robbers trucked one exhibitor's metal cabinet safe from the office to orchestra pit, where they used so heavy a charge of "soup" the door was blown into the balcony and damaged half a dozen seats. Silver and torn bits of paper money were scattered from one end of the theatre to the other. The burglars didn't get anything, but the insurance company got the bill. In another case burglars did nothing but jimmy the combination. But it cost the insurer $55 to get it opened so the exhibitor could get out his money.

Hours of Coverage

There have been cases of theatre holdups in which the exhibitor thought himself insured, but found that the holdup occurred "out of hours." Standard inside holdup limits coverage hours from 7 a. m. to midnight; outside holdup, from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. This coverage may not suffice for several reasons. But standard hours can be extended an hour or fraction thereof by paying 5 per cent more. Maximum additional premium is 25 per cent for five or more additional hours.

Coverage often is regarded by the exhibitor as Saturday-Sunday protection. Persons who make a practice of holding up or burglarizing theatres are aware that the weekend means less banking, more money. And here again the exhibitor may find his protection only partly covering his loss. He may have a big Saturday-Sunday, running to more than the policy limits provide; or there may be a Saturday or Monday holiday, in which case money accumulates over three instead of two days, and a robbery late the third day becomes a loss to the exhibitor. What he should do is to foresee three-day periods when banking is not possible, and secure, in advance, extra coverage for the period involved. He should, of course, carry enough insurance to protect any ordinary Saturday-Sunday accumulation.

Special Protection

A theatre owner may not have a safe. If he takes the money home, a flat $2 will buy him protection against loss of $100 by burglary, or $3 will buy him $100 worth of protection against burglary, robbery, theft and larceny. This is, however, what insurance men term an "accommodation line," and the exhibitor can buy it only when he already carries 24 hours daily coverage on both outside and inside holdup.

There remains still another loophole in the exhibitor's protection—kidnaping. The manager of a Kansas City theatre closed up for the night, joined his wife, and drove to a restaurant to eat. When they came out, two men kidnaped them, took them back to the theatre, and there forced the manager to open the safe. This was a new wrinkle in holdups; neither fish nor flesh, but certainly foul. Kidnaping coverage can be purchased for a small premium, but, again, is written only in conjunction with 24-hour inside holdup coverage.

Rate Bases and Discounts

Burglary rates are governed by the class of safe used. The cheapest rate is for a burglary-resisting safe with relocking device, though it is expensive coverage for the insurance company because, if the safe is jimmied, the company has as much trouble getting into it as the burglars. The most expensive burglary protection for the exhibitor is on a simple "fireproof" safe, which is a metal container that locks and is fire-resistant.

Various discounts are allowable under robbery insurance, but for the average exhibitor to earn them costs too much in outlay. These concern special messenger services, use of watchmen, installation of alarm systms, and the like. Owners of large theatres, however, who have not taken advantage of these discounts might do well to investigate them.

An exhibitor with two or three or more theatres can save a substantial percentage of his premium by purchasing his robbery protection under a "scheduled" policy, which means buying the coverage for all the theatres in one policy and from one company. The saving on this is 50% for all "custodians" except the one requiring the largest premium; or 50% on all but one.

Some exhibitors, possibly due to slight inconvenience, possibly to the feeling that they are under suspicion—which is not at all the case—object to thorough investigations of robberies by the insurance company. The objective of the company is to discover false claims. But they need the cooperation of exhibitors to establish such investigations as a regular and customary practice.

As a matter of fact, the company wants to pay all legitimate losses promptly. It is anxious to pay. After all, payment of money to defray loss suffered under certain conditions—that is what it sells. At the same time, high rates make a coverage difficult to sell, cause many to continue to be self-insurers, and defeats the fundamental purpose of insurance altogether.

Draftless Air Distribution

AND

Equalization Of Temperature

Is assured by the use of "Anemostat" High Velocity Air Diffusers in this streamline version of the Newsreel Theatre designed by Peter Copeland, Architect. Modern in every respect, the owners have spared no expense to provide the utmost in patron comfort—air conditioning both summer and winter being one of the many features. The use of Anemostats eliminates the harmful and unpleasant sensation of drafts and generally assures the equalization of temperature throughout the room. The air distribution and temperature equalization problem of any air conditioning or ventilating system, regardless of size, can be solved by the use of Anemostats. Anemostats can be applied to existing systems as well as to new installations. The Anemostat has no moving parts and is easily installed.

tions scheduled for detailed examinations and turns up every seat. He observes all seat bolts. He looks for torn upholstery and protruding springs, underside as well as top-side. He directs his flash-light along every carpet seam. He pulls and pushes every chair arm, every chair back, makes sure every aisle light is tight—throws his flashlight along all aisle light wiring.

Walls and draperies should be checked for cleaning not only by sight, but by running a finger over them.

Do as Your Patrons Do!

Decorative furniture in the portion of the auditorium under inspection needs particular attention. It may very well be of a type built for home use that does not stand up too well under theatre usage. In addition to visual inspection, the manager sits in such furniture—or rather, throws himself into it as a careless patron might. He may drag a chair or couch a few inches to make sure no leg is loose.

Stair railings are similarly tested, rather than inspected. Persons running downstairs some times let their weight tug at a stair rail. The inspecting manager also tugs at every rail in the section he is inspecting. He deliberately and strenuously tries to tear the rail loose. If he can do it, someone else can—and some patron will.

Carpeting and Lobby Mats

The importance of careful inspection of stair carpeting needs no emphasis. The shuffling of hundreds of feet causes the under-padding to shift, loosening the carpet, which then pulls away from its fastening and becomes a potential tripping hazard. The detailed inspection makes certain that every inch of stair carpet is thoroughly tight.

The entire lobby should be inspected daily with particular attention to floor faults or hazards. Lobby mats, for example, often fit into recesses in the floor. If mats are not taken out of these recesses when mopped, the water lying in the bottom of the recess has a tendency to curl the edges of the mats, thus producing a tripping hazard. In addition, the mat quickly becomes worn at the edge and needs trimming, then after a few trimmings it needs replacing.

Sanitation and Fire Hazards

Lavatories are inspected several times each day—in the best-regulated houses, every hour. Bowls and urinals are flushed during each inspection to make sure they work properly. Any fault of the porters in the way of cleanliness or of furnishing adequate supplies should be constantly checked

Every fire door, fire exit and fire escape needs carefully checking every day. All doors are opened to make certain that panic bolts work properly. Fire escapes are examined for accidentally deposited rubbish and for possible tripping hazards. The latter are especially important in icy weather.

Daily outside inspections also include display easels and frames, both as to appearance and possible hazards.

Outdoor and Out-of-the-Way Places

The more detailed outdoor inspection takes one outside section of the theatre at a time before returning to begin again at the first section of the auditorium. Marquee braces are carefully examined not less often than once a month for all evidence of loose bolts, peeling paint, or corroded metal. Accumulated rubbish is one unfavorable condition; electricians occasionally leave burnt out lamp bulbs and other debris that causes corrosion and leaks, or may even cause breakage of marquee glass in stormy weather.

The roof of the theatre needs special attention at least once a month—oftener in stormy weather. Puddles are important indications of an unfavorable condition. Roof drains and traps need weekly attention to make sure they are clear of accumulated dirt.

Out-of-the-way places also fit into the schedule of minute, detailed inspections. These include basements, hanging ceilings, covered fire stairs, and out-of-the-way rooms. Fire hazards and excessive accumulations of old rubbish are the things to watch for.

Repair or Replace As Inspection Advises

INSPECTION, of course, is only one-third of the maintenance job. Prompt repair is a second part of the job, and prompt replacements, when needed, is the third. Replacement fits into the picture when conditions have become too serious for routine patching. Neglect of replacement when indicated is a fault of the same kind as neglect of routine repairs. Neglect simply allows the trouble to become worse, and to cost more in the end. Thus, delaying installations of new chair upholstery may impair the spring structure to the point where wholly new chairs become the only economical remedy. Furthermore, just as the co-operation of the staff is enlisted by prompt repairs, and rebuffed by neglect, so the staff becomes careless when the management delays obviously needed repairs in favor of unsatisfactory patching, and peps up when the management shows its own eagerness to keep everything in the most perfect condition.

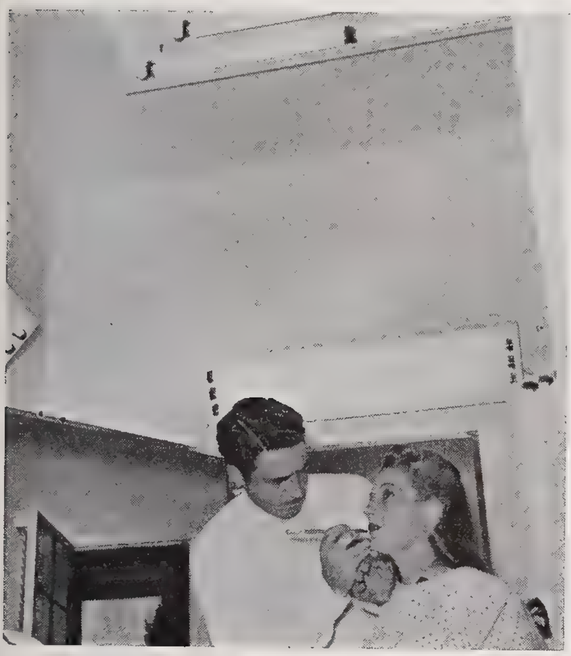
Understanding Equipment Needs

Theatre machinery is only indirectly under the maintenance supervision of the management. Projection and sound maintenance are handled by the projection crew, the engineers or electrician look after the air-conditioning equipment, and so on. But the management must keep those assistants keen at their work.

One obvious way is to grant all reasonable requests for material and labor without too much reluctance or delay. Let those men feel that their superior wants them to keep everything up to scratch! Prompt repair to machinery is even more necessary, economically speaking, than prompt correction of auditorium flaws. Faulty machinery, kept running, damages itself further, and the ultimate costs of correction multiply very rapidly with passing time.

Regular Use of Inspection Forms

In addition to encouraging technical assistants, it is obviously necessary to keep check on them. The monthly or semimonthly report form, with which each department should be supplied, serves a double function in this connection. It naturally compels the technicians to examine important points. In addition, it provides the management with means of checking upon later requests for supplies or repair. Such check should be made in every case. The manager should ask in every case why any faulty machinery came to go wrong. The manager's estimation of his technical assistant as a truthworthy man, or the reverse, will depend to some degree on the nature of such explanations and the manner in which they are delivered. Obviously, the more familiar the manager himself is with technical details of his equipment, the better will he be able to estimate the reliability of the men on whom his show depends.



A slight digression, perhaps, for a publication wholly devoted to the affairs of the theatre. Binnie Barnes, of course, may be reason enough for this reference to the studio. However, this picture of Clay Campbell, make-up director for 20th Century-Fox, preparing that popular screen actress for a scene, well illustrates advantages important to the theatre in the new fluorescent incandescent lamps. With 28 of these lamps, the 20th Century-Fox installation illustrated provides 150 foot-candles of daylight-quality illumination, glareless and with 80% less heat than conventional tungsten-type lamps would create in producing the same light level. This installation was designed by W. T. Strohm, chief engineer of the film company.

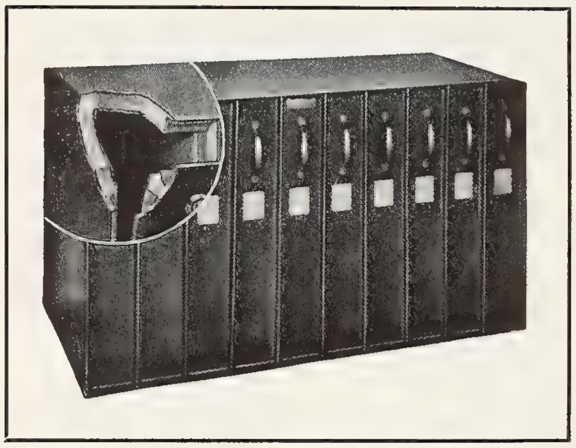
Reporting New Developments in Equipment and Its Materials

Film Cabinet with Insulated Holders

A MODEL OF film cabinet with certain safety features, designed for moderate price classification, has been developed by E. R. Morin, inspector of the Connecticut State Police, in collaboration with the Neumade Productions Corporation of New York, and has been placed on the market by that company.

This cabinet has been designed without air spaces between compartments; the compartments are separated by a material described by Mr. Morin merely as a "plastic heat- and fire-resisting compound, which when set, becomes brick-hard."



The doors are similarly constructed and are equipped to close automatically and remain firmly closed.

In exterior appearance, the cabinet, trade-named "Firetite," is identical with the Neumade "Sealtite" cabinet, and similar to others in the Neumade line.

Fluorescence Applied To Neon Lighting

MORE RECENT developments in fluorescent tubing for use by the neon industry have been extending the use of this light medium for many types of signs, including those of theatres. Fluorescent tubing was used for a sign as far back as 1927, according to Gilbert T. Schmidling, who has been instrumental in its development, but commercial production did not begin until some years later.

The fluorescent powders used by Mr. Schmidling are available from the Callite Products Company of Union City, N. J., with which he is now associated. However, the coated tubing itself is now usually sold to the sign manufacturers, although some manufacturers still prepare their own fluorescent tubing.

The Callite company's fluorescent tubing is capable of producing luminous gas light in about twenty colors.

The tubes are filled with argon gas and mercury vapor. Argon gas carries a current (deep blue is the resultant light), and as the temperature increases, the mercury is vaporized and takes on some characteristics of a gas. The resultant medium, according to Mr. Schmidling, becomes highly conductive to electric current. The resultant visible light is a bluish-green, but there is about three times as much invisible as visible light. This invisible light is in the ultra-violet range, and the effect of the ultra-violet radiation is to disassociate a molecule of the powder; upon reassociation of the molecular elements, Mr. Schmidling explains, the light characteristic of the molecular organization of the powder is produced; thus more electrical energy is seen available for the production of light, for the same amount of current.

Additionally, according to Mr. Schmidling, because the eye does not see all colors equally, in developing the powders an attempt has been made to follow what he calls the human "eye curve." The basis of his method is that the human eye is more sensitive to yellow-green part of the spectrum, so that in matching yellow-green light, the production of effective light intensity is increased. To eliminate flicker, control of the afterglow of the fluorescent material has been sought in its chemical formula, so as to cause the fluorescent light to retain its intensity during alternations of the current.

Transformers employed are the same as for ordinary neon lighting, and tubing is bent and otherwise handled in the same way.

The cost of fluorescent tubing is about twice as much as that of ordinary neon tubing.

Adds Double Light Standard to Line

AN END standard with two aisle light louvres for adjustment of the spread of light, has been added to the standard line of the Heywood-Wakefield Company, Gardner, Mass. Incorporated in the decorative treatment of the standard is a slightly projecting vertical band, at the top of which is concealed one socket, while the other is concealed by the lower end. The distance between the two lights is 18 inches.

A double aisle light standard permits adjustment to specific main floor light levels, and to balcony conditions, with the same standard design. The louvre of the upper fixture is designed to spread the light some distance over the width of the aisle, and to light the fascias of balcony stair treads. Light from the lower source hugs the chair and is in general indicated for main floor conditions, except possibly at the extreme forward rows in some theatres, where the screen light occasionally does not reach the aisle. In some instances use of both fixtures might be advisable, perhaps with a lamp of extremely low wattage in the upper socket, and one of normal aisle light wattage in the lower.

View of the foyer of the new Atlas theatre in Washington, D. C., showing use of the new fluorescent lumiline lamps in a ceiling fixture. The luminaire, designed and built by the Voigt Company, Philadelphia, is approximately 18 feet long and 2 feet wide and carries sixteen 24-inch, 20-watt lamps in two paralell rows. The lamps are enclosed in a half-cylinder of clear ribbed glass and are suspended free, with contact points only at the sockets. On each side of the half-cylinder, and at the ends, are etched mirror panels. General finish of the fixture is brushed and polished aluminum. Walls are finished in linoleum to a level in line with top of doors, and the remainder, as well as the ceiling, in plaster carrying stenciled decoration. The general color scheme is rose, yellow, blue, gray and brown. Poster frames are of American walnut. The Atlas, which seats 1,000, was designed by John Zink, Baltimore architect.

New Aperture Plate

AN APERTURE plate for Powers projectors, with stamped and case-hardened tracks in place of welded tracks has been marketed by Ed. H. Wolk of Chicago. Listed at the same price as the welded aperture which it replaces, the new plate was designed to provide longer wear than the former. It is available with either square or round corners.

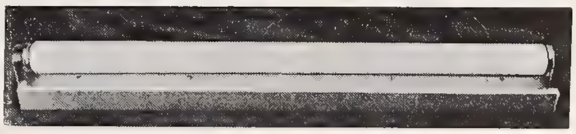
New Model Chair For Ticket Booth

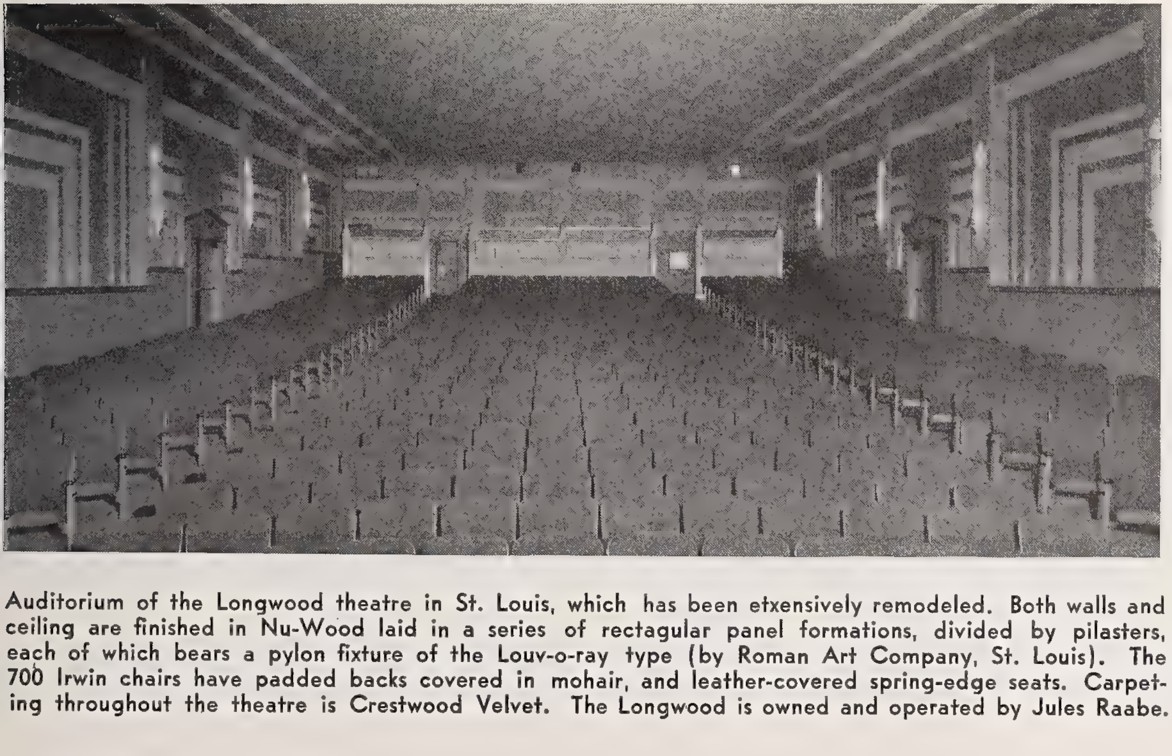
GREATER COMFORT and consequent minimization of the fatigue factors in the operations of the theatre cashier, have been sought in the design of a new model cashier chair brought out by the Royal Metal Manufacturing Company of Chicago. The general construction is similar to that of the chromium - finished metal lounge and foyer furniture produced by this firm.

The seat itself measures 15½ x 16 inches, and the revolving screw on which it is mounted permits its height to be varied from 27 to 33 inches above the floor. The pitch of the back and location of the foot rest have also been specified from the point of view of comfort. The upholstery covering is imitation leather, and the chair may be obtained in any one of 28 colors in this material.

Holders Designed for Fluorescent Lamps

THREE TYPES of holders for the new fluorescent lumiline lamps have been brought out by Argus, Inc., of Cleveland—one for use as a reflector fixture, two for concealed lighting installations.





Auditorium of the Longwood theatre in St. Louis, which has been etxensively remodeled. Both walls and ceiling are finished in Nu-Wood laid in a series of rectagular panel formations, divided by pilasters, each of which bears a pylon fixture of the Louv-o-ray type (by Roman Art Company, St. Louis). The 700 Irwin chairs have padded backs covered in mohair, and leather-covered spring-edge seats. Carpeting throughout the theatre is Crestwood Velvet. The Longwood is owned and operated by Jules Raabe.

NEWS NOTES ON THE Theatre Equipment Market

Projection Mazda Prices Cut

REDUCTION in the prices of several types of incandescent projection lamps, for the most part those adapted to 16-mm. and 8-mm. motion picture projection, stereopticons, etc., have been announced by General Electric and Westinghouse, which manufacture the same types. The reductions, however, include the 1,000-watt T-20 lamp with medium base used in sub-standard (portable, etc.) 35-mm. motion picture projectors. The types and their new prices, which became effective December 1, are:

Type T-10, 300 watts, medium prefocus base, $2.90; T-10, 500, medium prefocus, $3.75; T-20, 500, medium base and medium prefocus, $2.40; T-12, 750, medium prefocus, $4.50; T-20, 1,000, mogul and mogul prefocus base, $5.25; T-20, 1,000, medium prefocus, $5.00.

[In describing a new 1,000-watt projection lamp, of T-12 type, with medium prefocus base, in the October 15*th issue, indication was omitted that this lamp is regarded as being adapted specifically to* 16-mm. projection. According to the General Electric Company, the 2,100-watt, 60-volt, T-24 projection lamp, with a rated life of 50 *hours, is still considered the best lamp available for mazda projection. The new T-*12 has a rated life of only 10 hours.]

Remain Carpet Dealers

THE CARPET sales organization which has been associated with W. & J. Sloane in the distribution of Alexander Smith carpeting, will continue as selling agents for this product, but as a result of a recent change in the policy of the Alexander Smith Corpet Company, has become a part of the latter's organization, as its own sales division. This division and its dealers, which include the National Theatre Supply Company, will continue to service theatres.

To Market Shutter

SALES RIGHTS for a motion picture projector shutter have been obtained by the Colortone Sales Corporation of Chicago, according to an announcement by that firm. The manufacture and technical characteristics of the shutter were not disclosed in the announcement.

Branch in New Quarters

THE NEW YORK branch of the National Theatre Supply Company, managed by C. H. Secor, is now established in new quarters in the Film Center. The address is 356 West 44th Street. The New York branch, for many years occupying two floors at 1600 Broadway, now has three floors, including sublevel area. The main display room is on the first floor, and it is lighted with daylight brilliance by fluorescent lumiline lamps. The offices are on the second floor.

Named Seat Distributor

E. C. LEEVES of the Central Theatre Supply Company, Kansas City, has been appointed authorized distributor in Missouri and Kansas for the International Seat Corporation, Union City, Ind. Central Theatre Supply is also the authorized distributor of Motiograph projectors and sound systems, and of Brenkert projection lamps.

Take Larger Quarters

TO PROVIDE for expansion of manufacturing facilities, Climax Reflector, Inc., Canton, Ohio, has removed from 315 Raynolds Place, S. W., to substantially larger quarters at 403 Schrover Avenue, S. W.

The Automatic Devices Company, Allentown, Pa., has also removed to a new address in order to obtain more manufacturing space. This company, manufacturers of curtain control equipment and motor-generators, is now located at 1035 Linden Street.

Two Firms Consolidated

ADOLPH A. HENKEL, Chicago, long associated with the design and manufacture of lighting fixtures for theatres and other commercial establishments, has consolidated the two companies in which he has been interested—Henkel Best Company and Murray Construction Company—to form the firm of Henkel, Inc. The new corporation, it is announced, will offer a complete lighting service, starting with design, finishing with construction.

Marketing Drain Cleaner

DISTRIBUTION of the manually operated, air-pressure drain cleaner which has been described in BETTER THEATRES under the trade-name "Universal," has been acquired by the Empire State Drain Cleaner, New York. Its trade-name changed to "Empire State," this drain cleaner develops air pressure by means of a hand pump, and by manipulation of a trigger, as much as 125 pounds of air may be generated to remove obstructions.

Sign Service Contracts

TWO LARGE circuits—Malco and Skouras—have contracted for the servicing of their sound equipment by the Altec Service Corporation. The Skouras contract covers 58 theatres, and the Malco agreement 50.

A Better Way to Good Projection

A PROJECTIONIST ADDRESSES HIS CRAFT—AND THEATRE MANAGEMENT

[Usually, in discussion of the responsibility for good projection, the projectionist is being talked at. Here a projectionist himself speaks out, in a spirit that makes his article a most interesting expression of views existing in the craft. Mr. Prater, projectionist at the Congress theatre in Palouse, Wash., has long been one of F. H. Richardson's correspondents. — EDITOR.]

By J. R. PRATER

EVERY PROJECTIONIST must work under the supervision of a theatre manager or owner. Considering the amount of time we projectionists must spend under such supervision, a good share of our lives is directly affected by the relationship existing between ourselves and our employers. The more agreeably we work together, the happier that part of our lives will be. Whatever we can do to gain the respect and friendship of our employers will do more toward improving working conditions and raising salaries than all the force that could ever be applied. In extreme cases, organized effort sometimes becomes necessary, but if the same results could be obtained in another way, the whole situation would be very much more satisfactory to everyone concerned. All of us, no matter what our position may be, would rather be led than pushed, so with this fact in mind let us see first what the projectionist can do to improve his own working conditions and to gain the cooperation of his employer.

The least any man able to hold a job projecting motion pictures can do, is to present a program so that it will "get by." The difference between such a man and a good projectionist is in how much better, safer, more dependably and more efficiently the job is done, so it is up to the projectionist who wants to get ahead to create as much of that difference as he possibly can.

First of all, he must increase his knowledge of everything connected with his work by studying the writings of men who are recognized authorities on projection and associated subjects. Reliable textbooks are a valuable source of general basic knowledge and provide an indispensable reference guide. Detailed information about individual models and types of equipment may be obtained from equipment manufacturers. Latest developments are constantly being discussed in magazines that either are wholly devoted to projection or have projection departments. The more practical the knowledge which a projectionist has, the more he will know what to do, why it must be done and the best way of doing it; further (and just as important), the more he will know what not to do and why not.

Need of Proper Tools

Next in importance to expert knowledge is a proper and adequate assortment of tools and test equipment and the ability to use them correctly. A hundred dollars properly spent for an outfit of personal tools will increase a projectionist's value many times that sum during the life of the tools. The ability to use them to the best advantage comes only through a genuine desire to do so and actual practice.

Having expert knowledge, tools and ability, the projectionist still cannot operate and maintain projection equipment dependably and efficiently without written inspection forms and written records of all new parts installed, as well as the condition of parts already in service.

Wherever possible, the exact condition of each part should be determined by reliable tests or measurements which can be repeated at any time to give an accurate comparison, such as whether the intermittent flywheel can be moved back and forth when shutter is held stationary, how many milliamperes of space current a vacuum tube will pass, and so on.

Use of Inspection Forms

Some parts require more frequent inspection, attention, adjustment and replacement than others. Without proper inspection forms arranged to fit the individual requirements of all equipment in his charge, no man can be sure he remembers to give each part attention before there is danger of failure, faulty operation or unnecessary wear. Without written records made during the life of each part, he can have no reliable idea of how long each part has served, how its performance compares with other similar parts, and how rapidly it is deteriorating or approaching the end of its useful life. Naturally, in order to keep such records, each duplicate part or unit must be numbered or otherwise suitably marked so that each one may be identified during its entire life.

The longer such records have been kept the more valuable they become. They enable the projectionist to get maximum service from all parts and yet prevent any ordinary trouble from occurring during a performance. When unexpected trouble does develop, a record of the tested condition of any suspected part or unit at previous inspections is a most valuable aid in locating and correcting the fault.

Inventory of Supplies

Another important step in putting projection room maintenance on a business-like basis is to take a monthly inventory of all supplies and spare parts. During each month, enter any unusual needs on a want list; then at the end of each month, add to this list any further items necessary to bring the complete inventory up to at least a full month's supply, and immediately turn a copy of the list over to the theatre manager. This not only guards against unexpected shortage of supplies, but also enables the manager to do a full month's ordering or buying at one time, rather than having to get one or two items every few days, frequently on last-minute notice.

The projectionist could not ask for an easier, better way of proving to his manager that he is really doing a first class job in the matter of taking care of the equipment entrusted to his charge than to keep such written records. Where several men work in the same projection room, written records are all the more valuable and necessary. It is excellent policy in such cases to assign a capable man to the job of chief projectionist, with a suitable increase in salary, and to hold him responsible for the proper care of equipment; but since this man cannot be on duty every shift, he must leave proper means for the other men to carry on whatever maintenance work becomes necessary in his absence.

If it seems that keeping written records requires added effort, let us consider them carefully. Whether or not a projectionist keeps records, he must order necessary supplies, maintain the equipment in running condition, locate trouble and do necessary repairing and replacing of faulty parts. Without written records he must still order the same amout of supplies, but at more frequent intervals and often on short notice. If any item of maintenance is neglected or overlooked, unnecessary, hasty adjustment, repair or replacement, jeopardizing the performance, must be made. As to locating trouble without records of previous tests made when the equipment was functioning properly, in many cases even a competent engineer may have plenty of difficulty. Besides this, it is impossible to get reasonably efficient service from equipment and parts without knowing what service they have given and when they have passed their useful life. Keeping proper records really enables the projectionist to produce better results more dependably and efficiently with the same, or even less effort, and certainly with more satisfaction and peace of mind.

The Manager's Part

As to what the manager can do to encourage better cooperation from his projectionists, he must also remember that any man would rather be led than pushed. Men who do their work only sufficiently well to avoid penalties or reprimandings do no more than is absolutely necessary to get by. Those who do good work because they are proud of a job well done are anxious to improve their work and to take proper care of their equipment. The manager may well encourage such pride in good workmanship by showing his appreciation for good work in as many ways as he can. He should learn at least enough about projection equipment and its operations to understand its possibilities and limitations, so that he can judge intelligently as to when the projectionists are doing their best, or when the equipment is really at fault. He should make every possible effort to furnish his projectionists with proper equipment and test apparatus, plus the necessary supplies required to make excellent screen results possible.

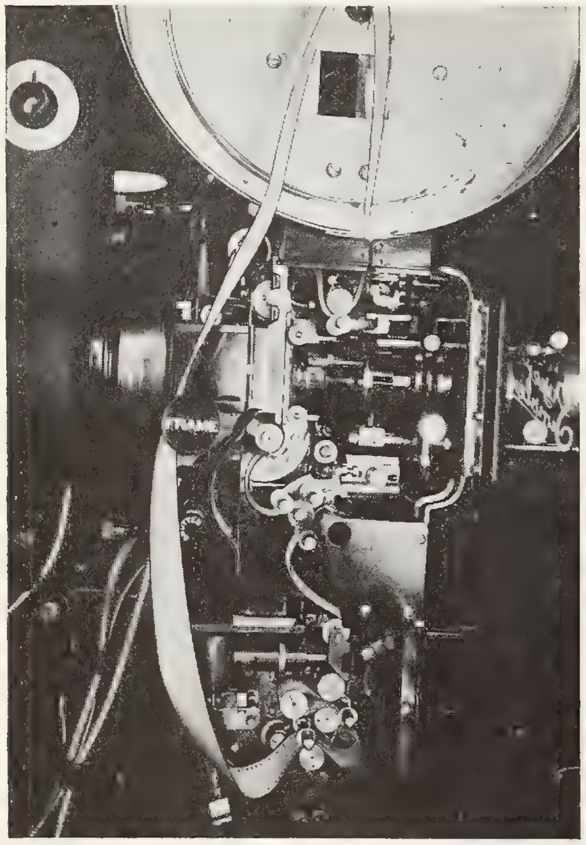
Also, the more comfortable and healthful the projection room is made, the better the work men can do in it. Adequate size, height of ceiling, ventilation, toilet facilities, proper lighting, color of interior, type of floor covering, arrangement of equipment and controls, and any other factors of comfort and convenience are bound to encourage better screen results.

An appropriate increase in salary to a man who has increased the value of his services gives him a real incentive to increase his knowledge and ability. In addition, a friendly word of praise or appreciation for doing a difficult job well makes any man a better workman and a better friend as well. If it becomes necessary for a man to fight for better wages, even after he has made himself worthy of them, the fight then becomes more important to him than the further improvement of his ability services.

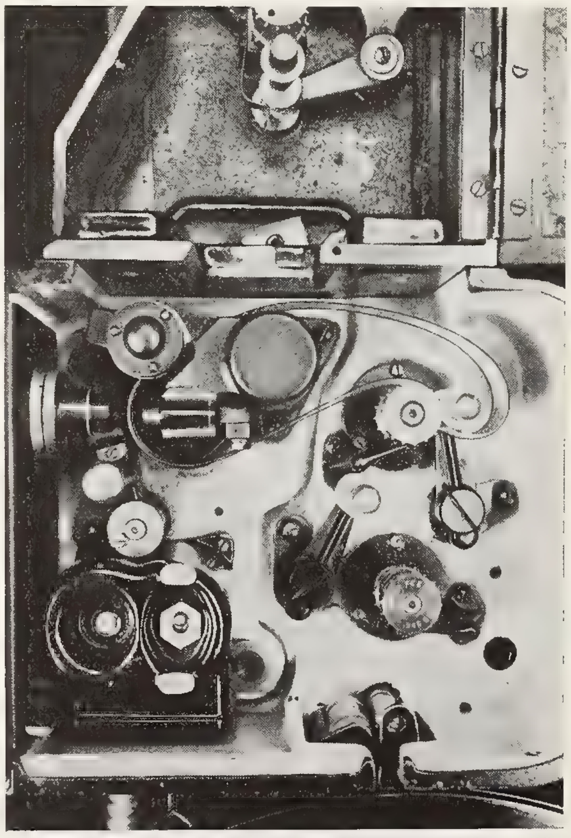
Summing up the situation from both sides, a reasonable amount of work must be done and a reasonable amount of money must be paid for that work. Both manager and projectionist can each fight the other and do as little as he possibly can, or they can both work together and accomplish better results for all concerned in an agreeable manner with no more effort. It all depends on how much spirit of cooperation exists between them.

SOUND TEST FILMS FOR BALANCING THE PROJECTORS

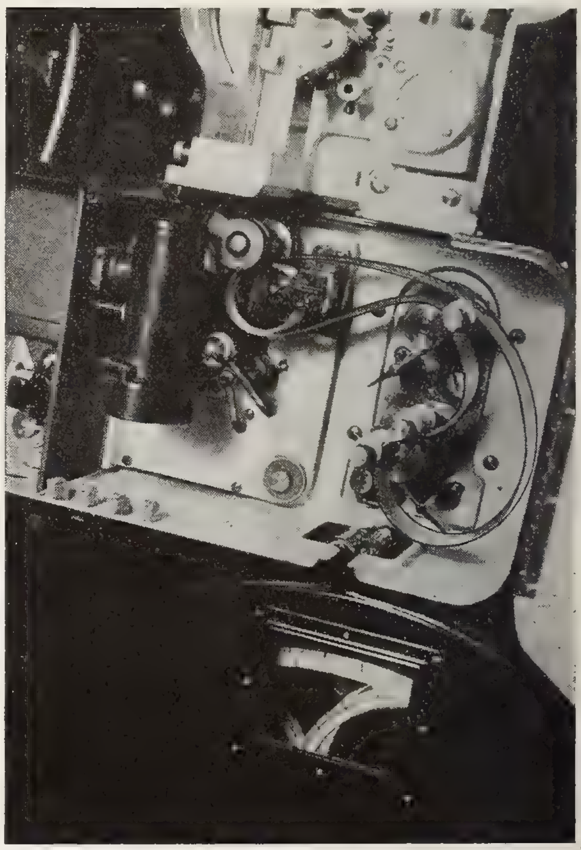
¶ Prints of a special film have been made available by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, for the purpose of assisting projectionists to balance their projectors so that one will not reproduce louder or softer than the other. Inasmuch as different types of equipment require different lengths of balancing film, sufficient film is sent to provide for the equipment requiring the greatest length, and those theatres with equipment upon which smaller lengths of film may be used are thus provided with sufficient film for three or four sets of balancing film. Films for balancing three projectors at one time are available at a slight additional charge. Below are illustrated the methods of threading the loops.



This method of threading applies to all types and makes of equipment other than the exceptions illustrated in other pictures. Loop length, 2 inches.



This method of threading applies to RCA PS-24 and other later similar type sound heads, used with any make of picture head. Loop length, 15¼ inches.



This method of threading applies to Simplex Four Star sound heads, used with any type of picture head. Loop length, 26 inches.

Revised Academy Loudspeaker Adjustments

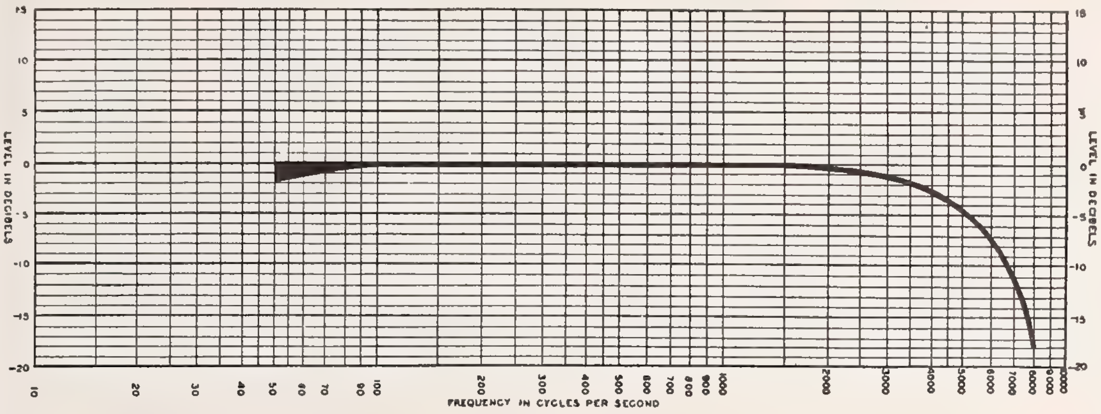
REVISED loudspeaker settings are suggested by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences in order to obtain maximum sound quality from current studio recordings. The original recommendations of the Council in this direction [summarized on page 32 of BETTER THEATRES for May 1, 1937] have been found on further investigation to be less than completely satisfactory, and revision is now recommended. The accompanying charts indicating the new recommendations appear in a bulletin just issued.

These charts can be used effectively only on the basis of a thorough understanding of what they are intended to do, and the limitations under which they must be applied. The method of control they prescribe is intended to avoid the technical difficulties of measuring actual sound in the theatre. The common and much simpler procedure is to measure the speech current supplied to the loudspeakers. Such measurements reveal, very easily and accurately, whether the sound system is performing properly up to and including the loudspeaker input. They do not and cannot measure the performance of the speakers themselves, which may be checked only by reading actual sound, with the help of a pre-calibrated microphone.

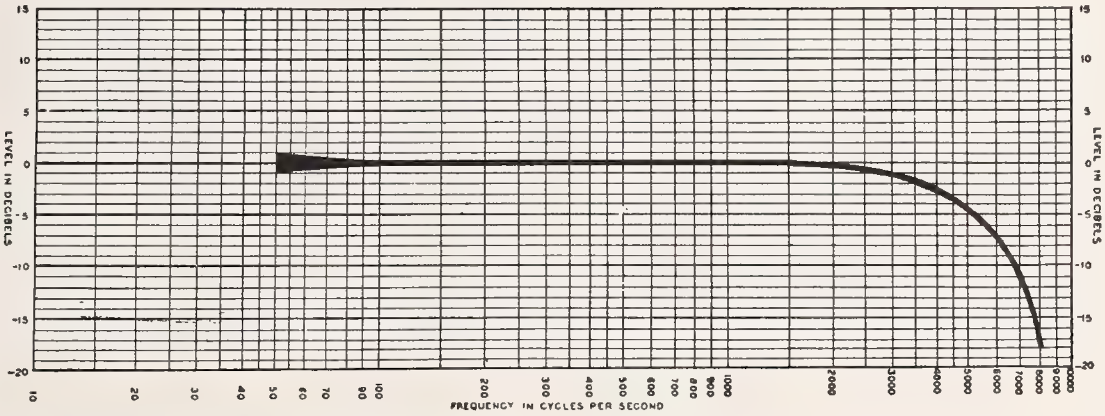
The volume indicator is connected across the output of the power amplifier (including the low pass filter) in parallel to a resistance equivalent to the loudspeaker load. Meter readings obtained at each frequency of the test reel are marked on graph paper similar to that which forms the backgound of these charts. The marks are subsequently connected by a continuous line, which should have the shape of the appropriate curve as here shown. The speaker filter or other system adjustments are altered, and the runs repeated, until the desired curve is obtained. Complete accuracy is not required; variations considered acceptable are plus or minus 1 decibel up to 3,000 cycles, with progressive increase up to plus or minus 2 decibels at 7,000 cycles.

In interpreting the results, allowance must be made for the type of screen installed. In the average theatre, most satisfactory sound will probably be realized by first adjusting the system in accordance with these curves, then modifying the settings very cautiously through a series of trial and error changes guided by ear.

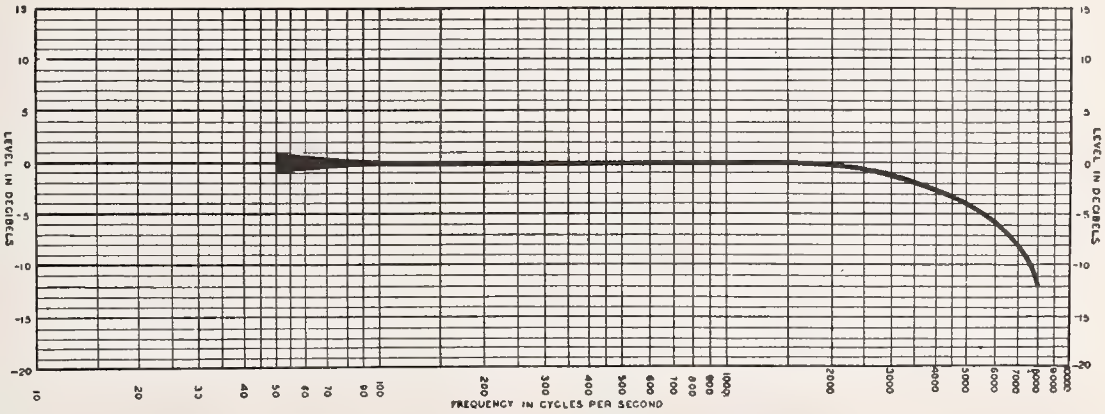
In practice, the theatre's acoustic conditions will have an important bearing on the final output. The Research Council bulletin on the subject, dated October 10, 1938, recommends that if good sound does not follow when these charts are used, the auditorium should be acoustically corrected. In some theatres it will be found equally satisfactory, and much less expensive, to modify the speaker settings to suit the acoustics. Nevertheless, these charts provide a useful starting point in every case.



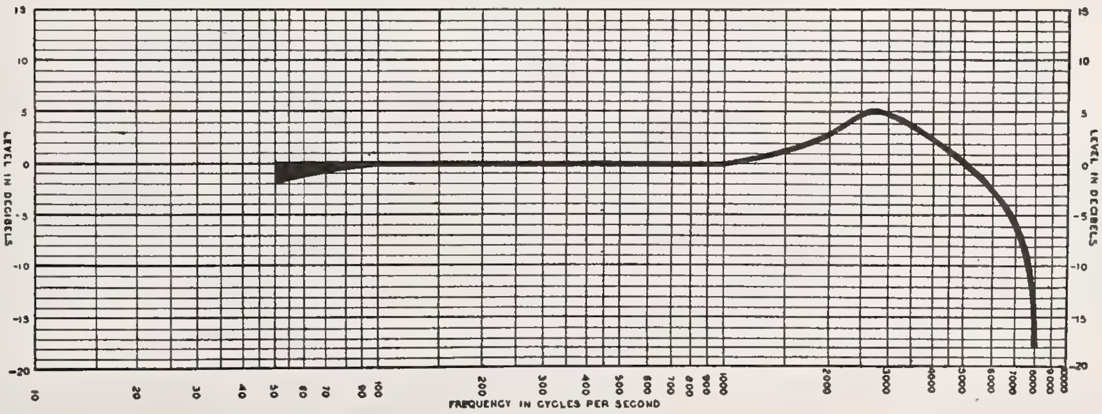
RECOMMENDED ADJUSTMENT FOR any system using Lansing 284 or 285 metal diaphragm units and 15X low frequency mechanism; Erpi Mirrophonic M-101, M-1 and M-2 systems using 594-A metal diaphragm loudspeaker units, and TA-4181 low-frequency units; RCA systems using M.I.-1435 metal diaphragm speakers and M.I.-1432-A low-frequency mechanisms.



RECOMMENDED ADJUSTMENT FOR Erpi M-3 systems using 594-A metal diaphragm loud speaker units and TA-4181 low frequency units.



RECOMMENDED ADJUSTMENT FOR Erpi M-4 system using 555 metal diaphragm loudspeaker units, and TA-4181-A low-frequency units; Erpi M-5 systems using 555 metal diaphragm loudspeaker units and TA-4194 low-frequency units.



RECOMMENDED ADJUSTMENT FOR RCA systems using M.I.-1428-B or M.I.-1443 non-metallic diaphragm speakers and M.I.1432-A or M.I.-1444 low-frequency mechanisms.

COMMENT ON PROJECTION AFFAIRS

and answers to inquiries . . . By F. H. RICHARDSON

AGAIN MR. BECKLEY, ALSO OTHERS ON "TAILS-UP" REELS

FURTHER COMMENT on the proposal to wind reels shipped to theatres with tails up, has come from the projectionist, W. Lee Beckley of the Spencer theatre in Spencer, Ia., whose letter in these columns in the July 23d issue has revived the reversed-winding issue, giving the method new industry-wide attention. (Incidentally, an error several issues back gave rise to a similar error in the October 15th issue identifying Mr. Beckley with a Minneapolis circuit, instead of with the Spencer theatre.) Following the article in the October 15th issue, which set forth the opinions of prominent and representative individuals and groups on the proposal, Brother Beckley writes:

"Some men apparently believe this plan may bring about laxity in exchange inspection, with which view I cannot agree. It seems to me that the exchange inspectors, knowing that their work will be checked up on before the prints are projected, will, if anything, be more careful in their work.

"Another argument advanced is that some features reach the theatre too late to permit rewinding before time to start the show. If this be true, surely it is a fault demanding immediate correction, regardless of the method of shipping prints."

I agree with these arguments, particularly as to prints arriving at theatres too late to permit rewinding and inspection prior to the first show. Save in an occasional emergency, such a condition should not be tolerated by theatre managements. If it is possible to get the prints to the theatre just before opening time, it should be equally possible to get them there at least anyhow half an hour earlier.

As to the charge that laxity in inspection might result, one large local union (Akron, Ohio) has received prints tails up for a full year and has found nothing of the sort. That local indorsed shipment tails up by wire as soon as discussion of the method began in Better Theatres.

Letters from projectionists continue to bury the top of my desk, and while space does not permit quotations from all of them, I submit some of the opinions expressed, beginning with a letter that argues against the idea.

Believe Conditions Do Not Warrant Change

Two pairs of thumbs are turned definitely downward on the proposal in a letter from Ernest W. Patrick, chief projectionist of the Strand theatre in Great Bend, Kan., and his assistant, Dan Smith. Departing from my usual procedure I shall comment upon the points they raise as they occur.

"We have given the matter careful consideration," they write, "and agree with Projectionist Toth of the Colonial theatre, Bridgeport, Conn. Our vote is an emphatic no in the matter of films shipped to theatres wound in reverse.

"You have made certain statements with which we cannot agree. You said you had watched express handlers toss packages of film 4 or 5 feet, the packages landing on wood or concrete. As an experiment I personally tossed a case of film containing four 2,000-foot reels, weight 76 pounds, a similar distance. I did this several times. Result: Case badly bent, but the reels escaped all injury."

It is possible some single package of reels might be so well packed, or even that some exchange might pack all its reels so very well, that damage seldom resulted from rough handling; however, considering the weight each reel carries it seems unlikely. Anyhow, no single instance of such escape can be accepted as conclusive proof. I can assure Brothers Patrick and Smith that not all exchanges pack shipments so securely, nor do all projectionists. In the statement cited I referred not to any one instance, but to the field as a whole. And that is what counts. I have had a substantial number of instances brought to my attention in which reels were damaged by rough handling of shipment cases. Brother Patrick continues:

"Here is where the bent reels come from. I personally know that when the 2,000-foot reels first came into general use, exchanges lost very many of them, some projectionists receiving the new 2,000-footers retaining them, returning the films on 1,000-foot junk reels. So much of this occurred that many exchanges were forced to assess a very substantial charge per reel where this was done."

Greetings from across the sea. Stanley T. Perry, president of the Guild of British Kinema Projectionists and Technicians, sends this picture of a session of that organization, of which I often have written. Shown standing are F. H. Woods, general secretary; Mr. Perry, and H. B. Smith, vice president.

Granting the truth of this, that does not tell where the present bent reels came from. The 1,000-footers were not used for shipment again. Also, that condition could only have lasted during the introduction period of the 2,000-foot reels. . . . . Patrick continues:

"Then too, in BETTER THEATRES for July 23, you say, 'Experience has demonstrated the unsafety of projecting prints received until they have been inspected.' In the October 15th issue you warn projectionists against use of exchange reels for projection. Well, here is my story: During the past two years Mr. Smith and I have projected in excess of four hundred 2,000-foot reels of film without pre-inspection and have yet to be forced to stop a show, which fact should entitle Kansas City exchanges to high praise."

Again I say, it is not any one instance we are concerned with, but the field as a whole. And most emphatically no such condition exists in the whole field—not by a good, long running jump. I am in almost continuous receipt of complaints concerning film received in condition varying from poor to wretched, samples often accompanying such complaints—loose splices, ripped sprocket holes, misframes and changeover cue butcheries are a few of the injuries reported.

Continuing, Patrick suggests that rewinding hot film under rather tight take-up tension upon a cold reel at the last showing might, because of contraction through cooling, cause damage, for which argument I can see no reasonable basis. True, there would be some contraction, but certainly not enough to strain splices seriously or in any way damage the film. However, this is a matter I shall consult film manufacturers about, reporting their findings later.

But All These Men Are for It

And now some other views: John Teal, projectionist at the Cliftona theatre in Circleville, Ohio, "I am wholly in favor of exchanges shipping reels wound in reverse. It would compel rewinding and possible inspection before projection in theatres where this is not the regular practice. It would thus protect him who does inspect one rewinding and promote use of special projection reels instead of the often badly damaged ones upon which film is shipped. Our prints are all received from the Cincinnati exchanges. I believe I am not far wrong when I say that 98% of the prints have been inspected and repaired, but still I am for the tails-up proposal."

William Spedon of Chicago, says, "I am part owner of six theatres in Chicago and area near it. Put me down as highly favorable to the shipment of reels by exchanges to theatres wound in reverse. For seven years I was a projectionist. Such practice will tend to encourage at least some pre-projection inspection, a thing highly desirable, and the more general use of special reels for projection. I have talked with some of the projectionists, finding them divided in opinion. Three were favorable without qualification. Two feared it would tend to weaken exchange inspection. One said, frankly if unwisely, 'I'm for it provided it doesn't make any more work for me.' If the plan is adopted, we will equip all our theatres with special, high-grade reels to be used for projection and oblige their use, provided some plan can be adopted that will prevent loss of these reels by their being returned, in error, to the exchange."

Concerning avoidance of loss of reels, the scheme I suggested in the October 15th issue—enamelling the sides of each theatre reel in white or scarlet—should do the trick.

T. L. Fuller (who prefers that his town be not published) writes, "The proposal to have prints shipped out by exchanges tails-up is okay with me and with several of the men I have talked to. I spoke to a few exhibitors, all of whom were highly favorable to the plan. As I see it, while it will make one extra rewinding for projectionists, that won't break their arms or otherwise quite ruin them. The one who would balk on a plan that certainly reduces liability to film fire and possibility of show stoppage has no right place in a projection room. I'm for the plan."

L. D. Sanderson of New Orleans, La., says, "Place me in the for-it column in the matter of shipping film to theatres tails-up. It should be a near-criminal offense for any man to project any film before he has at least given it some sort of inspection. You never can tell! It may be all in one piece—it may be in two or three. It may have serious faults some inspector has overlooked. Inspectors in many exchanges must, in order to hold their jobs, inspect more footage each day than any mortal man or woman can possibly really properly inspect and properly repair. I have spoken, Dad! Put me down for and multiply the for by at least two."

H. R. King, a Florida projectionist, writes, "Several of us were discussing the tails-up shipping plan last evening. Some were for and some 'agin', but more belonged to the first group than the last. Two expressed themselves as satisfied either way. Two objected to the necessity of rewinding the reels after the last show—didn't mind the work, but wanted to leave just as soon as the show was over. Three were more or less on the proverbial fence but said they believed the plan had merit.

"Personally, I am in favor of it, for several reasons. Certainly it is not safe, regardless of how careful an exchange may be, to project prints without inspection. Certainly it is an outrage on prints, which outrage will be reflected in future shows given from prints projected using exchange reels. Some of the reels may not be in very bad condition, but every projectionist well knows many of them are. The tails-up plan would compel projectionists to make an observation inspection at least, besides encouraging use of good reels for projection."

Inspection Regarded as Necessary

A Massachusetts projectionist who asks that his name be withheld, writes, "My last letter to you was in approval of the now accepted double-reel which so many kicked about, though I believe none of us would now care to return to the old singletons. Since then I have become a member of the union. If you use my letter please do not print my name or location.

"In my opinion (such as it is), tails-up is the right way to ship prints to theatres. Sunday I received a print tails-up. In rewinding it just fell apart. Suppose it had come heads-ups and I had attempted to use it without inspection. Result: A complete and lengthy stoppage of a Sunday night show! Next, I received a print tails-up and now have a nice cut in my thumb—there was one foot of ripped sprocket holes.

"I am for tails-up shipment, even if it has been inspected and has an unbroken seal of inspection. We projectionists assume a definite responsibility when we undertake the task of placing before audiences scenes of features that cost huge sums of money. One responsibility is to see to it that they appear before audiences in the best possible manner. We are justly entitled to reasonably comfortable working conditions and reasonably generous remuneration for our work, but we are not justly entitled to side-step anything that improves either the screen image or sound in any way, or gives promise of improvement in general results, merely because it means a little, or even considerable additional effort.

"If on inspection film is found to be in bad condition, it is the duty of projectionists to make notes of whatever is wrong, in duplicate, the original to be handed to the manager for transmission to the manager of the exchange, the copy to be retained in his files. How it is possible for any projectionist to run film out of the can is beyond me! It is like driving a car without a brake!

"As for that old bromide, 'Just got the film in time to open the show'—bunk! In eight years of projection I received just one feature delivered late, and this theatre is not next door to an exchange, either! So let's have the prints tails-up. If they are in good condition, we'll return them any way the exchanges want. Good luck to you and many thanks for promoting another logical idea."

C. C. Moskowitz, head of theatre operations of Loew's,Inc., with guests at his table as projectionists of Loew's theatres in Greater New York gathered at the Hotel Astor for their "grand reunion dinner and dance." More than 700 persons attended. Besides Mr.Moskowitz (seated), shown above are (standing) Joseph R. Vogel, Martin Schenck, Lester Isaac (head of Loew's projection department), Joseph Basson (president of Local 306), Miss Nellie Richardson (friend daughter), (seated) Miss Reis, Mrs. W. Wagner and Mrs. Basson. Many projection interests were represented among the guests; sorry I didn't jot down the names. Much in evidence, of course, was my good friend P. A. McGuire of the Internatinal Projector Corporation; and I had a good chat with J. E. McAuley, president of the J. E. McAuley Manufacturing Company, who had come from Chicago for the party. - - - F. H. R.

There are many more expressions of opinion on the proposal, but these are representative of the arguments advanced during the last few weeks.

PAINTING AND LIGHTING PROJECTION ROOMS

A. L. GURLEY, manager of the Grand theatre at Cartersville, Ga., asks: "Please advise as to the best method of painting and lighting the projection rooms. I had in mind painting the front wall flat black, with cream-colored ceiling and side walls, except that 6 feet up from the floor I would use black, as a light color would show so badly when soiled. I intend using about a 150- or 200-watt lamp in center of ceiling, with a smaller one at each projector. I would appreciate your advice if you think some other color scheme would be better and make for better conditions in the room."

First of all, it is my observation that a projectionist who has an excellent view of the screen image is far more apt to obtain and maintain a sharper focus, and in general get better results, than will he who has a view less clear. And as we all know, we cannot see well if light shines in our eyes.

Now, it is proposed to illuminate the projection room by means of a 150- to 200-watt lamp located in the center of the ceiling, with a second lamp at each projector. Presumably the ceiling lamp would be kept burning as the show runs. If not that, then the ones beside the projectors would be kept burning—very possibly all three of these light sources. I believe it likely that in such a room the projectionist's eye pupils would be constantly pretty well contracted, and if he chanced to look directly toward that ceiling lamp before glancing at the screen, he would not get a very sharp view of the image. The darker the projection room, the less light reflected from the wall immediately surrounding the observation ports, the better the view the projectionist will have of his screen.

Comfortable working conditions for projectionists are right and proper. They should be provided up to the point where such conditions set up interference with efforts to get the best possible results. If less comfortable working conditions make for better results, less comfortable conditions are "right and proper."

In lighting the projection room, let all light sources be so placed that they are not directly visible to the projectionist from any point. So far as possible, permit no light to enter the eyes of the projectionist save that from the screen.

There are a number of ways of doing this, but I rather like this method: Install on the ceiling, running the longer way, a metal cove somewhat like the letter L in form, its shorter extension facing the rear wall and of sufficient width so that the lamps placed in sockets installed along the other extension are wholly invisible from any point in the room when standing on the floor. The number of lamps needed will vary according to the size of the room. Connect all except one on one circuit, the remaining one upon another circuit, each controlled by a suitable, conveniently located switch. In sockets of the first circuit install lamps of wattage suitable to supply the necessary illumination while projection is in progress, which really is not very much. In the socket attached to the remaining circuit place a lamp large enough to supply bright illumination when needed in time of trouble.

Between the projectors, or over the center one if there be three, place a trouble lamp with spring action reel to rewind the cord automatically when the projectionist is done with the lamp, this lamp to be automatically switched off when the cord is rewound.

Paint the front wall flat black, or dark olive green, or brown with observation ports surrounded by a band of flat black 12 inches wide. From the light trough to front wall paint the ceiling a cream color; paint the rear and side walls a dark olive or brown up to 6 feet from floor, well stippled to kill reflection. Paint rear wall and ceiling on which lamps cast their light, and also inside of trough, a gloss white.

Examining this plan, we see that while it is possible to supply all light necessary, there is no spot of concentrated illumination. Moreover, all light comes from the rear as the projectionist faces the screen. His eyes therefore are at all times in the best possible condition to see the screen image clearly.

ONTARIO THEATRE REGULATIONS REVISED

THROUGH THE courtesy of my good friend Harry Dobson, Chief Inspector of Theatres in the province of Ontario (who for years was a faithful Bluebook School "student" and correspondent of my department), I am favored with copies of the recently revised Theatre and Cinematograph Act of the Province of Ontario, careful inspection of which discloses many improvements over the old law and but little to criticise. In many of the revised statutes I think I discern the forward-looking mind of Inspector Dobson.

Under approved definitions I find the following: *Motion picture projector shall mean any type of machine adaptable for the projection of motion pictures. Projectionist shall mean any person ordinarily engaged in operating a motion picture projector. Projection room shall include the room where projection equipment is installed, battery room, generator room, toilet room and any other room * * * which is directly connected with or adjacent to the room housing the projection equipment.* I could suggest a few changes there, but nothing of basic importance.

Under the provisions of the revised act, projectionists' licenses may be used only to those who are British citizens, either by birth or by naturalization; provided, however, the proper official may, in his discretion, grant licenses to citizens of the United States. But all licenses shall be issued subject to the implied condition that no performances shall be permitted to take place on Sunday.

Any motion picture projector, or films, used contrary to provisions of the revised act are liable to immediate seizure by the chief theatre inspector.

Theatres are licensed at from 25c per seat down to as low as 10c per seat, according to the population of the cities or towns in which they are located.

Projection rooms must not be less than 16 feet long and 12 feet from front to rear, with 10 feet from floor to ceiling. Thorough ventilation is provided for. All lamphouses must be ventilated to the open air. Adjacent to every projection room there must be a room with toilet conveniences, including running water and a wash bowl. Each battery and generator room must be ventilated to the open air.

Projectionist licenses are issued in two

A practical working tool for every projectionist

Revised Sixth Edition

F. H. RICHARDSON'S BLUEBOOK OF PROJECTION

The sixth edition of F. H. Richardson's Bluebook is now in its second printing, for which it has been extensively revised. In addition to revisions in text, it contains a supplementary chapter devoted to developments which have become important in projection room technique and servicing methods since the first printing.

The revised edition includes 722 pages of up-to-the-minute text, charts and data with detailed description of assembly, wiring and functioning of all modern sound and projection apparatus. It is a practical "trouble shooter," cross indexed for immediate reference in any projection room emergency.

grades; namely, Qualified Projectionist and Apprentice Projectionist. Where motion pictures of standard size are shown, either in private or in public, the projector shall be in charge of a qualified projectionist.

An apprentice projectionist license may be issued to a projectionist who has not yet completed the second-class examination and a practical test. Passing of a practical test and three written examinations, spaced months apart, is required before a qualified projectionist license will be issued.

Examinations cover electrical, mechanical and optical matters, care and operation of safety devices, safety regulations and laws. The apprentice examinations cost $5 each, and apprentice license $5. Qualified projectionist license costs $10, with yearly renewal at $5. When a candidate takes an examination and is successful, the fee is applied on the resulting license.

The chief theatre inspector may require any licensed projectionist to appear for reexamination at any time (which is good, but not good enough. There should be an examination at each license renewal, to make sure the one being re-licensed is keeping up to date in his knowledge).

In any theatre having more than one projector there must be two licensed projectionists, as follows: Seating capacity 1,000 or more, two qualified projectionists. Seating capacity less than 1,000, one qualified and one apprentice projectionist. However, the chief inspector may alter the class of projectionist required where circumstances justify such alteration. (By just what line of reasoning a theatre seating 1,100 must have two qualified projectionists, whereas one seating 900 may operate with one and an apprentice, I confess I cannot quite understand.)

Among the provisions of the act are those stating that no projectionist may (1) smoke or permit smoking in the projection room at any time, (2) read or have reading material other than licenses and regulations in the projection room at any time (which latter most emphatically is not good; projectionists should have printed instruction matter available at all times), (3) permit an unlicensed person other than the manager, the inspector or a member of the police force or fire department to be or remain in the projection room, (4) permit film to remain exposed at any time, (5) permit film to be rewound in room housing the projectors, (6) fail to test apparatus and electrical connections prior to each performance (which, pardon me, is both needless and a practical impossibility), (7) fail to inspect and repair all films while at the theatre (which wording I cannot agree with; inspect, yes; repair damage done while films are in the theatre, yes; but under that setup the exchanges could compel projectionists to do all the inspection and repair work, and for nothing, too), (8) operate or permit to be operated defective sound equipment, (9) maintain a dirty projection room or equipment, (10) fasten doors on the inside, or otherwise delay entrance of authorized persons (to which I would add, install bell buzzer or other device to act as warning when projection room door is opened), (11) permit port fire shutters to become and remain defective, or (12) fail to test working of all port shutters daily.

Every projectionist, furthermore, shall devote his entire attention to, and remain at, the projector while it is on operation, which is a hundred per cent good.

I have cited, of course, only a small portion of the act, in examining which, however, it is well to remember that, strange as it may seem to some, in Canada a law or regulation is not regarded as merely a bunch of words printed in some book, laid carefully away and forgotten until some violation of it brings disaster.

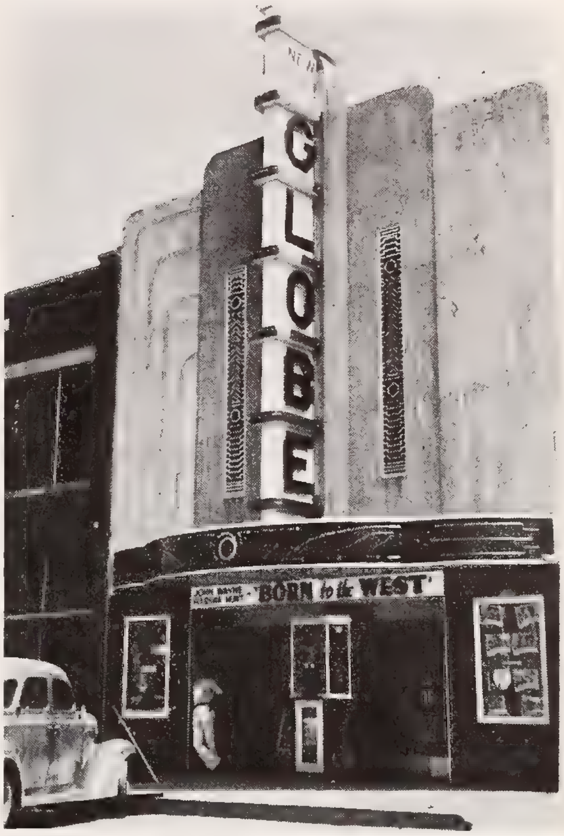
A Scheme of Modern Effect at $55 a Seat

M. B. Presley in front of his new Globe.



Front finish is in stucco and Vitrolite.

TO PROVIDE a town of only 2,500 inhabitants and modest economic resources, with a theatre that would be locally impressive in its "modernism," was the essential problem dealt with in the designing of M. B. Presley's new Globe in Savannah, Mo. It was also necessary to adapt the theatre, which seats 450, to a long, narrow lot. The Globe, of which R. Jerome Crowley of Kansas City, was the architect, was erected at a cost reported as $25,000.

The building is 130 feet long, 27 feet wide, and 30 feet high. To introduce an effect of width, the upper front was given a broad panel pattern, one panel seemingly superimposed upon the other and each having as little verticality as balance permits. Vertical emphasis is also minimized in an upright sign by "breaking it up" into square sections, one for each of the 3-foot letters. These sections are formed by channel pieces concealing neon tubing for illumination of the letters.

The upper front is finished in stucco; the lower, flanking the vestibule arch, is in Vitrolite architectural glass of a "marble" pattern. This material is also used for the base of the box office, which protrudes to the sidewalk line a little beyond double doors on either side leading into and from a lobby. These doors are faced in Masonite sections divided by aluminum mouldings, above which is plate glass.

Auditorium Treatment

Celotex is used for wall and ceiling treatment throughout the auditorium. Along the walls this material, which is furred out on cinder blocks from brick retaining walls, is arranged in square panels, each consisting in horizontal bands of different shades and widths. These panels are separated by vertical panels forming "pilasters."

The ceiling is arranged in a series of longitudinal steppings, the ceiling receding from a height of 27 feet at the middle to one of 24 feet at the sides. Between these steppings are concealed, as in coves, neon tubing—white in the uppermost tier, then blue, then red. Each circuit is operated through its own switch to permit use of the white light for emergency illumination, and also allow some degree of color variation. Filament lumiline lamps, white, are used in bracket fixtures on the walls, one to each of the four "pilasters."

The color scheme of the auditorium ranges from maroon to the light natural tones obtainable in the Celotex. In general, the colors shade from dark at the wainscot, which is painted maroon, to a light natural shade at the middle panel of the ceiling.

THE TOWN AND THE COMPETITION

Savannah's Court House Square.

■ Savannah, Mo., is located in an agricultural region (principal crops wheat, corn, oats and hay) in which the farmers own and operate their own small tracts. It has some fame for its livestock auctions. Savannah was founded by Southerners nearly 100 years ago, getting its name from the Georgia city. The nearest motion picture theatres competing with the Globe are located in St. Joseph and Oregon, which latter town is 20 miles distant. Prior to opening the Globe, M. B. Presley operated the Community Hall theatre at Wheaton, in southwest Missouri, for eight years. He estimates that about half of the patronage of the Globe comes from Savannah itself, the other half from surrounding farms and small countryside settlements. Lloyd Hower is assistant manager.

The proscenium arch, painted blue, is 17 feet wide and 20 feet high, while the stage is 12 feet deep. On either side of the arch is decorative grillework framing an outlet for a fin-type unit heater.

The lobby, which is 8 feet deep, is also finished in Celotex panels and "pilasters," some of the sections painted maroon, others in the natural tones of the material. The floor is covered with linoleum having brown, green, blue, red and black figures.

Through doors identical in finish with those of the vestibule, the lobby opens on a shallow foyer fully carpeted and with walls and ceiling finished in rough plaster. On either side are stairs leading to a mezzanine level from which stairs give access to the balcony. The manager's office is located on the mezzanine, beneath the rear of the balcony. Off the foyer is a woman's lounge with toilet room adjoining. A men's toilet room is located immediately off the lobby.

The equipment and furnishings of the Globe include Simplex projectors, magazines and bases; Peerless Magnarc lamps, Strong 30 amp. rectifier, supplied by the National Theatre Supply Company, which also furnished the carpeting; RCA Photophone sound system, Ideal auditorium seating, supplied by the Stebbins Theatre Equipment Company, Kansas City; lighting fixtures by Summerour & Devine, Kansas City; drapes by the Great Western Stage and Equipment Company, Kansas City; blowers and air washers by The Ballantyne Company, Omaha.

plastered walls were used and topped with a flat composition roof.

Within the building was provided a projection room 16 by 11 feet. The generator room is 9x6 feet, directly in the rear of the projection room.

The projection room has two machine ports, two lookout ports and one spot port with plate glass in all openings and self-closing metal slides for each opening.

Patron Toilet Facilities

Women's and men's rest rooms have been provided on each side of the projection room with independent entrances from the rear of the building. The women's room has a 5x9-foot powder room, and the toilet room is equipped with three toilets and two lavatories. The men's rest room has a 5x6-foot entrance, two toilets, two urinals and one lavatory.

On the rear of the projection building a drinking fountain has been installed.

Ticket Booth

The ticket booth is of modern design with plate glass above the counter shelf. The roof is supported on steel pipe columns that extend over a drive on each side, forming a protection from rain.

Concession Stand

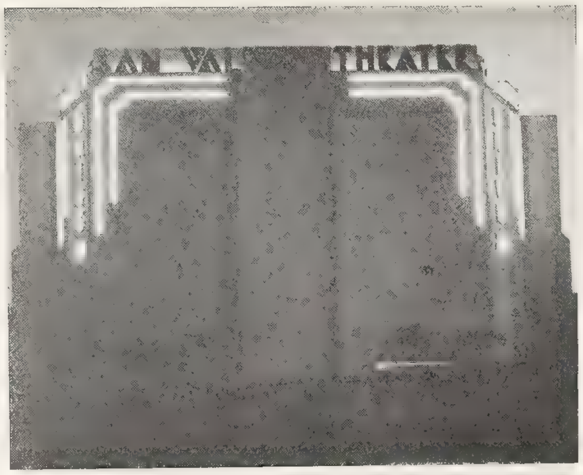
A small concession stand was built at one side of the stage with removable front. This building houses a six-stool counter and a small storage room. A gas range, electrical appliances for cooking, and hot water heater have been provided for this building, which is about 10 by 18 feet over all. The building was designed in similar style to the ticket booth, with steel columns and flat roof.

Ramps Plan and Construction

The ramps, which number nine, were graded to form terraces so that the occupants of each car had clear vision of the lowest part of the screen over the car on the ramp ahead. The ramps were so designed that a clear 40 foot clearance was provided from bumper to bumper. A light grade of hot penetrating oil was poured over the ground after the finished grades had been established, a layer of No. 6 decomposed gravel was spread and rolled over this surface; following this a heavy gravity road oil, all covered with another layer of fine crushed rock and thoroughly rolled with a four-ton roller until a hard compressed surface was obtained.

Each ramp is provided with car bumpers. These bumpers were constructed of two continuous stringers of double 2x6's well spiked together and located three feet apart. The stringers were bolted to 4x6 posts set in the ground at 8-foot intervals. Cross pieces of 1x6, nailed to each side of the posts, support the stringers and on these cross-pieces are mounted the wood horns. (See sound equipment and horns). A 4-foot aisle was left between bumpers on the center line of the parking space as a means to reach the rest rooms in the projection building.

A 30-foot drive was provided on each side of the parking space for entrance and exit. Illuminated numerals on the entrance end of the ramps and exit lights on the fence at opposite side aid the ushers in directing patrons. Amber colored lights at 50-foot intervals on all the timber bumpers help define the line of bumpers at night.



Night view of San-Val stage exterior.

Wood Fence Enclosure

All of the parking space is surrounded with a 10-foot tongue-and-grooved wood fence, except the rear, which has a 7-foot fence. A sliding gate in the fence on the exit side makes for quick exodus of cars after each performance.

Wiring

The screen building was wired for electric lights; there are a few base outlets in the manager's office, the locker room and storage room, and two flood lights on the stage roof to flood the parking area between and after shows.

Sound Equipment

The sound equipment used in the San-Val theatre is RCA Type PG-118, using

BEGINNING IN THE JANUARY 7th ISSUE: Two "columns" on theatre planning—Ben Schlanger, New York theatre architect and consultant, on Plan and Form; C. C. Potwin, pscecialist in acoustics, on Acoustics in Plan and Design—to be regular features of this department beginning with the January issue.

100-watt output from two 50-watt amplifiers. The remainder of the equipment in the booth is standard PG-118. The speakers used in the lot are a permanent magnet 6-inch speaker with a special sealed-in voice coil.

The baffles on the speakers are modified 35-inch wooden type. These speakers are spaced between each car, with a total of 580 speakers. The speakers connected to the power amplifiers are one-half to each 40-watt amplifier. They are so connected that every other ramp is through an individual switch; each ramp is connected to an individual power amplifier. The speakers on each ramp are connected parallel across the main feeder line to the power amplifier.

The impedance match is performed through the necessary matching transformers. It is estimated that each speaker operates at normal load at approximately 2½ watts. The amplifiers, however, provide power loads up to approximately 300 watts.

The wiring was carried underground to the ticket booth and concession building, as well as the projection room and all ramps.

A signal system installed between the ticket booth and projection room enables the operator to raise the sound level when some train or truck passes by.

Horns

The horns were built of ⅜-inch waterproofed plywood and given two coats of asphaltum paint. All horns on each ramp are switched to the central aisle so that an attendant can switch the ramps on or off according to varying requirements.

Policy and Technical Factors in Drive-In Operation

our patronage covers an average distance of from 12 to 15 miles, with some of our patrons driving even farther to attend our shows. Actually, a theatre of this type is very little competition to any of the regular motion picture theatres.

Our projection equipment at the San-Val consists of Super-Simplex mechanisms, Ashcraft lamps, and Strong copper oxide rectifiers. At the Pico drive-in theatre we use Super-Simplex mechanisms, Hall & Connolly high-intensity lamps, and Westinghouse generators. At the Pico theatre we draw 130 amperes, whereas at the San-Val theatre—using Suprex lamps with the Strong rectifiers—we draw only 65 am-consumed at the Pico. I will point out the reason for this later on.

The size of the picture at the Pico and San-Val are approximately the same, which size is 42x51 feet, and the throw in each theatre is 183 feet. However, the first ramp of cars is 40 feet nearer the screen than the projection room. In other words, people here see the picture from a distance of 143 feet. The back ramp at the San-Val is 550 feet from the screen and accommodates 99 automobiles. The total capacity of this theatre is 618 cars; at the peres, or one-half the amount of "juice" Pico our capacity is 460 cars, with only eight ramps, instead of nine.

The difference in the amount of amperage used at the Pico and San-Val theatres I attribute to the type of screen we are using. There has been developed in Los Angeles a paint which makes the difference in the two theatres as to light. We use a solid screen, of course.

There are a total of 28 employes necessary during the summer, and during the colder weather these will be cut down by possibly eight ushers. Obviously, it is impossible to run matinees; there are two shows a night.

for heating and air-conditioning equipment. According to Mr. Dewey economy was effected in thus placing this equipment on a level above the auditorium, the amount of duct work being cut to a minimum, the longest supply duct running approximately 14 feet. Heating is by oil in the forced air method. Cooling is by mechanical refrigeration with direct expansion coils.—M. E. Wheelock.

WHAT THE INDUSTRY FACES IN 1939

An Outline of Problems and Possibilities in Production, Distribution and Exhibition, Due for Action in the New Year

By MARTIN QUIGLEY

LITTLE DOUBT remains that the American motion picture industry will face a variety of thorough-going changes during the coming year. Out of the changes that are in prospect there is hope of a better business. This is fortunately so because the recent trend has been almost evenly in the wrong direction.

¶ Looming large on the horizon is the government suit, the outcome of which, despite the perverse or studied indifference of many in the industry, is almost certain to have a profound effect on the business and its future operations. There is naturally a devotion to the status quo on the part of its beneficiaries even though there must be few who are prepared to admit satisfaction over the present condition in industry affairs. It perhaps cannot be demonstrated in advance that extensive alteration in industry procedure will increase the general prosperity. But if the year 1938 may be taken as the fruition of existing policies, something in the way of experimentation for the future seems to be in order.

¶ Whatever the readjustments and revisions that are destined to arrive in the New Year, it is certain that the process of accommodation to the new order will in many cases be neither easy nor agreeable. There will be much need for goodwill and the long view. Without these the operation to some may be painful, if not actually disastrous.

¶ For reasons which no one seems prepared definitely to explain, there has been during the past year an inadequacy in the supply of product of acceptable standards. Hollywood's performance, generally, has not been of a character calculated to create confidence for the coming year. ¶ Despite the patent necessity for lower costs and despite all of the attendant pressure in that direction which has been exerted, Hollywood's energies for cost-saving have largely been spent on small-fry economies, leaving virtually unscathed those practices and those persons whose financial exactions result in production costs which the market has been unable profitably to support.

¶ The product situation and the accompanying question of costs admits of almost innumerable explanations, but one that inevitably bids for attention is the iron-ring status, that condition under which new people and new ideas are not necessarily excluded. But their admission depends not upon what they may show in a competitive test but, rather, upon their good fortune and right connections useful in penetrating the wall which has been created to keep the insiders in and the outsiders out.

The oligarchic rule which prevails is a staggering responsibility in relation to the production of motion pictures, especially in such times as these.

¶ If the condition of the business were prosperous, those in the saddle would claim the credit. And in this they could not be gainsaid. But when the condition is not prosperous, the right of inquiry and examination may well be asserted. It is not intelligently satisfying to listen indefinitely to explanations which only transfer the blame elsewhere. Especially this is not so when much of the available explanation is predicated on the theory that everyone is out of step but Hollywood.

¶ Added to the problems that have arisen out of the Hollywood scene is the undeniable fact that the processes of distribution, embracing as they must the essential function of promotion, have lagged both in policies and in energies. How much the results may be blamed on policies that no longer fit the exigencies of the business and how much on lack of aggressive procedure is a question difficult to judge. But it is not at all difficult to reach the conclusion that most decidedly it was not out of the slow-paced movement of the past year that the present greatness of the industry was created.

¶ There seems little reason for attributing in full the situation which has obtained during the past several months to the general business conditions affecting the country. General business conditions have not been flourishing, but the motion picture is not a luxury service which depends upon great general prosperity for profitable operation. This is not a business which is inevitably linked to economic cycles such as certain of the heavy industries and various specialties which are strictly subject to the prevailing trend. The motion picture provides amusement which in the modern world is a staple. It is the best and cheapest amusement available to the whole public. There never has been an indication of any waning devotion of the public toward the types of amusement which motion pictures represent.

¶ When the public stays away it is because of a particular, poor attraction which is presented currently. Virtually without exception the industry which asks the public to patronize the particular, poor attraction knows very well, and long in advance, that it is a poor attraction. Release date requirements, inability of the theatre to book a better attraction, a picture contracted for sight unseen—all these and others may all serve to explain how the poor picture got into the theatre. But they afford little satisfaction to the public which after paying the admission price has not been entertained.

¶ As to the many pictures of real value which would have served more effectively to enhance the reputation of the screen, increase theatre audiences rather than decrease them, some of these have been allowed passively to drop into the mill of distribution without receiving that kind of enthusiastic presentation and promotion which is essential toward the creation of an interested state of mind, the absence of which invariably has a lethal effect upon any entertainment product.

¶ The industry-wide promotion campaign, inaugurated at the commencement of the current theatrical season, might have done much toward counteracting the doldrums of the preceding months. But unfortunately it did not. There are many opinions and explanations to account for this result. One fact that cannot be ignored is that there was too much attention to abstractions and too little emphasis on pictures. Some motion pictures, but not all of them, are the public's best entertainment—a fact which the public understands clearly and is not likely to forget. Motion pictures in the abstract are not successfully advertisable, no more than groups of pictures under brand names. This is a lesson which was learned many years ago at no little cost.

¶ Another fact that looms conspicuously in the record of this not too memorable experiment is the lamentable lack of a logical coordination of the processes of the industry, in the absence of which there was a breakdown in the promotion of the campaign by the distributor to the exhibitor. The established media of communication between the distributor and the exhibitor were either ignored or only slightly used, leaving a situation under which the exhibitor was left inadequately informed and inadequately enthused.

This campaign, or any such campaign, must be mainly dependent upon product.

Exhibitors needing product data to support the arguments of the campaign were largely left empty-handed.

Abstract assurances were found unconvincing by both the exhibitor and the public.

The exhibitor looked for the presentation of product and product news that would give vitality and purpose to the campaign. In this he was disappointed, and the public as well.

> “ . . . energies for cost saving largely spent on small fry economies . . . oligarchic rule is a staggering responsibility . . . the theory that everyone is out of step but Hollywood . . . pictures allowed passively to drop into the mill of distribution, without . . . the exhibitor, curbed and handicapped in taking the line his judgment dictates . . . Radio is not an ally. It is a competitor of formidable proportions. . . . Good pictures must be enabled to earn larger revenues . . . poor pictures less. . . .”

¶ There is, naturally enough, much speculation on the economic results of the condition of bureaucratic operation which has come to characterize various activities of the business. Distributors, in some instances, by virtue of their power to dictate time and conditions of exhibition undertake, in effect, to run theatres, frequently against the experienced judgment of the actual operators. If these many intricate and involved arrangements proved to be materially advantageous to the distributor, there would be that much, at least, to be said in their favor. But it becomes frequently the case that, while an advantage to the distributor is sought, none actually is gained. And the exhibitor, curbed and handicapped in taking the line his judgment dictates, finds his chance of sustaining profitable operation diminished week by week. This and similar conditions are not matters which half-way measures are likely to correct. A new concept as to what constitutes healthy and constructive trade practices is needed.

¶ The disappearance of the old order of spirited merchandising of the motion picture to the public is well exemplified in certain of the large theatre circuits where the procedure has become as humdrum and routine as that of a railroad office. Here may be seen applied in its full bloom the adage—so beloved by banker and bookkeeper—that a dollar saved is a dollar earned. Advertising budgets have been pruned to the vanishing point, the process meanwhile pleasing highly its sponsors who are so rapturously immersed in expense curtailment tabulations that they fail to comprehend the import of the figures which trace the descending line in attendance.

¶ The motion picture as a public attraction has lost many of its early, unique advantages. Radio is not an ally. It is a competitor of formidable proportions. What was once the magic of the motion picture has come to be commonplace. The picture of merit is still the unequalled medium for public entertainment. The public knows what it wants—but only after it sees it. The business of motion pictures must, to survive prosperously, see to it that every good picture is vigorously exploited. Any system designed to insure that the public will see the poor pictures as well as the good pictures is economically and strategically unsound. Good pictures must be enabled to earn larger revenues and poor pictures allowed less.

"..danger signals..a day of reckoning.."

¶ On Broadway the show that fails to satisfy the public demand is quickly and decisively hauled to the storehouse. But the early wise men of the industry, foolish in their wisdom, sought and succeeded in contriving a system that serves to perpetuate the picture that has failed in its entertainment purpose. This has proved to be a disastrous accomplishment which in these latter years has brought about increasingly adverse results.

¶ The industry's greatest asset is the reputation of the motion picture. It should be cherished and preserved. This most decidedly is not done when pictures which are known to be below acceptable standards are forced upon the screens of thousands of theatres, not by any demand that exists for them—on part of either the public or the exhibitor—but rather by a system which automatically insures their distribution. If one wants to find out where and how the motion picture has lost caste he will do well to inquire along this line.

¶ No matter how intelligently conceived and executed, all pictures undertaken cannot be expected to turn out to be sterling attractions. But under prevailing conditions the good pictures do not obtain the revenue to which they are entitled. The poor ones obtain too much, however little that may be. In addition, the failures serve to break the theatre-going habit, to cause the public to wonder what has happened to pictures as they pass on in search of entertainment elsewhere.

¶ It must be recognized that an automatic classification of theatres has come about out of the industry's experience in serving the public's taste. There are different types and kinds of audiences, each with an inclination toward a certain grade or class of film. Occasionally—but only occasionally—there is the picture of universal appeal. Normally the market calls for pictures that vary in many material respects, including the bracket of production cost. In certain localities a low-cost action picture may be a first-rate attraction. Another picture, gauged in budget and other arrangements as an "A" production but which has proven to be a "B" minus in attraction value, is not a successful substitute for it. Pictures succeed or fail in the market stratum for which they are intended. The picture which has the necessary elements of popular appeal, irrespective of its class or cost bracket, is entitled to circulation and support. The picture that fails in popular appeal for the market stratum for which it is intended is not.

¶ The argument that unless the indifferent films are distributed and allowed to collect some revenue the better productions would be prohibitive in cost is unconvincing. A production company succeeds or fails on the basis of total revenues collected against the total costs of production. It is immaterial whether a stated volume of revenue is obtained out of twenty-five pictures or out of thirty pictures. If a program of thirty pictures costs $15,000,000, the producer's situation is better and not worse if he recoups his costs through the distribution of only twenty-five instead of the whole thirty pictures because he has saved the costs of distribution. The automatic rejection at the source of pictures which unquestionably are below acceptable standards would confer a great benefit on the public and on the exhibitor and at the same time would inevitably lead to an enhancement of the reputation of the motion picture. Admittedly, however, such a policy would not serve to monopolize screen time to the exclusion of other product.

"THE coming year, for reasons referred to and others, is likely to become a turning point in motion picture industry affairs. The present procedure if kept prosaically intact promises only a postponement of a serious day of reckoning. There are now, and have been for some time, danger signals all along the right of way. The great question which 1939 proposes is whether out of the vast store of accumulated knowledge and experience the industry in its several component parts will determinedly set itself to the task of recapturing that spirit of enterprise and progress out of which its greatness was born."

¶ It is a reasonable ambition for a producer-distributor to seek to pre-empt as much screen time as possible, but it is not reasonable that he should seek to accomplish this with indifferent product which only tends to cut short the playing time of meritorious product in some cases and in others to preclude its being played at all.

¶ A solution of many of these problems and others would be served if pictures were subjected in advance of selling to some test of their attraction value, either through expert examination or public reaction. Such a policy would automatically achieve the result of eliminating from the channels of distribution pictures which fail to measure up to acceptable standards. It would effect a concentration upon pictures of demonstrable box-office value, leading doubtlessly to a return of that kind of promotional effort for which the industry was once famous. It would inaugurate in Hollywood a merit system which would soon dispel the prevailing fog, in the midst of which even responsible management must, perforce, grope, half-blindly.

¶ The coming year, for reasons referred to and others, is likely to become a turning point in motion picture industry affairs. The present procedure if kept prosaically intact promises only a postponement of a serious day of reckoning. There are now, and have been for some time, danger signals all along the right of way. The great question which 1939 proposes is whether out of the vast store of accumulated knowledge and experience the industry in its several component parts will determinedly set itself to the task of recapturing that spirit of enterprise and progress out of which its greatness was born.

¶ The motion picture and the industry will go on eventually to greater accomplishments and greater prosperity, but whether it will do so as presently constituted and operated is a question upon which much light doubtlessly will be shed during the coming year.

This Week

Trade Practice

The first few official answers to the major's tentative draft of a trade practice program for self-regulation are in and the results show that exhibitors in the Buffalo territory accepted, while in the Northwest and Rocky Mountain region it was rejected. With both the national MPTOA and Allied States organizations not expected to take up the draft for several weeks, tangible action will not come until late in January, except for individual state unit expressions.

For complete details see page 15.

Story Purchases

During the month of November 12 producing organizations purchased a total of 59 story properties, a number greater than for either of the two preceding months, with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer the outstanding buyer. Of the properties, originals constituted 58 per cent of the total, with 34 acquired. The remaining purchases were divided among 13 magazine stories, six novels and six plays.

An analysis of the month's purchases, a chart listing purchases for the last 12 months, and a complete listing of the properties bought in November will be found on page 16.

ASCAP Brief

The brief of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, attacking the "anti" ASCAP legislation in the state of Washington, is to be filed in the United States Supreme Court Friday, according to Schwartz and Frohlich, ASCAP counsel.

The appeal is from a decision of a lower court last summer, and will state that the court had no right to dismiss the action brought at that time by ASCAP without taking all the allegations at face value.

The Washington statute, the brief will claim, invades certain Constitutional rights by legislating in a field restricted to Congress alone, and operates in such a way as to give the state the right to control action outside of the state itself. It also interferes with the present treaties and proclamations between the U.S. and foreign countries on copyright protection, the brief will contend.

The Independent Theatres Association of Canada have not prepared any objections to the proposed schedule of fees to be imposed against theatres in 1939 by the Canadian Performing Right Society, which, like ASCAP in this country, collects seat royalties from theatres for publicly performing the music of its members. No change had been made by the copyright body for theatre license rates for the coming year, which scale up to 15 cents per seat.

They Agree

Samuel Goldwyn and James Roosevelt, his vice-president, agree that production should be divorced from distribution and distribution from exhibition.

In a statement to the press at Chicago Wednesday night the son of the President said: "After consultation with Mr. Goldwyn and with his full approval, I want to make perfectly clear my position with regard to the Government suits against certain members of the film industry;

"I shall take no part whatsoever in negotiations or proceedings with the Government;

"Mr. Goldwyn and myself happen personally to agree with the Government's position in favor of separating the production companies from theatre ownership and operation;

"The company by which I am employed is not named in any of the suits;

"Mr. Goldwyn and I were in agreement long before my association with his company became effective, concerning the above facts;

"I am going to work in the film industry as a private citizen in business with no political aspect of any kind."

In London

At the initial meeting of the new Home Office Advisory Committee, elected to interpret the British 1909 Cinematograph Act and advise on its administration, it was decided to launch into an examination immediately of the "non-flam" films question. Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, stressed the urgency of examining the question and proposed to continue the discussion at the next meeting of the committee in January. Also to be taken up by the committee are free shows and censorship problems.

The story appears on page 33.

Public Relations

This was headache week in the sector of publicity and public relations for motion picture personalities. The high note was sounded on the arrival on the newsstands of Photoplay Magazine with an article on "Hollywood's Unmarried Husbands and Wives," devoted entirely to important names. The tabloid daily press took it up and gave it wider circulation.

George Burns, enmeshed, innocently or not, in the Albert N. Chapereau smuggling case in New York, flew in from Hollywood and entered a plea of guilty, on a charge of accepting smuggled goods. Several other names of screen fame were involved.

The Buckner Philippine bonds case inquiry brought in a flood of motion picture names, apparently all "customers."

Ruth Etting's domestic issues with "Colonel" Martin Snyder, and concerning the shooting of Myrl Alderman, came to flower in court.

Incidental to the week's major events were such Hollywood items as a seduction judgment, and one brawl at a socialite party involving many of the "better names."

Estimate 1938 Earnings

That the past year has been more than successful for a good portion of the industry, despite stormy weather earlier in the year, is indicated by partially confirmed estimates made in Wall Street and elsewhere this week, on the earnings of four large companies.

Revealed by testimony in a minority stockholder's suit, and confirmed by company officials, is a net profit for Loew's, Inc., for the year ended in August, of about $11,000,000. Developments in the suit, appear on page 64.

Universal's net profit for the year ending November 1, is expected to be about $200,000. Wall Street estimates that Paramount will have earned $1,000,000 or higher this year, with theatre subsidiaries contributing most of this profit. The Street also anticipates that National Theatres, in which 20th Century Fox holds a 42 per cent interest will show a profit of $2,500,000.

Seek to End Games

Harry Brandt, president of the Independent Theatre Owners of New York, this week named an exhibitor committee to devise a method of eliminating games and giveaways before License Commissioner Paul Moss of New York City moves against them officially as he warned he would at a meeting last week in the Hotel Astor, of representative exhibitor interests. The committee is to consult with the Commissioner, who offered his services as advisor, adopt a plan, call a similar meeting of exhibitors to adopt it.

Shiftings

Sales and booking offices of four Paramount sub branches have been shifted as follows: Portland, Maine, territory will be handled by Boston; San Antonio will be handled by Dallas; Sioux Falls, S. D. by Minneapolis; Jacksonville, Florida, by the Atlanta exchange. The changes were announced Wednesday, including the following personnel shifts: J. Harold Stevens, Portland manager, to Indianapolis as branch manager; San Antonio booking force absorbed by Dallas, excepting salesmen Fred Larned and Thomas Bridge, who continue working from the San Antonio office. Portland ad sales manager Donald Sweeney remains there to supervise shipping and film inspection for Maine and New Hampshire.

RKO and Wilcox Form Company to Produce in Hollywood and London

RKO and Herbert Wilcox, British producer, have formed an American-British producing company, Imperator-Radio Pictures, Ltd., in which they will be equal partners in from two to four features a year, to be made in Hollywood and London, with RKO stars appearing in England and Wilcox stars appearing in Hollywood. Anna Neagle will make her first in Hollywood in the spring under the deal.

RKO will distribute throughout the world.

George J. Schaefer, RKO president, and Mr. Wilcox made the arrangement last week in Hollywood. It was announced Wednesday to 40 representatives of the American and British press at a luncheon at the Ritz-Carlton in New York, Ned E. Depinet, RKO vice-president, speaking for his company.

The principals described the project as the only existing joint producing arrangement between American and British interests.

RKO and Mr. Wilcox hope to broaden the American market for British films first by using British stars in Hollywood pictures, acquainting the American public with players important in England but unfamiliar to American audiences. These players later would appear in British films. This idea, it was explained, was borne out of the box-office performance here of Mr. Wilcox's "Queen Victoria", with Miss Neagle, two years ago.

Both Mr. Depinet and Mr. Wilcox emphasized that the Anglo-American market must be made mutually profitable for American and British companies, in view of the narrowing markets elsewhere.

Urge "Pioneering"

They blame exhibitors here for the unsuccessful reception of English "quality pictures", adding that the apathy toward "pioneering" with British films is almost universal in the United States.

Mr. Depinet said that a change is due and that he personally has undertaken to convince exibitors here that they should give recognition to good British films.

Mr. Wilcox told the Ritz-Carlton gathering that the new arrangement should bring about others between American and British interests, and should prove a stimulant to the British industry, an industry which he described as "practically non-existent today", citing a 94 per cent unemployment in some British producing quarters.

Mr. Wilcox hopes, too, that the arrangement will create financial support from "British public banking institutions for British production". It is known that some private British capital has been put into British production, "but not a penny has come out of British banks in two years for British films," explained Mr. Wilcox.

Advancing this type of RKO-Wilcox alliance as a solution of the problems of the British industry, Mr. Wilcox turned to remark that the present British quota has "killed the British industry".

RKO now has on hand the newest Wilcox-Neagle production, "Sixty Glorious Years", concerning Queen Victoria, brought over three weeks ago by the producer and the star, for RKO distribution. The picture presumably was to be released here shortly but Mr. Depinet on Wednesday disclosed that RKO had decided first to retitle it "The House of Windsor" and to hold up release until close to the arrival in America of King George and Queen Elizabeth in the spring, when the company hopes to benefit from the large press attention of the arrival here of the rulers of the House of Windsor.

Burlesque Bans

Additional new steps have been taken against New York burlesque, which in the past five years has been the subject of repeated attacks by city officials for behavior both in advertising and stage performances. It was disclosed Tuesday that John F. X. Masterson, Mayor LaGuardia's appointee to govern the industry, has taken action to delete the word "burlesque" from the name of the actors' union and to ban traveling burlesque shows in New York. The Burlesque Artists Association, affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, is now to be known as the Brother Artists Association, in line with the decision of the mayor's representative.

BUFFALO ACCEPTS MAJORS' TRADE PRACTICE PLAN, TWO UNITS SAY NO

National Action on Proposals Not Due Until January with Meetings of MPTOA and Allied States Organizations

Exhibitors in the Buffalo territory have accepted, and those in the Northwest have rejected the majors' tentative draft of a trade practice program for self-regulation.

Exhibitors of Southern California and Arizona expressed "keen disappointment." The Theatre owners and managers of the Rocky Mountain Region in Denver Wednesday voted to reject the proposals and to prepare a program embodying its original demands.

These are the first official answers of exhibitor organzations to the program as issued to exhibitor units a week ago by distributors, in the form of "a memorandum of understandings" reached in principle by distributor and exhibitor committees.

The distributors also supplied the Department of Justice and the White House with copies of the proposed program, but formal and official expressions are expected from neither.

With both the national MPTOA and Allied States organizations not expected to take up the draft for several weeks, tangible action pointing toward enactment probably will not come until late in January, save for individual state unit expressions, such as those coming this week from Buffalo and the Northwest.

Albert Goston, president of the ITO of Southern California and Arizona, said the board of directors did not believe the draft, in most instances, "comprised the intent nor the substance of the points presented by our organization's delegates at the New York conference with distributors." He asked further negotiations.

Following inspection of the distributors' draft, last week, Nathan Yamins, Allied president, said in Fall River, Mass., that it is unacceptable and that Allied's committee would seek further concessions. Nor does Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, believe that the present draft is "the end of the road" for exhibitors. Allied action awaits a meeting of its negotiating committee, and a board meeting on January 18th.

Receipt of the draft by the MPTOA's president, Edward L. Kuykendall, elicited the comment that a detailed analysis must also first be made by the full board and negotiating committee. He added, however, that the draft still does not contain "some of the things we are insisting upon."

The 16-point program, text of which was published on December 10th, pages 13 and 14, touches on cancellations, pre-seasonal product announcements, preferred playdates, availability of product, forcing of shorts and newsreels, score charges, price classification, non-theatrical exhibitions, simplification of film contracts, selective film deals, competitive circuit building, "false" box office statements, arbitration of disputes, and other distribution-exhibition matters.

Buffalo Votes Acceptance

More than 100 exhibitors, members of the Buffalo zone, MPTO, meeting Monday in the Variety Club, Buffalo, and with a few minor exceptions, officially approved the program. A. Charles Hayman, president of the organization, presided.

SYNCHRONIZING CHAPLIN FILMS

Exhibitor Pictures, Inc., are synchronizing 12 of the first Charlie Chaplin comedies and plan to show them at intimate playhouses in New York, Los Angeles and London. The films are: "Work," "Police," "His Night Out," "Jitney Elope," "Tramp," "Shanghaied," "Triple Trouble," "His New Job," "In the Park," "In the Bank, "A Woman," and "By the Sea."

The members recommended that Clause 14, relating to box office statements, be stricken from the program, and on Clause 15, which relates to arbitration, it was unanimously recommended that such an arrangement be started at once, "so as to give relief to exhibitors and distributors immediately."

It was suggested that Clause 16 be changed so that the Agreement become effective on all contracts, and that any agreement now in effect for future years be included.

Miss Gueth, secretary, was instructed to write MPTOA President Kuykendall requesting that the national MPTOA "act quickly" so that relief would be brought about immediately.

Northwest Votes Rejection

Recommendation that the national board of Allied States reject the trade practice program in its present form was voted by members of Northwest Allied at a meeting in Minneapolis last weekend.

Action was taken by the members over the opposition of W. A. Steffes, a member of Allied's negotiating committee which helped to complete the draft. Mr. Steffes, who for years headed the Northwest Allied and is still regarded as an Allied leader in the territory, urged acceptance of the draft on the grounds that it would provide immediate benefits for all exhibitors.

Majors May Advise On Suit Concessions

With speculation still running high as to the final form of disposition of the Government's anti-trust suit against the majors, Broadway heard this week that the companies may seek to determine at least the basis of a consent decree, advising the Government within a few weeks as to the nature and extent of the concessions they would make for such a decree.

Apparently determined to proceed with an early trial, the Department of Justice is understood to be expecting a first-hand report on the case from Berkley Henderson, newly appointed chief of trust matters for the Department in New York, when he assumes office on January 1st, succeeding John H. Amen, resigned.

The changes in the New York office of the Department will have no effect on plans for an early trial of the motion picture suit, it was said in Washington Wednesday. Mr. Henderson explained that the suit still is under the direct charge of Paul Williams.

The Government views in the anti-trust suit are clearly expressed in briefs filed Wednesday in N. Y. with Federal Judge William Bondy. In these briefs, the Government brands the request of defendant companies for bills of particulars as "directed toward procuring a trial brief of the Government's case with a full disclosure of all evidentiary matters as well as the names of its witnesses."

The Government revealed in its briefs that such requests would delay the suit for many months and would require a petition 500 pages long.

Misrepresentation Charged

The Government charges "flagrant misrepresentation" of remarks made by Paul Williams, special assistant Attorney General, in connection with the motion by United Artists to strike out portions of the Government's original complaint.

It is denied by the Government that it lacks sufficient knowledge to connect United Artists with the alleged conspiracy, and that Williams had meant that U.A. had no part in the charges on monopoly in production.

The Government briefs declared that it was not necessary for each co-conspirator to be connected with every phase of the conspiracy. Its allegations charged unfair "trade practices imposed upon independent exhibitors" and unfair "favors and advantages extended by defendants to each other" are proper allegation as affecting U.A. It is also charged by the Government that an attempt is being made to "limit narrowly the charges of the Government."

In the matter of possible "exploratory" action by the majors on a consent decree, it has been generally known in Washington that the government's attitude, insofar as divorcement of distribution from exhibition is concerned, is inflexible—that the Government is determined that there shall be divorcement.

Dates Set on Two Trust Case Hearings

Answers to the bill filed in the second Chicago trust case, by 101 independent theatres against B. and K. and major companies, was to be filed in Federal Court this week, when Federal Judge Wilkerson is expected to set the date for trial, probably sometime in February, or late in January.

This court appearance is to be the last one there this year in the suits the independents and the government have filed against B. and K. and the major companies.

Last Friday, Federal Judge Woodward took under advisement the granting of bills of particulars to the defendants in the criminal contempt case of the government against the major companies and B. and K. On January 16th, Judge Woodward will give his decision regarding the granting of the bill of particulars, the motion to quash subpoenas, the date for the filing of answers in the suit and motion to impound documents that are said to concern the case.

Judge Woodward abruptly halted last Friday's hearing on motions for the bill of particulars as asked by the various attorneys representing the major companies and B. and K. Robert Golding, representing Barney Balaban, B. and K. and Paramount; Frederic Burnham, representing Loews, Inc.; Edmund Adcock, representing RKO and Universal; David Levinson, representing United Artists and Otto Koegel, representing 20th-Fox had all presented their motions for bills of particulars and the government had, through Robert L. Wright, fought the issue, when Judge Woodward called a halt to the proceedings and said he would give his decision in January.

59 STORIES AND PLAYS BOUGHT IN NOVEMBER BY 12 PRODUCERS

MGM Purchases 20 Properties To Lead Other Buyers; Paramount Acquires Screen Rights to "The Cat and the Canary"

Keeping up the pace established in the three months prior to November, 12 Hollywood producing companies last month acquired a total of 59 story properties.

Topping all other buyers was Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which bought five originals, a novel, two plays, and 12 magazine stories for a total of 20 properties. Second on the list was Universal, with 11 purchases, of which nine were originals and two novels. Warner Brothers ranked third, with purchases fairly evenly distributed among three plays, 2 originals, a novel and a magazine story.

As in the preceding three months, originals made up the basic source of supply, with a total of 34, or 58 per cent of the total, as against 13 magazine stories, 6 novels, and an equal number of plays.

Among the outstanding acquisitions were Paramount's purchase of "The Cat and the Canary," famous play, screen rights to which were bought from Universal; MGM's purchase of eight magazine stories by W. S. Tuttle, called the "Henry" stories, and Warners' purchase of "All This and Heaven, Too," outstanding contemporary novel, and "Elizabeth the Queen," famous stage play by Maxwell Anderson, both for Bette Davis.

'SPACE SHIPS', 'DEATH RAYS', 'TERROR' TREND BRINGS NEW THEATRE BUSINESS

Distributors Rack Vaults for 'Shudder Films' as 'Dracula'-'Frankenstein' Combination Brings 1,000 Bookings

"Terror" apparently has a new box office value, following the upset conditions in Europe and the Orient, and the invasion-mindedness of nationals and the recent reaction in this country to the Orson Welles radio broadcast version of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds," all whetting the public's appetite for "shudder pictures." Universal alone has had 1,000 revival bookings of its "Dracula" and "Frankenstein," in combination, and says it expects 4,000 more before the trend has run its course. In addition, it is releasing "Dracula's Daughter" and "Bride of Frankenstein," also in combination.

Lending additional interest to "space ships" and "disintegrator" rays are Universal's serials, "Buck Rogers" and "Flash Gordon", both taken from "comic" strips, and both current. Universal also is rushing through "A Son of Frankenstein"; United Artists is getting new business on its "Things to Come", the H. G. Wells "scary ray" film of a few years back; RKO's old "King Kong" is another of the type.

Last month Life Magazine came out with three pages of pictures, in "lead" position, on the new "terror," reproducing H. G. Wells' "Things to Come" pictures, and stills from "Dracula" and "Frankenstein."

Exhibitor Started It

The box office "fad," if it may be called that, started a few weeks ago with Universal. A small California exhibitor had no product for immediate playing. Would Universal let him play some old pictures like "Dracula" and "Frankenstein?" Four days playing time was the agreement. The pictures stayed on for a month, and since then 75 large cities have already played the combine, and 200 more are booked. Of the 75, holdovers of a week and more amounted to 60 per cent. Those that didn't hold have been called locations which "notoriously are not holdover spots," says Universal.

Some Statistics

Many of the houses had played one or the other before, with another feature, and had not done sensational business. An instance was the New York Rialto, which played the combine for two weeks in October, grossing $12,000 the first week, compared with an average weekly take of $5,500. "Dracula" had played the same house for one week in April of this year, without impressive results. And "Frankenstein" had played at the Liberty, on 42nd Street, a few doors away, also in April, without causing much attention.

The two pictures, both 1931 releases, were top grossers for Universal that year. Some of the house records that "Frankenstein" originally made, still stand. Whereas most pictures never are reissued to more than 1,200 accounts, the "draw" of these two pictures in combination is shown by the fact the total will reach more than 5,000. Five hundred additional prints are being delivered to the exchanges. Most deals are on percentage.

BOOTH COMPENSATION DECIDED BY COURT

The Oklahoma State supreme court this week held that a night watchman shot while on duty is entitled to workmen's compensation payments, but that a motion picture projectionist burned in a projection booth is not.

The court affirmed an industrial order calling Dolese Brothers Company to pay $9.23 a week compensation to John D. Pardue, night watchman at the company's rock crusher near Bromide, Okla., who was injured by a shotgun blast fired by an unknown assailant.

The court set aside a compensation award of $3,125 to Albert George Johnson at the rate of $10 a week for burns he suffered while operating a projection machine for Oscar Berry, owner of the Fox at Ardmore, Okla. Mr. Johnson claimed permanent total disability of his right hand and partial disability of the left.

Six justices concurred in the opinion that state laws do not class occupation in the theatre industry as hazardous employment, and the fact that there were electric motors, generators and projectors present does not classify a projection booth as a workshop, which would bring it within the Oklahoma workmen's compensation laws.

A new combination was tried out last month at the Uptown, Kansas City, "Bride of Frankenstein" and "Dracula's Daughter." The first combination did $4,500, over a weekly overage of $2,700. The new combination has done comparable business.

Double Budget

The good fortune of these "follow-ups" has induced Universal to double its budget on the forthcoming, "The Son of Frankenstein," with Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Lionel Atwill, Basil Rathbone. Sum to be spent will be over $500,000, exclusive of large advertising appropriation.

Still cashing in on the "horror fad," Universal is issuing "Mars Attacks The World," which, following into houses that played the "Dracula"-"Frankenstein" combination, is reported doing 80 per cent of their business, and in some instances setting house records.

Where It Began

The whole "two screamers-on-one-bill" idea started at the Regina, in Beverly Hills, Cal., as described in the opening paragraph. Next to try it was the Blue Mouse, in Seattle, where ad copy read, "We dare you to see both together—Can you take it?"

Then it began to do better than very well. At the Rivoli, in Portland, Ore., it did $3,100, compared to an average of $1,300. In San Francisco, at the Orpheum, a house record was hung up, the pair of shockers did $14,000 the first week, compared with a weekly average of $5,000, was held over a second week, and emerged as Universal's top grosser for all time in that city.

At the Palm State, in Detroit, which has a weekly $6,000, the combination drew $16,000, was held over, and set a house record. It did practically the same at the Boston, in Boston. The gross there was $14,000, compared to an average $3,000; it was held over; it set a record.

At the Keith, in Washington, the "horror pair" did $5,000 the first two days.

$2,000 Above Average

At the Keith, Baltimore, the pictures took in $6,000 in their first three days of the run. The house takes a weekly average of only $4,000.

Drawing more than 30 per cent more revenue out of Providence than any other Universal picture there, the two pictures repeated their success at the Albee there. The first week drew $9,000, compared with an average of $3,000, and bill was held one more week.

In Salt Lake City, at the Victory, one of the earlier spots playing the films, Universal has not estimated the grosses, because the deal was "flat rental." However, it is known the house was jammed.

Houses in Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, which ordinarily receive about $200 on their midnight shows, did $2,700 in each house, when they played the two films, according to Universal.

In Atlanta, the Fox, a 5,000-seater, with midnight shows averaging $250 tried the new formula, and found it produced standing room only, and an $1,800 take.

The Albee, in Brooklyn, New York, with an average weekly revenue of $11,000, did $16,000; in Chicago, the Garrick, with $5,000 average, did $9,000.

In Houston, the Interstate circuit's Majestic, Metropolitan, and Kirby, tried the double bill and had to turn away 3,000. A week later, on Halloween, the same idea was tried, with the same result. The two features originally had been booked only into the Majestic.

Other key cities in which exceptional grosses were recorded include: Hartford, Des Moines, Bridgeport, Milwaukee, Sacramento, Oakland, Omaha, Portland (Maine), Fall River. In Vancouver and Toronto, Canada, the sinister dual bill broke house records.

"Mars" Records

While "Mars Attacks The World" is limited by its lower production budget and mental level, to minor houses, it is setting records of its own, playing in houses that do not ordinarily book "A" product. The bookings are also shorter.

In three days at the Temple, in Rochester, the picture did $1,900, compared to average $1,000; at the Strand, in Syracuse, $1,200, over a $900 average; at the Albany, in New Brunswick, 15 per cent above normal; at the Boston, in Boston, 60 per cent above normal; at the State, in Trenton, 50 per cent above normal; at the Terminal, in Newark, $2,400 for a weekend, with average being $1,150; at the Rialto, New York, $2,500 in first two days. Picture also did well at the Park, Reading; Franklin, Oakland; Paramount, Omaha.

Credit in Universal forces recognizing the public trend, plugging the first two pictures, is given in Universal forces to western division manager W. J. Heineman.

NEW YORK EXHIBITORS MOVE TO BAN GAMES AFTER WARNING FROM CITY

Address at ITOA Meeting by License Commissioner Leads to Naming of Committee to Draw Elimination Plan

A definite move for the elimination of chance games in New York City where many unsuccessful attempts in this direction have been made, came this week following a warning by the City Commissioner of Licenses that legal steps to stop the practice were being considered. A committee of seven exhibitors was named by Harry Brandt, president of the New York City Independent Theatre Owners Association to study methods of eliminating chance games and giveaways in the city's theatres.

The special committee met Wednesday and announced that while no definite plan had been conceived, several were under consideration. They decided to survey other cities where games have not been played or where they have been played and dropped.

On the committee are Dave Weinstock, of the Weinstock circuit; Walter Reade, of the Walter Reade circuit; Max Cohen, of the Cinema circuit, and president of the New York Allied; Charles Moscowitz, of Loew's; John O'Connor, of RKO; Abe Shenk, of the Center theatre, Brooklyn; Samuel Seelen, of the Mermaid theatre, Brooklyn. Representatives of Randforce, Cocalis, Century and Prudential circuits will be invited to representation on the committee.

The grouping is in line with the declaration by Mr. Brandt at a meeting last week at the Hotel Astor of about 100 independent exhibitor and circuit heads, that the committee would represent circuits, affiliated circuits, and exhibitors owning only one theatre.

Loew's and RKO before eliminating cash giveaways will insist that the independents do likewise.

Ultimatum Given

Addressing the meeting last week, Paul Moss, New York City License Commissioner, warned that the games must be eliminated, if not voluntarily, then by enforcement of the law and emphasized that, though he was friendly to the industry, he had an office to uphold; that the exhibitors were acting "against the law," and he had to enforce the law; that he was open to consultation at present; that he would not act before giving warning to every theatre; but that he would certainly act.

"If you do not obey the law," warned the Commissioner, "I will have to close some theatres permanently, and I hate to do that."

Mr. Moss characterized chance games as a "cancer"; and expressed doubt as to their effectiveness in building patronage.

"I'm sure that most of the real, legitimate showmen in the business realize they can't make money doing this sort of thing," he said. The Commissioner sympathized with the problems facing the industry and pointed out that he had been very lenient in the past.

"However," he said, "I have to uphold the law that I am sworn to enforce."

Asked by John O'Connor, head of RKO theatres whether his threatened action against games and giveaways would include churches, social clubs, and fraternal affairs, the Commissioner replied that it probably would. In answer to another question he said all types of chance games would be included in the ban.

The Commissioner compared giveaways to a stimulant such as drugs or alcohol and said their effect could be as serious. His argument for their abandonment was based on a plea for the betterment of the industry.

"The time will come," he said, "when people will come back to see pictures, one picture and several shorts.

Charging that previous attempts to stop games and giveaways by voluntary action had failed because of "chiselers," William Brandt pleaded with the theatre owners to "stop this cancer." He said $3,000,000 yearly was being given away adding, "I doubt if there is that much profit in the business." The solution, he said, was to enlist the aid of an outsider, like Mr. Moss to "be an umpire."

Walter Reade said that every town in which he operated houses was "premium minded"; and that it was not the fault of the picture business, but of commercial and advertising interests which distribute all manner of premiums with their products.

Committee Proposed

The meeting concluded with the adoption of Harry Brandt's suggestion that a committee be appointed to work out a plan, after Mr. Moscowitz had pointed out that a previous plan for elimination of games in one borough, the Bronx, would be unworkable, because of competition from theatres near the border in Manhattan and Westchester.

Copies of the December 10th issue of the "The Independent," ITOA house organ, carrying a lead editorial entitled "Cancer," were distributed among those attending the meeting.

"It is about time the theatre owner did some serious thinking towards eliminating this cancer," the editorial said. "If they expect Hollywood to give them good pictures; if they expect the distributors to give them the concessions they deserve, exhibitors have got to do something for themselves, and the biggest favor they can do for themselves is eliminating cash giveaways.

"In New York City, where the average admission is 17¼ cents, including the $2.00 runs downtown and the $1.65 charged at the Music Hall for reserved seats, it is a crying shame that hundreds of thousands of dollars have to be given away in order to entice business.

Albert Goldman, postmaster of New York made an appeal at the meeting for the Federation of Jewish Charities. All present contributed, the largest amounts pledged being $2,000 from the Brandts, $2,250 from Walter Reade, and $1,000 from Mr. Moscowitz.

Among those present were Charles C. Moscowitz, Max Cohen, Walter Reade, Albert Goldman, Paul Moss, Harry Brandt, Billy Brandt, Sam Rosen, Leo Justin, Al Margolies, Lawrence Bolognino, Leo Brecher, Jack Hattem, John O'Connor, Irwin Wheeler, S. D. Cocalis, Moe Rosenberg, Gil Josephson, Dave Satenstein, Charles Steiner, Sam Ronheimer, Maurice Brown, John Mannheimer, Joe Rosenzweig, Benjamin Berman, Abe Leff.

Rockefellers Finance Plan to Study Exchange of Films with So. America

The Rockefellers' many-sided film interests were further extended this week by the financing of "a plan to study the practical problems involved in the interchange of motion pictures between the United States and the countries of South and Central America to promote friendship through mutual understanding".

The project will be handled by the American Film Center, a non-profit corporation, at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, established to promote the use of motion pictures for educational and public purposes, and, in turn, financed both by the Rockefeller Foundation and the American National Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, of which Dr. James T. Shotwell is chairman. Dr. Shotwell also is chairman of the Film Center's new Pan-American film study committee. Donald Schlesinger is executive director of the Film Center.

The U. S. Government is now working out plans for the use of films in South America to build goodwill generally for this country. American film companies have been giving much thought to the development of the Latin American markets, to make up for some of the losses suffered as a result of restrictions and out-and-out barriers in Europe and the Far East.

The Rockefeller investigation will go into such Pan-American film interchange problems as tariff, quota, codes and censorship. The information gathered will be converted into recommendations for action "which should help promote production of films in all the Americas, and distribution of these films to each other," according to Dr. Schlesinger.

The net income for United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., and subsidiaries for the year to August 31st has been announced as $148,743, equal to $5.08 each on 29,258 preferred shares; compared with $364,973, equal after preferred dividends to 36 cents each on 600,000 common shares for the year ended August 31, 1937.

THE KENTUCKY OF GREAT TRADITION HAS INSPIRED A GREAT PICTURE . . . .

Greater in the splendor of TECHNICOLOR!

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Expecting the arrival of Charlie McCarthy III, Charlie McCarthy II, of Chicago, called for a taxicab to pilot Mrs. Charlie McCarthy to the Lewis Memorial Hospital.

"This is Charlie McCarthy at 3509 Palmer Avenue. Send me a cab," he babbled excitedly over his house phone.

An hour dragged by, no cab appeared and Charlie McCarthy II frantically called: "This is Charlie McCarthy," he yelled. "Where's my taxi?"

"Give my regards to Dotty Lamour and Edgar Bergen," the taxi dispatcher replied.

A second hour dragged by in slow motion. Meanwhile Charlie McCarthy II caught on. Picking up the phone, he called the cab company.

"This is Joe Doakes up on Palmer Avenue," he bellowed. "Send me a cab!"

The can is a double-decked affair. When the lower section is punctured with a can opener, the admitted air causes a reaction in the secret chemicals inside which heats the food in the upper section.

Radio's talent-digger-uppers are "scooping" Hollywood's talent scouts right and left, NBC alone, within recent weeks, presenting to their public scores of persons who have never before been seen or heard on either medium of mass entertainment and enlightment.

Virtually pulling rabbits right out of the talent hat, NBC, for example, has had of late on its ether waves one Robert Cantwell, of Oak Park, Ill., a former lawyer who collects cases on persons who have been executed for murders, later found never to have been committed; and Dr. Charles Berger, of Quincy, Mass., who wears a pair of spectacles that came over on the Mayflower—along with all of that antique furniture.

They have also had broadcasting to the American public Mrs. E. Goldstein, Youngstown, Ohio, who goes around gathering data on unusual birth certificates; Calvin Spears, of Oneonta, Alabama, who grows colored cotton—blue, green, yellow and black; George J. Lacey, of Houston, Texas, who collects murderers' bullets; Mrs. Marie La Salle, of Erath, La., who trains cats and canaries to live together "in perfect harmony"; and Paul Bechtold, of New York, who collects methods of curing hiccoughs.

Also found for broadcasting by NBC's talent scouts were Norman Windsor, St. Louis, who collects shoes without mates; John Cz, who grows pumpkins in the shapes of human heads, fitting masks over the little plants; Fred D. Kipp, of Perry, Iowa, who turns hamburgers into stone (no difficult task); Dr. George G. Bell, of Cattelsburg, Ky., who collects old furnaces; and Frank S. Miller, Jr., of Pittsburgh, who collects mustaches.

THREE PER CENT QUOTA ON U. S. FILMS LAW IN NEW SOUTH WALES

Measure Includes 25 Per Cent Cancellation Provision; Expected To Be Followed by Other Australian States

by LIN ENDEAN

in Sydney

A new film quota law, which is expected to be followed by other states in the Australian Commonwealth, was passed Tuesday by the legislature of New South Wales, containing an increase from 12½ to 25 per cent in exhibitors' film rejection privileges, a three per cent quota on American films, provisions for a new standard exhibition contract, and the formation of a film commission to pass upon applications for building new theatres. Signature of the premier, expected shortly, will make the law effective.

While cursory examination of the rejection privilege increase would indicate a blow to American film sales, opinion differs on the actual effectiveness of such a measure. Rapid growth of theatres in that country, a preference for American films by the public and large exhibitor interests, and a comparatively small Australian producing industry, are factors which may make the intended "blow" to American interests undeliverable.

Victoria Has Rejection

Victoria is the only other state with a 25 per cent rejection privilege.

Suspended "for the time being," though in the bill, is a provision making compulsory the showing by Australian exhibitors of at least 15 per cent British product annually. The suspension is in effect till the Australians obtain "reciprocity" from England. The provisions in the new bill are expected to appease the English.

Australian producers have been agitating for an effective quota law, and the new measure is apparently the answer, being written in a constitutional way, and without loopholes, handicaps which made two previous quota laws inoperative.

The new law provides that the three per cent must be made in Australia, and that after 1939 this percentage is subject to change.

The new Films Commission has wide powers It can examine contracts of exhibitor and distributor; it can penalize for failure to live up to such contracts; it can cancel licenses.

Expected in the United States soon is Gordon Ellis, of Greater Union Theatres, Australia, who will discuss relations between American film distributors and Australian exhibition and production.

The public press has picked up the quota provisions as a subject of controversial interest. Three of the most widely circulated newspapers have discussed them editorially. The Daily Telegraph has devoted leader space to protest against the legislation, emphasizing that "filmgoers want entertainment, and the quickies that a sheltered system produces don't provide it."

The Truth, which has a nationwide Sunday circulation, came out with a strong article by G. R. W. McDonald, referring to the proposed act as "the resurgence of the agitation for removal of 'disabilities' against which the New South Wales film industry is said to be struggling," which he said "again directs attention to what seems to me to be outrageous demands."

ONTARIO PLANS FOR 16MM. FILM IN HALLS

The newly reorganized Film Section of the Toronto Board of Trade has taken under advisement several proposals for regulations to govern the exhibition of 16mm. films in rural halls of Ontario. A draft will be submitted at the approaching session of the legislature. T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasure rof Famous Players Canadian Corporation, is chairman of the Film Section. Louis Rosenfeld of Columbia Pictures of Canada, Ltd., is vice-chairman.

A former member of the N. S. W. Legislative Council, and a director of Carroll-Musgrove Theatres Pty., Ltd., controlling a Sydney first-run house, the Prince Edward, Mr. McDonald continued that the industry, in his opinion, "consists of a few producing companies and studio owners, coupled with a few ambitious people who, armed with other people's money, are prepared to march to fame and fortune, filling financial cemeteries with the dead of other sections."

"These parties," he wrote, "appear to aim at the complete subjection of all film interests for their particular benefit. The signatories to the demands [This is a reference to a memorandum which various interests recently submitted to the Premier seeking the new legislation] have sunk—I said sunk—relatively small capital in their enterprises. They seek not merely regulation of their own businesses, but of those of other people.

"In the theatres throughout Australia, many millions of pounds have been invested—in picture production, a trifling percentage, comparatively—and although the proposals submitted for the benefit of film producers and studios really involve the control of these millions, not one suggestion is put forward on behalf of the large body of shareholders in those theatres.

Prophesies Failure of Scheme

"The producers and studios, in conjunction, will bring into existence Australian films. Because they are Australian is no reason why they should be condemned—quite the contrary. But merely because they are Australian does not guarantee a box-office success.

"That the theatres would gladly welcome attractive pictures from any source whatever goes without saying; but unless compulsory attendance by all at theatres is made part of the scheme, it is doomed to disaster."

Not in any of the recommendations to the government does Mr. McDonald see a contribution to the common good. Those who sponsored them are asking for the "substitution, with themselves in control, of legislative sanctions for ordinary business negotiation, wherein the parties 'dicker' (let's go American!) from their own angles in the hope of doing business on a basis mutually satisfactory," he said.

At the offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America in New York, officials voiced their belief that the new bill may run into legal trouble. Wonderment was expressed that the new bill should be "legal," because all previous attempts were unconstitutional. The powers given to the Film Commission were declared so wide as to encounter opposition on constitutional grounds. In line with their persistent campaign, Australian producing interests were expected to ask for governmental subsidies.

"We do not think they will get what they want," said an MPPDA official; "or at least, we do not see why the Australian government should pour any money into production; Australian pictures have been 'flops,' and there is no reason to believe that they will be any better, to warrant government help."

The MPPDA spokesman declared that back of the new legislation were the producing studios, several owners of which are powerful politically, and publish newspapers. "These men," the official asserted, "have been hell-bent to have us use their studios for production. It is entirely possible that Premier Stevenson, in pushing the bill, had in mind the fact that, no doubt, he owes his political life to them."

Legion of Decency Pledge Renewed

Roman Catholics throughout the country, last Sunday, for the fifth successive year, renewed their pledges to the National Legion of Decency, in 18,000 churches. The pledge renewal was followed by an endorsement of the Legion's policies and aims by Will Hays, president of the M.P.P.D.A.

Speaking at the communion breakfast in New York's Hotel Roosevelt, of the Notre Dame University Club, Mr. Hays indorsed the Legion, and compared its pledges to those of the motion picture industry; to make better pictures.

Frank C. Walker, head of the Comerford theatre circuit, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and a member of the Notre Dame class of 1911, presided.

At solemn high mass, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York, the Very Reverend Nicholas Higgins, guardian of the St. Francis Friary, of Providence, observed that the Legion was formed only because there were some in the motion picture industry who made it necessary.

The Reverend T. Lester Graham, a member of the St. Patrick's Cathedral staff, who led the congregation in renewing the pledge, asserted there was moral improvement in films of today over those of five years ago.

The motion pictures, radio, and the press generally had avoided or suppressed the true story about the Spanish war, Michael Walsh, United States Attorney in Brooklyn, charged, before the fourth annual communion breakfast of the La Salle Academy Ladies Auxiliary, at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

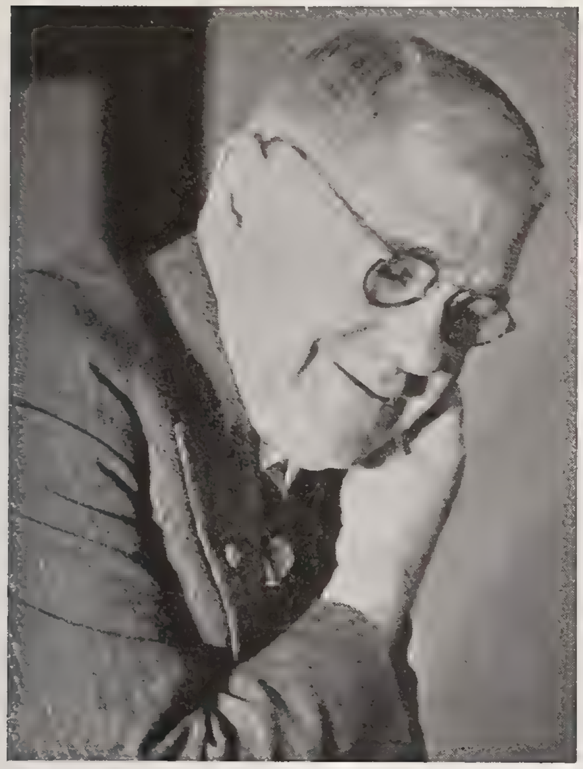
New Australian Legislation And Its Effect on the Market

A Herald Camera Interview with Sir Samuel Walder of National Studios, Ltd.



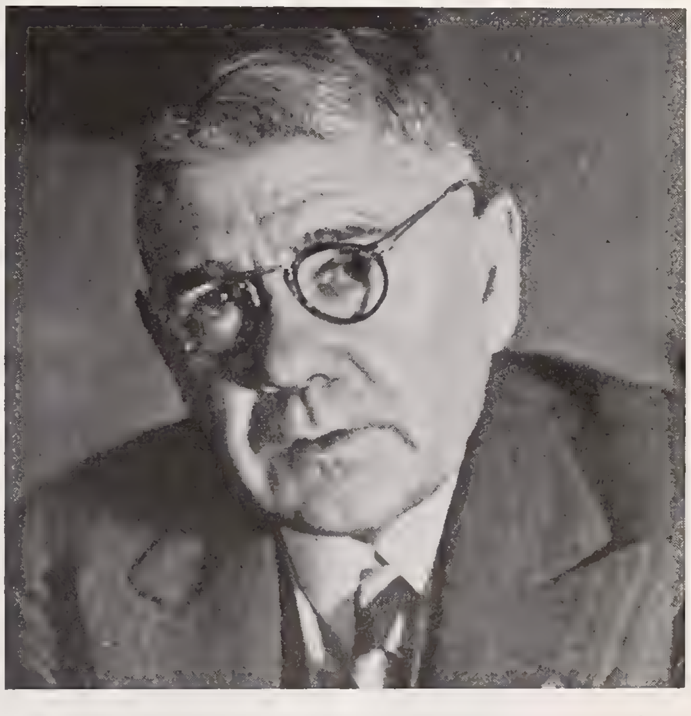
DRASTIC in theory, the New South Wales law giving exhibitors a 25 per cent rejection privilege will work no great harm in practice because of product shortage, Sir Samuel explains.

"Australian distributors can not get enough product as it is. Suburban houses show two pictures a week, some of them three, and the available product, including foreign, does not cover this need."

On the New South Wales quota, fixed at three per cent but reworded to insure enforcement: "I do not think it will affect American films adversely, certainly not enough to bar them from the market."

"The new quota, however, is so phrased as to be entirely legal and constitutional. Loopholes have been eliminated and more strict enforcement than has been the practice is probable."

Legislation directed at control of new theatre building compensates for any harshness in companion film bills: "Such control will stabilize the industry and end a trend toward an impossible competitive situation."



In New York for a short visit en route to London, Sir Samuel is negotiating for American distribution of two National Studios pictures, "The Flying Doctor" and "Wrangle River" both of which have been well received in England. Arrangements for handling the films have not been completed.

B. & K. BUYS 6 MILLIONS OF INSURANCE FOR 2,200

Paramount Unit Second Circuit to Cover Employees' Lives with Multi-Million Policy

Balaban and Katz Corporation this week bought a $6,000,000 quadruple insurance policy for the 2,200 employees of its B. and K. and affiliated Publix-Great States circuits at the home office in Chicago, and in their 100 theatres in Indiana, Ohio and throughout Illinois.

Paramount's Netco circuit, operated by George Walsh, in New York, also is taking out group employee insurance, to the amount of $400,000.

Described by Equitable Life Assurance Society, with which the policy was taken, as "one of the most important group insurance transactions" to be underwitten, Balaban & Katz thus became the second theatre circuit to buy a multi-million dollar policy for its workers. The Griffith Brothers, in Oklahoma and Texas, participate with their employes in a $2,000,000 insurance plan with John Hancock Mutual and Great Southern Life. Griffith also participates in additional insurance that permits employees to retire after five years of service and receive 17 per cent of their salary, on up to 20 years' service which would give the entire accrued benefit.

The Balaban & Katz insurance, however, is paid for entirely by the company, as arranged for by John Balaban, treasurer, who, with Barney Balaban, now president of Paramount Pictures, and others, developed the circuit, now controlled by Paramount.

Complete protection, including life insurance, health insurance, accident insurance and hospitalization insurance is provided by the policy. This is the first quadruple insurance plan written by Equitable that is paid for completely by the employer. It was said that no organization of the size has ever before provided four-group coverages without cost to employees.

Protection became effective Thursday. Life insurance provides payment for death from any cause, and the accidental death and dismemberment insurance, makes provision for accidental loss of life, limb or eyesight, incurred while at work or away from it. Amounts of such insurance for individuals are based on earnings, with $2,500 as the maximum of each coverage.

Added to these two forms of protection are group accident and health insurance, specifying weekly payments for disability resulting from accident or sickness, and group hospitalization.

Variety Clubs Elect Officers

Variety Clubs in ten cities have elected officers for 1939. In Philadelphia, 1200 people attended the Variety dinner last Sunday at which William P. Clark was named the tent's new chief barker. William E. Dodd, former Ambassador to Germany, was the principal speaker, and George Jessel was toastmaster and Joe E. Lewis, master of ceremonies. Other guests were Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters; Governor Richard McMullen of Delaware, Governor Harry Nice of Maryland, and Harold G. Hoffman, former Governor of New Jersey. Among those who had reservations were: Nate J. Blumberg, Ned E. Depinet, William F. Rodgers, William Scully, Ed Kuykendall, James R. Grainger, Mayor S. Davis Wilson, Jules Levy, Joseph Bernhard, Louis Krouse, Jack Cohn, John B. Kelly, John P. Harris, Ted Schlanger, Rabbi Louis Wolsey, Dr. John R. Hart, the Rev. Sylvester McCarthy, Arthur Lee and Dr. Leon Levy.

In St. Louis, Louis K. Ansell, head of the Ansell Brothers Circuit, has been named chief barker of the local Variety Club; with A. L. Matreci, elected first assistant chief barker; Harry Hynes, second assistant chief barker; Herbert Washburn, property master, and Joseph Ansell, dough guy.

Chief Barker R. R. Biechele of the Kansas City Variety Club has called for the annual election of officers, and in Dallas, Robert J. O'Donnell, general manager of the Interstate Circuit, has been reelected Chief Barker of Tent 17.

In Baltimore and Minneapolis, incumbents were also reelected Chief Barker, Lou Rome keeping his office in Baltimore and W. A. Steffes of the Twin City Variety Club receiving a unanimous vote for the office. In Buffalo, Robert T. Murphy, booking director of Shea's Theatres, succeeded Jacob Lavene as Chief Barker of the Variety Club there. H. H. Shumow, has replaced W. M. Green as Chief Barker of the Omaha Variety Club. Nat Wolf was reelected in Cleveland, and Charles C. Perry was elected in Detroit.

Technicolor Profit $1,200,000

Technicolor's consolidated net profit for 1938 was estimated at about $1,200,000 before Federal taxes, by Herbert T. Kalmus, president and general manager, at a meeting of the board of directors held Tuesday. This compares with $571,395 for 1937. The directors also voted a dividend of 15 cents a share, payable December 28th to stockholders of record December 21st. This makes a total of $1.00 a share paid this year, compared with 75 cents paid in 1937.

Dr. Kalmus has announced that the company's new plant in Hollywood will be ready for occupancy February 1st. Print capacity increases to 130,000,000 feet annually.

File Complaint Against MGM

The bill of complaint filed in the breach of contract suit brought by Edgar F. Bitner and the Leo Feist estate against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, alleges that MGM purchased in October, 1935, 1,450 shares of Leo Feist, Inc., giving it control of the company. The complaint charges the purchase price was $177,000 each, to Mr. Bitner and the late Mr. Feist, payable in installments of $44,250. The last installments were unpaid, the complaint says.

Gillham to New York

Robert Gillham, director of Paramount advertising and publicity, is expected back in New York Monday after having spent about 10 days at the company's studio.

PARAMOUNT DOUBLES INTERNATIONAL AWARD

Opinion of the judges in deciding the winner of the International Plaque in Paramount's advertising and exploitation contest held in connection with the "Paramount on Parade" sales drive, resulted in a tie between Harold Armistead of the Lyric theatre in Easley, South Carolina, and J. Castro Ramos of the Cine Plaza of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Both men received a plaque emblematic of international winners.

New Photophone Contracts

RCA Photophone has been awarded contracts by three theatre circuits. The Sparks circuit has given the company service contracts covering the sound reproducing equipment in its 82 theatres throughout Florida, as well as contracts for replacing the sound apparatus in five theatres in the chain. Service contracts for the sound reproducing equipment in the 80 theatres in the Blank circuit in several Midwestern states, and in the 32 theatres of the Commonwealth circuit throughout Missouri, have also been consummated.

Copyright Meet Held

The latest in the series of meetings sponsored by the Committee for the Study of Copyright, division of the Committee on International Intellectual Co-operation, was held Thursday at the quarters of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. Further progress was reported in the Committee's aim of finding a common ground for revision of the existing copyright law, which is being done by bringing together representatives of the main industries affected, motion pictures included, in an effort to lay a suitable basis for suggested legislative changes.

Copyright Bureau Head Returns

Jack H. Levin, general manager of the Copyright Protection Bureau, has returned to his office in New York after a tour of key cities which lasted about a month. Mr. Levin investigated complaints of bicycling and holding over of prints made by both distributors and exhibitors; and met with branch and district managers and exhibitors.

Postpone MPPDA Meeting

The quarterly meeting of the board of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed until next Tuesday due to the absence from New York of Sidney Kent, Nate Blumberg and George Schaefer. Mr. Schaefer is scheduled to be elected to the board at the coming meeting.

NON-INFLAMMABLE FILM DISPUTE ATTACKED BY GOVERNMENT BODY

Free Shows and Censorship Bound Up with Problem Before Committee Named to Study British Act of 1909

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

With the initial meeting, on the last day of November, of the new Home Office Advisory Committee, elected to interpret the 1909 Cinematograph Act and advise on its administration, a new shadow, not necessarily a rosy one, has loomed over the trade horizon. The Committee, chairman of which is the Lord Stonehaven and which is made up of municipal officers representative of both England and Scotland, has launched forthwith into an immediate examination of the most vexed of the Act's many equivocal clauses, that referring to "non-flam" films. This, bound up as it is with the whole question of free shows and of censorship, is going to give both legislature and trade, considerable food for thought in the immediate future.

This, however, is not the only source of unrest and doubt, for the Committee is empowered to, and undoubtedly will, go into other vexed questions such as charity allocations, films graded for adult exhibition, and, perhaps no less significantly, the control of local authorities over seat prices and management rules.

This last factor is, of course, one which occupies the concentrated and perturbed attention of exhibitors in view of the tendency of other local authorities to follow the lead of the London County Council. The recent decision of the County Councils Association to circularize its members with the London County Council ruling, and the presence on the Advisory Committee of representatives of the Association, does not augur too happily for the trade.

The decision of the Home Secretary, Sir Samuel Hoare, immediately to consider the "non-flam" situation on the first afternoon of the Council's sitting, brings that vexed matter then to the forefront. Sir Samuel, stressing its urgency, proposes to continue the discussion at the next meeting in January, and to hear evidence from the various interested parties. The decision comes into synchrony with the CEA's current campaign against free shows and cheap entertainments. They will, of course, present their case for control to the Advisory Committee.

Free Shows a Problem

The present acute depression throughout the trade, further menaced by the extraordinary growth of free film shows staged by advertisers, local stores, uplift bodies, political parties, public house saloons and a myriad other enterprises, and the staging of shows of feature films by religious bodies in churches at an entrance fee of 2d and 3d a time, has given exhibitors acute cause for complaint, and they will continue to press for control of non-flam" shows most of which are given under circumstances which would not be possible or permissible, on grounds of public safety, with standard films, shows of which are stringently controlled under the 1909 Act.

"WRONG-WAY" FLIER EARNS $75,000

Douglas Corrigan, the former $50 a week aircraft mechanic who flew to Ireland via California, has earned $75,000 in three months, according to Associated Press, as a film star and as author of an autobiography.

The AP story said that Corrigan "is a busy fellow, salting away his overnight fortune, personally attending to all his financial affairs, working daily before the camera, and using his spare time on Sundays to reline the brakes on his 10-year old car.

"The magic-lantern town of Hollywood never saw his like before. There exist a few frugal stars, but only Corrigan lives in a low-priced hotel room, comes to the studio on a bus and lunches on a nickel ice-cream bar."

Any CEA deputation would stress the need for control on the grounds of public protection, emphasizing that whatever control is instituted, it should not be such as in any way to hinder the development or progress of the cultural film the spread of which, in schools and institutions, has been, thanks mainly to the relentless activity of exclusively trade organizations like Gaumont British Equipments and G. B. Instructional, nothing short of remarkable.

The imposition of any restrictive legislation, however, is likely to be contested with the utmost vigor by those bodies, organizations and groups directly associated with the "non-flam" film. These include cultural associations, religious bodies, industrial and commercial advertisers, political parties, churches and, not least significantly, the manufacturers. The opposition has recently mobilized itself into a solid front of defence which will also present the case against restrictive control to the Advisory Committee. The altruistic uplift nature of the block would seem to be pronounced. Its criticism of exhibitor pressure for control is that exhibitors are swayed by purely commercial considerations and that the real objective is the control, or even the stifling of competition.

Manufacturers Attacked

Exhibitors, however, have an immediate answer that the Sub-Standard Association, central body mobilizing the defense, is predominantly—if not exclusively—a group of manufacturers of apparatus and films, of producers, and of commercial 16 mm libraries.

The battle then takes on in some respects the trappings of an internal trade war, a war, if it can be termed such, impelled by conflicting trade interests.

Exhibitors may possibly hold the key to at least the commercial film show section of the problem. In one area, Bristol, they have replied to their critics by hiring out their halls for afternoon shows to various advertising organizations previously in competition with them. The commercial film is prominent in British picture theatres, and, it is stated by Harry Adley, chief of Younger Publicity Service, leading suppliers of commercial films to cinemas, that, provided the advertising or publicity film is of good technical standard and adequately entertaining, it has a chance of being shown in any brand of picture theatre, where naturally it secures a wider audience than would be possible in the sub-standard field. According to Mr. Adley thousands of British theatres, not only modest rural houses but supers, constantly collaborate in this regard with commercial advertisers.

Censorship Feared

It is not, however, the commercial advertiser who is in the front rank of the defenders of freedom so much as the uplift orginazations and radical bodies who fear censorship complications from an extension or tightening of control. At a recent conference immediately preceding the first meeting of the Advisory Committee, this section was vociferous and eloquent, stating that a case for safety could not only not be based upon censorship considerations, but that the question of censorship should not be dependent upon regards for public safety. The non-trade group is well aware that they will not necessarily have all the local authorities with them, and have not hesitated to express this fear. There are 780 odd licensing authorities involved, under whom, in the event of an extension of control, the licensing of 16 mm shows would come. The libertarians plead to the exhibitors against approving any extension of legislation which would result in a limiting of individual and commercial freedom.

At the pre-Committee conference a significant ally for the anti-control party was a representative of the Ministry of Agriculture, who feared it would interfere with Government propaganda.

The incorporation in the Act of the British Standards Institution definition of "non-flam" film would not seem to be improbable, and would undoubtedly please many and exasperate but few.

Newsreel Incident Discussed

Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to England, was criticized and defended in a Parliament debate last week in which Geoffrey Mander, Opposition Liberal, gave details of his frequent charges that the Government was using pressure on the press and newsreels. Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, denied accusations of Government influence for censorship but admitted, as he had before, that his office had called Mr. Kennedy's attention to the Paramount newsreel issue at the time of the Godesburg crisis in which Prime Minister Chamberlain's policies were attacked. The newsreel was subsequently cut. Withdrawal of the newsreel was termed "a great service to peace."

Regulation of "unfair" clearance schedules loomed as a possibility when both the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association and the Kinematograph Renters Society agreed at a joint conference this week that overlong clearance is harmful to both exhibitor and distributor.

A profit of $13,500 is recorded by Gainsborough Pictures for the year ended June 20th last, as against the loss in the previous year of $55,405. The balance from trading and sundry income amounted to $83,135. Interest, depreciation and amounts written off total $62,945.

At a meeting of the directors of the Western Electric Company held Tuesday, a dividend of 25 cents per share on its common stock was declared. The dividend is payable on December 28 to stock of record at the close of business on December 23.

Warners List 80% of "Angels" Showings As Exceeding Grosses of "Robin Hood"

Warner Brothers claim that in 80 per cent of the 214 day-and-date openings of "Angels with Dirty Faces" the receipts exceeded those on "Robin Hood", Warners' prior high gross product of the season. Typical of the "Angels" performances in their relation to "Robin Hood", playing the same theatres, are the grosses on the following 25 showings:

Theatre and City	"Angels" Gross	Amount Exceeding "Robin Hood"
Strand, Albany	$8,805	$26
Stanley, Utica	5,001	101
Metropolitan, Boston	27,889	1,126
Warner, Worcester	8,124	103
Chicago, Chicago	42,234	3,121
Victory, Dayton	7,121	135
Hippodrome, Cleveland	18,532	71
Warner, Youngstown	8,321	1,221
Mary Anderson, Louisville	7,032	18
Hollywood, Los Angeles	17,321	220
Downtown, Los Angeles	19,844	1,065
Warner, Memphis	8,866	1,232
Warner, Milwaukee	12,236	104
Roger Sherman, New Haven	9,531	102
Warner, Bridgeport	7,032	1,700
Orpheum, New Orleans	15,235	4,101
Branford, Newark	18,000	3,000
Stanley, Jersey City	18,081	4,092
Fabian, Paterson	11,177	3,123
Montauk, Passaic	7,931	1,181
Brandeis, Omaha	6,981	221
Penn, Pittsburgh	18,887	770
Fox, San Francisco	22,560	130
Fox, Oakland	14,170	2,186
Majestic, Providence	9,231	45

The marks set in many of the theatres are claimed as house records by the distributor, both for attendance and gross receipts.

500 Listed for Schine Dinner

Five hundred reservations from all fields of motion pictures, governmental and community life have been received for the testimonial dinner for Louis and J. Meyer Schine, up-state New York exhibitors, on the occasion of their silver anniversary, to be observed Monday evening at the Ten Eyck Hotel in Albany.

In connection with the dinner, sections have been reserved for the Schine Special, one leaving New York and the other Buffalo, on the day of the dinner. A section of the Commodore Vanderbilt will leave Grand Central Terminal at 4:20 P.M. Monday, arriving in Albany at 6:59 P.M. The Buffalo and western contingent will travel on the Empire State Express, leaving Buffalo at 1:30 P.M. and making stops at Rochester, Syracuse, Utica and a special stop at Fonda.

Official life is to be represented by Governor Herbert H. Lehman, United States Senator-elect James M. Mead, Congressman Frank Crowther, Assemblyman Denton D. Lake and the Mayors of Albany, Buffalo, Amsterdam and Schenectady.

Harry Hershfield will be toastmaster and Louis Nizer will be one of the principal speakers.

Among those who will attend the dinner from New York are Nate Blumberg, William A. Scully, H. J. Yates, Sr., James R. Grainger, Ned E. Depinet, George Schaefer, William F. Rodgers, T. J. Connors, Rube Jackter, Lou Weinberg, Bert Sanford, John Eberson, Edward Golden, George Weeks, George Dembow, Herman Robbins, Simon Fabian, Walter Reade, Jr., Willard McKay, L. W. Conrow, George L. Carrington, Jules Levy and Moe Streimer.

National Decency Legion Classifies Eight Films

Of eight pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week five were approved for general patronage and three were listed as unobjectionable for adults. The films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Frontiersman," "Little Orphan Annie," "Peck's Bad Boy with the Circus," "The Sunset Trail," "While New York Sleeps." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Disbarred," "Dramatic School," Sacrifice d'Honneur" (French).

Warners To Play National Anthem

As a result of an experiment in Warner theatres in Philadelphia and Newark, Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the circuit, has ordered "The Star Spangled Banner" played daily in all Warner theatres.

Regan Returns to Republic

After six months' absence because of "differences of opinion," Phil Regan is back at the Republic studios to make two pictures, according to his uncompleted contract, and possibly more under studio options.

Warners in Tieup With Legion Posts

As a result of requests from American Legion posts and other patriotic groups Warner Brothers has decided to establish an Americanization department to cooperate with those organizations in the showing of its historical short subjects.

Operation of the plan will be under supervision of Bob Taplinger, studio director of publicity, and the department will be headed by Jack Holmes, who has devoted past months to working with various patriotic and civic groups interested in the Warner shorts.

Holmes will go on tour to contact organizations desirous of screening patriotic subjects. The trip is to require several months and cover every big city in the country.

The next patriotic release, "Lincoln in the White House," is booked to have its world premiere in Radio City Music Hall in New York, where "Declaration of Independence" recently was given its initial public showing.

Other pictures in the series are: "The Man Without a Country," "Romance of Louisiana," "Give Me Liberty," "Song of a Nation."

by E. H. MAYER
in Cincinnati

"There are entirely too many individuals and groups criticizing the operation, and trying to dictate the policies, of the motion pitcure industry in its various branches from producer to exhibitor," declared Moses Wilchen, suburban exhibitor, in Cincinnati, in a 30-minute roundtable discussion on "Are the Movies a Source of Good or Evil," over WKRC, Columbia Broadcasting station, last Saturday night, in which Vice-Mayor Nicholas Klein, Charles D. Mervis, manager of the Rialto, downtown subsequent house, and Bettie Krasne, high school teacher, also participated.

"No other business or industry is thus hampered by outside interferences," Mr. Wilchen said. "People are constantly finding fault, regardless of the type or content of the story, and as a result the producers are confused as to what the public wants. This accounts to a large degree for the many and varied types of pictures being produced."

Speaking of the pictures produced for educational purposes, Wilchen said, "These have no permanent place in the scheme of things. Pictures are made for the masses, not the classes. People go to the theatre to be entertained, not to be educated in the strict sense of the term. They do not want to do any deep thinking in the theatre. If they want education, they will go to day or night school at our universities."

Asked by Klein whether he thought the happy ending should always prevail, Wilchen replied in the affirmative. "Otherwise," he said, "the illusion is ruined, and the patron often leaves the theatre with a 'bad taste in his mouth,' which not only spoils the picture for him, but often influences his future attendance."

Miss Krasne disagreed with this view on the ground that stories, instead of containing gross exaggerations and unrealities of life, or impossible situations, should mirror life as it exists, letting the ending come what may.

Calls Foreign Films Unprofitable

"There is no doubt that pictures are not 100 per cent perfect," Mr. Mervis said, "but they are constantly improving, and will continue to improve in proportion to the expressed desires of the public as to what it wants, if it knows. Stories should be kept down to earth. The 'masterpieces' are not sought after, as a rule."

Asked by Klein, who acted as a sort of "master of ceremonies," whether foreign-made pictures were desirable, Mervis said they were neither desirable nor profitable, excepting, perhaps, in situation with transient patronage.

Both exhibitors stressed the fact that star names were not always indicative of box-office success, citing specific recent releases which appealed widely without the benefit of outstanding stars, but based on simple, homespun stories or transcriptions from the books of yesteryear which were best-sellers in all sections of the country, while other films studded with big names, were decided box-office failures.

JUNIOR REVIEW GROUPS PICK "10 BEST" FILMS

Annual selection of the "ten best pictures" of 1938, made by the "4-Star Clubs," junior groups of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, places "Boys Town" at the head of the list. Following in order of prefence, were: "You Can't Take It With You," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Marie Antoinette," "Suez," "The Adventures of Robin Hood," "The Citadel," "Four Daughters," "In Old Chicago," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Memphis Meeting Reelects Williams

R. X. Williams of Oxford, Miss., was re-elected president of the semi-annual convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Arkansas, Mississippi, and Tennessee, on Sunday and Monday, in Memphis, attended by over 200 persons. Other officers elected were:

L. F. Haven, of Forest City, vice-president for Arkansas; W. F. Ruffin, of Covington, vice-president for Tennessee; W. S. Tyson, of Water Valley, vice-president for Mississippi. Directors named were, for Arkansas, Jess Norman of England, Cecil Cupp of Arkadelphia, M. S. McCord of North Little Rock, Sidney Wharton of Warren, W. L. Landers of Batesville, W. E. Blume of Searcy; for Tennessee, Joe Wheeler, M. A. Lightman, Howard Waugh, Fred Ford, of Memphis; for Mississippi, Earl Elkins of Aberdeen, Clyde Westbrook of Cleveland, Dave Flexner of New Albany, W. A. Rush of Houston.

National MPTOA president Ed Kuykendall outlined the 10-point trade practice program, and advised exhibitors to "stay out of courts" in their quarrels. Further in reference to the exhibitor-distributor program, Mr. Kuykendall stated that "for the first time" he felt optimistic of the outcome of the conferences.

Dave Palfreyman of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, detailed the structure of the Hays office, its workings and its origin.

Mr. Lightman boosted the newly organized Memphis Variety Club. Paramount's division manager, Oscar Morgan, stated for Paramount the company's willingness to enter into and to carry out any fair trade agreement arrived at.

Wisconsin ITPA Meet

Annual meeting will be held January 24-25 of the Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan.

The Milwaukee Common Council has authorized the appointment of a committee to consider reducing long film programs.

Agency to Aid Screen Actors' Guild Air Show

The cooperation of the J. Walter Thompson agency was assured for the Screen Actors' Guild radio program this week by Danny Danker, who said that artists under contract with the agency would be released for the SAG show "whenever the artist can be released without conflict in schedule or interest to our client and his program."

The SAG, under its contract with Gulf Oil Company which will sponsor the radio series, promised to have certain film stars appear on the show. A temporary difficulty arose when it was discovered that the Thompson agency had several of the top ranking performers under exclusive contracts.

The agency which had signed Carole Lombard for the Kellogg air show is understood to have objected to giving her a waiver to appear on the SAG program.

The SAG broadcasts will originate in the Columbia Broadcasting System's Hollywood studios. Leading producers and writers will assist in preparing and staging the programs, with the stars donating their services free in the interest of the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

The fees which customarily go to the artists, writers and producers will be turned over to the fund for use in building the proposed rest home for the aged and needy of the film industry.

The arrangements for the handling of the radio series have been consummated by Ralph Morgan, president of SAG; Jean Hersholt, president of Motion Picture Relief Fund, and Robert Montgomery, former president of SAG, and under the supervision of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer radio series, "Good News," has been renewed for 52 weeks by General Foods, the sponsor. The series, which started last year, is heard on Thursdays over 82 stations of the National Broadcasting Company's network, plus the Columbia Broadcasting network in Canada. The renewal becomes effective January 5, 1939. Benton and Bowles is the agency.

Another major Hollywood program which has been renewed for a year is the Chase and Sanborn hour, broadcast Sundays over a 59 station NBC network. J. Walter Thompson is the agency.

Will Rogers will be the subject of the "Cavalcade of America" dramatization to be heard Monday evening over the nationwide network of CBS.

SMPE To Vote on Longer Term for Vice-President

Ballots have been sent the membership of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers to record their stand on an amendment, proposed at the Detroit convention of the Society by James Frank, Jr., secretary, to put the executive vice-president on a two-year basis instead of one-year tenure of office.

Ask Church Censor Boards

The result of a month's study on the question, a report of the pedagogical committee of the Montreal Catholic School Commission is understood to advocate separate Catholic and Protestant school censor boards, to rule on films for children under 16.

Coast Continues Conferences on Wages-Hours

The Federal wages and hours law will require few changes at the Coast studios, said Pat Casey, producers' labor contact man, on the coast this week. Most of the studio employees, he indicated, are already within the provisions of the law. A 40-hour maximum work week obtains in the studios, following an agreement some time ago between the studios and various employes' associations.

In spite of this, conferences were being held by studio executives and lawyers to determine which employes, if any, may come under the law, and have their conditions of work changed, with only about 200 indicated as affected.

Meanwhile, in Washington last week, Acting Wage Hour Administrator Paul F. Sifton stated he did not consider radio stations or advertising agencies as service establishments, exempt from the act's provisions.

An interpretation of the law prepared in bulletin form by general counsel Calvin Magruder of the Labor Department's wage-hour division, states that not only do distributors and producers of motion pictures come under the law, but also the manufacturers of raw film stock.

A supplement to the bulletin states that the act applies to persons "engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce" and that it applies also to employes of any firm which "intends or hopes, or has reason to believe that the goods or any unsegregated part of them will move in interstate commerce."

Arguments by film industry lawyers that producers had no interstate responsibilities, once having passed title to purchasers in the state of production, have been of no avail, the department reiterating the Government's stand in other arguments, notably those relating to the National Labor Relations Board, that companies can be engaged in interstate commerce without directly shipping product across state lines.

Laboratories Under Law

It is seen that laboratories come under the law, inasmuch as the interpretation states that manufacturers of ingredients of articles which ultimately move in interstate commerce, are liable, as are also the processors of such commodities.

Exchange employes are obviously under the bill's provisions, as handlers of product moving in interstate commerce. Mr. Magruder's first ruling was that "employes who are an essential part of the stream of interstate commerce are deemed to be engaged in that commerce."

Meet on Law's Effect on Star Publicity Matters

Officials of the Screen Actors' Guild met last week with studio publicity directors to determine how far the new 48-hour week player's contract is affected by interviews, posing for still cameras, and personal appearances of players.

Fred Beetson, of the Motion Picture Producers, presided, assisted by press relations director Tom Pettey. Representing the SAG were Murray Kinnell and Lawyer John Dales. They were asked, among other things, just when overtime charges for players begin, under certain conditions.

Elsewhere on the Hollywood labor front, the screen readers are now asking recognition. Claiming to represent a majority of the screen readers in the eight majors, and to have a membership of 30, the Screen Readers' Guild filed a petition last week with the National Labor Relations Board, asking recognition as the bargaining agency for such workers.

LESSER TO REISSUE O'BRIEN PICTURES

Sol Lesser has announced that he will reissue four George O'Brien pictures which were at one time released through Twentieth Century-Fox. The films are: "The Dude Ranger," "When a Man's a Man," "Cowboy Millionaire" and "Hard Rock Harrigan." Fred McConnell, of Record Pictures, will handle the sale of these pictures. Record Pictures has announced bookings throughout the East for "Convicts at Large," and Herbert Wilcox's "The Gang."

Too Early for "One Big Union," Says Gillmore

Despite agreement by most of the heads of the member unions, that one "big union" would be desirable, last week's executive board meeting of the Association of Actors and Artists of America, produced only the declaration by president Frank Gillmore that such a consolidation at the present time would be "premature."

"Before going ahead with plans for consolidation, we must first set our present house in order," Mr. Gillmore said, pointing out that organization plans of the American Guild of Musical Artists and the American Federation of Radio Artists were the pressing problems of the moment.

Kenneth Thompson, secretary of the Screen Actors' Guild, had journeyed East last week for the meeting, to exchange information, and perhaps to participate in formation of the "big union." Understood to be the drawback preventing action is a loss of dues which would result from the combination. Reported anxious to consolidate anyway, heads of some branches are planning to act jointly with other unions of the "4-A's" in certain cities where small membership does not warrant the maintenance of a separate office.

AFA and Theatres Talk On New Vaudeville Contract

Closeted with representatives of the American Federation of Actors last week, to hear their demands for vaudeville theatres, were the following New York theatre executives: Charles Moscowitz, of Loew's; Major Thompson, of RKO; Jack Partington, of Fanchon and Marco; Irving Lesser, of the Roxy; Bob Weitman, of the Paramount; Frank Phelps, of Warners.

The actors are demanding a closed shop, a $60 weekly minimum for the principals.

Harry Calkins, eastern organizer, and treasurer Charles Mosconi represented the AFA in the discussions.

Exchange Union, Two IATSE Theatre Locals Elect

The New York Film Exchange Employes' Union, Local B-51, last week reelected as president Lou Johnson of the Loew exchange; elected Leo Braun, of Paramount, as vice-president; David Newman, of Warners, as secretary-treasurer; Gerald Lee, of Loew's, recording and corresponding secretary; Augustus Kubart, Loew's, sergeant-at-arms. Elected to the executive board were: Michael Orlando, 20th Century-Fox; Leonard Brooks, Warners; Selig Epstein, RKO; James Pope, Loew's; Victor Pepitto, Columbia; Conrad Forschner, Paramount; Frank Gollotto, Universal, and Harry Newman, United Artists. On the new board of trustees are: Perry Strow, Warners; Irving Damrauer, Columbia; Murray Engel, 20th Century-Fox.

In New Haven, Local 74 of the IATSE, elected John O'Connell president for the new year. Charles McBride was elected vice-president; Dan Cummings, business agent; Robert Watson, secretary, and Sam Wasserman, treasurer. These officers will be installed Christmas Day. Operator's Union Local 273 will install its new officers this Sunday. The whole IATSE membership will hold its annual ball for the benefit of the sick fund at the Hotel Bond in New Haven, January 27.

New IATSE officers elected in Seattle, Washington, ast week were: For Local 154 (projectionists), Harry Lampman, president; Andrew Evans, vice-president; Jay Brown, recording secretary; Robert Cameron, financial secretary; James McNabb, business agent; Frank Myers, treasurer; P. A. Snider and Donald Dvorak, members at large; Warren Smith, Frank Cook and Harry Cook, trustees.

Local 15, representing the stage employes, re-elected all officers as follows: Charles Crickmore, puresident; E. A. Clark, financial secretary; E. C. Booth, recording secretary; Colin Durie, treasurer; Basil Grey, business agent; Al McKay, sergeant-at-arms; Earl O. Gunther, Central Labor Council delegate.

Decision Due on Contract For Radio Talent

A decision is due this week by the American Association of Advertising Agencies, on a contract governing fair practices and minimum artists' pay, submitted last weekend by the American Federation of Radio Artists.

No discharge of artists and announcers, except for cause; no use of players and announcers except for live broadcasts, and then only with the approval of the agency and client by the principals and the Federation; assumption of responsibility by the client and agency for the defense of actors and announcers for civil or criminal suits resultant from their appearance in shows, and payment of all costs and judgments from such suits, by the client and agency—these are in the terms of the standard contract submitted, besides a scale of wages and hours.

In the submitted code of fair practices, the Federation obliges itself to keep its membership lists open to "all eligible" radio artists. However, it asks for a closed shop, demanding that agencies employ only AFRA members; that they use only AFRA contracts; that arbitrators settle all disputes; that the agencies do not transfer their responsibilities to the artist, or to some other party.

The Federation also asks that the contract, if approved, be effective till January 15, 1940.

"Ballerina" Rights Bought

Arthur Mayer and Joseph Burstyn have announced that Abraham J. Zimmerman, prominent Boston attorney, has purchased the New England territorial rights to their current French film, "Ballerina." Mr. Zimmerman also acquired the New England rights to the following Mayer-Burstyn product: "The Eternal Mask," "Lower Depths," "Club de Femmes," and "Generals Without Buttons."

Sarecky Leaves Universal

Barney Sarecky, associate producer at Universal since 1936, has resigned.

Fox Meet Discusses New Season Plans, Foreign Production

Plans for the new season; progress of the Sidney Kent Sales Drive; territorial sales policies; the projected production of pictures in France; new English production plans; problems arising from assumption of sales as well as physical distribution of Gaumont British films by Fox exchanges; speeches by the company's leading executives and outside luminaries; entertainment and previews of the company's latest and best product—these featured the five-day convention in Hollywood's Ambassador Hotel, from Monday through Thursday, of the 20th Century-Fox sales force.

Among those who addressed the convention were President Sidney Kent; Producer Darryl Zanuck; General Sales Manager Herman Wobber, who presided; Producers William Goetz and Sol Wurtzel, and Joseph Schenck, chairman of the board.

Present, in addition to the above, were division managers Edgar Moss, William Sussman, William J. Kupper, W. C. Gehring, Tom H. Bailey, George A. Roberts, Henry C. Ballance, Morton A. Levy, Clyde W. Eckhardt and Ward E. Scott; also J. P. O'Loghlin, William J. Clark, Jack Sichelman, Martin J. Moskowitz, Jack Bloom, Charles McCarthy, Roger Ferri, Harry Buxbaum, Joe Lee.

Outline Sales Policy

Among pictures screened for conventioneers were "Kentucky," "Tail Spin" and "Charlie Chan in Hollywood." Former was screened at the Carthay Circle theatre Wednesday, followed by a formal dinner, hosts of which were Mr. Schenck, Mr. Zanuck and Mr. Goetz. Governor A. B. ("Happy") Chandler of Kentucky was an honor guest.

Messrs. Schenck, Goetz and Wurtzel outlined for the convention the new sales policies for the coming year. Nominations were expected to be made for a new Kent Sales Drive leader. Presiding for the first time at an annual sales meet was general sales manager Herman Wobber, appointed this year.

Revealed previous to the convention was the news that all pictures scheduled through May on the Zanuck and Wurtzel programs have been completed.

The English production plans under discussion were for use of the GB-Gainsborough studios in England, under Robert Kane. Expected to be produced next year are eight pictures, at a cost of about $3,750,000. There may be exchange of talent and technicians between English studios and the coast.

The above is reported part of a new setup connected with the acquisition of GB sales and distribution by Fox in America. The details await completion of financial talks, but the general outline is expected to be as follows: Fox financing GB-Gainsborough production to about 50 per cent, possibly distributing such product in England, and here.

GB-Fox Transfer in Effect

The GB-Fox transfer in America went into effect Monday, with President Sidney Kent of 20th Century-Fox stating that it would mean economies for both companies, avoiding duplication of costs.

Vice-president Arthur Lee of Gaumont British Corporation of America, will retain his post, under a contract which has a year to go, and will probably work closely on sales policies with Fox. The GB company will retain its corporate identity for the sake of contracts still running, and other legal angles.

About 12 more pictures are still to be delivered by GB on its present season lineup.

Distribution of GB films in Canada is unaffected by the United States deal. Distributor in that country is Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., of which N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, is a principal.

Understood to be completed are the details of a French production plan for Fox, whereby four pictures yearly will be produced in that country by Andre Devene. They will be distributed in Europe by the Fox organization. Simone Simon will be starred in one picture, its cost probably being around $120,000. Also contemplated as a star is Charles Boyer. Whether Fox will distribute the pictures here, after dubbing or titling them in English, will be dependent on their quality. Fox home office foreign department on Wednesday professed ignorance as to the confirmation of the deal, but hinted that it is probably definite.

Dan Michalove, assistant to Sidney Kent, is due back here on January 9, after a visit to Australia, especially to the Hoyts Theatres, in which chain Fox has an interest. Michalove was accompanied by Irving Barry, of Skouras.

Describes "Time" Short on Refugees

Louis De Rochemont, producer and publisher of the March of Time, described the new March of Time release, "The Refugee—Today and Tomorrow," for the benefit of the 500 delegates assembled over the weekend at Utica, N. Y., for the convention of the New York State Emergency Conference of the United Palestine Appeal. Mr. De Rochemont spoke on "The Battle Against Propaganda."

"I need not emphasize to this gathering how necessary it is to present this problem accurately for the world and for civilization itself," Mr. De Rochemont asserted. "We will have 20 minutes to tell our story, and in this time we hope to set forth the problem of the refugee, the problem that a cruel intolerance has created."

Mr. De Rochemont stated that March of Time cameramen had traveled far to get the material; one man had spent nearly two months in Palestine; other had been to refugee camps in Holland and Switzerland. Still other scenes were photographed in Poland.

Mr. De Rochemont emphasized that doubles are not used, because "in the democracies" the producers of the short obtained the cooperation of news figures.

The speech was broadcast.

RKO's fourth quarter profit, it was estimated this week, will be approximately $375,000, the estimate being based on a prediction that the October total would be $250,000. The third quarter profit has been estimated at $100,000, and totals for the two periods are considered sufficient to overcome the $480,000 loss incurred in the first six months of the year.

Arthur C. Bromberg has signed a new five-year agreement for the distribution of Republic product through his five Southern exchanges. The deal was signed Wednesday by Mr. Bromberg, H. J. Yates and James R. Grainger in Republic home office. It virtually completes Republic's new franchise setup.

Replies Indicated Thus Far in 'Quiz' Less Than 100,000

With the field staffs dismissed, the Hollywood office closed, and the headquarters organization in New York reduced to a half-dozen clerks, under Harold B. Franklin, the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign is now winding up its affairs, as the deadline of December 31st approaches.

Winners of the $250,000 "Movie Quiz" contest, public highlight of the campaign, will be announced on January 15th. The exact number of answers received to date is not known. Mr. Franklin said it is running "in five figures," indicating that less than 100,000 persons have responded to the "million-dollar" motion picture "Quiz" advertisement to the public.

Mr. Franklin's skeletonized headquarters staff in New York is circularizing some 15,000 theatres with a questionnaire to determine the state of certain of their business methods, operations and income.

The headquarters' office some three weeks ago sent out the questionnaires, and to date is understood to have received some 3,000 replies. The general explanation was given that they are seeking through the questionnaire to determine to what extent each theatre participated in the campaign, and the net results. Questions on this subject were made secondary to questions on the conduct of the exhibitor's business. The owner, for example, is asked to specify the names of the distributors with whom he is doing business. He is asked, too, whether he plays double features, and why, and whether he has ever considered playing singles, and to mention the name of the newsreel he has bought, what stars have the best box office value, is business good or bad?

Executive members of the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign committee said Wednesday they were surprised that a questionnaire had been sent out to exhibitors, adding it was unauthorized.

"Americanism" Radio Program Broadcast from Hollywood

An elaborate propaganda program, dedicated to "Americanism" and entitled "America Calling," was broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company from Hollywood Wednesday evening. The program featured speeches by Paul Muni, Doctor Robert Millikan, president of the California Institute of Technology; Joseph Scott, Los Angeles attorney; Robert Taylor, and Frank Capra; a "tableau" depicting the "Hardy Family," with Lewis Stone, Fay Holden, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, and Ann Rutherford; a patriotic playlet directed by Mr. Capra, entitled, "Ship Forever Sailing," in which were heard James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Edward G. Robinson, Walter Connolly, Lionel Barrymore, and Edward Arnold; Judy Garland, and Meredith Wilson's orchestra in "a musical American flag"; Tony Martin singing Irving Berlin's specially composed song, "God Bless America"; Jeannette MacDonald singing "Star Spangled Banner"; and a benediction by the Most Reverend J. J. Cantwell, Archbishop of Los Angeles. The program observed the 147th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights.

New Circuit Formed

The Pix Theatre Circuit, Inc., of Gary, Ind., has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering 50,000 shares of $5 par class A common stock to be sold at a market price of $6 per share. The proceeds of the sale are to be used for purchase of three theatres in Kansas City, Mo., operation of the theatres and further acquisitions.

"Central Casting" To Open

"Central Casting," a play by Nicholas Cosentino, who also wrote "Moon Over Mulberry Street," will open at the Shubert theatre on December 13th for a week's engagement, before its Broadway opening, next month. The play is based on the life and actions of movie "extras."

Sunday Films in Two Towns

By a referendum vote of 6,688 to 5,077, Sunday films have been approved in Montclair, N. J. Mt. Lebanon, Pittsburgh suburb, also voted in favor of Sunday showings, by a large majority.

Trailer-Made, Inc., has closed a 10-year franchise for the Boston and New Haven territories with Ben Wilenski, who has formed Trailer-Made Service of New England, Inc.

Mitchell Leichter, Hollywood producer, is in New York to arrange for distribution with a major company of a series of 8 to 12 short subjects in color.

Butterfield Theatres will erect a new theatre in Lansing, Mich., shortly after the first of the year.

Monogram plans to build a new exchange in Chicago adjacent to the new Twentieth Century-Fox branch on Wabash Avenue. Work will start in January.

BRITISH CHILDREN FAVOR STARS OF HOLLYWOOD

Juvenile Preference These Days for Military and Naval Scenes, Odeon's Matinees Show

Buck Jones, Shirley Temple, Jane Withers and Tim McCoy are the four stars best liked by children in England, where pictures from the United States are restricted somewhat by quota legislation, and where the most important motion picture interests of late have been giving attention to the "internationalizing" of British films in attempts to gain wider audiences.

Completing a study of the likes and dislikes of 150,000 active members of Saturday morning children's film-matinee clubs in his 142 Odeon Theatres throughout England, Oscar Deutsch reports the greatest juvenile preference these days is for military and naval scenes, probably reflecting the psychological effect of England's recent preparedness activity, militaristically and otherwise, in connection with the headline "scares" and war talk.

Ninety-four per cent of the 150,000 children covered in the study like military and naval scenes, 90 per cent like airplane flights, 89 per cent "royalty" scenes, 83 per cent newsreels—and 88 per cent reported a definite dislike for "foreign dictators," 53 per cent of this number giving vent to their feelings by booing the dictators' appearances on their screens.

Organized Attendance

Mr. Deutsch's management says the organization of children matinees by the circuit has led to the largest group of children in film houses under unified control in the world.

Of the total attendance—most go to three out of every four Saturday morning shows—some 55 per cent (82,862), are boys, and 45 per cent (68,259) are girls. They range in age from 3 to 14 years. More than half have extra money to spend on sweets, at the theatre candy stand.

In the cartoon line, 97 per cent prefer the Mickey Mouse shorts of Walt Disney's; the same number prefer color cartoons to black and white.

The order of preference among children for feature films:

1. Western
2. Adventure (not Western)
3. Animal
4. Slapstick Comedy
5. Historical
6. Musical
7. Child Stars

Forty-two per cent of Odeon's managers consider Charles Chaplin still popular among children and 30 per cent reported Chaplin as unpopular, indicating that the circuit has been showing Chaplin reissues.

Seventy per cent of the managers consider that the feature film in a children's matinee should run between 56 and 65 minutes, and that the whole program should take from 90 to 109 minutes, with half of the managers favoring additional short films above the usual feature and single short. They consider that the additional shorts should be comedies.

The children like community-sing reels, mentioning 77 songs they prefer.

Eighty-three per cent of the managers said their local educational authorities had a favorable attitude toward the children's matinees, but 70 per cent explained they had not been able to obtain actual cooperation with any local authorities.

Of the top 13 "best liked" stars, all but two, Will Hay and George Formby, are from Hollywood, eight of them appearing in Westerns and outdoor "adventures," indicating the strong preference for that type of film. The top 13 rank as follows (asterisk (*) indicating British players):

Star	Points
Buck Jones	216
Shirley Temple	143
Jane Withers	101
Tim McCoy	93
Ken Maynard	38
*Will Hay	24
Tarzan	24
Gene Autry	20
John Wayne	16
Bob Steele	12
*George Formby	10
Laurel & Hardy	9
Jack Hoxie	9

Eighty-three per cent of the children report they never are frightened by cartoons, and 61 per cent never are frightened by incidents in serials. (The "scary" witch sequences in Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" occasioned some adverse comment among British authorities on its release.)

From general comment by the managers, Odeon learned that all feature films offered at children's matinees should first be carefully re-edited—"every unnecessary line of dialogue, every inconsequential scene likely to hold up the action, should be eliminated."

"Children's preference in films seems to be simply and wholly in 'action.' As long as there is something happening, they like it; dialogue to them is a complete waste of time."

Pickett Testimonial

John T. Pickett, who had been assistant manager at Fabian's Proctor Theatre in Troy, New York, for the past nine years, was tendered a dinner at the Elks' Club last week upon his retirement. Fabian executives, Troy exhibitors and every major company branch manager from Albany's film row was in attendance, as were many from Schenectady. Mr. Pickett will enter the insurance business.

Schaefer to New York

George Schaefer, president of RKO Radio, arrives in New York next Monday from the coast. Mr. Schaefer had held preliminary studio conferences, and plans to return the latter part of January for further product discussions.

Tim Holt, the son of Jack Holt, has been signed to an RKO term contract for possible grooming as an action series star.

Loewenberg in Publicity Post

Charles Loewenberg, associated with the film industry for more than 25 years, has been named advertising and publicity executive of Fox theatres in Wisconsin. He has been serving as supervisor of the circuit's south side theatres where he is succeeded by Lowell Parmentier, manager of the Paradise in West Allis.

3,000 Stand on Broadway to See Shaw's Picture

George Bernard Shaw, the "second Bard of Avon," socalled, came to the screen of Broadway this week, with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's presentation of his play "Pygmalion," British-made, at the Astor Theatre.

Admitted by Metro to contain "a series of special problems" in promotion, Howard Dietz, MGM advertising-publicity director, for the opening "stressed the popular theme of the film to offset the danger of scaring off those to whom 'Pygmalion' and Shaw's reputation were too highbrow-sounding."

Playing to Capacity

The results were a suspension of ticket selling five times on Thursday, the opening day, and the stopping of ticket sales several times over the weekend, with the 844-seat Astor playing to 26,500 persons in the first four days, capacity houses throughout plus some 3,000 "standing-room-only" payees during the 28 performances of the four days.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of MGM, set the Astor showing as a test. He felt that the picture deserved strong American presentation, but wondered whether it would stand up as a road show, or whether it would have any market at all on general release. Accordingly, he decided on a new releasing arrangement—special engagements in metropolitan centers at popular prices—25 to 55 cents—for indefinite runs.

MGM said Tuesday that it believed that the plan as tested at the Astor will work. This, of course, again throws open the question of zoned metropolitan audiences, for whom special-appeal pictures can be shown "without worry about being too highbrow for subsequent run."

The only known star value for publicity purposes at the Astor opening was Leslie Howard. Gabriel Pascal, the film's producer, was comparatively unknown here, but he was extensively publicized as the "hobo producer" whom Mr. Shaw had singled out for endowment with screen rights to his work after refusing all the big Hollywood names and offers. Arrival of Mr. Pascal in New York, and later of Leslie Howard, was the signal for a double barrage of interviews. (The British campaign was hardly applicable here. It concentrated on the "bright hope" of British production, on Wendy Hiller, and on the London stage names who play minor parts but are practically unknown here.)

Mr. Shaw, himself, contributed a trailer in which he described his work as "magnificent" and urged Americans to see it "at least 20 times."

Publicity stories stressed the popular theme, and daily releases were so worded as to carry the style and general tenor—and wherever possible, direct quotations—of Shaw. Ads were built around caricatures of Shaw, his quotations and barbed criticisms.

Monday night, in the Grand Ballroom of New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer held the finals of the national "Great Waltz" contest, run in conjunction with their picture of the same name. The 12-zone winners competed, with first prize, a three-month contract at the company' studio, going to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence Smith of Brooklyn.

Preceding the contest, judged by dance teachers, a show was presented, with proceeds, about $3,500, donated by MGM to the American Red Cross. Deems Taylor, music critic, was master of ceremonies. The performers included Bill Robinson, the Albertina Rasch ballet, Paul Draper, Allan Jones, Kitty Carlisle and Paul Haakon.

Among the several hundred persons present were Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Schenck, Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Rubin and Mr. and Mrs. David Bernstein.

BEST SELLERS AND RENTERS

The outstanding success in fiction at the moment is "Rebecca" by Daphne du Maurier, followed by A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel" which has been among the leaders these many months. "My Son, My Son!", the Howard Spring novel, the screen rights of which have been purchased by Edward Small Productions, leads the best renters and is third on the best sellers' list. Following are the leaders in both classifications, according to the monthly listings of "Ten Bests" in The Retail Bookseller, house organ of The Baker & Taylor Co., New York.

Ten Best Sellers

(Based upon a count of sales from September 12th to October 12th)

Goldgraben in New Post

Harold Goldgraben of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer home office has taken over the position of office manager at the New York exchange. He succeeds Douglas Peck, who has been transferred to the home office checking department. Mr. Goldgraben has been with the company 10 years as a theatre and traveling branch auditor.

Adele Nathan with GN

Adele Gutman Nathan, author, stage director and public relations counsel, has been appointed eastern story editor for Grand National by J. H. Skirball, vice-president in charge of production.

1937 Canadian Film Year Is Best Since 1930

Attendance at film theatres of Canada reached the highest point since 1930 and revenue was the greatest since that peak year, the report for the 12 months of 1937 by the Department of Trade and Commerce for Canada shows. Paid admissions at the 1,047 theatres last year totaled 134,374,061 as compared with 127,441,574 for the previous year, while receipts mounted to $32,499,300 against $29,610,300 for 1936 and $37,479,500 for the all-time record in 1930.

The annual payroll for 1937 was reported at $5,627,300, compared with $4,928,700 for the previous year when the number of theatres in operation was 959, or 88 less than on December 31st last. In 1935, the number of theatres in the Dominion was 862, an increase in the two years of 185.

Ontario headed the list of provinces with receipts in 1937 of $14,457,000 for 356 theatres, compared with revenue of $12,888,400 in 1936. All provinces showed gains in receipts with the exception of Saskatchewan, where grain production has been hard hit by drought, the revenue for the Prairie Province dropping to $1,351,000 from $1,369,300.

The expenditure for film entertainment per person in British Columbia was $4.82 in 1937 compared with $4.31 in 1936 and $6.05 in 1930, this being the highest figure for any section of the Dominion. The average per person in Ontario was $3.90 last year and $3.49 in 1936.

With 88 new theatres coming into operation, seating capacity was increased by 35,410 to 601,611 one year ago, according to the Government statistics. The 1,047 theatres were given a physical valuation of $67,538,400 for property and equipment, the average theatre valuation being $64,500.

Erpi Introduces New Directional Microphone

The new 'Cardioid directional" microphone, recently developed by Western Electric, gives the pickup engineer in picture production "positive control over the direction of sound," according to Electrical Research Products, Inc., which has announced the new product to the motion picture industry.

Directional properties are said to be equally good for the lowest bass and the highest overtones, a heretofore unattainable result. An example of the way in which the instrument can function is given by its proponents in a hypothetical example of a symphony orchestra being filmed and recorded. With the new microphone, the individuality of the separate choirs, and even the separate instruments, may be made to stand out clearly.

The "dead zone" which exists behind the microphone when in use, is so pronounced, it is declared, that the instrument may be used near a wall. It is asserted that this will mean considerable "working area" added to the average sound stage.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Seasonal Activity

Practically all major and independent organizations are working at top speed and only at RKO-Radio might new activity be described as slack. Eight pictures were started during the second week of December and eleven were finished.

Republic and Warner Brothers, both of which started three productions, vied for honors as the busiest studios. Most important of the Warner starting lot is "Broadway Cavalier," a comedy romance. Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell and Wayne Morris head the player list with May Robson, Sidney Toler, Maxie Rosenbloom and Jane Wyman in support. Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane along with Tom Kennedy, John Miljan and Joseph Downing, will be seen in a topical mystery comedy, "Torchy Runs for Mayor." The third picture, "Smashing the Money Rackets," a crime melodrama, will feature Ronald Reagan and Rosella Towne.

The three new Republic efforts embrace a wide range of entertainment. In "Pride of the Navy," a comedy romance with a service background, James Dunn, Rochelle Hudson, Horace MacMahon, Gordon Oliver, Franklin Parker and Gordon Jones will be seen. Although the cast has not been completed Gene Autry, Walter Miller and Gordon Hart will be the principals in "Ridin' the Range." The players in "Dr. Judith Randall" are Frieda Inescort, Henry Wilcoxon and Claire Dodd.

MGM started "Women in White." It will present Florence Rice, Alan Marshall, Kent Taylor, Jean Carmen, Una Merkel, Buddy Ebsen, Jessie Ralph and Judith Allen.

"The Saint Strikes Back," melodramatic mystery, started at RKO-Radio. George Sanders, Wendy Barrie, Barry Fitzgerald, Jerome Coan and Neil Hamilton are the important players.

Three at Warners

Three pictures were completed at Warners. Two of them are big picture potentialities. "The Oklahoma Kid," an elaborate western, will star James Cagney, feature Rosemary Lane, Donald Crisp, Humphrey Bogart and Hugh Sothern and present Ed Pawley, Ward Bond, Lew Harvey, Trevor Bardette, Robert Steange, Granville Bates and Charles Middleton. Star of "Dark Victory" is Bette Davis. The supporting company includes George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Ronald Reagan, Henry Travers, Dorothy Peterson, Cora Witherspoon, Virginia Brissac, Charles Richmond, Dottie Williams, Herbert Rawlinson, Leonard Mude and Ray Helm. In "Nancy Drew, Reporter," Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas, Astrid Allwyn, Leonard Mude, John Litel, Thomas Jackson, Frank Mayo and Mary Lee will be seen.

Republic finished two productions. Ralph Byrd, Mary Carlisle, George Hayes, Marvin Stephens and Robert Allen will be featured in "Fighting Thoroughbreds." Cast of "Mysterious Miss" includes Michael Whalen, Mary Hart, Chick Chandler, Regis Toomey, Mabel Todd, Don Douglass, Wade Bateler, Dorothy Tree and Frank Thomas.

Twentieth Century-Fox also finished two. Loretta Young, Warner Baxter, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero, George Barbier, Eugene Pallette, J. Edward Bromberg, Helen Westley, Ruth Terry, Harry Rosenthal, Edward Cooper, Iva Stewart, Alice Armond, Doroth Dearing, Kay Griffith and Helen Ericson will be seen in "Wife, Husband and Friend." Preston Foster and Lynn Bari will be the principals in "Chasing Danger," which will also feature Wally Vernon, Henry Wilcoxon, Joan Woodbury, Harold Huber and Tony Merlo.

Columbia finished "Racketeers." It will present Alan Baxter, Jacqueline Wells, Joseph King, Gordon Oliver, Willard Robertson, John Tyrell, Ed Featherstone, Dick Curtis, Harry Strong, Joseph Caits, Eddie Laughton, George Taylor and Stanley Brown.

Grand National Release

With Anna Sten starred, Frenke Productions finished "Exile Express" for Grand National release. The unusual name value cast includes Alan Marshall, Jerome Cowan, Jed Prouty, Walter Catlett, Stanley Fields, Leonid Kinskey, Irving Pichel, Harry Davenport, Addison Richards, Feodor Chaliapin, Spencer Charters, Byron Foulger, Etienne Girardot, Henry Roquemore, Vince Barnett and Maude Eburne.

"Stand Up and Fight" was finished at MGM. Robert Taylor, Wallace Beery, Florence Rice, Helen Broderick, Charles Bickford, Charley Grapewin, Barton MacLane, Robert Gleckler, Jonathan Hale, Minor Watson, Claudia Morgan, John Qualen, Clinton Rosemond, Cy Kendall, Paul Everton and Selmer Jackson are the star and principal support players.

In Paramount's "Never Say Die," a comedy, Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Andy Devine, Gale Sondergaard, Alan Mowbray, Ernest Cossart, Paul Harvey and Siegfried Rumann will be seen.

BLUEGRASS PREMIERE GIVEN "KENTUCKY"

All the formality of a big scale premiere surrounded the press review of the Twentieth Century-Fox production, "Kentucky," at the Carthay Circle on the evening of the 14th. Dress was obligatory and the Messrs. Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl Zanuck and William Goetz entertained, following the preview, at the Trocadero Cafe.

This was the nature of a new high for press previews and there were reasons. For one, Mr. Zanuck thinks extremely well of "Kentucky," well enough to have invited Governor A. B. Chandler of that state, his Lieutenant Governor and the Mayors of various Kentucky cities to come to Hollywood to see it. Present also, of course, were Sidney Kent and other home office executives of the company, here for sales and product conferences with division and branch managers, and one Irving Berlin, composer, whose "Alexander's Ragtime Band" was previewed almost as gloriously as "Kentucky" and whose follow-up on the same, if one can be worked out, will be unveiled under even more candle-power. A review of "Kentucky" will appear in next week's edition.

Guns Apoppin'

Anyone venturing into Hollywood and environs nowadays might think that by some queer quirk of fate he had been miraculously transported to war-torn Spain or China. From the sound of things hereabouts there's as much shooting and bombing going on as there is in those strife shattered domains.

Paramount is only one of the companies which is keeping munitions makers busy. On location and on the stage Cecil B. DeMille's "Union Pacific" reechoes to the popping of rifles and pistols and dynamite blasts. Bombs have dropped all over the "Hotel Imperial" set. The sharpshooters in Harry Sherman's "Heritage of the Desert" are having a grand time.

Peaceful San Fernando Valley, where Messrs. Warner hold forth, has been given a pretty good imitation of any no man's land. The numbers of bullets fired in "Oklahoma Kid," "Juarez" and "Dodge City" would provide plenty of sound effects for any of those South American revolutions that O. Henry used to delight in describing. The heros and bad men in Walter Wanger's "Stagecoach" have shot tons of make believe bullets at each other.

Columbia has been roaring to the sound of machine gun and pistol fire, with an occasional pineapple grenade to vary the monotony as a couple of crime melodramas and a G-man picture or two have been under way. The blasts heard in Culver City are caused by the bombs dropping on the "Idiot's Delight" sets.

Monogram Writers

Planning its heaviest production program in several years, Monogram presently has nine writers working on original stories and screen plays. With three pictures definitely slated to start before Christmas, five more have been earmarked for production immediately after the first of the new year.

Scott Darling is preparing the screenplay of "Mr. Wong at Headquarters," which will star Boris Karloff in the second of the "James Lee Wong" series. Ray Trampe, who collaborated with Norman S. Hall on the original story, is doing the screen play for "Boys' Reformatory," which will feature Frankie Darro and which Lindsley Parsons will produce. E. B. Derr has Jack Neville busy on the screen play of "The Star Reporter," which will be John Carroll's next film.

The story for the third Jackie Cooper Monogram picture, "Streets of New York," is being written by Harold Andrews. "Navy Girl" is receiving the literary attention of Harvey Gates and Marion Orth is working on "Freckles Comes Home."

An untitled Jack Randall picture is being written by Robert Emmett and William Nolti is finishing up Tex Ritter's next picture, "Sundown on the Prairie."

Cowdin, Blumberg to New York

J. Cheever Cowdin, Universal board chairman, is expected to arrive in New York, after a trip to the coast, on Friday, as is Nate Blumberg, president of the company, who stopped in Chicago on his way east.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

The Romantic Vernon Castles

(Tentative)

(RKO Radio)

True Life Romance

The picture is based on the life story of the famous dancers, Vernon and Irene Castle. It will trace the love story of the pair who revolutionized ballroom and stage dancing, their struggle to win success in America and abroad, their fame and happiness which was shattered by Vernon's untimely death in 1918 in an airplane crash in Fort Worth, Texas, while serving as a flying instructor in the World War.

The principal locales are New York City, New Rochelle, N. Y., Paris, Hollywood and Fort Worth. Some of the elaborate bits of production detail will recall the Cafe Louis in Paris, Restaurant Sans Souci in New York and the famous Castles-By-The-Sea Ballroom on Long Island.

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers will reenact the life story of the Castles. Lew Fields, of the Weber and Fields team, who gave Vernon Castle his first chance, will be in the cast. Walter Brennan will be seen in the role of the faithful butler whom Mrs. Castle's writings have made almost as famous as herself and husband, and Edna May Oliver will appear as the chambermaid who turned agent and really made the Castles a success.

A sort of Samuel Goldwyn influence is traceable as the picture proceeds through the various production stages. The producer, George Haight, learned his trade under the Goldwyn guidance via association with such pictures as "Beloved Enemy," "These Three," "Goldwyn Follies" and "Adventures of Marco Polo." The director, H. C. Potter was similarly associated in "Beloved Enemy' and "The Cowboy and the Lady."

It might be noted that there will be but one modern musical number in the piece, the main harmonic content having to do with such old-time numbers as "In My Merry Oldsmobile," "Too Much Mustard," "Row, Row, Row," "Every Little Movement," "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," "Missouri Waltz," "Pretty Baby" and "Its a Long Way to Tipperary."

Release date: To be determined.

Idiot's Delight

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Romance, Comedy and Melodrama

Probably no subject which has engaged Hollywood attention of late has aroused as much discussion as Robert E. Sherwood's "Idiot's Delight." For a time the planned production threatened international complications. However, all matters have been adjusted.

The stage play in which Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine were starred won the Pulitzer prize. The screen play, which Sherwood did, parallels the book and play. But Sherwood, who is noted for the manner in which he creates vivid characters, pointed dialogue and swift action ("Petrified Forest," for example) has written in a new start and, taking advantage of the wider possibilities of the modern camera, has amplified and clarified the relationships among the several characters, especially the hero and heroine.

Clark Gable and Norma Shearer will play the leading characters. Their latest co-starring film was "A Free Soul." Gable recently was in "Too Hot To Handle" and "Test Pilot." Miss Shearer starred in "Romeo and Juliet" and "Marie Antoinette." Gable will sing and dance in Idiot's Delight." A strong and notable cast has been chosen to support the stars, among them Edward Arnold, in "You Can't Take It With You"; Joseph Schildkraut, in "Suez" and "Marie Antoinette"; Burgess Meredith, in "Spring Madness"; Charles Coburn, in "Lord Jeff," Pat Paterson, Peter Wills, an English import who makes his American debut in "Dawn Patrol"; Laura Hope Crews, Skeets Gallagher, Edward Raquello, Fritz Feld and William Edmonds.

The producer-director team of Hunt Stromberg and Clarence Brown, which was responsible for "Wife vs. Secretary," "Ah Wilderness," "Chained" and "Letty Lynton," again has combined forces to turn out "Idiot's Delight."

The plot combines all the elements of a romantic love story, a theatre life comedy and a war melodrama. It opens in Omaha, where vaudevillian Gable meets the mysterious Miss Shearer, working in an acrobatic act. There is an interlude of six years and the locale shifts to Europe, where Gable is touring with his musical show. On rumors of war, they are stopped at a frontier post and again he meets Miss Shearer. She is now a countess and companion of Arnold, a munitions manufacturer. The strange gathering of persons in the hotel, who want to cross the border but can't, reacts variously to news of an air raid.

Release date: To be determined.

Newsboys' Home

(Universal)

Action Melodrama

Just about all other kinds of newspaper people, publishers, editors and reporters, have been glorified or otherwise made prominent on the screen. But the one with whom the public most comes in contact, the newsboy, has, heretofore been pretty effectively ignored. Usually he has been a clip shot character, just like the rolling presses, standing on a street corner, possession of which he has sometimes had to fight for, bawling the latest sensational headlines.

However, in "Newsboys' Home," a "sheet hustler" will be the hero. In the main the story to be told will have to do with the blood and thunder circulation wars that used to be waged a generation or so ago.

Jackie Cooper last in "That Certain Age" and "Gangster's Boy," is the top cast name. Others are Edmund Lowe, noted above everything else for his long ago "sez you—sez me" characterizations, Wendy Barrie now in "Pacific Liner" with Loew's erstwhile protagonist, Victor McLaglen, Edward Norris previously seen in "They Won't Forget" and "Boys Town," Elisha Cook, Jr., now in "Submarine Patrol" and "The Little Tough Guys."

Gordan Kahn wrote the original and collaborated with Charles Grayson on the screen story. H. C. Potter who made "The Storm" and "Little Tough Guys" is the director.

Release date: December 23, 1938.

Union Pacific

(Paramount)

Empire Building

Cecil B. DeMille, who has made many great spectacular pictures, never before so thoroughly prepared one as he has "Union Pacific." It will tell the story of the building of a railroad, the Union Pacific, first to span the continent to the Rockies in a race with the builders of the Central Pacific. Great things, melodramatic, romantic and heroic, happened when the first rails were laid across the prairies and deserts. It might be said that "The Iron Horse" pictured them long ago. But a new generation has grown up since that famous picture was made, and the older generations have forgotten.

The rival construction crews are waging a spirited race; blackguards in the employ of each are doing all they can to impede the completion of the other, but herein the builders of the Union Pacific will be made heroes and those of the Central Pacific will be castigated. Running parallel to the action is an equally stirring story of conflicting romance, a story of men and women who loved greatly and hated mightily.

Thousands of players will be seen grouped in those demonstrations of thrilling spectacle for which DeMille is famous. Production detail will carry audiences back to the days and locales when the roads were building.

For principal name value, "Union Pacific" will have Joel McCrea, Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Preston, Lynne Overman, Akim Tamiroff, William Haade and Brian Donlevy.

Release date: To be determined.

Fighting Thoroughbreds

(Universal)

Race Horse Romance

Horse sense is a byword, but had there never been such a biological phenomena as horse sex there probably would have been no occasion for "Fighting Thoroughbreds." A famous stud horse breaks loose from his stall one night and pays a visit to a mare. The respective owners have long been at odds and the equine clandestine event is just so much kerosene tossed on the flames.

The foal, out of the mare by the racing champion stud, grows up to become a derby champion despite the fact that it was helped into the world not by a veterinarian but by a doctor of medicine and breaks a leg sometime during its formative years. The colt, of course, has a tough time and so do the humans who are a part of the story, but when he hits the tape a winner, everybody, even those who were enemies, are happy. Armand Schaefer, who is producing the picture, and his director, Sidney Salkow, trust that those who see the story on the screen will be happy, too.

The horses concerned are not identified, but Ralph Byrd, Paramount's Mary Carlisle, Harry Sherman's George Hayes of "Hopalong Cassidy" repute, the "Jones Family's" Marvyn Stephens and Robert Allen, ex-Columbia and ex-20th Century-Fox are the principal representatives of the human element.

Clarence E. Marks and Robert Wyler wrote the original story.

Release date: December 23, 1938.

A Christmas Carol

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

The Charles Dickens Story

Merry Christmas, all ye Ladies and Gentlemen of the theatre, and may each and every one of you find a print of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "A Christmas Carol" in your stocking on Christmas morn.

This is the special holiday wish your Hollywood Bureau has for you this very special year, for "A Christmas Carol" is an extraordinarily special motion picture and there have been persistent rumors to the effect that an uncommonly large number of the world's people are in somewhat special need of exactly this right now.

Of course there are not enough prints to fill all your stockings (and make a note, if you're not among the fortunate, to enter your 1939 order early). Working at full blast, the spacious Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer laboratory has tunrned out 275 copies (as of December 10th) and the efficient Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer distribution machinery has been pushed to utmost resourcefulness to arrange bookings so that these will serve the mathematically maximum number of showmen during the pre and post-Christmas weeks. This totals quite a lot of exhibition hours, but the picture is, if there ever was one, a valid argument for the bicycle as standard cinema equipment.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production of "A Christmas Carol" is, as subcaptioned above, the Charles Dickens story. That is to say, it is not a modernized version of the Charles Dickens story, nor a streamlined version, an "interpretation," an approximation nor, for that matter, what is commonly referred to as a "Hollywood" version. With an understanding and appreciation of public attitude seldom matched in the history of the art, Mr. Joseph L. Mankiewicz has produced a film which any and all lovers of the Dickens classic may and must relish as a direct, literal and meticulously authentic transcription of the story from printed page to living screen. Mr. Edwin L. Marin has directed his players with no less loyalty to the Dickens characters and Mr. Hugo Butler's screen play follows the Dickens text like a shadow.

What these three gentlemen have done is a rare thing. They have given to the job of screening a revered English classic a singularly uncommon reverence. Mr. Dickens didn't write "A Christmas Carol" for the screen and so didn't fit it out with a sequence of crises building steadily toward a towering climax. He didn't equip it with intricate subplots and optional meanings. He didn't strain after plausibility, punch—any of the things film makers fight for. Neither did the Messrs. Mankiewicz, Marin and Butler. Some other three—almost any other three—might have tried to glamorize the subject. These three contented themselves with translating it, faithfully, veraciously, and rate a special place in the year's record of artistic achievements therefor.

Something of the same fidelity to a great work shines through the performances of the players. Reginald Owen is a convincing "Scrooge," perhaps a more convincing one than Lionel Barrymore, originally cast for the part, might have been, the Barrymore personality being so indelibly Barrymore. Gene and Kathleen Lockhart play "Bob and Mrs. Cratchit" as if living them. Terry Kilburn's "Tiny Tim" is straight from the pages of the book.

The picture is, of course, for the holiday season, this one or the next or any subsequent one. It is a superb piece of product, on any basis of estimate, and a considerable ornament to the art-industry responsible for it. It is made to order for any theatre in Christendom.

"A Christmas Carol" was previewed at the Village theatre in Westwood, California, on the evening of December 8th. On the afternoon of that day the thermometer in Hollywood stood for two hours at 92, breaking all previous December records. People came to the preview from beach, tennis court and shower stalls—and 30 seconds after the picture started they were shivering in a snow-covered London they believed in utterly. The production is that good. —WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Dawn Patrol

(Warner Bros.)

War Aviation

The 1938 version of "Dawn Patrol" has a proud tradition to uphold. The first "Dawn Patrol" released in 1930, based on a story conceived by John Monk Saunders, transcribed into screen play form by Seton I. Miller and Dan Totheroh, made screen history. Its memory is not yet dimmed. The present production, starring Errol Flynn, featuring Basil Rathbone, David Niven, Donald Crisp, Melville E. Cooper and a host of lesser known players, does not tarnish that memory.

Today's "Dawn Patrol" is second to no aviation picture in entertainment commercial merit. It is equally as good as any war story. Devoid of any romance other than that which concerns flying soldiers who live robustly and die heroically, it endows the "Men Without Women" premise with a new glamorous appeal.

In character "Dawn Patrol" is gruesome, but it is that gruesomeness that hits human emotions with powerful impact. Under the skillful direction of Edmund Goulding, made vividly real by the expert work of the featured and support players, the picture makes no concessions to anything that might suggest that war is a glorious adventure.

The plot is simple. Dangerous missions are the lot of a British aviation squadron patrolling World War front lines. Its major, "Brand," hates his duty that forces him to send raw recruits out with "Courtney" and "Scott," veterans who always return as the replacements are shot down. He accepts his assignment to another post with joy, ironically sympathizes with "Courtney," the ace, who succeeds him. That horror that was "Brand's" is forcefully brought home to "Courtney" when he must send other youths out to death. It kills his spirit almost when he has to send his pal "Scott's" inexperienced brother on a patrol from which he does not return. His patrol ordered to destroy an enemy troop concentration point, rail head and ammunition dump, "Courtney," drinking "Scott" into drunkenness, takes the solo job himself. In a spectacular episode, one of many sensational incidents shown, he completes the mission. When he does not return the duty of sending other fledgling flyers out to death falls upon "Scott."

The showmanship of "Dawn Patrol" is simply that which accrues to any great war aviation story of dangerous personal adventure that features players of the repute of those here presented. One needs really to go back to "The Big Parade," "What Price Glory," "Hell's Angels," the first "Dawn Patrol" or any of their equals that have appeared in the intervening years to find similar interest arousing qualities in a picture of this type.

competent support performances and Alexander Hall, directing for associate producer B. B. Kahane, keeps an intricately integrated series of sequences honed to fine edge. For half the distance comedy of extremely infectious variety is to the fore, and then the picture turns melodramatic, without keeping the audience in the dark as to who's doing the dirty work, with the comedy cutting into the criminality to the profit of both. Showmen can offer it as comedy, as melodrama or as both without hesitancy.

The oncoming Mr. Douglas, personally active of late in other than acting matters and acquiring quite a press, has a role to his measure as the private detective whose wife is a little too helpful. Miss Bruce, who gets no chance to sing, suggests Miss Loy and Miss Lombard alternately but is mostly Miss Bruce and extremely effective as the wife.

The screen play is by Philip G. Epstein, James Edward Grant and Ken Englund from a story by Gladys Lehman based on a work by Wilson Collison. That sounds like a lot of writers for one story, but this one is a lot of story. Not to try telling on one typewriter what they told on five, it may be set down that the detective has been hired to find out who is stealing jewelry, a piece at a time, from a jewelry store located at Fifth Avenue and 50th Street in New York City, and that he does find out, with the inadvertent aid of an incautious wife, after a pair of murders and assorted minor adventures.

The affair takes place in New York City as of now and what happens could happen about this way in about that place.

Duke of West Point

(U.A.-Small)

Service Romance

Edward Small resumes his production career with a picturesque and interesting story of cadet social and sport life at West Point. While the film depends heavily on dialogue as an interpretative medium, exciting sequences and spectacular episodes are not lacking. The plot basis rests on the traditionally rigid honor system through which the cadets govern themselves. Consequently most of the action concerns the cadets. But the required romantic love interest has not been ignored.

Although a great many players are presented the main responsibility for carrying the story rests upon Louis Hayward, Tom Brown, Richard Carlson, Charles D. Brown and Joan Fontaine. All are natural and convincing in their roles with Hayward, who has a rather difficult character to portray, appearing to good advantage.

Substantiating production detail giving an intimate inside view of cadet scholastic, dormitory and personal life with plenty of marching pageantry included, the theme concerns itself with a plebe who got off to cadet life on the wrong foot. Fresh from Cambridge "Steve Early" is considered very fresh by upper classmen. A cocky fellow, he has supreme confidence in his class room, athletic and romantic abilities. He proves himself by becoming top man in his classes; a sensation on the football field and by moving in on "Strong's" girl friend, "Ann."

Making it possible for "West" to remain in the Academy by secretly lending financial assistance to his classmate's mother, "Early" lies to explain his absence from quarters. For violating the Academy's honor system, he is disciplined and silenced. No one will recognize or talk to him. His feats on the gridiron are ignored, but the boy takes his punishment manfully. Preparing for the traditional hockey game with Royal Military College of Canada, "Drew" is seriously injured and though a Christmas celebration and the sympathy he receives from "Ann" tend to buck "Early" up, he determines to resign after the game. With "Early" mainly responsible, the game is won by West Point. Later "West" learns from his mother the reason for "Early's" absence from quarters. Calling it to "Strong's" attention that upper classman who has been the hero's chief persecutor has the honor of presenting "Early" to the student regiment as a cadet whose conduct best exemplies all West Point traditions.

In comparison with other West Point or Annapolis service stories, "Duke of West Point" approaches its subject from a unique angle. That it will have a strong appeal and be of interest to those who hold high regard for the nation's Military Academy goes without saying. But it is evident that producer Small, director Alfred E. Green and George Bruce who wrote the original screen play were pointing their efforts to interest younger audience contingents. For the younger element there is an inspiring ring to the story. Even though it discredited its hero for a good portion of the way, it shows how a boy with strength of character can make good under the most adverse handicaps. Of course the picture is wide open for stirring and spectacular showmanship.

Previewed December 13th at Grauman's Chinese theatre. The audience which included many Army and Navy officers and a large professional delegation as well as all paying customers who could get in, watched it with considerable interest although at times it was noticeable that prolonged dialogue caused restlessness.—G. Paris Honeymoon

Comedy with Songs

This is a quite different type of vehicle for Bing Crosby but he rides it in his usual easy manner. It is at its best when he's singing and he has four songs by Robin and Rainger who also wrote another for the chorus. Between songs it tells a fantastic story humorously with varying degrees of effectiveness. Bing's singing and the nameful support are the items for showmen to tell the customers about.

Franciska Gaal plays an incredible peasant girl winsomely. Akim Tamiroff displays his versatility as an actor by doing a character comedy chore that ranges from dialect to slapstick. Edward Everett Horton has less than his customary allotment of good dialogue as the star's manservant and Shirley Ross is eye-filling in a starchy heiress assignment that gives her one chance to be funny which she makes good use of.

Frank Butler and Don Hartman based their screen play on a story by Angela Sherwood about a wealthy westerner who sets out to marry an heiress in Paris and winds up marrying a peasant chosen Queen of Roses at a fiesta in a mythical European country. No attempt at realism is made. Most of the action takes place in the mythical country and extensive use is made of a violently effective liquor which throws its consumers into convulsions. There is also a bit of gamboling on the green. Harlan Thompson produced and Frank Tuttle directed.

Orphans of the Street

(Republic)

Boy and His Dog

The orphan boy and his ever faithful dog is the theme upon which this appealing production has been constructed. The boy is a cadet at a military academy who is unable to remain there when the funds his parents had left him are gone. Rather than go to an orphanage school the boy and his dog run away. The adventures of the two are climaxed by a trial in which the dog's life is at stake, a trial similar to the one which some time ago was widely publicized in the press of the nation.

Supplementing the main theme is the romance of a newspaper reporter and the daughter of a veterinarian, a trio that looks after the boy and helps him in the fight to save the dog's life. The boy is played by 12-year-old Tommy Ryan, who recently had the title role in Republic's "Tenth Avenue Kid." Robert Livingston is the newspaper reporter and June Storey the girl. Harry Davenport as the vet gives an excellent performance, while others in a cast studded with well known character players include Ralph Morgan, Sidney Blackmer, Victor Kilian, Hobart Cavanaugh and Herbert Rawlinson.

After "Tommy" has left the freight train on which he made his get-away he comes upon a hobo camp and is robbed but while there sees an ad in a newspaper on a dog show. Deciding to enter "Skippy" in the show, "Tommy" starts to walk towards town and is given a lift by "Bob," a reporter on his way to cover the dog show. In town "Tommy" is hit by a car driven by "Farmer." The dog leaps at "Farmer." Later, after he has been befriended by "Doc Ramsey" and his daughter "Tommy" tries to enter the dog in the show but is unable to produce its pedigree.

That night "Tommy" attempts to smuggle the dog into the show with the help of "Doc"

"Climbing High"

(Gaumont British - MGM)

Comedy

Possibly the last film to be made by Jessie Matthews, now retired into her theatrical shell, this can hardly be hailed as her best. Not that it is in any way a bad or a poor film—far from it. It is rather that a note of tiredness and indecision seems to have entered and the boisterous custard pie target into which she has been translated is scarcely as charming—or as commercial—as the singing ballerina of yesterday. The situation hints at suitable story material being a problem.

Carol Reed, most interesting of Britain's contemporary directors, has scored again with a film which for all its incipient craziness is inventively handled, infused with constant gusto and has some very amusing situations and sparkling dialogue passages. From an original by Lesser Samuels and Marion Dix, it casts Jessie as a hoofer who becomes a photographic model and wins a wealthy boy friend away from a designing social climber. It is, on the romantic side, flimsy stuff, though the relations of Michael Redgrave and Margaret Vyner, as the designing Lady Constance, are brightly handled. Reed may extract a great deal of fun from the bizarre Alistair Sim as a work shy but verbose Red, but he is not above etching in acid hues the ungraceful materialism of the Society Set. A great deal of the fun is woven around Noel Madison's advertising studio whither Jessie and Alistair go as models. The resourceful and eloquent mind of the advertising agent is a sure key for comedy lines and situations, and there is a very fast slapstick episode with an uncontrollable wind machine which, if a little elongated, will get the unsophisticates. Miss Matthews is not called upon for a great deal of singing or dancing, her share of which is confined to two encounters with a lunatic virtuoso, one of them a rustic passage, quite funny, and another an Alpine episode, a misfire climax. Though the slapstick note creeps in now and again, lingering sometimes beyond its welcome, Reed has likewise infused some pointed satirical passages at the expense of the business mind and the Mayfair Mother, and some of the dialogue lines are occasionally too subtle for the average audience. An unusual melange, "Climbing High," but refreshing enough and an appetizer for more of Reed's work.

Redgrave's masculinity is a welcome relief from its contemporaries; Madison and Sim are both successful in their divergent lines of character comedy; Margaret Vyner as the minxlike Miss; Enid Stamp-Taylor in a small but skilfully etched cameo as a receptionist; Basil Radford again the complete English Ass and Mary Clare as Lady Emily, all grace a cast not only well chosen, but zealous in its collaboration. Camerawork and settings—despite an occasionally flimsy backcloth—are of a sound standard.

Though Miss Matthews is the exploitation handle, the film is one many of the customers will talk about as a film rather than as a starring vehicle, and is not too Englishly English entirely to limit its appeal to its country of origin.

Seen at a Cambridge Theatre trade show the film was obviously enjoyed by an all trade audience, though certain of the slapstick passages seemed to pall, and the climax was not a bullseye. Final judgment was that there was little to sell Jessie Matthews on, but that the comedy situations of the film would compensate the patron for his expenditure.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

Jitterbug Comedy

This is Hollywood's first direct response to the wide interest in jitterbugs. It is about jitterbugs and is played principally by people built and conditioned to the portrayal of this uptodate type of young person. The appeal is so directly to jitterbugs and persons interested in them that the showman's cue, quite obviously, is to sell it just as directly to these same.

The story by associate producer Burt Kelly and the screen play Charles Grayson made from it are not merely a jazz chronicle improvised to fill in between musical numbers. On the contrary, it is a plausible tale about three small town people who work out an eccentric dance routine, go to New York and rise to a transient and profitable fame as the dance becomes a fad, returning home after the fad gives way to another. It neither glorifies nor scorns the jitterbug, but shows him to be a normal sort of modern youngster subject to the urges, influences and incentives youth was always heir to. The treatment of the subject is a good deal more commonsense than the current status of the jitterbug phenomenon would have given showmen reason to expect to obtain for their customers.

Ken Murray is the top name in the cast and he does his usual type of comedy in his usual bland manner. Ernest Truex also has a characteristic appointment. Johnny Downs, Kathryn Kane and Eddie Quillan appear as the three young people who learn about show business the hard way—but not too hard—and Ted Weems has a speaking part in addition to appearing with his band.

Joseph Santley's direction is of the practical variety and the picture is without lulls. Frank Skinner and Charles Henderson wrote the original music and at least one of the tunes, "Wasn't It You?" is entitled to Hit Parade honors. The film is suitable for any type of location, action starting in a small town, moving to New York, hence across country to Los Angeles via key city film houses, and winding up in the small town again.

(New Star Films, Inc.)

Jewish Folk Tale

Following its predecessor, "Green Fields," this Jewish folk tale film continues a cinematic consideration of the rural days, both comic and tragic, of Russian life in the small town and countryside.

For all the production's extended length, the tale told is exceedingly simple and appealing. Yankel is introduced as a young boy who is an apprenticed blacksmith. Subsequent reels depict his growth to manhood and the position of the village smithy. After sowing a couple of small town wild oats in the town tavern and with the village belles, Yankel settles down to married life with the orphaned Tamara. The glad tidings that he is the father of a male heir, together with the imbibing of a little too much vodka and the appearance of the tempting presence of a former flame, almose cause the breaking of the husband's resolutions. However, the sobering influence of the next day and the wife's forgiving and understanding attitude keep the little family together for a happy ending.

Seen at an afternoon performance at the small but nicely appointed Ascot Theatre in the upper Bronx of New York City where a surprisingly large audience for the time of day seemed to enjoy the picture immensely, especially the comic moments of the performances.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Comet Over Broadway

(Warner Bros.)

Career Story

There is much entertainment and commercial value in "Comet Over Broadway," Kay Francis' swan song picture for Warners. The motivation, adapted from a Faith Baldwin Cosmopolitan Magazine story, with screen play by Mark Hellinger and Robert Buckner, has a dual character. In one way, it is a straight career story. In the other, which is more important, it is a melodrama tinged but sentimental emotion stirring romance that brings into play considerable mother love and womanly sacrifice qualities. Consequently the film's direct appeal is to women.

Country girl, "Eve Appleton's" only ambition is to go on the stage. Her association with Broadway actor "Banks" leads to his murder by her husband, "Bill" for which he gets a life sentence. Dedicating her life to making his fate easier and eventually securing his freedom, "Eve" goes on the stage. Happy moment of her carnival, burlesque and vaudeville career is the friendship of burlesque queen "Tim Adams," who becomes child "Jackie's" second mother. Deprived of a Broadway chance by the jealousy of actress "Janet Eaton," "Eve" goes to London and becomes a great success. Found there by producer "Ballin," who had an early sentimental attachment for her, she is invited to star in one of his plays in New York. At the hour of triumph, word comes from lawyer "Grant," that "Appleton" is to be paroled. Pulled in three directions by three forces, desire to continue her career, wish for romance with "Ballin" and the memory of her promise to be "Bill's" wife when he is freed, she sacrifices the first two for the last.

In none of Miss Francis' recent pictures has she demonstrated her talents and abilities as effectively as she does in "Comet Over Broadway." There have been only a few times since "Westward Passage" when she has been so natural and convincing. It may be difficult for exhibitors to appreciate this, but if they recall that Miss Francis was once a high ranking box office name and that there are still a lot of people who regard her highly, there is an unusual opportunity available in "Comet Over Broadway" to apply showmanship tact and ingenuity that may cause the film to become a popular and profitable attraction. Plenty of effort should be directed towards interesting women patrons in the show.

Action Adventure

This is a Royal Northwest Mounted Police story. It has been done in color. Thematically it makes use of all those elements that are common to a "Mountie" story as well as those that are the substance of all outdoor action adventure pictures which major in situations, episodes and events, calculated, as suspense is deftly applied, to provide plenty of thrills.

Departing from that custom which has caused color pictures generally to be considered as prestige attractions, "Heart of the North" is a melodrama, the entertainment of which is pointed to appeal to the masses. When a river boat is looted of its cargo of gold dust and furs, circumstantial evidence points to "Dave MacMillan" being implicated in the robbery. The murder of "Corporal Montgomery" intensifies the determination of his brother "Mounties" to track down the culprits. Disobeying "Inspector Gore's" orders, who is influenced by trader "Drummond," officers "Baker" and "Hardsock" are prevented from catching up with robber "Crocker's" gang by the sensational dynamiting of a dam. Under arrest, "MacMillan" is placed in further jeopardy by "Miss Spaulding," who jealous of "Miss MacMillan" identifies him as the hold-up man. Breaking arrest, "Baker" and "Hardsock" commandeer an airplane and, although this is shot down in flames by "Crocker's" mob, the officers catch up with their quarry. A spectacular gun battle is followed by a sensational cliff-edge fight, before "Baker" subdues "Crocker." Captive and captors return to the post just in time to prevent the miners and trappers from lynching "MacMillan." When "Drummond" is killed by a deranged mountie after "Crocker" has identified him as the brains behind the robbery, "Baker" and "Hardsock," restored to duty, are promoted. "Miss Spaulding," aware that she has fought a losing battle with "Miss MacMillan" for "Baker's" affection, leaves for civilization.

Much in the nature of a condensed serial, "Heart of the North" stacks up as an attraction that will give juvenile audience contingents ample opportunity to whoop and holler. Grown-ups who have any appreciation of hair-raising adventure, done without any frills or flounces, also should find the show entertaining.

Melody Master Turn

If previous appearances of Dave Apollon and his bandsmen have received satisfactory audience response, this newest turn by Maestro Dave and his boys should keep his record on the credit side of entertainment. Aiding the band numbers are the vocal renditions of Aunt Jemima and the dance steps of Bobby Graham. As for Mr. Apollon, himself, besides still being an adept baton waver, he continues to be humorously equipped with a flip tongue.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Miniature Horse Opera

Despite a complaint voiced in "What the Picture Did for Me" columns of the HERALD from a mid-west exhibitor contending that newsreel makers err in the composition of their pictorial papers by including horse racing sequences which have little or no interest for the corn belt movie goer, this Sportscope slant on the breeding, training and debut of equine champions should prove interesting screen material to watch for any audience. The scenes depicting the nursery days of the young colt, his early dawn workout periods and his actual performance on a track have been vested with drama, excitement and pictorial beauty. Highlights of the subject's running time are slow motion shots of that classic competition between those two peers of the post, War Admiral and Sea Biscuit, through which device the amazing powers and poetic movements of the steeds can be analyzed and appreciated. Andre Baruch handles the commentary covering the academic days of horse training while Clem McCarthy voices in his clipped, tight tones the reports on the racing sequences. Editorial make-up, musical background and camera handling combine to produce a first rate reel.—Running time, 10 minutes.

On with the New

Hamburgers Before Babies

A more correct title for this Betty Boop escapade might have been "Off with the New, or On with the Old." Betty, at first pictured as a busy hash-slinger, wearies of the hectic and harried job of dishing out orders and rejoices when she puts off her old position to assume a new one as a guardian of a nursery; but, after the little darlings prove to be angels with dirty faces as well as dispositions, so, back to the beanery rushes Betty, to be queen of the pots. Sprightly dotted with spicy dialogue lines, particularly in the kitchen shots, and smartly animated, especially in the portions devoted to the toileting of the babes, this subject is fast, funny and furious.—Running time, seven minutes.

Home on the Rage

Clyde Comedy

In this typically Andy Clyde comedy the comedian believes his wife and brother-in-law have designs on his (Clyde's) life. The situation resulted from an attack on the brother-in-law by Clyde's dog. The brother-in-law and the wife discuss ways and means of doing away with the dog, but Clyde, who is a-sick in bed, believes they are referring to him. He in turn becomes excited and they decide Clyde has become insane. In the end everything turns out all right. Others in the cast besides Clyde are Leila Bliss, Shep Howard, Gene Morgan and Vernon Dent. Running time, 17 minutes.

Treacherous Waters

(Vitaphone)

The Making of a Trainman

For his latest thrilling moment, Floyd Gibbons turns the pages of adventure backward to present the boyhood experience of an adult. It seems that years ago the spinner of the tale was one of a legion of youthful enthusiasts who covet the possession of an engineer's cap. When one of the boy's companions is in danger of drowning in the perilous flood of the subject's title, the lad in order to win the promised prize of a trainman's headgear, swims out to rescue his friend. Slow in starting, the adventure account picks up excitement in the concluding scenes of the rescue. Photography in this sequence is excellent.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Stranger Than Fiction, No. 57

(Universal)

Interesting

A potpourri of oddities and ends is offered in the newest batch of curiosities from the Stranger Than Fiction series. There is the retired millionaire who devotes his time to the manufacture of toys for the use of poor children. Shown also are bovine quadruplets, a sculptor who works in metal, a choir recital in the sign language by deaf singers, a London couple who go in for mass production with a family of thirteen, a painter of miniatures, the smallest post office in the world, and a young woman acrobat from Buffalo, N. Y., a human pretzel.—Running time, nine minutes.

What a Worker thinks of the Industry he works for

ADDRESSED to Martin Quigley, editor-in-chief and publisher of Motion Picture Herald, comes a letter from Michael J. Boscia, who lives up in the Bronx and describes himself as a clerk employed in the motion picture business. Mr. Boscia's expression is discovered to be remarkable in that a young man of obviously some militancy and capacity for expression has found occasion to take his pen in hand in behalf of what he deems the proper conduct of the industry he serves. We hear much of what's wrong, much of special pleading for special causes, much of many movements, but almost never, in such terms as Mr. Boscia's, about a state of mind that looks level-eyed at the hell-raisers on the fringe of the motion picture and tells them that he sees some things that are all right as they are.

—THE EDITOR.

Dear Mr. Quigley:

I think Hollywood is doing well. I think pictures which provide a door to escapism and fantasy live up to the truest functions of motion picture art. I do not believe that the motion picture industry is run, as some stupid critics would have us believe, by morons for morons. I believe that the motion picture industry has come of age. It has recognized its vast social responsibility, re-adjusted its aims and re-defined its true function as an entertainment and escape mechanism, and as a powerful force bolstering those elements which are the real, true American way of life.

I believe in the sincerity of the industry's purpose, its honest desire to project a new art soundly and profitably and in its aim to contribute something of value to our civilization by broadening the intellectual horizon of the mass.

I do not agree with those very able but destructive critics within the industry who seem to forget that motion pictures are an industry and not a political pulpit.

I believe that it is time for those within the industry to stop their carping criticism and give constructive suggestions and thought to its betterment. I believe too that every person employed in the industry, high and low, should be on guard against unfounded attacks which are made against pictures and methods. Every worker should deem it his duty to act as an ambassador of good will, not of ill-will as is too often the case now, for both his industry and his individual enterprise.

"Pseudo Scholars"

For example, there are pseudo scholars and supposed thinkers who demand that the motion picture alone bring about a re-adjustment of the social order. There are others obsessed with the idea that the industry controls the economic and political destiny of the nation. Thus, upon the shoulders of the world's newest art, social dreamers would throw the burden of leading the world from chaos to supposed stability.

Where science, literature, journalism, the school and university have failed, these people would have the movies bring forth the panacea.

How can such a task be assigned to an art which is some 40 years of age? Movies bring entertainment; they cannot function as changers of the world.

Recently, Mr. Walter Wanger made an analysis of the cause of supposed stagnation of the industry. And when one of our leading producers takes it upon himself to point out difficulties and problems within the industry, his words do more harm than good. People don't wish to know what problems Hollywood is faced with. They are interested first and last in pictures which will entertain them.

Hollywood does not produce all junk as its critics say. Nor does it produce all art. You cannot expect an industry which is geared to mass production methods, to turn out all artistic productions which will please the "ultra-ultra" lads and fail at the box office. Motion pictures are a new, collective art involving many artists, technicians and much money. Where the artists can practice their art with pen and paper or paint and brush—"art for art's sake" is possible. But where productions run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, art for art's sake is impossible.

"Artistic Side"

On the artistic side there is something to be said for Hollywood. Many great works of art were held in disrepute in their day. Later, mellowed by time and good judgment, they took their position in the hallowed halls of honored art. So with our industry. Who knows, but in those vast spaces of time before us people may look at many of our productions as "literature on celluloid." As our industry suffers the pangs of growth and quick development, so did the Elizabethan Theater. Then as now, the new medium of expression was stoned verbally by the giants of art and literature. Wasteful, catering to the moronic mass, run and ruined by grasping money lenders—those were criticisms, such as we have now. But that theater flourished, grew and produced a Shakespeare, a Marlowe.

Critics who cannot see the commercial side of motion picture art will continue to flounder and to emit blasts. But as long as pictures remain purely an entertainment medium there is no real cause for worry. Entertainment with a by-product of sane instruction and messages is the function of great literature and of good motion pictures too. People may begin to doubt these facts. That is why we need ambassadors of good will, unofficial interpreters who will defend the industry against unwarranted attacks. This is the world's newest art and seventh largest industry. In the hands of dreamers it will be abused and destroyed.

The battle of functions will go on. But regardless of everything else, the consumer is king and his likes and dislikes are registered at the box-office. Wise producers give him what he wants. Wise producers are not tyrants against social legislation, for example. They know that a betterment of economic conditions means better box-office. They know that shorter hours, higher salaries for labor, mean more time and money to be spent for entertainment.

"Films for Democracy(?)"

Despite this, many clouded thoughts are rising on the motion picture horizon. The newly founded Films for Democracy(?) is one of these. Its very name is a mis-application and an attempt to envelop its true purposes in a maze of high sounding language and platitudes. For example, what may be democracy to this group of brilliant thinkers, may be tyranny to us.

What does democracy mean to this group? Does it incorporate an honest desire to protect and perpetuate those sturdy pillars of a free society under which this nation has flourished and grown—or is it really a sugar-coated pill for the real, true purpose of driving America towards a new economic and political system?

Does democracy mean, for example, being anti-fascist and pro-communist? Is their democracy the real expression of the will of a people or the right for a small minority to make up the people's mind for it?

How do these people know that the ultimate consumers of film product want what they are about to give them? What would happen once their democratic ideal was established? What do they want to change? How do they want to change? What do they wish to preserve?

Wise producers are abreast of the times. When there is a need for a defense of true democracy, they will rise to that task. When people make it known that they wish to study sociology or philosophy in the movie house, they will make it known to the producers. Then, only then, can Hollywood deviate from the necessary money-making formula for production. Changes, new themes, new methods will never come from the propagandist or the prejudice producers. Changes must come from the audience itself.

"Courage and Foresight"

Producers with courage and foresight are constantly in touch with their public. At present, they know that the greatest and widest audience for motion pictures is in the field of pure escapism and entertainment.

To dress up propaganda as entertainment would be a larceny and a betrayal of faith which the consumer has when he slaps down his money for a theater seat in return for a few hours of entertainment.

As for myself, I should like to state that I work for an organization in which I believe and have the utmost faith in—20th Century Fox.

More leaders in the industry should adopt our production chief's philosophy of "doing." Mr. Zanuck, is to my mind, the producer of the industry. He has a true conception of the mass audience, its likes and dislikes, its needs and changes. Where others talk and make enemies, he produces an "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Lastly, I should like to apologize for this intrusion on your busy affairs. However, I feel sure that you like to know what, when, how, where and why your readers think. Of course, speaking from my lowly station as a clerk my words may not carry much weight. My ideas, too, may possibly seem youthful, inexperienced, crude, and the form they take, illiterate. More important is the communication of ideas and the spirit of friendly suggestion with which I send this letter.

Reopen Omaha Theatre

Tri-States theatre Corporation has reopened the 3,000 seat Paramount in Omaha on a "trial" basis. The house has been closed for two years except for occasional legitimate shows. "Dracula" and "Frankenstein" constituted the opening bill with prices at 15 and 25 cents. Jack Kolbo is manager.

Sarnoff To Be Honored

NBC Expects to Finish at FCC Within a Week

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Representatives of the National Broadcasting Company, under investigation since November 14, are hopeful of finishing with the Federal Communications Commission radio "monopoly" probers by Christmas. Columbia Broadcasting System is the next network to be investigated.

W. C. Lent, of NBC, was on the stand most of the week to complete his explanation of NBC's 317-page volume of charts and maps comprising the results of a study of duplication of service.

William S. Hedges, NBC vice-president in charge of station relations, testified that the present form of station contracts represents the results of many years of experience in network broadcasting. Initially, he explained, the agreements with the station were "very loose" and as a result the time came when NBC found itself getting the short end of the deal.

Under the present agreement the affiliated stations, which originally paid $40 an hour for sustaining programs, then $25 and still later $1,500 a month, now give NBC, usually, 16 unit hours free transmission of commercial programs and in return gets a certain number of unit hours of commercial programs for which it is paid and may take such sustaining programs as it wishes.

Mr. Hedges explained that a station may cancel a commercial in favor of some local feature which is of greater public service. In the event NBC could not agree that the local program was more important, provision is made for arbitration.

Discussing advertising rates, the witness explained that they are based on circulation, the same as newspaper rates. Thus WJZ, WEAF and WLW, with the greatest coverage of audience, have a rate of $1,200 an hour; WMAQ and WENR-WLS ask $720, five stations ask $480 and so on down the line to KUTA, for which a rate of $80 an hour is asked.

Mr. Lent told the FCC that there were about 13,000,000 persons in various parts of the United States who could not receive adequate service from NBC networks under proposed FCC standards.

Broadcasters Ask for New Practices Code

The board of directors of the National Association of Broadcasters this week approved four resolutions pointing to self-regulation. They were: that a committee be appointed to re-examine the 1935 N.A.B. code; that the committee obtain copies of existing program policies and practices from all stations; that a new standard of practices be written, following study of these old procedures; that a copy of these new rules be submitted to all N.A.B. members for study, before the next annual convention, which will then take up the matter for approval.

Renewal Rule Stressed

Radio stations hereafter must strictly conform to an FCC rule, heretofore loosely adhered to, that they must apply for license renewals 60 days before expiration of their old licenses, according to a warning issued this week by the Federal Communications Commission.

Hal Horne, Walt Disney executive, arrived from Europe on the Queen Mary Thursday.

IOWA OWNER MARKS 31ST ANNIVERSARY

Thirty-one years ago Tom Brown was advertising "A new show every six minutes" at Brown's Nickeldom, Iowa City, Iowa. His "clean, moral and instructive" two reels also were heralded as "The first show of its kind in Iowa". Today Tom Brown and his son, Charles, who started at the box-office booth at the age of eight, operate the Strand theatre, built in 1918, on a site very close to that of the original Nickeldom. His chief plaint against modern conditions is the prevalence of "cheap pictures, hurried productions and bank nights".

U.S.-Canada Pact Cuts Negative Tax

A clause in the trade agreement between the United States and Canada makes for a hitherto unannounced reduction in the Canadian duty on film negatives imported from this country from 32½ to 27½ per cent. Because of the wording of the clause, this was not realized at the time that general details were revealed. The actual description reads: "Manufacturers of pyroxylin plastics, or of which pyroxylin plastic is the component of chief value."

This means exposed negative film, according to experts of the Customs and Excise Divisions of the Department of National Revenue. This change is comparable with the reduction in duty on positive prints from three cents to 2¼ cents per linear foot. No change has been made in the Canadian tariff on imports of 16 mm. films from the U. S., which remains at 20 per cent ad valorem.

New Altec Plan

Altec Service Corporation is inaugurating a plan to make servicing available to exhibitors at reduced rates through contracts with exhibitor organizations.

Korda to Coast For Production, Board Meeting

Alexander Korda, co-owner of United Artists and head of London Films, England, producing independently for U. A., arrived in New York from London last Friday and a few days later left for Hollywood to arrange for his first producing projects in this country.

While in Hollywood Mr. Korda will make plans for his coming American production, which may be "Pocahontas," with Merle Oberon. Four other films planned include "Four Feathers," now in production and expected to be completed in March, the first; "Thief of Bagdad" and Kipling's "Jungle Book," both with Sabu, in addition to another film with Miss Oberon. Also, he will produce three features for the Spanish-speaking markets.

Lubitsch May Produce

Mr. Korda plans to remain in Hollywood for about two weeks. C. H. Brown, his British counsellor, accompanied him.

Indications are that Ernst Lubitsch will produce for United Artists. If a deal is concluded, it may run for five years, under which Mr. Lubitsch likely would make at least one picture a year for United Artists distribution. He would provide his own financing.

United Artists will hold its annual shareholders' meeting on the coast in January. There was a board meeting in New York Saturday, which Mr. Korda attended prior to leaving for the coast. Mechanics of the company's profit-sharing plan for non-owner producers were discussed.

Mr. Korda's London Films, producing independently for United Artists reports net profits of $3,780 for its last fiscal year. The company's actual profit was $82,530, before deduction of $78,750 to compensate for cancellation of a corporate contract.

London Films will hold ten shares of $5 par stock in the new Denham-Pinewood studio combine. This new studio company has been formed with a capitalization of $3,750,000. Control will be in the hands of Prudential Assurance, financial backer of London Films, indicating that the latter may be in charge of operations through its financial connection.

London Films' inventories of completed films and its interest in other productions was placed in the financial report at $6,809,270.

Florida Court Rules On Games Collection

The supreme court of Florida has ruled that a person can collect Bank Night prizes if the method of operating the drawings does not constitute a lottery. The decision was rendered in the case of Mrs. R. E. Dorman of Gainesville, Fla., who was in the lobby of the local theatre the night her name was drawn, but the theatre refused to pay her the $500 prize. In her suit she contended that a person could not be required to purchase an admission ticket to qualify for the prize.

In a campaign in La Crosse County, Wis., officials have removed Bank Night equipment from the Rivoli and Hollywood there and have issued a warrant charging operation of a lottery against the La Crosse Theatres Company and William Freise, operators and manager of the Rivoli.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

Transplanted

A new setting for much of the action of Gainsborough's "A Girl Must Live," being made at Islington for release by Twentieth Century-Fox, has transplanted the unit to "Pangborough Manor," Tudor mansion and home of Hugh Sinclair as a blue blooded Earl. It is to the Manor that the Earl invites a bevy of glamour girls to spend a weekend, and it is thus that song and dance rehearsals take place in the baronial hall, constructed with care by art director Vetchinsky, whose penchant for realism inspired him to incorporate in the sets a genuine seventeenth century hand constructed fireplace, valued at just under £1,000. Gilded five-candled wall brackets, once ornamenting the liner Majestic, also were used.

"A Girl Must Live," in which Margaret Lockwood, Lilli Palmer and Renee Houston jointly star, is being directed by Carol Reed.

For Treble Quota

Shooting is due to start immediately on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer British's third treble quota production, "Good-bye, Mr. Chips." Sam Wood is set to open on scenes at "Brookfield School," scene for more than half a century of the labors of schoolmaster Chips. Location scenes were taken at Repton the latter weeks of the Summer.

Robert Donat has the role of Mr. Chips passing in his stride from youth, as an assistant master, to ripe and yellow old age full of honor. Greer Garson is due from Hollywood to play opposite Donat. Production, as with the two predecessors, will be at the Denham Studios of London Film Productions.

For the Cause

Towards the dramatic ends of his new A.T.P. comedy, "Trouble Brewing," George Formby, leading British star, has had to subject himself to the ministrations of eighteen-stone wrestlers from the London center of the beefy sport, Lane's Club. Other troubles have followed him into such locales as a police station, a newspaper office and a racetrack. Formby and his fellow conspirator, Gus MacNaughton, in one sequence are called upon to mistake the chief of police for the leading figure in a counterfeiting gang.

Googie Withers, as a news editor's secretary, this time supplies Formby with his romantic cues. The film is being directed at Ealing by Anthony Kimmins.

Period Comedy

Latest subject to be launched by Jerome Jackson on the Warner Brothers First National production schedule for 1938-39 is a costume comedy for Max Miller. The wisecracking comedian will appear in "The Good Old Days," a period piece set in 1830, in which he will play the part of a traveling showman whose troupe not only attempt drama, but song and dance shows in taverns and local market places.

"The Good Old Days" will be directed by Roy William Neill, who was responsible for Max Miller's last film "Everything Happens to Me," and the cast will include Kathleen Gibson, Hal Walters, Anthony Shaw, Allan Jeaves, Phyllis Monkman and others. Sets will include scenes in old London, country inns, and village greens with the 'stocks,' all of which have been designed by art directors Peter Proud and Michael Relph.

Albert de Courville, director of of "The Lambeth Walk," watches Lupino Lane and Sally Gray doing their version of the dance of that name in a scene from the Anthony Havelock-Allan production now under way at the Pinewood Studios, Iver Heath, Bucks.

Further additions to the production schedule are announced by Jerome Jackson and include, "North Atlantic Ferry," a film based on the history of the Cunard Steamship Line, an Ian Hay subject dealing with Colonial administration on the North West frontier and Hugh Walpole's "A Prayer for My Son." Others include a new 'Evans' story for Max Miller, L.A.G. Strong's "Sea Wall," a thriller "Too Dangerous to Live" by David Hume, and "Concert Party," a film with a background of Blackpool, Britain's most famous seaside playground.

Pathe's Latest

Production has just been completed at Welwyn on Pathé's latest British subject, "Asking for Trouble." It is a farce concerning the activities of a gang of insurance racketeers and was directed by Thomas Bentley, with Dave Willis, George Moon, Pat Kirkwood, John Warwick, A. Giavanni, Hugh Dempster and Arthur Margetson.

Reshooting of certain sequences in "Q Planes," first production from Denham for release in Columbia's British quota schedule, was decided on after the film had been concluded by director Tim Whelan. The reshooting was conducted by Brian Desmond Hurst.

The success of their "Romances of the Turf" series, acquired by them for shorts quota, has led Paramount to sign up Widgey Newman for more subjects in this series. Newman, who recently filmed at the racing centers, Liverpool and Newmarket, plans a trip to France to shoot scenes of the new British racing colony which is centered around the racecourses of Paris.

Epic of Steel

A dramatic epic of the British steel industry is planned by Charles Boot, the man who built the Pinewood Studios, Iver. It will be called "Steel Saraband," and is from a story by Roger Dataller.

Mr. Boot says the film, while dealing with British steel and its manufacture, also will treat equally dramatically of the men within working in its foundries. The picture will be shot in color.

Blakeley's Plans

John E. Blakeley, producer of the classic "Penny Pool," goes into production in January on a screen version of one of the most popular radio programs of the British Broadcasting Corporation, "Monday Night at Seven." Leading vaudeville and radio stars will be featured. Following this Mr. Blakeley plans to start production of another football pool picture, "Oh! Mr. Littlewood," "Two Little Drummer Boys" and later on "Pontoons."

Itemized

Following production on "Night Journey" at the Nettlefold Studios, Walton-on-Thames, British National goes into production early this month on "Official Secret," which will be directed by David Macdonald.

Widgey Newman is to direct "Men Without Honor," a film dealing with sharepushing, which has been commissioned by Bernard Smith to be released by his company, Equity British. Production has been started at Bushey.

Edna Best and Wilfred Lawson are to play the leading parts in "The Relief of Lucknow," which Maurice Elvey is to make for release by Butch's Film Service.

"Many Tanks, Mr. Atkins," the Claude Hulbert-Reginald Purdell comedy directed by Roy William Neill at the Warner-First National studio, Teddington, goes to the Warner theatre, Leicester Square, this week, and is to be the first British production to be screened there.

* * *

A four poster bed, once the property and personal couch of King James the First of England, and later used bv King Charles the Secong, is being used as a prop in "The Lambeth Walk" film now in production at Pinewood, with Lupino Lane, star of the stage show, and Sally Gray in the leading roles. Albert de Courville is directing.

Hollywood Asks Nazi Boycott; Aid for Refugees

Motion picture industry luminaries on the West Coast have initiated a movement to have the United States Government declare an economic boycott against Germany. Some 60 of these figures, presided over by actor Melvyn Douglas, met at the home of actor Edward G. Robinson and drafted the preliminary outline for a petition to be circulated in theatres, churches, clubs and all other public meeting or entertainment places. The petition calls for an embargo on German goods. It is hoped that 30 million people will sign it; whereupon it will be given to Congress and the President.

Among those who attended the meeting at Robinson's home were Bette Davis, Fred Astaire, Paul Muni, Miriam Hopkins, John Cromwell, Rosemary Lane, Anatole Litvak, Aline McMahon, Robert Montgomery, Groucho Marx, John Ford, Fay Bainter, Ginger Rogers, Claude Rains, Martha Raye, Gloria Stuart, Jack L. Warner, Walter Wanger, Carl Laemmle.

Mr. Douglas described the meeting and movement as "spontaneous." Said Mr. Douglas: "The President can't order an embargo, because this is not a dictatorship. He has done all he can in the matter." According to Mr. Douglas, it is up to public opinion to force Congress to act.

BLANKS SIMPLIFIED FOR TAX RETURNS

Last week's announcement by the U. S. Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington that hereafter "small" businesses, including those in motion pictures, will be saved considerable work and accounting expense in preparing income tax returns, through a new simplified form, was followed this week by specific instructions on the use of the new blanks.

Businesses eligible to use the simplified form are those with total receipts of not more than $250,000 and net income not exceeding $25,000, as already announced, but this week the Revenue Bureau explained that to determine whether gross income is within the $250,000 limit or exceeds it (in which event the larger form must be used), corporations must add gross sales or gross receipts to interest received from any source, all rents, royalties, capital gain, gain from sale or exchange of property other than capital assets, dividends, and all other income now required by the Revenue Act to be included in gross income.

The Revenue Bureau said approximately 85 per cent of all corporations would be able to use the simplified form.

Industry Benefits Add To Nazi Refugee Fund

An offer by Major Leslie Thompson, president, and Percy Furber, chairman of the board, of Translux Corporation, will enable Protestant, Catholic and Jewish charitable organizations of Boston to raise $25,000 to aid victims of Nazi persecution in Germany. The offer places 100,000 tickets of admission to the Translux Theatre, in Boston, at the disposal of the Ames Lodge of the B'Nai Brith and the Hadassah; the Catholic Daughters of America; and two leading Protestant organizations.

Boston is the only city to benefit from this plan. Organization members are selling books of ten tickets at $2.50 each, the proceeds going immediately into the coffers of each organization. The tickets are good for any performance, during the next two months. While there will be no benefit performances at the Boston Translux, programs during the next two months will include special films on the refugee problem.

In Dallas, Texas, it was estimated by the Interstate Circuit that up to the beginning of this week $70,000 had been collected at refugee benefit performances in all of its 137 houses, with $10,000 being garnered in Dallas alone.

The Minneapolis-St. Paul Variety Club has voted to raise $25,000 for the fund at theatre benefit performances.

In New York, the special preview last week of "Pygmalion" at the Astor Theatre, brought $1,561.75, which was distributed among the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the American Committee for Christian German Refugees, and the American Friends Service Committee. Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, was responsible for the benefit preview.

In New York, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt last week inaugurated the ticket selling by the Motion Picture Art Fund For German Refugees by buying the first four tickets from comedian Jack Benny, in a well publicized ceremony, in front of the newsreel and still cameramen.

Henry R. Rittenberg, portrait painter and a member of the National Academy, has offered to do a portrait of the person drawing the first winning ticket in the Motion Picture Art Fund, which itself consists of a raffle of paintings by nationally famous artists, to the holders of the winning tickets.

Sponsors of the raffle plan to hold the drawing February 12 on the steps of New York's City Hall, with Mayor LaGuardia officiating.

Luncheon to Bernie in Jewish Charities Drive

Under the leadership of Major Albert Warner and Loew's David Bernstein, the amusement division of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Charities held a report meeting Tuesday at New York City's Hotel Astor, preparatory to the luncheon next Tuesday at the same hotel in honor of Ben Bernie, sponsored by the division, and headed by comedian Eddie Cantor.

The report meeting heard that the amount to be raised this year, $225,000, is considerably more than last year because of budgetary exigencies.

Stars To Help Paralysis Drive

Keith Morgan, chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, has announced the formation of a group of stars in the entertainment world headed by Eddie Cantor, who have pledged cooperation in the "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign.

Paramount Chiefs Confer on British Production Plan

Adolph Zukor, new director general for Paramount in Europe; John W. Hicks, vice-president in charge of Paramount foreign distribution, and David Rose, in charge of Paramount production in England, opened conversations at the home office in New York this week on the company's plans abroad.

It was decided at the Wednesday conference to abandon all plans for the present at least for theatre expansion in Great Britain.

Mr. Hicks on his arrival in New York said that British production has slackened and England is faced with a drought of native-made films, in the summer. The post of managing director for Paramount in London is still held by Mr. Hicks, but he will relinquish this post as soon as the company decides upon a permanent successor to John C. Graham, who resigned some time ago.

Seven Films Planned

Mr. Rose, who arrived with Mr. Hicks, had been abroad for three months, studying the London production side. He will present his views to the company board, while in New York. He sails Saturday, returning to England. Mr. Zukor is expected to go with Mr. Rose.

Present plans are for Paramount to make seven quota films, if possible, for the coming year, and 10-12 films in London, for the year following. First on the schedule will be "French Without Tears," a double quota film and "Hatter's Castle," by A. J. Cronin.

C. J. Dickinson has been named general sales manager of Paramount Film Service, Ltd.

Paramount Board Votes Dividends

The usual quarterly dividend on Paramount first preferred stock and 15 cents per share on the second preferred was voted by the company's board of directors this week. The dividends are payable December 24th to holders of record on December 16th.

The directors' meeting lasted only 45 minutes, one of the briefest held at Paramount for months. Adolph Zukor, chairman, and E. V. Richards of New Orleans, whose appearances at board meetings have been infrequent, attended the session.

Hungarian Here To Buy Pictures for Schools

Production is expected to start soon on educational films for use in schools of Hungary and other European countries, as the result of the visit here of Mr. Arpad Szemere, general manager of the Film Credit and Control Company, of Lucerne, Switzerland, and of Kultur-Film, in Budapest, Hungary. The shorts, based on the ideas of Mr. Szemere, will comprise three series, with one short produced each month.

The $30,000,000 accounting suit brought by minority stockholders against officers and directors of Loew's, Inc., before Justice Louis A. Valente in New York Supreme Court, resumed Monday with additional testimony by Bernard J. Reis, an accountant employed by the plaintiffs.

Mr. Reis testified that while only $12,500 was paid for the story on which the motion picture "Marie Antoinette" was based, $420,698 was paid to eight continuity writers who worked on the story between 1933 and 1938. The names of the writers were not put into evidence, the writers' salaries being carried as an asset. Plaintiffs contend these should be charged off as losses each year against the defendant's position that all expenses in producing a film could not begin to be amortized until the picture was finally released.

Last week Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, testified for the defendant. He attributed the rise and success of Loew's, Inc., to the men who are being sued. He told the court that should the present employment contracts of these executives be abrogated or invalidated, Loew's would be wrecked.

"The assets of the motion picture industry are the human assets. Money can't stand alone," he said.

When questioned about a drop in Loew's studio earnings from $9,900,000 in 1930, to $3,800,000 in 1932, Mr. Kent declared that in 1932 Fox Films lost $12,000,000, of which $9,000,000 was a loss on studio operations.

It was brought out, in a deposition of Louis B. Mayer, that Mervyn LeRoy, producer and director, receives $300,000 yearly from Loew's. He also revealed that Samuel Goldwyn had offered Norma Shearer $250,000 a picture and 50 per cent of the profits of that picture, but that she preferred a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for two pictures a year at $150,000 a picture, plus profit-sharing.

Other depositions read were those of Sam Katz, Hunt Stromberg and Bernard Hyman. The testimony of William Parker, Charles C. Moskowitz and former Judge John R. Hazel for Loew's, was reviewed.

Nicholas M. Schenck will probably be the first witness for the defense. Mr. Mayer's presence in court is said to be uncertain because he is needed on the coast.

Seek Dividend Arrears

Shareholders of Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., holding 698 shares of preferred stock, have entered protests to the officers of the company to what is declared to be inadequate liquidation of arrears in dividends on the stock, which now amount to $38.50 per share following the current payment of $3.50 for the half yearly period ending September 30, 1934.

In a letter, it is pointed out that working capital was built up from $14,926 to $264,999 in the period from January 2, 1932 to August 26, 1937, during which time a substantial amount was spent on redecorating. No dividends were paid for many years up to June 30, 1934.

Joseph Schenck To Broadcast Film Trade Forecast for 1939

Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Motion Picture Producers' Association, will forecast the business outlook for the industry in 1939 in a special network broadcast December 29th which will present leaders of the country's nine leading industries. The broadcast, arranged by National Broadcasting Company, will be heard over the Blue network from 8:30 to 9 P. M. Mr. Schenck will speak from Hollywood.

Companies Cold to Italian Proposal

Greeted at first with relief, then with suspicion, and now with distaste, the new Italian offer to allow four American film companies to continue in business in Italy until June, and then to join the state monopoly, or liquidate their business, has been turned down by the four companies—RKO, Columbia, United Artists and Universal.

Meeting in Paris this week are the European Continental managers of the companies concerned, who are expected to reaffirm the decision of the companies to cease business in Italy rather than bow to the monopolistic and financially unfair demands of that country's government. Continuation would have been due to the fact that some contracts assumed by the companies continue beyond December 31. However, revelation that the Italian government offer calls for the surrender of their businesses in June at about 25 to 35 cents on the dollar, has decided the American interests to quit as soon as possible.

The Italian government is offering about $1,000,000 maximum for all American distribution business, which has an actual value of about $4,000,000.

FTC Clears GN; Stock Withdrawn

The Federal Trade Commission has dismissed "without prejudice" its complaint against Grand National Films, the old concern, charging that company with unfair competition in the sale and distribution of "In His Steps."

The complaint had charged the company with improper use of the title and false advertising representations.

The Commission noted that no "further public interest is involved"; and that the company had been judged bankrupt, its assets and properties, including the picture of the title, having been sold to Grand National Pictures, Inc. It further notes that the picture has been sold under the title, "Sins of the Children" by the new firm, since March 31, 1937.

The Securities and Exchange Commission last week granted Grand National permission to withdraw its $1 par common stock, effective at the close of trading December 9. The Commission said the reason advanced for such action was that the company is a debtor in proceedings under 77 B; that it has ceased to exist except as a corporate name; and that trading in its common stock on the New York Curb exchange has been negligible.

The Educational Pictures and Grand National Pictures office staffs have moved into their new United States home offices, in the newly completed Associated Press Building, in New York's Radio City. Educational had been in the Paramount Building for over ten years.

Still to be set are Grand National's production plans and the status of Fine Arts.

Grand National Pictures, Ltd., the English subsidiary of Grand National Pictures, has opened its London offices at 113-117 Wardour Street, Wallace House, London, W. 1.

Ralph Kinsler resigned as district manager for Grand National, in charge of Cincinnati, Cleveland and Indianapolis, effective Dec. 17, to join Trailer-Made Service, Inc., which he recently organized with Wm. Bien, operating the Theatre Poster Supply Co., in Cincinnati.

L. E. Kennedy, formerly Pathe branch manager in Denver, is serving under Grand National Picture San Francisco branch manager H. Bradley Fish as salesman for the San Joaquin Valley territory.

Herman B. Freedman, of the Film Corporation of America, is asking $251,450 from Grand National Films, Inc., alleging he contracted with the company in May, 1937 to produce 24 westerns; that the contract was abrogated last August by trustees Edward Alperson and Lloyd Wright, when the company was undergoing reorganization under 77B.

Mr. Freedman admitted he made no pictures, but claims he spent $11,450 in preparation for three series of westerns. Mr. Freedman asks the remaining amount as a sum he would have realized had the pictures been made. Mr. Freedman alleges contract provided for his receipt of negative costs upon delivering the films, and that they were budgeted at $12,000 to $15,000.

Jolly Club Meets

The annual meeting of the Jolly Club of Atlanta, Ga., an organization similar to the Variety Clubs of other cities, was held at the Ansley Hotel last week. Officers elected to serve for the year 1939, were George Jones, president; Riley P. Davis, vice-president; Billy Haines, secretary, and N. E. Savini, treasurer. The outgoing officers are: Harold Spear, president; T. H. Lucy, treasurer, and A. C. Cowles, secretary. A vote of thanks was given the retiring officers for their efforts during the past year.

Columbia

"BLONDIE": Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake—Columbia sure has something started. This is the first of a series of this type of pictures. These stars walk right out of the funny paper on to your screen. If you haven't bought Columbia pictures you are missing a swell chance to give your patrons a change in pictures. Just what every exhibitor has been waiting for. Would have done better if we played it later, Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 29-30.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kan. General patronage.

"BLONDIE": Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Sims, Don Mummert—This picture is a honey and the series should be very popular. Box office take was the best in months for a week-end show and our customers were pleased 100%. Played December 1.3.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

CRIME TAKES A HOLIDAY: Jack Holt, Marcia Ralston, Douglas Dumbrille—Another dead sister with only the Movie Quiz Rider and a tin can.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

FLIGHT INTO NOWHERE: Jack Holt, Jacqueline Wells—One of the best Jack Holt pictures played, which is not saying much. Running time, 66 minutes. Played November 19-20.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

FLIGHT TO FAME: Charles Farrell, Jacqueline Wells—A very good co-feature picture. A bit different from the average run and, athough the idea is fantastic, it proves to be quite an interesting picture to most of the patrons. Too bad Farrell couldn't get back with Gaynor. I am sure the two of them back together again would bring tops in performances and money at the box office, too. Running time, 57 minutes. Played November 24-25.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown, June Travis—This picture holds the box office record of my theatre. Very good and my patrons liked it immensely. Played October 6-7.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

OLD WYOMING TRAIL, THE: Charles Starrett, Barbara Weeks—Lots of action. Good music. Good western. Too bad more didn't turn out to enjoy it. Running time, 58 minutes. Played November 5-6.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

SOUTH OF ARIZONA: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—These musical westerns are washed up. They make them all the same. My patrons are discouraged as they really like western pictures but like a change once in a while. Running time, 56 minutes. Played November 22-23.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kan. General patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown, Jane Wyman—A fairly good Joe E. Brown picture. Running time, 67 minutes. Played October 1.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Jean Arthur, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, Ann Miller—Without a doubt the best picture of the year we think and we have played all the good ones. I believe that I can honestly say that everyone who saw this went away feeling that they had just seen the type of feature they would want to see again and some did. Business not too good but no fault of picture. Play this and talk it up big. It's good. Running time, 127 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, Ann Miller—One of the best of the year. Business good and the customers pleased. Played November 27-29.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Ann Miller, Spring Byington, Samuel S. Hinds, Donald Meek, H. B. Warner, Halliwell Hobbes, Mary Forbes, Lillian Yarbo, Eddie Anderson, Dub Taylor—A picture of the screwball type that went over with a bang. Every star is excellent, even the small part of the internal revenue man. It clearly shows Capra's ability. The poorest thing in the show was the trailer which told about Capra and nothing about the picture. Do not think it will break any house records when the run is finished but will say that it is a wonderful picture for audience appeal when they come into the house. Running time, 125 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins—Very good action picture with its thrilling moments. Did about average business. Played November 16-17.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

BROTHER RAT: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman—This picture has everything an exhibitor could ask—color, fast dialogue, clever situations and a swiftly moving story. Everyone came out well pleased. Did a nice business too. Eddie Albert and Jane Wyman steal the show right from under Morris and Lane. Played, November 20-21-22. Running time, 88 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

BROTHER RAT: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—While not a big drawing film, "Brother Rat" is tops in entertainment. Worthy of exploitation. Played November 18-19.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

BROTHER RAT: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—This is above average. The picture will back up all you can say in advertising it. Good enough for best dates. Advertising angle must be worked out according to community in which picture is played. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 25-27.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kan. General patronage.

GARDEN OF THE MOON: Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay—A surprise package of a real show. Get 'em in and relax. Played November 23-24.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

MY BILL: Kay Francis, John Litel, Anita Louise, Bonita Granville—A swell family picture. True it's a tear jerker but what family doesn't have their problems and tearful ones, too. Interesting from start to finish. We have a lot of favorable comments upon this one. Say, Warner, have you ever considered putting the cast into a regular series? Running time, 64 minutes. Played November 27-28.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SECRETS OF AN ACTRESS: Kay Francis, George Brent—One of the poorest pictures seen in a long time. Lots of walk-outs.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BLOCKHEADS: Laurel and Hardy, Patricia Ellis, Billy Gilbert—Double billed this with "Meet the Girls" and did under average business. A bunch of good shorts with either of these would have made a far better combination. We're glad this pair is through at MGM. Running time, 55 minutes. Played November 25-26.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Henry Hull—One of the best of the year and business very good. Played November 13-15.—E. G. Armold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney—This two day run broke all previous three day run records.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney—Excellent picture that did a fine business. Played November 18.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney—Gets 'em in like nothing else will. Played November 20-22.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan—Just fair.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

FLIRTING WITH FATE: Joe E. Brown, Leo Carrillo; SPRING MADNESS: Lew Ayres, Burgess Meredith, Maureen O'Sullivan; VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—We saw no entertaining value in any of the above and cancelled without playing them.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

HOLD THAT KISS: Maureen O'Sullivan, Dennis O'Keefe—After all, MGM has the pictures and they got all the money, so what the heck.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—This series are all good. MGM puts this up in the high bracket so you can't make any money, but they sure please.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, Robert Morley, John Barrymore, Anita Louise, Gladys George, Joseph Schildkraut—Well, it's the same old story. Wonderful production, grand acting, morbid story, empty seats. Small town and rural communities will not go for this type of picture, yet the buying code now says we must buy it and pay a big price. Acting honors go to Miss Shearer, of course, with Robert Morley a close second in one of the greatest characterizations we have ever seen. Running time, 145 minutes. Played November 27-29.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power—A very sad and dreary affair and the box office returns were positively pathetic. Would advise you cancel this, if possible, and play some ordinary program feature, or even a horse opery in its stead. You'll do more business. Played November 13.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

SHINING HOUR, THE: Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas, Fay Bainter—A red hot date which I believe hurt as we ran it ahead of the big cities and had no chance to cash in on their publicity and it had been so long since we had had a Crawford picture that it did not draw as well as it should have. Opinions were divided as to merit of picture. Played November 19-21.—Ed Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart—Good. Has a poor title but those that came liked it.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind—O.K. for those who like those boys. They always make a little money.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Myrna Loy, Clark Gable, Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly, Leo Carrillo—Business was very disappointing on this picture. Played November 20-22.—H. G. Armold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy—The answer to any small town exhibitor's prayer. If you can't get 'em in on this and "Boys Town"—? Running time, 105 minutes.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy—Very good picture that did more than average business. Played November 25.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

VACATION FROM LOVE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—Amusing comedy if you can get them in. I find it hard to sell a show without stars. Dennis O'Keefe is good but not well enough known for the lead. Pleased those who came. Running time, 65 minutes. Played November 18-19.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN: Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce, Mary Astor—A fair picture. They say Herbert Marshall has a wooden leg and taking this into consideration I think he plays his part wonderfully indeed. If one didn't know about his leg, they would suspect nothing. If you are watching for it once in a while, you can get a faint reminder of it. This is a good co-feature picture. Running time, 61 minutes. Played December 1-2.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Lewis Stone—Good. Was well liked here.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lynne Carver, Jo Ann Sayers—A finely made picture which drew well for a holiday prevue and Thanksgiving Day. Was well liked. Title is more of a drawback than a drawing card, as most patrons seem to be fed up on Doctors and Hospitals as substance for stories.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

Miscellaneous

I DUE GEMELLI: Ria Rosa, Carlo Buti—This may go if you have a big Italian population. Otherwise, stay away from it. Picture will keep all of your other patrons away so unless you have plenty of Italians to fill up the theatre, beware! Running time, 52 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Monogram

COUNTY FAIR: J. Farrell MacDonald, John Arledge, Mary Lou Lender—A very fine program picture suitable for a dual bill. Due to adverse weather conditions, cannot boast regarding business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MR. WONG, DETECTIVE: Boris Karloff, Evelyn Brent—Karloff in a new part, that of James Lee Wong, Collier magazine's Chinese scientific sleuth. Picture OK as half a double bill. Running time, 69 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

WANTED BY POLICE: Frankie Darro, Evelyn Knapp, Robert Kent—Frankie Darro in the cast usually means a good action picture and this is no exception. Played, November 26. Running time, 58 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

WHERE THE BUFFALO ROAM: Tex Ritter, Dorothy Short—Plenty good western as are all of Tex Ritter pictures since Monogram took charge. Running time, 60 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

Paramount

BUCCANEER, THE: Fredric March, Franciska Gaal, Akim Tamiroff, Margot Grahame—Good picture but did not gross film rental. Picture is too long. Running time, 126 minutes. Played October 22-23.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

COLLEGE SWING: Martha Raye, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Edward Everett Horton, Jackie Coogan—Just a lot of vaudeville. Some good, some terrible but mostly terrible. Just no go for small towns. Running time, 86 minutes. Played October 29-30. Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

DOUBLE OR NOTHING: Bing Crosby, Martha Raye, Mary Carlisle, Andy Devine—Good musical and enjoyed by my patrons. The vocal orchestra very good. Played this late but did not have to hide and heard many good comments. Played December 1.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope—A satisfactory program offering that played to average business. Played November 22.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC: J. Carroll Naish, Mary Carlisle—Just a little program picture that will hardly hold its own on the second half of a double bill. Pleased no one. Running time, 67 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan—You surely fool the public when you play this. Not even a newsreel shot of the prison. The escape told in dialogue. Very ordinary yet it pulled as they expected something. Running time, 57 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

"We read 'What the Picture Did for Me' of each issue thoroughly and find it a great help for selecting our pictures.

—Soledad Theatre, Soledad, Cal.

MEN WITH WINGS: Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell—Fine production in any spot. Running time, 110 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MOUNTAIN MUSIC: Bob Burns, Martha Raye, John Howard, Terry Walker—Rather disappointed in this one. Played this too late. Not so hot for my audience. Running time, eight reels. Played November 17.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander—Played this second run as half a Saturday double bill and had farmers standing up waiting in the rain. Running time, 87 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phillis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn—This picture was one of the biggest box office flops that I have ever played. Played October 11-13.—E. G. Arnold. nold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

SOULS AT SEA: Cary Cooper, George Raft, Frances Dee, Olympe Bradna—Very good drama of the sea. Good entertainment for a small town audience. Play it if not already done so. Running time, ten reels. Played November 24.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: Dorothy Lamour, George Raft, Henry Fonda, John Barrymore, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—Business was very good on this picture and generally pleased 100%. Played October 8-10.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Gene Raymond, Olympe Bradna, Glenda Farrell, Lewis Stone—A light opera musical. If your patrons like that type of thing, well and good. There is mystery in the story with stolen jewels by a smart woman sleuth and what have you. Nothing to brag about but it will pass I suppose. Running time, 88 minutes. Played November 22-23.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Joan Bennett, Randolph Scott, May Robson—Good for Friday and Saturday.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORY: Bob Hope, Shirley Ross, Charles Butterworth—This is a comedy riot and should please anywhere. Above average business.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

YOU AND ME: George Raft, Sylvia Sidney—My people don't care for this kind of stuff. Was good acting by Sidney and Raft.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

Republic

CALL OF THE YUKON: Beverly Roberts, Richard Arlen, Lyle Talbot—Interesting and the type my farm trade go for. Had poor attendance for this but believe it due to cold weather. Running time, 70 minutes—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

CALL OF THE YUKON: Richard Arlen, Beverly Roberts, Lyle Talbot—A very nice picture of the frozen North. A credit to an independent producer. It has all the earmarks of a major production. Running time, 64 minutes. Played October 15-16.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

DOWN IN "ARKANSAW": Ralph Byrd, Weaver Brothers and Elviry, Pinky Tomlin—Just the type of picture my patrons want and the kind they will talk about. This was well liked and I believe everyone was satisfied. Played to a full house and full till. Running time, 66 minutes—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GUNSMOKE RANGE: Three Mesquiteers (Bob Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune)—The Three Mesquiteers are always a good bet. Don't think that we have ever had a really poor picture from this series. This one was old and in none too good condition and sound could have been better. Played December 3.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

HEROES OF THE HILLS: Three Mesquiteers (Robert Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Priscilla Lawson—Again Republic scores with a plot that is different. An excellent western for all. This producer makes the best westerns in the business as they seldom give you a poor one. Running time, 56 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LAW MAN IS BORN, A: Johnny Mack Brown—A better than average western with a slightly different twist to the story. A good cast and fair sound to big Saturday business. Played November 26.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

OLD BARN DANCE, THE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Helen Valkis—This picture played to a good Saturday and Sunday business. A swell picture either feature or western in anybody's theatre. Autry and Smiley rank as tops here. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 26-27.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

PALS OF THE SADDLE: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune)—A good horse opera.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

PRISON NURSE: Henry Wilcoxon, Marian Marsh—A good action picture which played to a fair business. Running time, 67 minutes. Played November 12-13.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Polly Rowles—A good musical western with good business at the box office. Running time, 60 minutes. Played September 24.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

AFFAIRS OF ANNABEL, THE: Jack Oakie, Lucille Ball, Ruth Donnelly—Years ago when Oakie first came to the screen, he was funny but typing of a character unchanged for so long finally becomes tiresome and it may be that Oakie in devoting so much time to the industry's second love, the radio, had something to do with the poor business that we had on the picture. Played November 22-23.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen, Irene Dare, Charles Ruggles, Dolores Costello, Robert Barrat—Here is a picture. Everything a good picture should have with Ruggles and Barrat both being excellent. Wonderful show for our audiences. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—The silliest possible story that just made film rental. What a disappointment.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FUGITIVES FOR A NIGHT: Frank Alberston, Eleanor Lynn, Adrienne Ames; PECK'S BAD BOY AT THE CIRCUS: Tommy Kelly, Ann Gillis, Edgar Kennedy, Spanky McFarland; TARNISHED ANGEL: Sally Eilers, Ann Miller, Lee Bowman—Watch your step with this collection. We don't need any good pictures. Haven't we got a Movie Quiz to please our patrons with?—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner, June Travis—Penner's best for some time. We can use three or four a year like "Mr. Doodle." Played November 16-17.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

NEXT TIME I MARRY: Lucille Ball, James Ellison—This swell comedy drama is the best of any picture from this producer this year. Will be unusually good for Sunday, Bank Night or New Year's Eve. Running time, 75 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. General patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers—Just a picture. Good material destroyed. The Marx Bros. would be good if they could only find a producer who would know enough to tell them how to dress. The one who wears the soft picked felt hat, that hat would ruin any picture. Just stand him in with that hat and the picture is ruined. Dress these boys like ordinary human beings and they will be a hit. The picture pleased fairly well at that. Running time, 76 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—I have just completed my engagement of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and was successful in creating an all time house record as well as playing to over twice the number of people there are in this situation. We are at the end of the steel which makes the attendance that much more remarkable. I was prepared for about 1/3 the business, as I had read some advance comment through your column but I am pleased to report that the picture not only brought out people who never come to other shows but brought lots to see it two and three times. Our profit was more than we ordinarily take in three or four weeks, so don't be afraid to play this one and give it lots of publicity.—John Carlson, Carlsonia Theatre, Dawson Creek, B. C., Canada. Small town patronage.

Spectrum

KNIGHT OF THE PLAINS: Fred Scott—Just another cowboy picture. Running time, 56 minutes. Played November 26.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—It seems useless to report on this one as I can only repeat what other exhibitors say but I cannot pass up a perfect feature without adding my word of praise. If there was anyone who did not like this show they failed to tell me about it. A perfect cast, good music and entertaining story should rate this one among the ten best of the year. Fox may well be proud of "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Running time, 106 minutes. Played November 23-24.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—Best business in a long time. And it seemed to please our people better than any picture in equally as long a time. Had the swing, the story, the thrills, everything. Played November 13-15.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche—Considering the fact that most of the spots in this section had played Alexander and the fact that we ran into stormy weather we felt we did reasonably well for this unusual and most pleasing attraction. Played November 30-December 1.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall—Very good performance by Stanwyck and Marshall.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers, Robert Kellard, Jean Rogers—Good entertaining picture with abundance of comedy. Average business. Played November 27.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers, Robert Kellard, Eddie Collins—Jane and Fox will be in trouble, and that serious, if she gets many like this large slice of fromage, cheese to you. The scenarist and director must have had an off day and the whole thing looks as though it had been made on poverty row, poverty predominating the story. It is unbelievable that a studio such as Fox would inflict a picture such as this on the public. Jane has been good box office for us, this definitely was not. It flopped the second day. They increased the rentals, then put out a cheap, shoddy picture such as this one.—A E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

GATEWAY: Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan, Harry Carey, Binnie Barnes—She no hit. Where it missed I don't know, but miss it did and a loss on the picture. May be too far inland for Ellis Island. We had more walkouts than I like. Binnie Barnes in her small part pinned the ears back on the others in the cast.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

HOLD THAT COED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis—Very good. Just what we folks need for these times.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy, Jack Haley, Joan Davis—One of the best college football pictures ever made and pleased 100%. Played November 9-10.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Tyrone Power, Alice Brady—Played this picture against opposition's "Angels with Dirty Faces" and did a swell little business. Had a blowup of Chicago Tribune telling about Chicago fire plus a couple of special buggies and this drew extra attention to the picture. A swell picture and although old it will still do a record breaking business even if it is third run in town. Running time, 106 minutes. Played November 24-25.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Armanda Duff, Joan Davis, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson, Claude Gillingwater—Bill Robinson, Claude Gillingwater and Joan Davis do their bit in their usual fine manner. But Shirley, be your age, cut out the baby talk. You are a young lady now and you have several mannerisms that it would be well for you to overcome. Did not draw as well as some of her former pictures. Played November 26-28. —Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante, George Murphy, Edna Mae Oliver—This picture grossed the lowest of all the Fox Temples. Played November 6-8.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

MEET THE GILS: June Lang, Lynn Bari, Robert Allen—Even double billing this with "Blockheads" could not make it hold up. Was one of the weakest features we have ever received from this company. Played November 25-26.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene, Joan Davis, Buddy Ebsen, Cesar Romero—Played Thanksgiving Day and thought would surely have a nice business. But it didn't show up. Guess Sonja is slipping a little, although we think she is still one of the screen's most enchanting sweethearts. And she does some new turns on the skates, too. Played November 23-24.—Horn and Morgan Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

MY LUCKY STAR: Sonja Henie, Richard Greene —A swell picture but didn't do the business that was expected. Richard Greene is very popular here. Running time, 84 minutes. Played November 9-10.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

MYSTERIOUS MR. MOTO: Peter Lorre—Just one of those things. You wonder what would make a man produce; just like all the Mr. Moto productions. Pleased the few who saw it. A weak half for a double bill. Running time, 62 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PANAMINT'S BAD MAN: Smith Ballew, Evelyn Daw—A very good western. Very fine action picture that did record low business on account of rains and bad roads.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RASCALS: Jane Withers, Robert Wilcox, Robert Kent, Borrah Minevitch's Gang—A good Jane Withers picture enjoyed by all. Jane is her usually excellent self. Too bad they won't give her the break she so justly deserves and place her in a big cast to give her a real chance. She should be one of our real stars before too long now. Play her picture by all means. Running time, 77 minutes. Played December 3.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—A riot of fun and laughter from start to finish which pleased our bargain night customers. Does not compare with the Hardy series, however, for who can compare with the incomparable Mickey and Lewis Stone? Played December 2.—Ed. Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

STRAIGHT PLACE AND SHOW: Ritz Brothers, Ethel Merman, Phyllis Brooks—If we are to do the kind of business this picture did you can have my end of the Ritz's. What a nosedive it took at the box office. Talk about tailspins, it hasn't come out of it yet. I still contend that the Ritzs have not enough on the ball for two or three pictures a year. any more than the Marx Brothers who make one. There is no originality in what they do. They do the same thing in each picture. The only change being in the dialogue. When you have seen them once, you have seen it all. Lowest week-end gross in three years.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

SUEZ: Tyrone Power, Loretta Young, Annabella—This fine historical drama failed to draw in this small town. Picture is okay though. Played November 31-December 1.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver—Didn't make film rental. Deserved better patronage than it got.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

TIME OUT FOR MURDER: Michael Whalen, Gloria Stuart—Very nice little show that pleased about all. Had plenty of comedy to keep 'em laughing and that's what they want. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

United Artists

ALGIERS: Hedy Lamarr, Charles Boyer, Sigrid Gurie, Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart—A sensational box office flop. Played November 2-3.—E. G. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

ALGIERS: Charles Boyer, Sigrid Gurie—Did not go over here. Played November 4-5.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

I MET MY LOVE AGAIN: Joan Bennett, Henry Fonda, Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshal—I believe the patrons thought we were in quarantine on this one. Didn't make film rental.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Universal

LAST STAND, THE: Bob Baker—Average attendance for an average western. Played November 26.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

NURSE FROM BROOKLYN: Sally Eilers, Paul Kelly—Fair business and gave general satisfaction. Played November 19.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Nancy Carroll, Juanita Quigley—The Durbin fans will like this. There is a fine bunch of children aiding Deanna, especially Juanita Quigley who is a cute little tike. Adult characters are A-1 performers. Musical numbers are varied and good. Opened to a nice house and continued throughout. Sound exceptionally good. Played November 29-30.—Ed Crew, Empress Theatre, Waurika, Okla. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson—If you haven't played this, pay for it and don't play the world's worst picture ever made by any company—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell, Patric Knowles—The smallest Sunday-Monday business in months. It was a dandy picture for those who like the type but it just didn't have the draw. Played November 20-21.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Erroll Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—There is enough dialogue in this one to make two pictures. In fact Warners crammed so much dialogue in it that players had to talk so fast to get it all in that you couldn't understand half of what they were saying. The stars were fine considering their parts. Should do average business in any spot. Running time, 90 minutes. Played November 18-20.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kan. General patronage.

FOUR DAUGHTERS: Rosemary, Priscilla and Lola Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, John Garfield—Was a good Sunday picture. Pleased all.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

GOLD DIGGERS IN PARIS: Rudy Vallee, Hugh Herbert, Rosemary Lane, Allen Jenkins—Every exhibitor I have come in contact with has told me it's a flop and just another poor one from Warner Bros. I don't personally feel that picture is that bad. While nothing to brag about I think it's average and don't see anything awful about it. She will pass for a day or two for most exhibitors I think. Running time, 95 minutes. Played December 1-2.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

HARD TO GET: Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Charles Winninger, Allen Jenkins—Although this is an entertaining film with good casting and a good story and two song hits, I failed to do the business expected as Dick Powell has always been a good drawing card for me. Possibly played it too hot as I understand it has been clicking in later engagements. Played, November 13-14-15. Running time, 79 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

RACKET BUSTERS: George Brent, Gloria Dickson, Humphrey Bogart, Walter Abel—A typical "gang" picture. It went over big here as does most all of Bogart's films. They like 'em tough and ready here. A good picture for plenty of clean fast action on any exhibitor's program. Running time, 71 minutes. Played November 22-23.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

SISTERS, THE: Bette Davis, Errol Flynn—Another one like this and Bette will be my favorite. Well done, Warners.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor—Very good outdoor picture that gave general satisfaction and did a good business. Played November 12.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

WHITE BANNERS: Jackie Cooper, Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Bonita Granville—A wonderful picture. Excellent acting. Superb plot. This picture went over big with the majority of people and the only people to miss on the drift of the picture were a few of the farmers and foreigners. In our town of Torrington this picture came out on the poll conducted by the local paper as one of the ten best pictures of the year. Running time, 93 minutes. Played November 26.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theater, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

WINE, WOMEN AND HORSES: Barton MacLane, Ann Sheridan, Dick Purcell—Played this as feature number two on a double and got by. Don't play it single.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

UNUSUAL HUNTING: Special Sport Thrills—A real treat in this one. Everyone seemed to enjoy it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

COME ACROSS: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—Good "Crime Does Not Pay" short. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

FRIEND INDEED: Peter Smith Specialities—A wonderful short with a dog as the star that could not have been better. Excellent in all respects. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TWO EXHIBITORS JOIN REPORTERS

Two new contributors appear in the What the Picture Did for Me columns and two others whose reports have been missing for some time have reassumed the habit. New writers are:

HARRY ABBOTT, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio.

JOHN CARLSON, Carlsonia Theatre, Dawson Creek, B. C., Canada.

Prodigal contributors to the department this week are:

A. H. RECORD, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Mich.

IVAN W. ROWLEY, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal.

Read the reports of these exhibitors in these columns.

MEN IN FRIGHT: Our Gang Comedy—A good short especially for the kiddies. This series will go well in west anytime. Running time, 11 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

MIRACLE MONEY: Crime Does Not Pay Series—One of the best two-reelers I have ever played. From the "Crime Does Not Pay" series it exposes quack doctors who claim to cure cancer.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MUSIC MADE SIMPLE: Robert Benchley—Benchley is a little over the average small town customer.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY, No. 216: OK. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

NEWS OF THE DAY: Okay. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

OLD SMOKEY: Captain and the Kids—Amusing cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

OLD SMOKEY: Captain and the Kids—Pretty good cartoon about an old broken down fire horse.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

OLD SMOKEY: Captain and the Kids.—This series is not so hot. The kids liked this one but that is about all who did. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PARTY FEVER: Our Gang—A good short for the kiddies, and the elder folks seemed to enjoy it also. Although they don't compare with the old Mack Sennett shorts they are very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

PARTY FEVER: Our Gang—A very good Our Gang comedy that shows that Hal Roach will not be missed. As good as any he made. Alfalfa did not sing. Too bad. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BIG CHIEF UGH-A-MUGH-UGH: Popeye The Sailor—Very good. This is a business getter and with the proper exploitation it can mean dollars in your box-office. Running time, 7 minutes— Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

BUZZY BOOP AT THE CONCERT: Betty Boop Cartoons—A very clever black and white cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CALIFORNIA GIANTS: Paragraphics—A dandy single showing logging the California redwood. Educational and very entertaining.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

FOXY HUNTER, THE: Betty Boop Cartoons—These Betty Boop cartoons do not go over very good for us. Running time, seven minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

JEEP, THE: Popeye the Sailor—Not up to Popeye standard. The Jeep wasn't so good. Running time, seven minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

JEEP, THE: Popeye The Sailor—Very good. The Popeye series are good for any house and you won't get any kick from the patrons because everybody enjoys Paramount's Popeye. Running time, 7 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

LISTEN TO LUCAS: Clyde Lucas and His Orchestra—Very good Headliner.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS, NO. 6—The last of the series was the best. That is not saying a lot. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

FOX HUNT, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—A wonderful cartoon and one of Disney's best. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 1: Prelude to Conquest—This series have feature value. Feel proud that we are showing these, so much so we always have a screening, before showing them, for the school children in the interest of the community. I don't believe we have ever experienced as much pleasure out of any short subject as the March of Time. Our audience reaction was most favorably indicated by a spontaneous applause at the finish. Exhibitors, you can't go wrong on this series. You owe it to your community.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MORNING, JUDGE: Edgar Kennedy—One of the best comedies in a long while from Edgar Kennedy. This one will please all and you are sure not to have any kickbacks. Running time, 17 minutes.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MURDER IN SWINGTIME: Condor Musicals—An all negro musical that had a good plot but the band did not have much ability. Fair. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PATHE PARADE: No. 7—Just two subjects, Spiritualism and Trip through Disney Studios, make this a very good short. Played with a light picture and it balanced very nicely. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PATHE NEWS: We wonder if Hollywood is not oversold on the value of horse racing. We question whether audiences that do not have access to race tracks are interested. We know the Iowa audience is not.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

POLAR TRAPPERS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Excellent.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TWENTY GIRLS AND A BAND: Nick Stuart and Orchestra—A splendid two-reel musical short, with a lot of comedy. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

GLASS SLIPPER, THE: Terry-Toons—Fair cartoons. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor
GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

"SHOULD SHARE IN PROFITS"

Circuit division manager for many years, Maurie Stahl has recently taken over, among other houses and on his own, the Rivoli, Rutherford, New Jersey. And what do you think Stahl stressed in his first interview with the local press and his first advertising announcement, part of which is reproduced on this page? . . .

A profit-sharing policy for employees in addition to their regular salaries.

Essentially, it's another slant of the safe-and-sane commission form of remuneration found to be the only mutually satisfactory way of paying off by top selling organizations and in theatre business, most successfully by Famous Players-Canadian.

Maurie does a bit of clear-eyed looking ahead in setting forth some of the "reasons why" in declaring the staff in for a piece of the profit.

"I have always believed," he is quoted as saying, "that the success of any enterprise is in the combined efforts of all the workers. . . . Our employees spend all of their time here in the task of trying to supply first-class entertainment and courteous treatment to our patrons. If the Rivoli succeeds, I think they should share in the profits. . . . The plan is new in the East but I am confident it will work out here. . . . "

Stahl has been around long enough to stop kidding himself on the handling of manpower. He argues that the only definite way to insure consistent and persistent profitable effort from his employees is to give them an extra piece of what they help to bring to the boxoffice. He recognizes the weaknesses of policies that fail to do as much

IN OTHER WORDS, 2 + 2 = 4

Doctors and nurses are usually busy persons and getting them on the telephone to listen to a picture plug is not always as easy as it sounds, even if the picture has to do with their own lives and profession. What might be considered a tough hurdle to get over in informing these occupied medical folk about "The Citadel" was successfully avoided by old-timer Sid Scott of the Capitol, Sudbury, Canada. Scott employed the almost obvious device of hiring a local registered nurse to do the 'phoning. Results, he reports, were tops.

If showmanship is identified in part as a special talent, then it may be that this talent is also an instinct to pick the right selling slant for the right spot. Some folks call it plain "horse sense." Wouldn't be at all surprised if that's how Sid defines it.

Round Table In Pictures

Though short subjects are not usually adaptable enough to promote elaborate window displays, 20th Century Fox's "Fashion Forecast," showing latest styles is proving effective for tieins. Illustrated here is the window obtained by the Trans Lux Theatre, in Boston as reported by Dan Doherty, director of publicity for Movietone News.

Conceived by Phil Laufer, publicity director of Loew's Criterion, New York, and explained elsewhere in this section, here is illustrated giant thermometer planted in lobby during run of "Spring Madness". Tiein copy invited patrons of both sexes to make their individual tests to discover if they were immune from "spring madness".

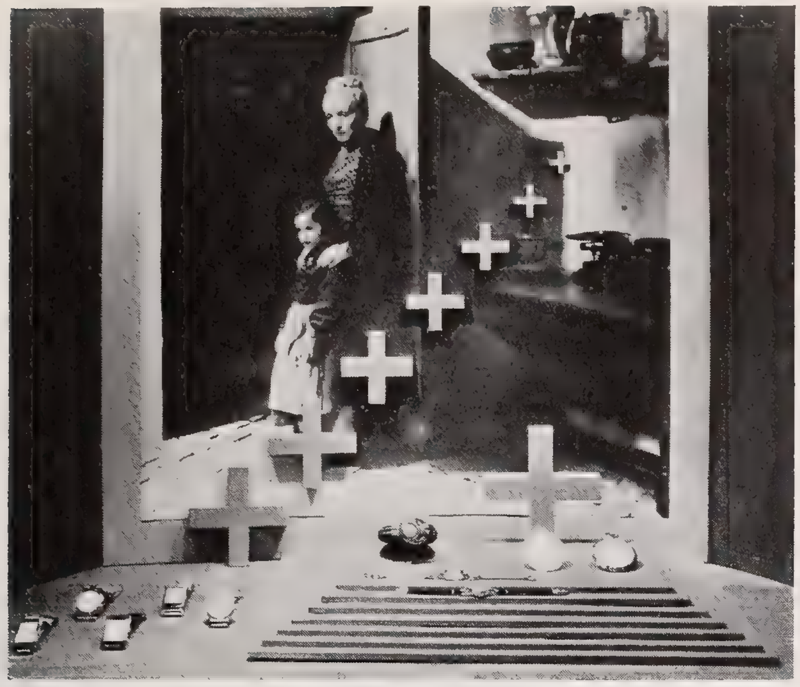
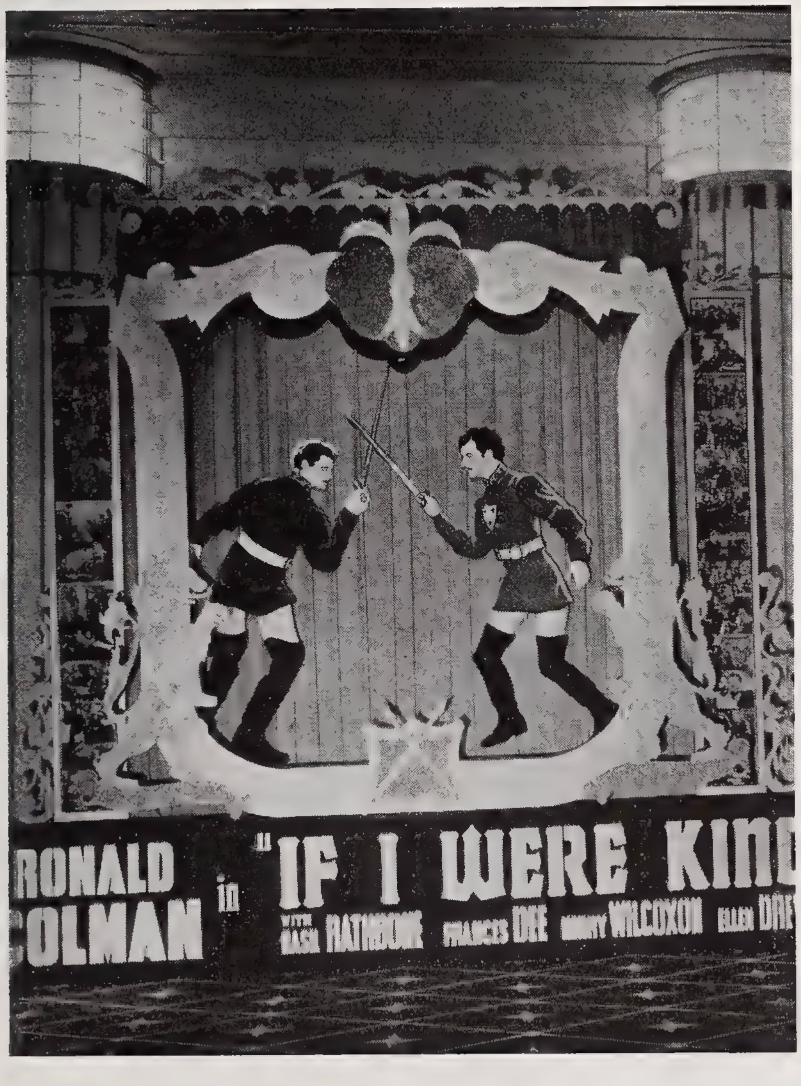
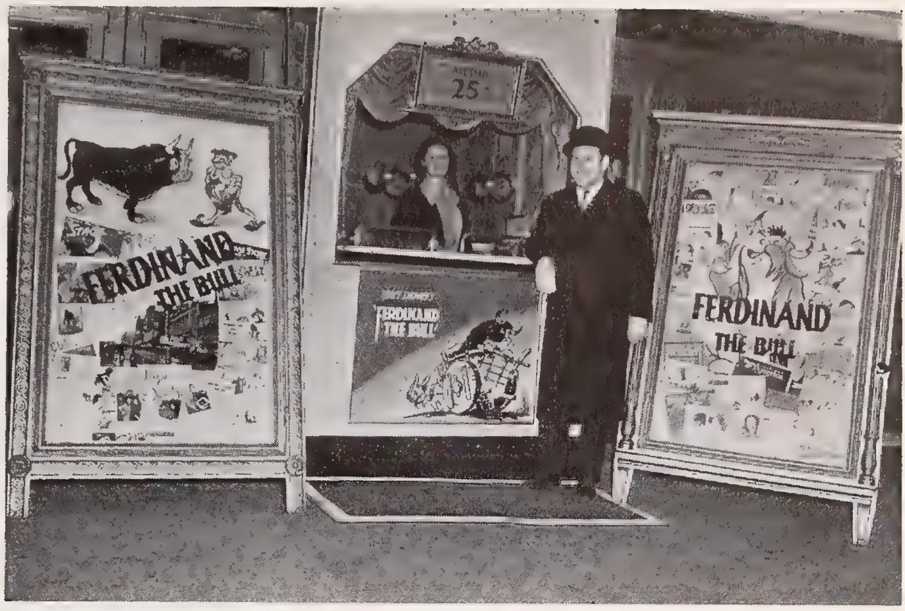
At left is Tommy Read's lobby for his Horror Show at the Paramount Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., tombstones, each carrying scare tiein copy. Also used was an effect record of screams, moans, etc., and the eyes of cutout figures had green lamps on blinkers. Grass mat and foliage completed the display.



Opening of the annual American Red Cross drive gave Lillian Nadel, publicity director Filmarte Theatre, N. Y., an opportunity to land striking window for "Grand Illusion." Giant enlargement of scene still served as background against which were affixed series of crosses with small credit card in front tying in the picture, drive and store items at exclusive Fifth Avenue jewelers.

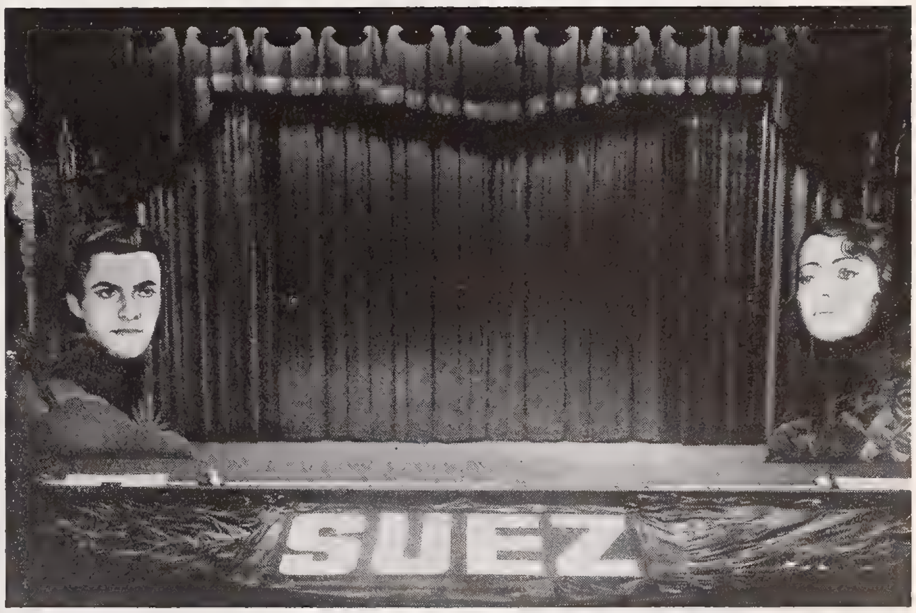
Always a strong believer in animation, Manager Charlie Pincus, Centre Theatre, Salt Lake City, Utah, put it into effect recently for his lobby setpiece on "If I Were King." Swords, body and legs were in constant motion, with figures dueling. The cast and title letters were transparent, scene stills were planted on columns and flitter was used profusely.





New York Rivoli Theatre devoted two 40 by 60 lobby frames to national magazines containing material on Disney's "Ferdinand the Bull," a reported first time that a short was granted such an elaborate layout. That's press agent James Dunn standing by.

John McManus, Loew's Midland Theatre, Kansas City, worked out a Sealyham puppy contest with local department store for "Young in Heart." Above may be seen store's Santa receiving the pup from airline hostess, who was supposed to have brought the pup in from Hollywood.



R. W. Russell, Palace, Canton, Ohio, for "Suez" covered the orchestra pit with 8-foot letters made of sign cloth and illuminated. On either side, white sand was scattered with flitter which gave the desert effect when lights were brought up.

Bridal Party Arranged On Stage by Storin

In connection with his showing of "Having Wonderful Time" at the Paramount, Springfield, Mass., Harry Storin tied in with local merchant's annual bride contest, which creates much interest locally. Old church window piece was set up on stage to give an altar effect, and as traveller opened, altar boy could be seen lighting candelabras, immediately after which the bridal procession entered stage as soloist sang "Oh, Promise Me."

Store plugged the slant in all ads and throughout the store; other cooperating merchants came through with corsages, outfits for ushers and bridesmaids, gifts for the bridal couple, wedding cake, cookies, ice cream, soft drinks, etc. Photos were taken of the proceedings on stage and run in paper following day, together with complete details.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

City Election Held For "Boys Town"

Gene Kincaid, Main Street, Lexington, Mo., promoted a "Boys Town City Election" with the aid of his newspaper and cooperating merchants in connection with that picture. Launched with a nominating convention at the theatre to which all boys were invited, the campaign carried a number of prizes from merchants for the highest number of votes for the various offices.

Fifty-four names went on the official ballot for the 18 city elective offices. Ballots were widely distributed, published in the newspaper and deposited at the theatre ahead of opening. All persons, whatever age, were entitled to vote, and winning officers served during "Boys Town" week in Lexington.

Fire Chief Drills Theatre Staff

Reported by J. K. O'Donnell, Haines Theatre, Waterville, Me., was idea which promoted him plenty of goodwill in addition to newspaper stories. Theatreman contacted Deputy Fire Chief Ivers, who agreed to conduct a rigid fire drill, giving the ushers detailed instructions on the proper use of hand fire extinguishers, etc.

Prior to the drills the staff was given a talk by Ivers and O'Donnell explaining the importance of the weekly drills and reasons for conducting them. Each man was conducted through the theatre and enacted what he would do in an emergency. After the individual tests, a general drill was held in which each man took his regular station and went through the emergency routine. Stories and pictures broke in the newspapers.

"Man At the Wheel" Tied to Safety Drives

Tieup with Cleveland's police department brought Louie Lamm, Uptown Theatre, 15 minute safety talks by officers before each performance in addition to the distribution of literature on March of Time's "Man at the Wheel." Motorcycle police were stationed in front during the time the short was playing there and wrecked car was also planted in lobby.

Realizing the editorial significance of the story, U. K. Rice of the Carolina Theatre, Winston-Salem, invited editor of local daily to see the picture, which brought not only a review on the editorial page, but a virtual command to every citizen to attend the show. In addition, Rice had a private showing for the city's traffic safety committee, photos were made of motorcycle patrolmen who attended and run in papers.

'Waltz' Winners Selected In MGM New York Finals

What Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer reports as one of the most successful and comprehensive exploitation campaigns in the annuals of motion pictures was concluded last Monday night in the grand ballroom of New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel when an audience of more than 2,500 viewed the finals of MGM's nationwide "Great Waltz" Dance Competition. The entire proceeds were donated to the American Red Cross.

The contest, starting September 26, progressed through local competitions in every state, and the twelve couples who competed in the finals were the survivors in twelve national "zones" from among more than 228,000 couples. To the winners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence Smith, of Brooklyn, N. Y., went first prize of a three-months contract with M-G-M. Presentation of the contract was made by Luise Rainer, star of "The Great Waltz." Judges were Tony de Marco, Leroy Thayer, Arthur Murray, Jack Robbins, Ned Wayburn, A. J. Weber and Prof. S. E. Feist.

Theatres, clubs, ballrooms, dancing schools and hotels participated in staging the nationwide contest, with leading orchestras supplying the music. In many cities the contest resulted in the naming of "Great Waltz Months." Radio was utilized everywhere to play Strauss music in the "Bring-back-the-Waltz" movement.

In New York, MGM secured the cooperation of the Scripps-Howard World Telegram, which carried numerous stories and plenty of art daily for two months prior to the finals. A series of ads was used, beginning two weeks before the finals.

Contest was made part of advance on the picture in all parts of the country. In Los Angeles, for instance, 17 night clubs, ballrooms and dancing schools were tied in with the city finals held at the Cocoanut Grove.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Test for "Spring Madness" Planted in Theatre Lobby

Giant thermometer, nine feet by four feet wide conceived by Phil Laufer, publicity director was placed in the outer lobby of Loew's Criterion, New York, with tiein copy inviting prospective patrons of both sexes to make their individual tests. (See photo in Round Table picture section.)

Display was made of plywood with 12 openings cut down center of board, each about six inches square and backed with frosted glass having various readings on it, glass illuminated from back by trough of lights enclosed in sheet metal box, painted black.

Twelve step circular timer was constructed so that the impulse transmitted to the motor by pushing a button operated 12 individual lamps, giving the effect of a roulette wheel, except that the action was vertical, as on a thermometer, instead of circular. Light stopped automatically at some point on tester and illuminated the reading on the glass square.

20th Century-Fox Sets Campaigns on 'Thanks', 'Kentucky'

With Arleen Whelan in New York on vacation, the national campaign for "Thanks for Everything" was inaugurated by 20th Century-Fox by a series of tieins and publicity events arranged by Marc Lachmann, exploitation representative, the star introduced to the press at a special gathering. Also on the schedule was a shopping tour of Fifth Avenue stores, Miss Whelan posing for pictures to be used in the New York papers. Included was a fur coat tiein with Russeks wherein store used page ads carrying photos of the star and generous theatre credits for the Roxy, where the picture is dated.

Further appearances were arranged at local charity drives with such celebrities as Jimmy Walker, Gene Tunney, among others. Miss Whelan was also featured on the "If I Had a Chance" NBC coast-to-coast broadcast during which publicity was directed to the picture, the general release date of which is set for Dec. 23.

Nationwide tiein was made with Postal Telegraph for special posters carrying the title and featuring cuts of the top names in the picture. Copy hooked the stars to the picture in saying "Thanks for Everything and Merry Christmas." Space on the poster is provided for imprint of local theatres playing the date with Postal planting the advertising in all offices throughout the country.

"Kentucky" Premiere for Governor

For the premiere of "Kentucky" at the Carthay Circle, in Hollywood, Governor A. B. ("Happy") Chandler, of Kentucky and party were guests of the company, attending the opening during a five-day trip to the studio. Other state executives, the Mayor of Louisville, and newspaper representatives were included in the party, which traveled to the coast under the guidance of Lachmann and Jim Denton, studio publicity representative. Day before the opening the Governor was scheduled to appear on a coast-to-coast broadcast on the picture and after the premiere the visitors were guests of Joseph M. Schenck and Darryl F. Zanuck at a party attended by stars of the picture and other prominents.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Merchant Tieups Aid On "Robin Hood"

Various were the exploitation gags used by Dorothy Flukes, Warners' publicist in Sydney, Australia, for the opening "Robin Hood" at the Regent Theatre among which was lad who covered town working jig-saw puzzle made up from a colored scene still from the picture. Various "Robin Hood" merchandise was plugged by leading stores, including archery sets, specially imprinted pencils, dart boards, writing pads, inside cover carrying title, cast, etc., and "Robin Hood" scarfs. Beauty of the tieups was that they all had nation-wide coverage and were arranged with the manufacturers at no cost to the theatre.

"JOYOUS JANUARY"

To pick up the pace of Christmas and New Year's weeks' business for continuance into January without loss of boxoffice momentum, it is suggested that theatremen employ a "Joyous January" or a "Be Joyous in January" campaign, to be built around the conventional New Year baby figure, decorated with a "1939" banner. Posters, ads and lobbies would feature the baby figure with copy lines, such as:

> "1939—a brand new year brings you brand new entertainment."
> "1939 brings you new gifts for the new year."
> "1939—a baby in arms. A giant in entertainment."
> "Joyous January means joyous screen happiness."

Suggested for a lobby setpiece is a cutout figure of Santa Claus with infant 1939 peering from behind Santa's legs, saying: "I'll be with you in January, folks, and look what I'm bringing". Alongside would be a group of simulated gift packages, each lettered with the name of a January attraction.

The "Joyous January" campaign could be tied in with leading stores and other community enterprises. Stores unload their Christmas leftovers in January sales with price reduction as the main copy appeal. Tiein with the theatre joy campaign would give them another compelling selling slant for advertising of new merchandise as well as the holiday items. Here, too, the 1939 figure would be utilized as a central art theme, as it would for the chamber of commerce, lunch clubs and others cooperating.

Recognition of the current dance craze would be accomplished with a series of January Joyous Jitterbug contests. These competitions are gaining in popularity and as special stage attractions are returning added grosses. Newspaper cooperation is also available. In January, too, the old reliable stage wedding could be worked as could be guest tickets for all couples married in the month with a special prize to the first wed in the New Year. Prizes for the first baby to be born in 1939 is another possibility for a co-op campaign with newspapers and stores.

Skouras Managers Offered Paramount "French" Prizes

Exclusively for managers of Skouras theatres, Paramount has inagurated the Neil F. Agnew exploitation contest with $500 in prizes for the best campaigns on "Say It In French." The three major prizes will be $250 for first, $150 for second and $100 for third. In addition to outstanding promotion, best comparative grosses and profits will be given consideration. Average advertising expense for the preceding and succeeding weeks of the engagement as well as expense during run of date will also be considered.

Contest terminates on March 8, 1939. For grosses and profits, judges will be S. P. Skouras, E. F. Zabel and George H. Balsdon; for advertising and exploitation, Alec Moss, Paramount advertising manager. Entries are to be forwarded to office of S. P. Skouras, 444 West 56th Street, New York City. Deadline is March 15th.

Soriero Promotes For Christmas

Tom Soriero, manager of the United Artists Theatre, Los Angeles, is rushing the Christmas season by giving gratis to patrons, from December 1 on, boxes of Yule cards valued at 25 cents a box, promoted from cooperating merchant. Likewise, over the same period, Soriero is giving away credit checks with a face value of $2.50 each when presented at local jewelry store, on purchase of article of $25 or more.

Back of checks is used to advertise the current shows at the United Artists, and distributed through chain markets in Los Angeles and ballroom in nearby Ocean Park.

Aviation Tieins Stressed In "Dawn Patrol" Pressbook

Numerous publicity stories and art, designed to give easy entree into newspapers and periodicals are included in the comprehensive pressbook prepared by Warner Bros. for "The Dawn Patrol." A six-day picture story for papers is described in addition to various contest ideas. Also available is a five-day newspaper quiz contest having to do with famous aviators.

National tieup has been arranged with the Lionel Corporation, who have manufactured a toy airplane setup for use as a window or lobby display. "Dawn Patrol" caps and helmets are available for distribution to children and stamps for sealing purposes.

Book opens with a double page spread presenting the highlights of the national advertising campaign, which will be headed by full-page color ads in Life, Look and Click, in addition to 14 fan magazines. Remaining pages are devoted to banners, display cards and advertising accessories.

Doubles Contest Held By Salmon on "Age"

Girls in the vicinity of the Beacon Theatre, New York City, were recently busily engaged in entering Joe Salmon's Deanna Durbin doubles contest in connection with the opening of "That Certain Age." Open to all girls between the ages of 14 and 18 years, contestants were not required to sing or entertain.

First prize was $25 in cash, with a promoted gift awarded every entrant; winner was chosen by audience applause. In addition, autographed photos of the starlet were mailed to the first 100 requesting them.

N. Y. World's Fair Enlists Theatres In New Year Drive

"Things Will Be Fine in '39," says the New York World's Fair exploitation department in a comprehensive manual setting forth the details of a campaign for the New Year and outlined here for the information of readers in a position to utilize the drive for their own situations. Theme of the campaign is "Dawn of a New Day," taken from the title of the official Fair song.

For New Year's Eve, New York's Broadway and Seventh Avenue are to be decorated with Fair flags, colored bunting drapes, in all stores and buildings. At midnight, giant Trylon and Perisphere on front of the Times Building will be illuminated and the paper's running news sign will carry tiein copy. Christmas tree in the Square will be appropriately illuminated and decorated. All electric and animated signs in the area will carry the "dawn" copy. At the Fair site at the same time, there is to be a fireworks display and ice carnival.

Promptly at midnight, hotel orchestras across the country will play the theme song to be picked up on a world-wide radio hookup. Night clubs will feature entertainment built around the theme, orchestras and all other personnel will wear Fair costumes and emblems. Hotel and restaurant guests will receive free postcards carrying tiein copy to be addressed and mailed to friends. Restaurants will feature a "Dawn of a New Day" breakfast on New Year's morning. Theatres are scheduled to tie in in every way possible with World's Fair lobby and front decorations, house staffs wearing emblems.

(7) Adoption of this uncommon type face for regular use has been found effective in drawing power by the New York Paramount, as illustrated here by the layout for the second week of "Men With Wings" and stage show.

Warnerites Sell 'Four Daughters' With Top Tieins

Regular theatre trailer was used by Marty Goldenberg, Warner's State, Philadelphia to ask patrons to submit the names and addresses of four daughters, as part of his campaign on that picture. The object was to have four girls so chosen to act as hostesses during the run. The West Philadelphia Times cooperated by running stories about the search and plug for the picture.

Broadcast was arranged day ahead of opening in which all theatre managers in that division participated in addition to the four girls chosen as hostesses. Special fold herald with front set in novelty type and carrying Jack Warner's statement inside was distributed week ahead.

While Out in Hanover, Pa.

Entire note of Charles H. Moyer's campaign at the State Theatre, Hanover, Pa. was a "money back" guarantee, a reported first time in that city, theatreman also running a personal endorsement trailer. Special heralds were prepared and distributed house-to-house within a radius of 25 miles.

Another reported first time was the double truck promoted by Moyer, each add calling attention in its copy to the picture in addition to flyer at top of page. Whispering campaign was started weeks ahead with all employees participating; Moyer personally spoke to three clubs at their weekly meetings and cashier telephoned subscribers, giving picture spiel.

Ending in Medina, N. Y.

Mayor Charles F. Slack of Medina, N. Y. issued a proclamation in the form of free newspaper space for Johnny Macris' opening at the Diana Theatre. This theatre also through cooperation of leading daily put on a contest to secure the four most attractive daughters in town. Papers ran daily stories during contest, following up with photos and names of winners.

Serialization of the Fannie Hurst novel was planted in paper as were cooperative merchants' ads. Special screening was held for local prominents, who were asked for their reactions, these comment cards being later used for publicity purposes. Day ahead of opening attractive girl led a large Irish setter appropriately bannered about town and a girl's bicycle race staged through cooperation of police department was held opening day, each girl's bike conspicuously carrying picture playdates.

From this week's LIFE!

"The cover picture of Yvette Chauviré, first ballerina of the French National Opera, was taken from the French movie, Ballerina. A portrayal of backstage ballet life, Ballerina was acted mainly by pupils and grown-up stars of the French National Opera school who never acted in movies before. It is so tender in its sympathy for children's feelings, so beautiful in its pictorial compositions, that it takes high place among the first-rate movies imported from France to the U. S."

IN COURTS

Modification of RKO Order Seen

Application for modification of an order calling for stockholders to present their certificates to the court upon filing their approval of the Atlas reorganization plan for RKO, was made this week before Judge William Bondy in New York. He indicated that he would consent to modification unless that action should conflict with provisions of the Chandler Act. He termed the original order "unreasonable."

All attorneys present consented to the application except John S. Stover, attorney for Ernest W. Stirn. He objected on the ground that his client was the only one who had filed his consents properly.

Supreme Court Denies Appeal of Steelman

The United States Supreme Court on Monday dismissed the appeal of Hiram Steelman, trustee in bankruptcy for William Fox, from the third circuit court of appeals decision holding that the All-Continental Corporation was not within his jurisdiction.

Mr. Steelman's appeal was another one in the long drawn out campaign to obtain access to the books of All-Continental, owned by Mr. Fox's wife, which the trustee claims is the personal creation of the Fox family and William Fox, who transferred all his assets to it before the bankruptcy was initiated.

"Mamlock" Suit Filed

Suit was filed in New York Supreme Court this week by Hans J. Mamlok against Amkino Corporation, Levrad Amusement Company, Inc., Charles S. Levin, Benjamin I. Radin, Cameo Theatre Company, Inc., Leninfilm and Friedrich Wolf. The suit asks $100,000 and an injunction restraining exhibition of the picture, "Professor Mamlock." The plaintiff claims violation of Section 51 of the Civil Rights Law in that his name is used in the picture and states that for 25 years he was a professor in Berlin and a dental authority.

Court Denies Plea

New York Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins has denied William Mayer the right to examine the corporate books and records of S.M.M.H. Corporation, organized to market a patent for a non-intermittent camera and projector. According to the papers filed Mr. Mayer is a 10 per cent stockholder and Courtland Smith and Saul Rogers are officers of the corporation. Similar applications to inspect the books of Studio C. Lens Corporation and C-Lens Corporation, organized to market lens patents, were also denied.

Brandt Named Defendant

Harry Brandt has been served with a summons as an additional defendant in the copyright infringement suit brought by Milton Spitz of "U Spot-It," against Motion Pictures Greatest Year, Inc., and film companies. Mr. Brandt is an officer of Bobbydick, Inc., which operates the Globe theatre in New York, an original defendant.

Pathe Action Fails to Carry

The liquidation plan for Pathe Film Corporation failed to carry Tuesday when proxies representing only 60 per cent of the company's stock were voted in favor of the plan at a special meeting of Pathe stockholders.

A new proposal designed to accomplish the major part of the liquidation plan will be completed next week and sent out to the company's stockholders, however. The abandoned liquidation plan had been proposed under a new provision of the 1938 U. S. Revenue Act which required that the proposed plan have the approval of 80 per cent of the stockholders and the liquidation be completed before the end of this month.

A statement issued by the company following the meeting implied that the necessary amount of stock to carry the proposal would have been obtained except for the restraining actions filed by du Pont and minority stockholders, both of which were dismissed in federal court prior to the stockholders' meeting.

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe in New York on Monday, denied the motion of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Company for an injunction restraining Pathe Film Corporation from transferring the beneficial interest in 35 per cent of DuPont Film Manufacturing Corporation without first offering it to the plaintiff or requiring the recipients of the interest to do so.

In a contract with the plaintiff, which owns the remaining 6,000 shares, Pathe bound itself not to sell the DuPont film stock without first offering it to DuPont at the best price and terms obtainable. Lowell M. Birrell, counsel to the plaintiff, argued last week that the transfer of the beneficial interest to 7,000 Pathe stockholders would amount to a sale.

Judge Coxe in his opinion reviewed this contention and noted that the defendant was losing money and under the revenue act of 1938 would receive substantial benefit if the liquidation of its assets were completed this month.

"The single question presented," Judge Coxe wrote, "is whether a distribution to the defendant stockholders is a sale within the meaning of the covenant restrictions. I do not think it is. This is not a sale, but merely a distribution under the law to the persons who are proprietors of the corporate interests. The motion of the plaintiff for an injunction is denied."

Move "Wreckage" Suit

The legal action of Cinema Service Corporation to compel the New York censor board to issue an exhibition license for "Human Wreckage," social hygiene film, has been transferred to the Appellate Division by Justice Francis A. Bergan of the State Supreme Court, in accordance with the precedent set last year in a similar action involving licensing of "Tomorrow's Children."

Nu-Art Has Cooper Film

Nu-Art Films, Inc., of New York, has acquired exclusive 16 mm rights on the production "Pecks Bad Boy," a Fox Film release starring Jackie Cooper with Thomas Meighan, produced by Sol Lesser and directed by Edward F. Cline.

Butterfield Renews Ad Deal

A three-year renewal agreement, dated January 1, 1939, has been given the Alexander Film Company of Colorado Springs, industrial film producers and distributors, by W. W. Butterfield Theatres, Inc., of Michigan. Renewal of the agreement brings to 14 years the length of time the Butterfield circuit of 110 Michigan theatres has used Alexander product.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com.; Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Three Outstanding
NEW FILMS

EASTMAN announces three important new negative films for the professional motion picture field. . . . Plus-X: fast, fine-grained. Unsurpassed for general studio work. . . . Super-XX: super-speed, surprisingly small grain. For difficult newsreel shots, or for use wherever exposure is a problem. . . . Background-X: ultra-fine grain, ample speed. For backgrounds. Also excellent for all-round exterior work. . . . These films not only make dramatic advances along their particular lines, but offer the high reliability and photographic quality typical of Eastman sensitized materials. Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Distributors, Fort Lee, Chicago, Hollywood.)

"TAKING PART"

WHEN Mr. Samuel Goldwyn announced employment of Mr. James Roosevelt as a Hollywood executive the elements of consideration and purpose seemed so obvious that your genial and good humored editor decided to leave the matter to the news pages, without comment.

If, once again Mr. Goldwyn, for attention purposes sought to acquire a "name," it seemed to be a matter of little moment. Such things must be expected from time to time.

And if young Mr. Roosevelt in his versatility, after a career in insurance and the White House secretariat, wanted to try a new job, that would, despite some reservations, be perhaps understandable, too. He is entitled to employment.

However, with a federal suit, instituted under his father's administration, pending against the motion picture industry, there have seemed to be aspects of the matter that in some minds would be considered, shall we say, delicate.

One might have prayerfully hoped that a bit of special discretion could have followed even then, and even if Mr. Goldwyn was once again willing to take the limelight at whatever cost to his contemporaries and his industry.

But in Chicago Mr. Roosevelt, in the maturity of his film experience, between trains midcontinent, made official declaration: "Mr. Goldwyn and myself happen personally to agree with the Government's position in favor of separating the production companies from theatre ownership and operation." That came right after a disclaimer asserting: "I shall take no part whatsoever in negotiations or proceedings with the Government."

This new film executive, it would appear, is not cognizant of the fact that his public expression is in fact a very considerable "taking part."

The contemporary policy of the Department of Justice has predominant publicity phases.

RELATIONS

THE fan magazine press, being much the recipient of special favors of access in Hollywood and further encouragement by advertising patronage in New York, may be expected, from time to time, to bestow most special attention upon the motion picture. A perfect gem of example is afforded in Photoplay's sparkling article on "Hollywood's Unmarried Husbands and Wives." Meanwhile, officially circulated trade literature proclaims, if not enthusiastic approbation, at least acquiescence.

The fan magazine press is most directly dependent upon the continued wellbeing of the art and industry of the motion picture, including its status in the public mind.

The motion picture screen created the audience and the reader interest in which the fan press has been nurtured and developed. In fact, the first fan magazine was born of direct cooperative stock participation support of the Motion Picture Patents Company's principal producers.

Meanwhile, if the merchandisers of motion pictures appear indifferent to the policies of the fan press with respect to the repute of the screen, that can only be philosophically considered as consistent with willingness to compromise with radio, or to invade the screen with lotteries and other irrelevancies.

REPRESENTATIVES

THE motion picture exhibitor, be he head of a mighty circuit or the proprietor of a "shooting gallery," stands in the position in his community of a representative of the industry of the screen. He is also the purchasing agent of his public, purveying entertainment.

In view of this position of responsibility, with its obligations to both the institution and its customers, it is hard to understand the oblique obtuseness with which a recent official gathering of showmen sat through a deliberately planned and programmed exhibition of professional, proclaimed viciousness.

This industry, and every one in it, stands continuously before the court of public opinion—and the hard lights are on.

THE most distinguished Mr. Hamlin Garland, venerable and a member of the toplofty American Academy of Arts and Letters, holds that the motion pictures have achieved a cheapening effect upon literature because authors have been doing their fiction with one eye on picture possibilities. A sage in his ivory tower ought to be philosopher enough to let those who seduce so easily welter in their lucre. It would serve them right—and reduce competition for the high art that scorns box office.

FURTHER REPORTS on the decadence of our day: In New York a smart set women's wear shop announces "Photo-Glamour in Formal Fashions" so that milady is to be always garbed for the attentions of the candid press camera. Nightlife being what it is, lived for publicity, for the columnists and the rotogravure sections and occasional newsreel, beauty must now be actinic. . . . From the northwest come tidings of a line of new farm tractors with air-conditioned cab, radio set and cigar lighter. Presumably space has also been provided for a televisor—if, when, and as.

BY perusal of a vast file of official papers of technicians concerned with problems of film preservation, in connection with the labors of Mr. John G. Bradley of the National Archives in Washington, one discovers the solemn and scientifically acute observation of Mr. John I. Crabtree of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers and of the research staff of the Eastman company that the use of face powder by girls handling motion picture film is adverse to the life and quality of the image. Make-up, it seems, belongs only on the set.

Fame's Findings

The annual evaluation, compiled from exhibitors by Motion Picture Herald and Fame, of the relative brightness of the stars who have earned title to a permanent place in the spotlight of the public's favor as expressed at the boxoffice stands completed. Attesting the fact that fame is not so fleeting as is commonly supposed Shirley Jane Temple leads the list of Ten Best Money Making Stars for the fourth successive year. Near her in popular appeal are Clark Gable, Sonja Henie, Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, Myrna Loy, Jane Withers, Alice Faye and Tyrone Power, in that order. Following these are a host of players whose popularity in certain regions or with certain audiences brings them crowding close to the center of the spotlight. In that particularized field included in the general title of Western Stars, Gene Autry is first for the second time. Riding close at his heels are William Boyd, Buck Jones, George O'Brien, Three Mesquiteers, Charles Starrett, Bob Steele, Smith Ballew, Tex Ritter and Dick Foran.

Results of the poll as they appear in the forthcoming issue of Fame are summarized on pages 13, 14, 15 and 16.

"Snow White" Is Queen

Having played in 45 countries, with Germany, Russia and Japan among the few exceptions which have not yet seen "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and with 8,000 playdates in the U. S. and Canada alone, the world gross of the film is now approaching the $8,000,000 mark on its first play-off.

A detailed account of what the picture has done, and some of the plans behind it, will be found on page 17.

Quota Law Hit

Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, in the House of Commons Tuesday faced attacks by members who declared the new Films Act was gravely hampering the industry. A numerical drop in production, industry unemployment and a shortage of films on the domestic market were cited. Mr. Stanley defended the act as having improved the standards of production, claiming the objective of higher quality is being attained under the law. He said he was aware of the shortage of product, and expressed the hope that the quality improvement would serve to attract new financing. He contended the film decrease was due to outside causes, but did not specify them.

Aubrey Flanagan, writing earlier from London, tells of industry alarm over a threat of Government censorship in the story on page 33.

INFORMATION, PLEASE!

IN sequel to editorial expressions presented in Motion Picture Herald have come certain criticisms of what has been deemed the attitude of this publication toward "Films for Democracy," which some contend is a constructive, patriotic movement for the preservation of the traditional democracy of the United States of America.

Motion Picture Herald therefore considers it appropriate to ask "Films for Democracy" clearly, officially and publicly to declare its position with respect to:

1—The political theories commonly known as Communism.

2—The political theories commonly known as Fascism.

3—The political theories characteristic of both Communism and Fascism, and commonly described as Totalitarianism, under which the state reserves to itself complete rights over the life, liberty and pursuits of the individual, denying to the individual those rights held under the traditional American system as a natural and inalienable heritage.

MARTIN QUIGLEY.

Governor on Films

Discussing the film industry with the press in Chicago this week on his way to the coast, Governor-elect Cuthbert Olson of California refused this week to declare his attitude should a divorcement bill be proposed in his state but did say that he was opposed to block booking and that the Government's action would probably decide any such isssue before state officials could act. He denied that he had discussed the industry situation in California during his visit last week to the White House. Governor Olson also believes that films should contain more of an educational nature and especially "Americanism." He deplored the public preference for motion pictures rather than political meetings. He admitted that the industry was of much support to him in his recent campaign.

Mr. Olson said he would study state income taxes in relation to star salaries, realizing that the salaries were of short duration, but added, "Profligate spending on horse-racing and gambling makes the situation difficult because the money probably would not be saved."

"The American Way"

American Films Foundation is distributing pictures on "American Democracy." Intended primarily for showing in clubs, schools and the like, the shorts have been booked by several circuits. Among the 42 names on the National Advisory Board of the organization are the presidents of the International Union of Chemistry, of the Drama League of America, of the National Society of Children of the American Revolution, of the American Women Against Communism, of the Clergy League of America, and of the Finer Films Federation of New Jersey.

An account of the organization and its workings will be found on page 14.

Christmas Spirit

Paramount's "Scrooge," an English production based on Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol," has been withdrawn from distribution wherever requested by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, whose "Christmas Carol," starring Reginald Owen, is going out on release as scheduled, and will play the Music Hall in New York beginning Thursday. Theatres which had booked Paramount's version of the story for Christmas week cancelled the booking at the company's request.

Yule Benefits

Motion picture exhibitors the country over again are placing the facilities of their theatres, the efforts of their theatre staffs and their shows at the disposal of their localities for relief of the needy at this Christmastide, holding benefits, giving special "gift" matinees or donating parts of their box office income. In many cases the owners are acting independently of local agencies or newspapers; in others they have tied up with either or both.

Many thousands of children will be guests of circuit and independent theatres everywhere.

No Protection

The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers in New York has been accused of "failing to come out and fight for the protection" of the industry and its stars against recent "pillorings" in film "fan" magazines. Martin Starr, film news commentator on the air, made the charge last Friday evening over Station WMCA of the Knickerbocker Broadcast Company, in New York. Himself an AMPA board member, Mr. Starr declared "there are several constructive ways in which this organization could have, and should have combated the flood of recent 'malicious material' in the fan press."

Universal Gets "Mikado"

Universal announced Wednesday that it has acquired distribution rights to the first motion picture ever made of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" for the United States, Canada, South America and the Far East. Joseph Somlow, associate producer of General Film Distributors, Universal's British associate, handled the deal. The film, expected to be an internationally important musical, was directed by Victor Schertzinger, with musical direction by Geoffrey Toye. The cast includes the D'Oyly Carte Players and chorus, Kenny Baker, and the music of the London Symphony Orchestra. Universal added that for 10 years permission to film this musical was refused.

Sudetenland

In a report received this week in Washington from the U.S. Commercial Attache at Berlin, Douglas Miller, he states that by a decree the German laws regarding the establishment of a Nazi National Chamber of Culture (Reichskulturkammer), and of a Film Chamber, have been extended to the Sudetenland. All questions of cultural importance, especially those pertaining to films in the Sudetenland, are now under the control of the Nazi Minister of Propaganda. This, of course, was expected.

Schaefer Elected

George J. Schaefer, head of RKO Radio Pictures, was elected to the board, the Italian situation was discussed, and plans for two films for use in the New York and San Francisco fairs were outlined, at the quarterly meeting Tuesday, in New York, of the directors of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. Attending the meeting were Nate Blumberg, Barney Balaban, Jack Cohn, Earle W. Hammons, E. B. Hatrick, Sidney Kent, Maurice Silverstone, Mr. Schaefer, Will Hays, and Major Frederick Herron.

The major distributors submitted formally to the Hays office their decision to cease operations in Italy on December 31, after which date the Italian government monopoly officially assumes operation. Their decision is based on the theory that, whatever concessions the Italian government now makes, its monopoly has the effect of a breach of contract.

Mr. Hays outlined the plans for two films to be used for the New York and San Francisco fairs, made from a plan of Dr. James Shotwell of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. Pictures will be compiled from 2,000,000 feet of film, with some new material to be made by Cecil B. De Mille. They will consist of 15 historical episodes, depicting the rise of America. The San Francisco film will contain special material showing the rise of the West. Being a compilation from old historical films the pictures will be, in actuality, an exhibit, at both fairs, of the motion picture industry.

The board will meet again on January 4.

Admissions Up

Admission taxes collected by the Federal Government during November jumped nearly $400,000 over the preceding month, from $1,596,367 to $1,985,127.

At the same time, the Bureau reported that the November collections were some $250,000 under those of the same period last year, when they totaled $2,242,573, although well ahead of both the 1936 figure of $1,605,674 and the 1935 total of $1,866,915.

With 1938 collections under those of last year throughout a number of months, receipts for the first 11 months were $1,000,000 under those of 1937, amounting to $17,640,960 against $18,684,006, the report showed.

Ban in Quebec

Efforts of Quebec exhibitors to effect repeal of the Province's ten-year-old ban on children's theatre attendance are being strengthened by Quebec legislators joining the movement.

Details of the campaign are on page 26.

Canadian Report

The Canadian Government report on operation of theatres in the Dominion shows that only 28 per cent of the total seating capacity of 1,047 theatres in the country is occupied at every performance during the year, the average for the previous year being 29 per cent, when there were 88 fewer theatres in operation. The total seating capacity of all theatres is given as 601,611, and, therefore, 168,000 seats are occupied on the average.

Further statistics show the average percentage of seats occupied in cities of 100,000 population and over was 30, while in the smaller centers the average was 26 per cent. The ratio is relatively higher in theatres having accommodation for less than 800 persons with an average of approximately 31 per cent for all performances. The average for theatres having more than 800 seats is 27 per cent for the year.

The total number of employees for the 1,047 Canadian theatres was 6,950, of whom 5,294 were men.

Ban on Nativity

The British Board of Censors has refused a certificate for theatre showings of "The Prince of Peace," Gaumont British Instructional religious film. The objection was that Christ was represented in the production, even though as the Child in the Manger.

THE BIGGEST MONEY MAKING STARS OF 1938

Exhibitors of America judge the box office rankings of more than 200 players

FAME is not fleeting. For all the evanescence commonly attributed to good fortune, all the ephemeral character popularly ascribed to adulation by the public of its great and great-to-be, when that public has named its winning ticket it places its money on the line until it is ready to change the combination for itself.

At the same time, the public does not close its eyes to new arrivals on the scene, even if that be the motion picture scene, supposedly the most rapidly changing of any. The customers of the motion picture theatre, makers of Fame, must be shown, but they are willing to be shown.

Both these facts are attested in the annual assay of patrons' preferences at the box office by the publications Motion Picture Herald and Fame. It was in 1932 that Quigley Publications first undertook to learn from the exhibitors themselves who were actually the Money Making Stars. In countless polls, sectionally and nationally, personality and popularity premises had been adapted for studies, not always serious, of what and whom the laity wanted to see on the screen. But what the exhibitors' own ledgers showed, the actual totals in black ink, that was something else again.

Draw Most Patrons

In that first study the Herald asked the exhibitors of the United States to name, in order, the ten players whose pictures "drew the greatest number of patrons to your theatre." The wording even precluded the voicing of personal preferences of the exhibitor. He was invited to tell the story of his account books. Hence it was not the theatre owner or manager speaking; it was the box office.

That formula for establishing the identities of the Money Making Stars has not changed to this day. The same question was asked of the independent exhibitor this year. The same criteria were employed, and the authenticity of the results, year after year, to studio, business office and to the press, has been evidenced by the fact that never have the results been questioned; the verdict of the box office is final. Furthermore, the period covered was the motion picture year, September 1, 1937, to September 1, 1938, not the calendar year.

Shirley Jane Temple, with all but three of her nine and one-half years spent before the lights of the motion picture studio stage, is the one to whom the exhibitors continue to turn as the one who assures them of the most cheering box office, year in and year out. For the fourth successive season her's is the name the showmen place first of all as the Money Making Star.

The Winners

Shirley Temple	First
Clark Gable	Second
Sonja Henie	Third
Mickey Rooney	Fourth
Spencer Tracy	Fifth
Robert Taylor	Sixth
Myrna Loy	Seventh
Jane Withers	Eighth
Alice Faye	Ninth
Tyrone Power	Tenth

With that record the eternal feminine also becomes supernal in patronage appeal. Marie Dressler, who won the first poll, and repeated that success in the following season, was succeeded by another whose memory also is treasured by industry and public alike, Will Rogers. Both represented that type of motion picture and player referred to within the trade as "down-to-earth."

Started in 1932

Then came Shirley. When Rogers died in a plane crash August 15, 1935, Shirley already had begun to light up the screen and the motion picture firmament. In 1932 she had started in the Baby Burlesque short subjects of Educational Pictures. In September of the following year came her first feature role, in Paramount's "To the Last Man." 1934 brought "Stand Up and Cheer" and "Baby Take a Bow," for Fox, and both Shirley and Twentieth Century-Fox have been taking bows for her work ever since. The 1934 poll found her already in eighth place. In 1935 she reached first rank.

While that loyalty of motion picture goers has not dimmed; they have been alert to new personalities. In the 1937 poll Sonja Henie's personality skated her to eighth ranking with her "One in a Million," her first American motion picture. There is a parallel this year in the cases of Mickey Rooney, Alice Faye and Tyrone Power, in that none of them was within the circle of the 25 leaders of 1937. The parallel carries a step farther in that The Rooney's abrupt advance to fourth place traces primarily to the Judge Hardy series, and particularly to "Love Finds Andy Hardy." Miss Faye and Tyrone Power come up to ninth and tenth places, respectively, largely because of two productions in which they co-starred, "In Old Chicago" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band." There the parallel ends, for all three had been in motion pictures several years. Also among the 10 leaders this year is Spencer Tracy.

A Veteran Juvenile

Mickey Rooney classifies as a juvenile, but his years of experience as an actor make that terminology a seeming misnomer, for as a baby he appeared in the vaudeville act of his parents, Joe Yule and Nell Brown. Motion Picture Almanac notes the fact that he was on the screen in "Not to be Trusted" and "Orchids and Ermine." "Not to be Trusted" was a two-reel Fox subject in the Helen and Warren series, starring Kathryn Perry and Hallam Cooley, and was released October 24, 1926. "Orchids and Ermine," full-length First National subject with Colleen Moore and Jack Mulhall, bore a release date of March 6, 1927. Since then Mickey has been in a half hundred pictures.

Out of the stage also came Alice Faye and Tyrone Power. From the Chester Hale units on the Loew circuit's eastern theatres Miss Faye joined the chorus of the Hollywood Restaurant, was in the line in George White's Scandals, but began the upward climb when Rudy Vallee made her featured singer with his band. In 1934 she sang duets with the crooner in the screen version of the Scandals. Since then she has been on her own, personal appeal joining with voice in her ascendancy to stardom.

A tradition of generations was the stage background of Tyrone Power. From stock he appeared at Chicago's Century of Progress, was on radio programs with Don Ameche, understudied Burgess Meredith on the stage in "Flowers of the Forest," acted in a number of plays before turning to the motion picture. In 1936 he was in "Girl's Dormitory," "Ladies in Love," "Lloyds of London." The 1937 season brought "Love Is News," "Cafe Metropole," "Thin Ice," "Second Honeymoon." Thence the teaming with Alice Faye in the two pictures in 1938 which carried them both into the inner circle of the Ten Money Making Stars.

CERTAIN characters whose claim to Fame must be included in any review of the star parade are not personalities at all but the projection of an artist's conception of a motion picture character. Reflecting the popularity and patronage drawing powers of one of the year's unusual pictures were hundreds of votes cast by exhibitors for "Snow White", many of them listing in separate ballots "Dopey" or the seven dwarfs. Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Popeye received frequent mention, although they have never appeared in a feature length picture.

The trend toward series pictures and their box-office value also were indicated in the ballots which were recorded for such groups as the "Hardy" and "Jones" families and for "Hopalong Cassidy". Exhibitors indicated that their preferences were for the story or the characters, regardless of what stars filled the roles.

TYRONE POWER

MONEY MAKING WESTERN STARS; EXHIBITORS PICK 41 PLAYERS

THE singing of bullets and cowboy songs in a one-man duet holds the fancy of the Western fan as closely as ever, when Gene Autry is doing them. Exhibitors have chosen Autry as the Money Making Western Star for the second season in succession.

How definitely the books of the theatres attest that fact is the revelation from the poll that with thousands of ballots cast, the total vote cast for Gene Autry this year varied by only four points from the sum of his pointage last season. The record is all the more unusual in the light of the method of translating the exhibitors' vote into comparative ranking. Ten points are allotted for each mention for first place, nine points for second place mention and so on through to one point for a vote for tenth position.

It is a neck and neck race across the hills and valleys of public popularity. Bill Boyd gallops along just behind the leader and Buck Jones continues to shoot 'em up in third rank. George O'Brien has passed Dick Foran, but Dick has been turning his steed off the cowboy trail into the greener pastures of general audience features. Tex Ritter's pinto cast a shoe in an arroyo to drop back to ninth place. A burst of speed moved the Three Mesquiteers and Charles Starrett into fifth and sixth positions, the while Ken Maynard's mustang, a bit winded, fell back to twelfth.

Smith Ballew provided the one sharp change in the balloting this year. From thirty-second place in the 1937 canvass, Ballew sped over a short-cut and sang his way into eighth rank.

Texan, as are both Autry and Ritter, Smith Ballew went from the University of Texas into orchestra work. In 1936 he was in Paramount's "Palm Springs" and RKO Radio's "Racing Lady." Thence he turned to Western product. In 1937 he starred in "Western Gold" for Twentieth Century-Fox and has continued since under the Fox brand.

Gene Autry, from his father's ranch, took to railroading in Oklahoma, but he was not destined to become a Jim Hill. His singing voice took care of that. Into radio in 1928, four years later he entered motion pictures, writing his own songs. In his Republic pictures his constant pal is Smiley Burnette, who is ranked fifth in the Honorable Mention group.

Exhibitors were asked the same question as in the general poll of Money Making Stars. The questionnaire read: "Name, in order, the ten players in Westerns whose pictures drew the greatest attendance to your theatres."

The results reflect the truth that patrons of the pictures of flying hoofs find cowboy songs under the moon a soothing accompaniment to the hail of steel.

LEADERS HAVE CONSISTENT RECORDS

to the Top Ten this year, another parallel with the 1937 poll. New to the rolls of the Ten Leaders last yere were Sonja Henie, Jane Withers, William Powell and Myrna Loy, and of these only Powell has returned to the 15 Honor Stars grouping. This year also there are four newcomers to the First Ten. Differing from the cases of Rooney, Power and Miss Faye, however, is that of Spencer Tracy. In 1937 Tracy's steady rise in Fame had taken him to eighteenth place. This year he is fifth from the top. A possible connection with the rise of The Rooney may be seen in the joint appearances of Tracy and Rooney in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer product, such as "Captains Courageous" and "Boys Town," though "Boys Town" was released late in 1938.

Tracy, it will be recalled, won the Academy Award of 1937 for his performance in "Captains Courageous," after many, many appearances in motion pictures. It was stage roles "Bread," "Nigger Rich" and "The Last Mile" that brought him into a Fox contract and his first films at the turn of the decade. Since then the name Spencer Tracy has appeared near or at the top of the cast of at least three features a year.

A record no less consistent than Shirley Temple's is that of Clark Gable for year in, year out assurance of good box office for exhibitors in general, according to their ballots. For the third successive poll Gable holds second place. Indeed, his name has been among the Ten Leaders in each of the seven years. Eighth in 1932, exhibitors moved him up to seventh the following year. Since then, with one exception, he has been in second place, and that exception was a third place in 1935, when Shirley Temple and Will Rogers were first and second. Notable also is the steady narrowing of the gap between Clark Gable and first place. In 1936 it was 261 points, last year 144, this year 104 points.

4 MILLIONS, 8,000 DATES, "SNOW WHITE" '38 RECORD

RKO-Disney Cartoon Expected to Double Present Figure When Complete Rentals from Foreign Market Are Tabulated

Gross rentals of $4,000,000 in 12 months, and playdates running over 8,000. That's the history-making performance to date for "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," first feature cartoon of the world's screen, now rounding out its first year in circulation.

In addition, another $4,000,000 in rentals are accruing from foreign markets—$1,750,000 from England, $500,000 from France and $1,750,000 from the 43 other foreign countries where the colored cartoon of Walter Elias Disney is now showing—a total of $8,000,000 in gross rentals for 12 months, and RKO says there still are thousands of theatres to be booked.

Neither the Disney interests, as producers, nor RKO Radio, as distributors, will talk about their gross profits, but rapid calculations disclose that some $2,300,000 has already been realized in the U. S. and Canada alone over and above the production costs of $1,700,000, giving both sides handsome returns already with the pictures still having more than half of a normal life to run.

Considering the picture's $8,000,000 world rental return to date, the picture probably has grossed close to $16,000,000 in admissions, a total arrived at by figuring on the general 40 to 50 per cent rental charge prevailing. On the basis of $4,000,000 gross rentals and the probable $8,000,000 gross admissions for the 8,000 playdates in this country, an average admission income could be figured at $1,000 per theatre and an average rental income of $500 per house—for the U. S. exhibitions.

A better comparison of the history-making, 12-month box office and playdate performance can be gleaned from the fact that, generally, a feature picture considered as "doing well" over a normal life of circulation, running from two to two and a half years, has about 10,000 playdates grossing $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

Previous Records Smashed

For purposes of rental income comparison: the Fred Astaire "Top Hat" of a year ago, considered by "Snow White's" RKO distributor to be its best grosser of that year, had a gross rental income of $1,500,000 in the United States and Canada, playing to approximately 9,500 bookings, gaining another $1,500,000 in rentals from abroad.

"Snow White" grossed $630,000 at one theatre alone, at the Rockefellers' Music Hall, where it played five weeks, at its first U. S. showing, a year ago.

Comparing the $4,000,000 domestic, 12-month gross of "Snow White" with other motion picture history-making rental performances, we find that the all-time high, "Singing Fool," Hollywood's first sound picture, grossed $5,000,000 in rentals for the full life of its circulation, starting in 1928, and that the next record rental grossers run as follows: "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," silent, 1921, $4,500,000; "Ben Hur," silent, 1926, $4,000,000, and "Big Parade," "Birth of a Nation," "Covered Wagon," "Jazz Singer" and "Sunnyside Up," all grossing $3,500,000.

CONTEST COMMITTEE INSTRUCTS EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors have been informed by the Motion Pictures Greatest Year, Inc., via bulletin, that they should instruct their patrons not to send in entries later than December 31st, for the "Movie Quiz" contest, and that there will be local exploitation in connection with the announcement of the winners.

"This being a campaign of good will, it is quite important that theatres should keep their patrons well informed in this final important message," said the campaign headquarters, referring to the December 31st postmarked date.

"There have been suggestions from various parts of the country as to how the winners should be announced, and it has been generally agreed that some basis will be worked out wherein exhibitors announce in their theatres the winners from their community," the bulletin added. "Newspaper publicity will accompany such announcements, as soon as the judges decide who the lucky contestants are."

Many outstanding productions have grossed less than $2,000,000; "Dead End," "Good Earth," "In Old Chicago," "Stella Dallas," "King of Kings," "The Hunchback," "City Lights," "The Champ," "All Quiet on the Western Front," "Seventh Heaven," "What Price Glory," and scores of others.

15,000 Bookings Claimed

RKO Radio executives stated Tuesday that before "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" winds up its first playoff—without any reissues or repeats—it will have played in from 12,500 to 15,000 theatres in the United States and Canada alone—an all-time record.

Requests from exhibitors for repeat bookings are already on hand for showings in the 1939 and 1940 Christmas season, according to Hal Horne, Walt Disney sales representative in New York.

Mr. Horne said this week that both the Disney sponsors and distributors are of the opinion that an appreciable portion of the receipts has, and will continue to come from people who have seen the film several times, possible, perhaps, on any wide scale, only with a picture which uses the medium of ratists' drawings, rather than the usual technique of human players.

The principals additionally believe that the picture, again because it does not rely upon human actors, will not become dated, at least until cartoon technique changes or until cartoons are produced in feature form by the bushelful.

Mr. Horne, who returned to New York this week from his first inspection of the "Snow White" sales situation abroad, said that, generally, in foreign countries, the ratio of overage to the income of the average motion picture remained the same, a fairly static four to one. He claims that the same ratio holds in this country.

With Hollywood features generally requiring from 50 to 250 prints, "Snow White" has been running with 500 prints, domestic, and 750 abroad, the unusually large number abroad having been made necessary by "dubbings" in the languages of Czechoslovakia, French, German, Portuguese, Spanish, Swedish, Dutch, Italian, Danish and Polish, running under the following titles: Czech, "Snehurka A Sedm Trpaalfku"; French, "Blanche Neige et les Sept Nains"; German, "Schneewittchen und die Sieben Zwerge"; Portuguese, "Branca de Neve e os Sete Anoes"; Spanish, "Blanca Nieves y los Siete Enanos"; Swedish, "Snevit og de Sju Dvaergarna"; Dutch, "Sneeuwitje en de Zeven Dwergen"; Italian, "Biancanene e i Sette Nani"; Polish, "Krolewna Sneiska"; and Danish, "Snehuide og de syu Dvaerge."

Mr. Horne observed that, "The almost universal dubbing of 'Snow White' has resulted in the picture being regarded as a native product wherever it has been shown abroad," thus revealing the foreign possibilities of the feature cartoon,pen-and-ink characters of which, he added, lose none of the illusions of the human actors when put to dubbed foreign tongues.

Besides the United States and Canada, the picture in its first 12 months has been circulated in the following 44 countries:

The only three large film countries of the world where "Snow White" has not appeared to date are Germany, Russia and Japan, and RKO officials said this week that while no actual deal has been presented by either, Germany and Russia have "approached" the company.

Much of the "opening" success of "Snow White" is attributed by its sponsors to the large press reception, editorially, pictorially, reportorially and otherwise, which they accredit with bringing the film to the attention of many who ordinarily do not go to the motion picture theatre. Again, the tieups arranged for both by the Disney organization and RKO have been far greater in number than any ever before, far exceeding the several-hundred merchandise arrangements made variously for and in behalf of other Disney characters.

In addition to a world-wide list of exploitation and showmanship possibilities and ex-

Nazi Consul Again Threatens Hollywood With Reprisals for Anti-Nazi Filming

The Hitler Government again is attempting to censor American production at the source of filming in Hollywood, through its official agents here.

Following similar acts last year against other producers and persons, Dr. George Gyssling, Los Angeles Nazi Consul, this week told the California branch of the Hays organization that "there may be trouble ahead" if Warner Brothers make "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," announced for production a few weeks ago during the trial of Nazi agents in New York for espionage. The spies were found guilty and sentenced to prison.

The MPPA acknowledged Dr. Gyssling's letter without comment and transmitted it to Warner Brothers. The company is continuing with filming, regardless.

Dr. Gyssling tried the same tactics in June, 1937, to attempt intimidation of Universal for the filming of "The Road Back," and when he was unsuccessful sent individual warnings to players in the picture that their appearance therein would result in their being "blacklisted" in Germany in all future films. The State Department at Washington strenuously protested to the Nazis and Berlin approved instructions for a rebuke sent by German Ambassador Dieckhoff to Gyssling.

Gyssling in each instance warned that Germany might bar all future films from any Hollywood studio which "conflict with German interests." Hollywood producers have had little, if any distribution of their films in Germany in the past two years.

Warner Brothers have been particularly patriotic filmwise, recently announcing a series of short subjects on America and Americans, ordering the managers of their several hundred theatres to play the national anthem daily and establishing an Americanization department to cooperate with American Legion posts and other patriotic groups in the showing of patriotic shorts. The American Legion a few weeks ago publicly commended Harry Warner, company president for his efforts in behalf of Americanization.

hibition potentialities compiled by RKO, the Disney organization has amassed a detailed breakdown of population groupings, language elements and reactions, and general exhibition and exploitation conditions, both here and abroad, using three outside surveying services to gather this data. These conditions have been determined so as to plan later when other Disney feature cartoons arrive.

In a series of statistical analyses, reputedly never done before for any motion picture, various native elements have been charted, not only in Europe, but in this country as well. Each section of the United States, for example, has been studied to determine of what component parts its people are composed, what papers other than those in English are read, the extent of their circulation, and what foreign-language theatres operate within the respective sections, with the thought that in the future Walter Disney and his distributor might release a feature Disney cartoon in the dubbed native language of foreign speaking residents within a particular foreign section in the United States, which has never before been attempted by an American distributor with a production made in Hollywood and subsequently dubbed in a foreign language.

The second Walter Disney feature, musical, all-color cartoon will be "Pinocchio," ready in the fall.

Wendy Barrie Signed

RKO has signed Wendy Barrie to star in three films annually for five years.

Officers Reelected By Warners, Stanley

At a directors meeting held Tuesday, Harry M. Warner was re-elected president of Warner Brothers. Others re-elected were: vice-presidents, Major Albert Warner, Jack L. Warner, Sam E. Morris, Herman Starr, Stanleigh P. Friedman and Joseph H. Hazen; treasurer, Major Warner; assistant treasurers, Samuel Carlisle, W. Stewart McDonald, Cyril H. Wilder; secretary and general counsel, Robert W. Perkins; assistant secretaries, Harold S. Bareford, Edward K. Hessberg, Roy Obringer, Herbert Freston; comptroller, Mr. Carlisle; auditor, Thomas J. Martin.

Stanley Company of America, Warner subsidiary, also re-elected its officers as follows: president, Harry M. Warner; vice-presidents, Major Albert Warner, S. P. Friedman, Joseph Bernhard, Sam E. Morris, Herman Starr, W. S. McDonald; secretary, Morris Wolf; assistant secretaries, H. S. Bareford, E. K. Hessberg, D. Benjamin Kresch; treasurer, Samuel Carlisle; assistant treasurers, J. M. Brennan, W. S. McDonald; comptroller, Mr. Carlisle.

Urge Catholics for Censor Boards

A resolution urging appointment of a Catholic woman on every theatre censor board and library board of every city in the diocese of Seattle has been passed in that city by the executive board of the Diocesan Council of Catholic Women. There are some 20,000 women in Seattle and neighboring towns, members of the council. The president is the Most Reverend Gerald Shaughnessy, bishop of Seattle.

National Board's Annual Selection

The National Board of Review in its annual best film poll has selected "The Citadel" as the best picture of the year, and "Grand Illusion" the best among foreign language films. "Grand Illusion," however, is considered by the board the best film of the year from any country.

The ten best English-language films, in order of preference, were:

1. The Citadel (MGM) (English)
2. Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (RKO).
3. The Beachcomber (Paramount-British).
4. To the Victor (GB-English).
5. Sing, You Sinners (Para.). (English-Joe Rock Productions.)
6. Edge of the World (Pax).
7. Of Human Hearts (MGM).
8. Jezebel (W.B.).
9. South Riding (London Films-U.A.).
10. Three Comrades (MGM).

Six foreign-language films were selected, in order of preference:

1. Grand Illusion (French-World).
2. Ballerina (French-Mayer-Burstyn).
3. Un Carnet de Bal (French-A.F.E.).
4. Generals Without Buttons (French-Mayer-Burstyn).
5. Peter I (Russian-Amkino).
6. Professor Mamlock (Russian-Amkino).

On the basis of popular appeal the Review Committees of the National Board have chosen the following in the order of preference:

1. Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs (RKO).
2. The Citadel (MGM).
3. You Can't Take It With You (Columbia).
4. Boys Town (MGM).
5. Marie Antoinette (MGM).
6. Alexander's Ragtime Band (20th-Fox).
7. The Adventures of Robin Hood (W.B.-F. N.).
8. Algiers (U.A.).
9. In Old Chicago (20th-Fox).
10. Four Daughters (W. B.-F. N.).

National Decency Legion Classifies 15 Pictures

Of 15 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week 11 were approved for general patronage, two were listed as unobjectionable for adults, one was cited as objectionable in part and one was condemned. The pictures and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "A Christmas Carol," "Duke of West Point," "Fram Foer Framgang" (Swedish), "Heart of the North," "I Am a Criminal," "Orphans of the Street," "Rio Grande," "Storm Over Bengal," "Swing, Sister, Swing," "Thanks for Everything," "Western Jamboree." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "His Exciting Night," "Trade Winds." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "Abus de Confiance" (French). Class C, Condemned: "L'Orage" (French).

Pathe Film Plan Off

The new plan of Pathe Film Corporation, taking the place of the one defeated at the last stockholders meeting, is unlikely to be ready until January 1st. After that, approximately 20 days notice must be given the stockholders before they can meet to vote.

The duPont suit against Pathe Film has been definitely dropped, due to the denial of their petition for an injunction.

Studios Looking To Syndicates for New Material

A new source of story supply in the form of widely circulated newspaper cartoons and syndicated features, is in the making for motion picture production, for serials, short subjects and full length pictures.

Stephen Slesinger, who is credited with holding the motion picture rights to a long list of syndicated cartoons and features, has opened negotiations with major producers, among them Universal and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, to bring to the screen such characters as "Major Hoople" of "Our Boarding House," and "Winnie The Pooh," A. A. Milne's widely circulated children's story character.

The motion picture industry has purchased comparatively few syndicated comic strips. Among these have been "Blondie," produced by Columbia; "Little Orphan Annie," by Paramount; "Dick Tracy," by Republic; "Buck Rogers," by Universal; "Tailspin Tommy," by Monogram; "The Adventures of Jane Arden," and probably "Joe Palooka," by Warner Brothers.

Mr. Slesinger believes "it is amazing" that the industry has paid so little attention to this source of supply.

"This is all the more so," he said, "in view of the fact that the motion picture companies can find in the use of syndicated material, properties far more capably presold to that section of the public which are movie-goers, and to a greater number of them—than any other properties they could lay their hands on."

Mr. Slesinger compared the usual bases for purchase of motion picture rights, such as number of performances for plays or copies sold for books, with the exploitation of certain syndicated books and syndicated cartoons, citing as one example the minimum 200,000 copies of "Big Little Books," which retail at ten cents each, as published by Whitman company, for five-and-ten counters, after the characters have been syndicated in newspapers. The NEA's "Red Rider," western cartoon character, also syndicated, he said, has had an additional circulation in some 400,000 "Big Little Books."

"McKesson & Robbins" Story To Be Filmed

The amazing story now being unfolded in the press about the late Philip Musica, known in McKesson & Robbins as F. Donald Coster, president of the $86,000,000 corporation, is being rushed into production by Columbia, under the title of "The Great Coster Swindle."

It has also been reported that Warner Brothers plans to begin production on a story based upon the same case.

Film to Have Fair Background

Bryan Foy has arranged a deal with the San Francisco World's Fair executives to use the Fair for a background of a "Torchy Blane" film. The picture will be titled "Torchy at the World's Fair."

FOURTH EXHIBITOR UNIT REJECTS 'MAJORS' PLAN

ITOA in New York Declares That Program Fails "to Meet Even the Minimum Points"

The Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York, Harry Brandt, president, this week rejected the tentative program of trade practices and self-regulation that was issued by the major distributors two weeks ago. Last week the Buffalo MPTO accepted the draft, and the Rocky Mountain Theatre Owners, the Los Angeles Independent Theatre Owners and Allied of Northwest rejected it.

The ITO rejected on general grounds, "for failure to meet even those minimum points on which we appeared to be in agreement" with the distributors at joint negotiating conferences.

Specific objection was raised on Clause 14, which refers to exhibitors rendering "false reports" to distributors on box office receipts accruing from percentage pictures, the ITO charging that "it is a reflection upon the honesty of every exhibitor in the land."

Official notification of rejection was sent to William F. Rodgers, of MGM, as chairman of the distributors' negotiating committee.

Talk of Local Agreements To Satisfy Complaints

Local agreements may be negotiated with exhibitors apart from the national trade practice program to meet many of the objections which have been raised by exhibitor groups after studying the first draft of the proposed program formulated by the distributors' committee.

The committee has emphasized that the draft contains only tentative terms, and that many local problems could not be handled in a national program.

Much will be left to local agreements, as it is generally conceded that there are different problems applying to each territory which call for individual handling. The solutions may also be found through local conciliation or arbitration boards, where problems are amenable to such procedure.

No additional negotiating meetings have as yet been scheduled with the exhibitors and further procedure in negotiating a completed program has not been determined. Mr. Rodgers and S. R. Kent, members of the distributors' committee, returned this week from the coast after an absence of more than a week.

The present tentative draft represents the viewpoints of the eight major company sales departments and their counsel, formulated on the basis of exhibitor proposals in the negotiating meetings held over a period of weeks. The draft represents an effort to cordinate the divergent viewpoints between the companies as well as an attempt to reconcile these viewpoints with the different opinions expressed by the committees negotiating for National Allied and M.P.T.O.A. and the various state unaffiliated units.

Canadian Owners Seek Clearance Concessions

The Independent Theatres Association of Canada, of which Harry Firestone of Toronto is president, has made a formal request to the Canadian Clearance Committee for a general shaving down of protection on Class "B" pictures in Toronto and other key cities so that the maximum of protection will be 56 days after their performance at downtown first run theatres. In actual practice the independents claim that the neighborhood theatres do not get a chance with bookings until six months after first local exhibition.

At present the first run houses in Toronto are given 28 days' protection over key theatres in each of eight zones throughout the city which, according to the association, are all circuit theatres as well. Next in line for bookings is another series of circuit houses which wait from 14 to 28 days, after which the independent community theatres come in.

According to Mr. Firestone, however, current releases are not available to independent owners for months because the prints are booked into out-of-town theatres, also circuit first run situations, so that it is often half a year before Toronto independents are able to get dates. Objection also is raised against over-buying of features by the circuits, against which the penalty of loss of priority is not imposed because of delayed bookings.

Clearance on "B" pictures was voluntarily halved by the circuits for the period of the "Movie Quiz" contest which will terminate December 31, and the independents are asking for a similar policy on a permanent basis starting in January, pointing out that many of the smaller theatres have yet to play a "Quiz" picture even with the booking concession on "B" pictures. The ITA also has recommended that Canadian distributors obtain more prints of features so that bookings in large centers can keep step with clearance schedules.

Majors Enter Denials In Chicago Trust Suit

General denials of all pertinent allegations were made this week by seven leading defendants in filing separate answers in United States district court in Chicago to the anti-trust complaint brought by local independent exhibitors against B. & K. and major distributors.

The answers point out that independent exhibitors are operating profitably; they deny a monoply of local exhibition and agreements that are collusive.

Independents Lose in California Complaint

Second run theatre activities do not affect interstate commerce, Federal Judge Harry Holzer ruled in Los Angeles Monday. The ruling was in a suit brought by Colcata Corporation against Fox West Coast Theatres and eight major distributors. It was dismissed.

Judge Hollzer said that the defendants' acts were insufficient to warrant a charge of intent to restrain interstate commerce. Leave to file an amended complaint was granted.

General Pershing Writing Autobiography for Films

General John J. Pershing, commander of the United States Army in the World War, is in Tucson where he may finish his autobiography and prepare it for presentation as a motion picture.

The Associated Press says an unnamed Hollywood producer has been negotiating for the film rights and General Pershing is seriously considering the proposal. He is said to have indicated a preference for Gary Cooper in the principal role.

NEW 'PROPAGANDA' FILM ORGANIZATION STARTED

Business, Political Leaders Form Group to Produce Films for Educational Use

American Films Foundation, Inc., is the newest "outside" organization aiming to use the nation's screens to educate the public on "American Democracy." It has been formed in New York by 42 businessmen, social and political leaders, educators, military chiefs and others, with headquarters at 542 Fifth Avenue.

Specifically, American Films Foundation will use its own-made films for "defending the American Constitution from alien philosophies of Communism and Fascism", but, unlike the Films for Democracy, of November formation, the Foundation films will be circulated among non-theatrical groups, whereas Films for Democracy warned at its inception that if regular theatres did not accept its films the organization would "road-show" them, with the help of organized labor. (See Motion Picture Herald, November 26th, page 13.)

American Films Foundation also has taken over the work and the films of a predecessor group, "The National Defenders."

The Foundation describes itself as "A membership organization supported by voluntary contributions and devoted to the production and distribution in the theatrical and educational fields of sound-films upholding the free institutions and the moral and spiritual ideals which constitute the foundation of the national greatness of the United States."

The officers are: national chairman, Hugh A. O'Donnell, honorary president of the Notre Dame Alumni Association; first vice-president, Mrs. Grace L. H. Brosseau, honorary president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; executive vice-president, John Beardslee Carrigan; treasurer, Fred H. Goodwin of the real estate firm of Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Stevens, Inc., and national director, Louis M. Bailey, founder director of The National Defenders.

The Foundation now has two films to show, both taken over from the Defenders, with a third to be ready shortly. The two are "We, the People" and "The Right to Work," the former being about the Constitution and "The Right to Work" telling about the necessity for capital and labor to work together. Both films are one reel, composed mostly of cuts from newsreels, and industrial material.

Made up in both 16 and 35 millimeter widths, the films are sent out free of charge to schools, churches and other non-theatrical groups, and financed by contributions from a membership list compiled by the National Defenders over a period of three years. Both films are said to have been booked by Fox Intermountain Circuit; while "We, the People," under the title of "The American Way," played the Rialto, New York, and under its present title, the Grand Central Newsreel Theatre and the Terrace on 23d Street, both in New York. A print also is now in the hands of the New York Brandt Circuit. It has also played the Yost Circuit in New York and the Paramount theatre in Brooklyn and Newark, according to Mr. Bailey, national director, who has been an associate editor of "Movie Makers," amateur film magazine, and American correspondent of the International Review of Educational Cinematography, published in English, French, Italian, German and Spanish by the League of Nations in Rome.

Besides the aforementioned officers, members of the National Advisory Board of the non-profit organization are:

Dr. Marston T. Rogert, New York, president of the International Union of Chemistry.
Mrs. Leon Adams McIntire, New Jersey, president of the Finer Films Federation of New Jersey.
Channing Pollock, New York, playwright, author and lecturer.
Mrs. Leroy Montgomery, Connecticut, National Chairman of the Motion Picture Committee, Daughters of the American Revolution.
Dr. Willford I. King, New York, Department of Economics, School of Commerce, New York University.
Nelson L. Greene, Illinois, editor of "The Educational Screen."
Mrs. Samuel P. S. Newton, New York, president of the Drama League of America.
John C. Bell, Jr., Pennsylvania, president of The Crusaders of Pennsylvania.
Dan D. Casement, Kansas, president of the Farmers Independence Council of America.
Anna Steese Richardson, New York, Author-Editor.
Admiral F. D. Berrien, Connecticut.
Mrs. Edward Nelson Dingley, Maryland, Honorary National First Vice President of the League of American Pen Women.

Content Johnson, New York, Hawley Society.
George D. Randall, Florida.
Lucy C. McDannel, New York, Regent Daughters of the Revolution New York State Society.
Arthur Goadby, Virginia, Society of Colonial Wars.
Mrs. Ramsay Peugnet, New York, Society of New England Women.
Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, District of Columbia, president of the District of Columbia Society, Dames of Loyal Legion of the U. S. A., Chairman of National Defense, National Society U. S. Daughters of 1812.

FILM BULLETIN FOR CONSUMERS PLANNED

An annual consumer's fact-finding service, "The Movies . . . and the people who make them," will be published beginning in January by Theatre Patrons, Inc. A permanent post binder will be supplied with weekly, monthly, quarterly and annual information material. Gilbert Seldes, author of "The Seven Lively Arts" will write on "The Movie of the Month," and Evelyn Gerstein, New York film correspondent of the Boston Transcript, on foreign films.

UA Stockholders Meet January 12

January 12th has been set for the annual United Artists stockholders' meeting in Hollywood and all five partners, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charles Chaplin, Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn are expected to attend. The "profit sharing plan," an extra bonus idea for the producers, will be discussed, and Murray Silverstone may be elected president; though, as chief executive, Mr. Silverstone has the necessary powers already, and such an official designation would be superfluous.

Board members of the company held a routine meeting last weekend. Miss Pickford's absence and Mr. Korda's early departure, via plane, for the coast, forced suspension of action on important subjects and early adjournment.

Marks from London

Arrived in New York from London last week, on the way to the coast, was Montague Marks, associate with Douglas Fairbanks in Fairbanks International. With his arrival, it was revealed that the company will make three films to be distributed by United Artists, the first being "The Californian"; the second, "The Tenth Woman"; the third, "The Three Musketeers." The latter is tentative and may be in color. The company may make one film in England.

Chaplin Starting Picture

Charlie Chaplin's first all-talking picture will commence production soon after January 1, according to an announcement made by general manager Alfred Reeves, of the Chaplin studios. "The Dictator" is a tentative title. Mr. Chaplin wrote the story, and will star in it. He will be heard talking, for the first time.

Korda Arrives in Hollywood

Alexander Korda of London Films, and a production partner in United Artists, arrived in Hollywood over the weekend to discuss with other UA producers his plans for pictures in Hollywood.

New Theatre Company

A charter has just been issued to the Indian River Amusement Corporation of Newport News to operate theatres and other places of amusement. The corporation's authorized maximum capital is $50,000. Incorporators are Julian Gordon, president; Leonard Gordon, secretary, and J. L. Morewitz, all of Newport News. John Charles Foster, charter clerk of the State Corporation Commission, reports that several charters have been granted Virginia amusement companies within the year.

Schenck on Canadian Loew's

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of 20th Century Fox, has been elected successor to attorney Alfred Wright on the board of Marcus Loew Theatres, Ltd., the Canadian organization.

James O'Neal has sold his General Film Attractions Corporation, Seattle state-right distributing exchange, to Edward Hudson. Mr. Hudson, a Seattle newsreel cameraman, has appointed Arthur Bushell manager.

Hollywood Adopts 44-Hour Week

Hollywood this week established a 44-hour week in the studios. All studio workers are affected except those specifically exempted under the wages and hour law or not employed under labor contracts which prescribe other periods.

The procedure to be followed under the 44-hour week was mapped at a meeting of studio representatives with Pat Casey, producer labor contact man. The new working time will not be put in effect simultaneously in all the studios because of divergent working conditions. A committee has been appointed to draft a statement of the position of the industry and to outline the situation.

Mr. Casey said on Tuesday in New York from Hollywood that producers and international studio unions will take the position that union workers employed under terms of the basic agreement with studios are not affected by the new law.

No formal ruling on the question involved has been made as yet by the Federal Administrator.

Among those considered exempt from provisions of the federal act are executives, administrators, professional employees, artists and various workers now employed under labor contracts.

Mr. Casey and representatives of the producers are scheduled also to meet January 9th with Joseph M. Weber, president of the American Federation of Musicians to discuss further the possibilities of the industry absorbing a large number of unemployed musicians.

Countrywide System of Joint Offices For Actors' Union Is in the Making

. . Establishment of a nationwide system of joint offices by the five actors' unions, with expenses shared, is expected to take place before any action is taken on the "one big union" plan for the actors which has been talked of for months.

A proposal that the organized actors' unions establish joint offices in cities where none of the unions individually has sufficient members to warrant this expense is now being considered—the unions including Actors Equity (stage actors); American Federation of Actors (actors in night clubs and stage shows or vaudeville at film theatres); Screen Actors' Guild (Hollywood and New York film players); American Federation of Radio Artists (in radio), and American Guild of Musical Artists (concert singers and other musical performers).

Meanwhile in New York the American Federation of Actors has compiled the following comparative table of dues now levied on actors by their unions:

	Initiation	Dues
American Fed. of Actors	$10 (junior members $5)	$18 payable quarterly (Junior members $12)
Actors' Equity	$50	$18 annually.
Screen Actors Guild	$25 (for senior and junior members)	Junior members $18 annually. $30 annually for senior members earning $15,000 or less; $60 for those earning between $15,000 and $50,000; $100 for those earning above $50,000.
American Federation of Radio Artists American Guild of Musical Artists	Same Scale $25 for those earning up to $10,000; $50 for those above $10,000	$18 yearly for those earning between $2,000 and $5,000; $24 yearly for earnings between $5,000 and $10,000; $36 annually for earnings between $10,000 and $20,000; $48 between $20,000 and $50,000; $100 yearly for those earning above $50,000.

Joint bookkeeping, some method of interchanging cards, and cooperative dues collecting would be features of the "one big union" plan toward which the organization leaders are working.

Several Locals Hold Elections

Various locals throughout the country held elections this week. The entire administration slate of Local 802, New York, American Federation of Musicians, headed by Jacob Rosenberg, president was victorious over two opposition slates in the union's election. About 9,000 votes were cast and the administration ticket led by almost six to one.

Those elected, all for two year terms, are: Mr. Rosenberg, president; Richard McCann, vice-president; William Feinberg, secretary and Harry A. Suber, treasurer. Executive board members are Mario Falcone, William Laendner, John H. Long, John Manuti, Robert Sterne, Samuel Suber, Samuel Tabok and S. C. Thompson.

New officers of the IATSE Seattle locals for 1939 are as follows:

Local 154, projectionists: Harry Lampman, president; Andrew Evans, vice-president; Jay Brown, recording secretary; Robert Cameron, financial secretary; James McNabb, business agent; Frank Myers, treasurer; P. A. Snider and Donald Dvorak, members-at-large; Warren Smith, Frank Cook and Harry Clark, trustees.

Local 15, the stage employees: Charles Crickmore, president; E. A. Clark, financial secretary; E. C. Booth, recording secretary; Colin Durie, treasurer; Basil Grey, business agent; Al McKay, sergeant-at-arms; Earl O. Gunther, Central Labor Council delegate, all reelected.

Harry Rogers has been reelected president of IATSE Local 635, Winston-Salem, N. C. Other officers elected are Paul Peddycord, vice-president; H. R. Faust, corresponding and recording secretary; John Robertson, financial secretary; O. L. Ziglar, treasurer and business representative; Lee Carver, sergeant-at-arms; Johnny Keenan and P. D. Peddycord, trustees.

Stagehands Accept Pact

Ratification of terms of a new contract with major circuits in Manhattan, Bronx and Staten Island, New York, was given by Local 1, IATSE stagehands, at a meeting this week. The contract is due to be signed in the near future.

Cleveland operators union, Local 160, have had restored the 10 per cent pay cut, effected in the early fall for a 10 week period.

Two Sign with Guild

Triple A Productions and West Coast Sound Studio have signed the modified form of Screen Actors' Guild basic agreement. They are the first production organizations in the east to sign the new contract form.

Guild Fight To Go To Supreme Court

Film studios will carry their claim that the National Labor Relations Board has no jurisdiction over the industry to the Supreme Court as a result of the Screen Writers Guild battle for recognition as the collective bargaining agency for writers.

The next move by the NLRB is the issuance of complaints against the studios charging failure to bargain collectively. This is expected to take action immediately out of the hands of the local NLRB officers and carry jurisdiction to the 9th District Court of Appeals and then on appeal to the Supreme Court.

The decision was made Tuesday by Dr. Towne Nylander, who, upon being informed by studio attorneys that the fight against certification of the Guild as collective bargaining agency would be carried on, recommended that the Washington board issue complaints.

Kane to Confer On Production

Robert T. Kane, chief of 20th Century-Fox's British production, is expected here in early January for conferences with Sidney R. Kent, president, and Zarryl Zanuck, production head. Meanwhile, Mr. Kent announced in New York that he plans a visit to England and the Continent, but set no date for his departure. Mr. Kent was in Los Angeles last week, for a sales meeting.

Other home office executives who returned to New York this week from the coast were Charles McCarthy, advertising director; William Sussman, division manager; W. C. Gehring and W. J. Kupper.

Mr. Kane's prospective visit in January is in connection with the company's quota program of "top" pictures to be made next season by Gainsborough, using as stars Gracie Fields, Annabella, and Will Fyffe. The pictures will be made under Mr. Kane's supervision by Maurice Ostrer and Edward Blatt.

Expected in New York this week from London was Walter Hutchinson, 20th Century-Fox foreign manager, accompanied by F. L. Harley, British manager, and Ben Miggins, Continental head.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR REPEALING QUEBEC BAN

Legislators, Aided by Exhibitors, Start Campaign to Allow Juveniles in Film Theatres

by COLIN R. HAWORTH
in Montreal

Prospects for repealing the ten-year-old Quebec law prohibiting all children under 16 from attending any theatres in the Province have never appeared brighter. The law was passed in 1928, a year after fire and panic took a toll of scores of lives of children in the Laurier Palace theatre disaster in the city of Quebec, the measure hitting a serious blow at one of the most remunerative ends of the theatre business in the Province.

Since 1928 several attempts have been made by exhibitors to arouse public and governmental interest in a less rigid revamping of the law, but without success. This time the movement is led not by the industry but by two prominent members of the Quebec legislature, Hon. T. J. Coonan, Minister without Portfolio, and Dr. Albiny Paquette, Secretary of the Province.

Some 18 months ago a similar attempt was started by a member of the provincial house, but the move fell through. This time, however, more hope is held for success, for the present drive has already shown marked progress—large public and religious groups previously opposed to or at least disinterested in the question having thrown in their support, and newspapers, both French and English, are backing the move in news and editorial columns.

Screenings Held

Whereas past attempts by exhibitors to arouse interest have been centered for the most part on individuals, such as petition-signing, Mr. Coonan's drive has gathered speed by gaining support otherwise. The screening of sample films, notably "Boys Town," to give large groups an idea of some films that might be shown, has brought strong support from Protestant schoolboards and churches; Catholic school commissions and the Knights of Columbus. Newspapers now give prominent display in news columns to new film developments and editorializing frequently. One of the strongest of these was by Ted McCormick, writing the "Sound Track" column in the Montreal Daily Herald. His story, headed "Blissful Land Where Kids Can Wed But Films Are Under Ban" referred to Quebec legislation which permits children to marry at 14 but refused them admission to moving pictures until they are 16 years old.

Approval Seal Planned

Among members of the Roman Catholic clergy, hitherto considered in opposition to change of the law, enthusiasm has developed.

The scheme as outlined at present is for the establishment of a separate censor board for children. This group, which in all probability would be comprised of a mother, a father, a Frenchman and an Englishman, would adjudge films and authorize release here. Also under advisement is the plan of having such a board classify the pictures for children of different ages. Some would be acceptable for children from 16 to 12 and others for kiddies from 12 to seven years.

In any event, it is planned to mark authorized films with a seal of approval. Houses running such pictures will be permitted to display in the lobby governmental authorization of the film, but will have to make the rest of the bill "seal" films, too. In some cases this might call for single bills, though local exhibitors believe Hollywood productions already include ample films that would pass censorship for youngsters.

Practically certain, however, is the stipulation that any children attending such shows will have to be accompanied by parents.

Perhaps the most striking sign that amendment may be achieved is the interest Premier Maurice Duplessis is said to be taking in the matter, having reputedly arranged for government authorities to study the question to bring it up for discussion at the next session.

Exhibitors who blame the Laurier Palace disaster as the cause of the child ban see no obstacle in this respect now. Theatres are improved and precautionary measures are kept at a standard high enough to meet regular governmental inspection.

CHILD ATTENDANCE BILL IS TABLED

Pending an agreement with school authorities and parent-teacher associations, the Cincinnati City Council has tabled an ordinance requiring theatres to obtain an additional annual operating license, and prohibiting attendance of children under 16 during school hours, and not later than 8:00 P.M. on any evening preceding a school day, even if accompanied by parents, with license revocable by the City Manager for violation.

The council's action in deferring the measure was influenced by Charles D. Mervis, manager of the Rialto theatre, representing the suburban exhibitor group.

ERPI Negotiating for Foreign Distribution

Negotiations are going forward between Electrical Research Products, Inc., and leading American manufacturers for the distribution, by ERPI's foreign distributing companies, of complete booth equipment in approximately 50 foreign territories.

According to E. S. Gregg, general foreign manager of ERPI, the company will distribute a complete line of projectors, lamps, screens, converters and similar products of American manufacture starting the first of the new year.

Kaltenborn Edits RKO "Review"

RKO Pathe News pictorial record of 1938's top events in the world news is being supervised by H. V. Kaltenborn for release in January under the title "Review of the Year." Mr. Kaltenborn will provide the off-screen commentary. In connection with the "Review" RKO Pathe has tied up with Modern Age Books, New York, which has published "Kaltenborn Edits the News."

Zukor Sails to Coordinate Abroad For Paramount

Adolph Zukor, who sailed for England last week aboard the Queen Mary, will conduct a survey of Paramount's world-wide organization, according to an announcement by president Barney Balaban. According to Mr. Balaban, Mr. Zukor "thus will be able, as the founder of Paramount, to meet at first hand many hundreds of employees to whom he is at present a mighty but faraway figure."

Mr. Zukor took on the European assignment two months ago, when he was succeeded as chief of production and in charge of all coast activities, by William Le Baron and Y. Frank Freeman.

To Tour South America

Present plans call for Mr. Zukor's stay in England till the arrival in January of the vice-president in charge of foreign operations, John W. Hicks, Jr., now in New York. Mr. Zukor will advise and consult with Mr. Hicks in the coordination of Paramount's production, distribution and exhibition in England and on the Continent.

After about two or three months spent thus, Mr. Zukor is scheduled to sail for South and Central America, where he will make a similar survey, meeting the leading exhibitors, and Paramount employees. The "tour" then will take Mr. Zukor back to the United States, where he will meet Mr. Hicks, and accompany him to New Zealand, Australia, and the Far East.

Another Paramount foreign appointment was that of David Rose to managing director of Paramount affairs in Great Britain and Ireland, a post temporarily held by Mr. Hicks since the resignation three months ago of John Cecil Graham. Mr. Rose sailed for England with Mr. Zukor.

British Expansion Delay Is Hinted

Conferences last week among Paramount home office executives resulted, according to report, in a decision not to attempt expansion of theatre operations in England. Participating in the conferences were Barney Balaban, president; Stanton Griffis, chairman of the board; Adolph Zukor, chief of foreign operations; John W. Hicks, Jr., vice-president in charge of foreign affairs; David Rose, director for Paramount in England and Ireland.

Eastern, Southern Districts Realigned

Realignments in Paramount's distribution system were announced Wednesday by Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution. The changes are: the placing of J. J. Unger in charge of the Canadian division, in addition to his Eastern division sales managership, and the creation of a new Southern division, including districts seven and twelve, as of January 1st, with Oscar A. Morgan as division manager. Harold F. Wilkes, present branch manager at New Orleans, succeeds Mr. Morgan as district manager in Atlanta, while Erman B. Price succeeds Mr. Wilkes in New Orleans.

Gillham Back in New York

Robert Gillham, advertising and publicity director for Paramount, is back at his New York offices after a visit to the studios.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

The entire cast of principals in the scene from Walter Wanger's "Stage Coach," newest of a cycle of expensively mounted westerns, which will meld the romance of early transportation with the character threads of divergent personalities engaged in a stage coach journey through the badlands of the west. The stars are: Donald Meek, John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Andy Devine, George Bancroft, Louise Platt, Tim Holt, John Carradine, Berton Churchill, Francis Ford and Thomas Mitchell.

Slowing Up

Every year, just before Christmas, production slackens up a bit. The 1938 season is no exception. Only seven pictures started. None of the new ones are of such importance as to start any great crowds of people throwing their hats in the air. On the other hand, among the six completed ventures, one, at least, may become a matter of unusual significance in the industry's annals.

None of the studios which engaged in new activity found it feasible to start more than one picture. Republic's contribution to the work of the moment is "The Lone Ranger Rides Again," an action adventure yarn in which will be blended all the necessary accoutrements. It will present Robert Livingston, Chief Thundercloud, Duncan Renaldo, Jinx Falkenberg, William Gould, Rex Lease, Glen Strange and Stanley Blystone.

Monogram Starts Series

Monogram embarked upon a new air adventure series with the starting of "Tailspin Tommy," production detail and thematic content of which is based on the cartoon strip of the same title. John Trent, Milburn Stone, Marjorie Reynolds and Jason Robards are the principals.

Bearing the tentative title "Sweepstakes Millionaire" Paramount started work on a picture which will detail the experiences of a man and his family who won one of those Grand National prizes. Charlie Ruggles, Marjorie Rambeau, Broderick Crawford, Billy Lee, Evelyn Keys and Philip Warren will be most directly concerned.

"Code of the Streets," Universal, will be a continuation of the "Little Tough Guys" series in which those particular youngsters will be seen with Harry Carey, Frankie Thomas and Jimmy McCallion.

For Columbia release, Larry Darmour started "Enemy Within." Jack Holt and Katherine DeMille will be the leads, with Ralph Morgan, C. Henry Gordon, Ivan Lebedeff and Paul Everson featured.

Marie Wilson and Johnnie Davis will be the stars of "Sweepstakes Winner," Warner Brothers, and Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell will head the cast in MGM's "Fast and Loose."

"Idiot's Delight" In

Outstanding among the completed pictures is MGM's "Idiot's Delight." Based on the Robert E. Sherwood play, the film will star Norma Shearer and Clark Gable. Listed in the featured cast are Edward Arnold, Joseph Schildkraut, Charles Coburn, Burgess Meredith, Pat Patterson, Virginia Grey, Paul Stone, Joan Marsh, Barnardene Hayes, Lorraine Krueger, Virginia Dale, Richard (Skeets) Gallagher, Laura Hope Crews, Fritz Feld, Edward Raquello, Mitchell Lewis, Peter Willes and William Edmonds. The studio also completed "Burn 'Em Up O'Connor," a story of the midget auto racing sport, in which Dennis O'Keefe, Cecilia Parker, Nat Pendleton, Harry Carey, Charles Grapewin, Alan Curtis, Truman Bradley, Addison Richards, Tom Collins, Phillip Terry and Frank Orth will be seen.

Monogram also wound up two productions on its shooting list. "Santa Fe Bound" will present Jack Randall, Edna Duran, Stanley Blystone, Dean Spencer and Frank Yacanelli. The E. R. Derr production, "Convict's Code," formerly titled "Paroled to Exile," will feature Robert Kent, Ann Nagel, Sidney Blackmer, Ben Alexander and Joan Barclay.

"Cafe Society" was finished at Paramount. Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray are the stars. Shirley Ross, Jessie Ralph, Claude Gillingwater, Allwyn Joslyn and Don Alvarado are among those featured.

Last of the completed pictures, "Twelve Crowded Hours," an RKO-Radio melodramatic romance, will present Richard Dix, Lucille Ball, John Arledge, Cy Kendall, Donald MacBride, Allen Lane, Granville Bates, Murray Alper, Addison Richards, Joseph De Stephani, Dorothy Lee, Bradley Page and Anthony Warde.

Republic Rush

Entailing a total budget of over $1,500,000, Republic will start work on eight productions directly after the holidays. Largest sum, about half the total amount, has been allotted to "Wagons Westward," a western with a semi-historical background in which Richard Dix will be starred. John H. Auer has been assigned to produce "Flight at Midnight," an adventurous aviation story based on one suggested by Colonel Roscoe Turner. First job for M. H. Hoffman since returning to Republic will be "Undercover Woman" and Herman Schlom will produce "White Fury." Gene Autry will next be starred in "Mexicali Rose," and "Three Texas Steers" has been earmarked for the "Three Mesquiteers."

The four pictures now in production on the lot, "Pride of the Navy," "The Lone Ranger Rides Again," "Dr. Judith Randall" and "Ridin' the Range" will be completed before any of the above named pictures are started.

Southern Beauty

What with all these "Kentucky," "St. Louis," "Missouri" and "Arkansas" pictures either here or about to be here, and "Gone with the Wind" coming and the legend of southern feminine pulchritude being what it is, we made a quick check-up the other day to see how many below-the-Mason-Dixon line girls were in the movies.

We remember that in the old days Marguerite Clarke, Bebe Daniels, Bessie Love, Florence Vidor and Mary Brian, daughters of the Sunny South were prominent in pictures. The present day contingent, heiresses of their fame, reads like a "Who's Who" list of Hollywood. From the big Lone Star State have come Nan Grey, Joan Blondell and Ann Sheridan, as well as Ann Harding, who came and went. Other young ladies from Texas are Judith Barrett, Mary (Punkins) Parker, Dorothy Howe, Evelyn Keyes and Judy King.

Kentucky has a small but select coterie of representatives which includes Irene Dunne, Una Merkel, Marjorie Weaver and Joyce Compton. Although she's the star in "The Lady's from Kentucky," Ellen Drew is from Missouri, as also are Joan Crawford, Ginger Rogers, Gladys Swarthout and Betty Grable. Dorothy Lamour is the pride of New Orleans. The Oklahoma delegation lists Kay Francis, Glenda Farrell and Rochelle Hudson. Tennessee is represented by Grace Moore, Judy Garland and Dixie Lee. Gail Patrick and Gertrude Michael come from Alabama. The Georgia peaches are Jane Withers, Miriam Hopkins and Patricia Wilder. The Virginia delegation is headed by Margaret Sullavan, Leah Ray and Lynn Bari.

When "Gone With the Wind" eventually goes, at least one authentic southern belle, Margaret Tallichet, another Texan, is almost certain to be seen in an important role.

Fifty-five Texas Newspapers to Fight Use of Advertising Films in Theatres

Owners of the several-hundred Texas theatres exhibiting advertising films among the state's 1,035 houses, will be attacked for the practice by the publishers of 55 Texas newspapers.

Announcement that Texas daily newspapers will undertake the fight came this week from S. W. Papert, president of the Texas Daily Press League, at Dallas, who said that plans will be formulated at the League's annual meeting in January. Other press organizations will be asked to join.

"The newspapers' attitude is this," said Mr. Papert: "We have given the theatres more publicity with their paid advertising than any other advertisers obtain. Thus we are cutting our own throats by building up a greater circulation for the theatres to compete with our own product."

While the publishers have no definite plan of action at this time, it would seem, from Mr. Papert's remarks, that they will first attack the "free publicity" accorded theatres in newspapers.

Profits for CBS, Stanley Company; 2 Vote Dividends

Profitable operations for 1938 are shown by Stanley Theatres, Warner Pennsylvania theatres subsidiary, and by Columbia Broadcasting Company; dividend payments have been voted by Pathe and Cinecolor, Pathe paying its regular quarterly $1.50 dividend on $7 convertible preferred, issuing checks on January 3rd to holders of record December 23rd, and Cinecolor paying for five months on common stock, splitting $12,210 with stockholders.

SEC Reports on Two

Final October reports of the Securities and Exchange Commission on the transactions of corporation officers and directors in the securities of their companies, issued Tuesday, showed only two film transactions.

Through a stock dividend, Abraham Schneider, New York, Columbia Pictures officer, received two common voting trust certificates in September, increasing his holdings to 102. The other transaction was the disposition of 55 shares of Pathe common stock by Mabel M. Malone, New York, an officer in the company, this representing her entire holdings.

No securities of Educational Pictures were held by Harold Saxe, New York, when he became an officer in the company April 1st last, it was shown in the report required of all newly elected officers and directors.

Registration statement covering proposed issue of 50,000 shares of $5 par Class "A" common stock, to be offered at $6 per share, was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission by Pix Theatre Circuits, Inc., Gary, Ind.

The company plans to use $300,000 derived from the sale of the stock for the purchase of three theatres and equipment and for working capital. Samuel B. Nissley is president of the corporation and Warren Franklin Corporation is the principal underwriter.

Stanley Profit $2,063,703

Net operating profits of $2,063,703 was reported by Stanley Company of America for the 52 weeks ended August 27. This compares with $2,230,902 for the year ended August 28, 1937.

Net income was $6,244,749, in addition to $19,563 interest earned and $17,455 dividends received. During the year the company paid $723,877 in dividends, compared with $2,714,539 the year before.

Amortization and depreciation of properties was written off at $2,283,237 for the year. Normal income taxes totaled $371,750 and surtaxes $108,300. Earned surplus as of August 27 is figured at $5,007,582.

The company's balance sheet shows total assets of $72,349,467, and current assets of $519,272, including $336,729 in cash.

CBS Profits Down

Gross time sales running slightly below those of the like period last year coupled with certain additional out of pocket expenses have combined to shade Columbia Broadcasting System earnings for 1938 below those of last year, Wall Street estimates.

With gross revenues from the sale of time and facilities in the first 11 months of this year running slightly more than $1,000,000 below those of the like period a year ago, present indications are that CBS will report net income for the 52 weeks ended January 6, 1939, of approximately $3,450,000, equal to roughly $2 a share on the 1,707,950 shares of capital stock.

This would compare with net income of $4,297,567, or $2.52 a share, reported for the 52 weeks ended January 1, 1938.

CBS time sales for the first 11 months of 1938 aggregated $24,816,337, comparing with $25,935,500 in the like period a year ago. This represents a decline of 4.3% from the 1937 figure. Preliminary expectations are that December billings will show an approximate 5% decline from the same month a year ago.

New Universal Lineup Cited at Conference

District sales managers of Universal Pictures returned home this week after a weekend spent at the home office in conferences with president Nate Blumberg and sales manager William A. Scully. The company's chief executives told the field men that Universal in the next few months will "release the greatest group of top pictures in its history," beginning with W. C. Fields, in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man," Deanna Durbin, in "Three Smart Girls," and Bing Crosby, in "East Side of Heaven."

Those present at the conferences included J. H. Seidelman, in charge of Universal foreign affairs; F. J. A. McCarthy, eastern sales manager; W. J. Heineman, western sales manager; James Jordan; Studio Sales Contact Andrew J. Sharick; Clarence Margon, Latin-American supervisor; Monroe Isen, in charge of operations in Southern South America; District Managers H. D. Graham, E. T. Gomersall, Dave Miller, Peter Dana and A. J. O'Keefe, who make their headquarters in Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Kansas City, and Los Angeles respectively; Canadian representative, Clair Hague; and Louis Pollock, Eastern advertising and publicity manager. J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, returned to New York this week.

Hanson Circuit Expands

Oscar Hanson, president of Hanson Theatres Corporation, Ltd., indicated a program of expansion in 1939 at a managers' convention held recently in Toronto. The company has started to build a new house in St. Catharines.

With the completion of deals with Publix-Minneapolis and George Trendle's Detroit chain, United Artists' western devision has sold up to date all of its principal circuits for the season.

RKO Hearings On December 29

Continued hearings on RKO's plan of reorganization make it impossible for the company to emerge from 77-B until after January 1st, last Friday's session in the Federal courtroom of Judge William O. Bondy, New York, resulting in another hearing on next Thursday.

Adjournment Requested

Hamilton C. Rickaby, of Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett, attorneys for proponents of the plan, requested an adjournment of the hearings. The court was informed by Mr. Rickaby that its request for confirmatory consents from holders of the Seligman certificates had been complied with, but Federal Judge Bondy insisted on having facsimile copies of the certificates for further study.

The certificates were issued by J. & W. Seligman, depository, under a 1931 agreement with RKO, and represent partially paid debentures and common stock.

Ernest W. Stirn, holder of old Class "A" stock of RKO, in an affidavit, has attacked the validity of proxies used in the company's 1931 reorganization, in Baltimore. Judge Bondy pointed out that in the absence of opposing affidavits, the Stirn allegations would have to be admitted, a construction which was disputed by Attorney Rickaby.

Attorneys for the trustee (Irving Trust Company) are preparing an answer to the Stirn allegations.

United States circuit court of appeals this week affirmed an allowance of $5,500 to Marcus Heiman, trustee in bankruptcy of Orpheum Circuit, Inc., and $20,000 to his attorneys, Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Stephens and Black. A creditor, Philip J. Snyder, had appealed the allowance as excessive. Mr. Heiman had sought $7,172, and his attorneys $50,000.

"Ideas cannot be copyrighted, but sequence of events can," the U. S. circuit court of appeals ruled this week. However, a judgment dismissing the appeal of Clara Lipman and the estate of Samuel Lipman from a dismissal of their suit against RKO was affirmed.

The authors claimed an infringement of their play, "Depends on the Woman" in the RKO picture, "I Dream Too Much." The court ruled that the more varied the sequence, the less likely that a court would find an infringement.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Shades of old Ray Bell, Sid Dannenberg, Louis Charninsky, Frank Boucher and some other high pressure motion picture ballyhoo showmen:

It all started the other morning when the mails at Atlantic City were flooded with postcards cryptically inquiring, "What Is C. I. I.?"

It kept up throughout the day—with the local radio station, WPG, booming between programs, "What Is C. I. I.?"—with taxicabs parading the streets plastered with signs, "What Is C. I. I.?"—with an airplane circling the city with a trailer, "What Is C. I. I."

It ended the next night, shortly after police got a telephone request from a 34-year-old electrician, name withheld, for a motorcycle escort to the Penns Grove Ferry—because he had to rush to the White House to explain "C. I. I."

The cops went to his home and found a line of taxicabs labeled "C. I. I.," a bevy of pretty girls waving American flags and the electrician clad in cowboy costume.

"C. I. I.," he explained, stood for "Carmenized Industrialism, Inc."

Its aims, he said, included: (1) Elimination of auto accidents through radio propaganda; (2) Amalgamation of capital and labor, and (3) Regulation of all human activities through industrialism.

He was sent to Atlantic County Hospital.

RKO's Ned Depinet, announcing Herbert Wilcox's partnership producing arrangement, at a press luncheon at New York's Ritz Carlton, the other noon, disclosed that the company is holding back Mr. Wilcox's "Sixty Glorious Years," about Queen Victoria's reign, until the arrival on this Continent of King George and Queen Elizabeth, in the Spring. RKO's idea is to cash in on the tremendous publicity of their Majesties' visit. To further tie-in the picture they are re-titling it "The House of Windsor." All of which prompted a journalist from a leading London newspaper, who was our table companion at the Ritz luncheon, to remark that the "inside" reason for the King's and Queen's visit is to select a site in Regina, Saskatchewan, for the seat of the British Government, for establishment thereon in case of war in Europe, on account of the vulnerability of London to air attack.

Primitive potions brewed by tribal witches give the Indians of the Andean jungles of the upper Amazon country exact control of the size of their families and the abundance of their hair, according to Richard C. The White House has accepted the gift of a television set made by American Television Corporation. Similar gifts were made to Marvin McIntyre, the President's secretary, and to the homes of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the Interior, and Ebert E. Burlew, Acting Secretary of the same department. The only thing lacking is a television station in Washington to telecast to the four receivers—Washington not having any station, and having none in sight. But, then they say the cabinets are pretty pieces of furniture.

PLAYING HARD TO GET

Frank Mapel, state editor of the Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch, queried his field correspondents to find out where they could be located at any time of the day. Here is the answer from one of his old-timer reporters in a nearby town:

" . . . in addition will say that I am personally available during the 24 hours every day at the office, phone 4056; or, police department, phones 2244 and 4443; sheriff's office, 3730; fire department, 115; state highway patrol, 5950; Sparta Restaurant, 3307; Ohio Quick Lunch, 3437; Union Bus Station, 2201; Orpheum Billiards, 3714; my residence, 6754; Oil and Gas Well Supply Company, 3908, 2059 and 3786; B. & O. depot, 3324 or 3705; Midland Theatre, 4427; Auditorium Theatre, 2506; Grand Theatre, 3304; New Arcade Theatre, 6400. In case I don't happen to be at any of those, call 4057 . . . or, still better, long distance operators here know my whereabouts day and night. . . . "

This is the time of year when Walter Elias Disney brought forth a twelvemonth ago his charming little "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," to start off a potential gross revenue accruing therefrom of some $8,000,000. It is in order, then, to now peek into Mr. Disney's workshop in Hollywood to see what "Snow White's" father is doing now, feature-wise.

"Bambi" will be it. "Bambi" is a deer, born, cinematically, when Mr. Disney learned, a year ago, that a fawn was due to be born at the San Diego, California, zoo. Walt kept close watch on that vital statistic and on the day of the big event three of his animators were sitting close by the mother doe, busily sketching away. The birth of that fawn will eventually become the birth of Bambi on the screen.

Even though he is a deer, Bambi has human characteristics. One of the main things he has to learn for Mr. Disney's pen and ink in the course of his growing up is to distinguish between things to eat and things to smell, or to distinguish, that is, between food and flowers. All of which is fairly simple for him until, out strolling in the woods one day, he comes upon a skunk without any personality. And Bambi doesn't live happily thereafter.

Printers-Know-Best Department, repeating a headline in The Film Daily:

LINCOLN, NEB., LOCAL "10 BEST"
PALL STIRS WIDE INTEREST

There are more than 300 newspapermen covering the film capital of Hollywood for almost as many publications throughout the world, and the major portion of them called Selznick International demanding to know what truth, if any, there was in the New York World-Telegram's published story that David Selznick had "positively" cast Paulette Goddard as Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone with the Wind."

Well, Mr. Selznick's press department said that pretty Paulette had not been cast for the role, and the newspaper world immediately started to speculate on whether the Telegram pulled the "biggest scoop" on Hollywood news in recent months, or the "biggest hoax," the newspaper world's Editor and Publisher even taking up the matter for a full column of type.

Seems that the story came to New York from the World-Telegram's Hollywood correspondent, Frank T. Farrell, who had checked his clew for four days before sending the yarn in for publication. He found that MGM and United Artists, who might have had some claim on Miss Goddard's services, had no plans for her in the near future.

Also, the Selznick office in New York professed to have no picture scheduled for her, although she was considered by Mr. Farrell to be one of the best up-and-coming stars. "As the puzzle unwound more and more," continues the Editor and Publisher account, "it appeared a perfect buildup to Farrell . . ." and, . . . "with the evidence so strong in favor of a nationwide scoop, the World-Telegram smashed the story."

"Won't Let Girls Shed Their Clause,"* reads a New York World-Telegram headline over an item explaining that trade unionists have placed a restriction on the enthusiasm of "strip-teasers." If a stripper hereafter peels off more than she should (items not specified) her union will be liable to a $500 fine.

This stipulation is contained in a contract drawn up by the Brother Artists' Assn., a subsidiary of the Actors and Artistes of America. The contract will be submitted to the Variety Revue Theatre Association and represents the feeling of 300 burlesque performers and 300 extras.

A decency clause in the contract forbids any "indecent or lewd" act which a theatre owner might consider too improper, and provides the $500 fine in the event of such an offense.

Captain Johannes J. Bijl, master of the S. S. Niew Amsterdam, sailing out of New York for Rio de Janeiro, wirelessed back to shore that a toy airplane, one of those eye-dropper gasoline-filled things, had crashed into the foremast of his ship while she was several miles off Sandy Hook.

The message said that the toy plane apparently was still proceeding under its own power, at least four miles at sea, when it struck the steamer's mast and crashed to the deck. Captain Bijl asked the New York office of the shipping company to find the owner of the plane, telling them that it was named the Dawn Patrol.

They might ask some of the Warner press agents who have been giving much attention of late to "Dawn Patrol," released this week.

Decision in Loew Suit Is Promised Before January 1

Completion of the trial of the minority stockholders' suit against Loew's, Inc., and some of its more prominent officers and directors this week awaited only the taking of testimony from a single complainant's witness, and of several more depositions. On Wednesday the final defense witness, Arnold Cannon, Los Angeles attorney, testified in support of defense claims about the protection afforded California residents by that state's statute of limitations. New York State Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente was expected to render a decision before the end of the year, taking into consideration the fact that the company's new employment contracts will become effective on January 1st.

Schenck Testifies

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, who testified this week, said that Loew's is so rich in manpower the company no longer is dependent on any one man, not even himself. He also revealed that in 1936, when he induced Arthur M. Loew to remain with the company, he told young Mr. Loew that some day the latter might succeed him as president.

"Anybody, including myself, can be replaced. Our present executive staff is the finest the industry has ever known. Loew's success is due to these men," Mr. Schenck said. "Loew's comes first, last and always with me," he added.

To Arthur Loew, Mr. Schenck credited the rise and development of the company's foreign trade, until today Loew's is pre-eminent in that end of the business, too, doing approximately $48,000,000 annually in foreign business.

He told how the purchase of the Gaumont British theatres was first brought up in 1926, and that 10 years later he found John Maxwell, British film magnate, dickering for these houses. It took considerable negotiation to induce Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, to dispose of half of that company's equity in GB to Loew's for $3,500,000. Properly managed, Mr. Schenck told the court, the GB circuit would become among the most important in Europe.

Mr. Schenck also testified that he was obliged to borrow money in 1937 and 1938 to pay his income taxes, although he received upwards of $400,000 from the company in each of these years.

In his testimony, Mr. Schenck traced his own association with the industry since 1906, with the late Marcus Loew. It was Mr. Loew who personally began negotiations with the late Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer and J. Robert Rubin which led to their joining the Loew organization. To these men Mr. Schenck gave credit for the tremendous production development of MGM and Loew's.

Other witnesses were Leopold Friedman, general counsel for Loew's; J. Robert Rubin, vice-president, and William L. Keating and William R. Donaldson of the accounting firm of Miller, Donaldson and Company.

Mr. Friedman testified that the agreement made in 1927 had provided for the receipt by Messrs. Thalberg, Rubin and Mayer of 20 per cent of Loew's net profit. He said that the trio had a percentage guarantee of $125,000, irrespective of company earnings, but that company earnings had fallen below this percentage basis only once since its operation.

Mr. Rubin revealed that pictures regarded "not valuable" had garnered $13,553,049 since 1929 for Loew's.

Mr. Keating in his testimony revealed that $4,566,449 had been "written off" by Loew's in rejected continuities since 1930.

Steve Hannagan, public relations counsellor, who has also been retained by the majors for press work in connection with their defense of the U. S. Government's pending anti-trust suit and who handles the press for Florida resorts and some race tracks, sent to the press a statement concerning the testimony given some time ago by H. M. Bardt of Los Angeles, vice-president of the Bank of America.

He said that Norma Shearer instead of receiving millions from her husband's estate, as has been reported, will receive only one-third of the income, amounting at present to about $15,000 a year. Under the terms of the will of her husband, the late Irving G. Thalberg, Miss Shearer receives none of the principal of the estate, which eventually reverts to their children.

Another minority stockholders' suit was started against Loew's, Inc., last week. Plaintiffs are Norman Wolf, owner of 100 shares, and Manes Fuld, 85 shares. The suit was filed in federal court and names as defendants Loew's, Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, Arthur M. Loew, William Fox, Electrical Research Products, Inc., Western Electric, Chase National Bank, Chase Securities Company, Halsey, Stuart Company, Inc., estate of Irving Thalberg, Louis B. Mayer, J. Robert Rubin, Edward Mannix and 27 members of the board of directors.

Actors' Division of Jewish Charities Collects $125,000

Ben Bernie, "the old maestro," was the guest Monday at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor, New York, given in tribute to his 15 years in theatricals and for his work in the cause of the 116 medical and social welfare institutions affiliated with the New York and Brooklyn Jewish Federations of Charities.

Some 600 persons including executives and stars of radio, screen and stage, attended the luncheon and contributed a total of $125,000 to the campaign of the two federations. The affair was held under the auspices of the Amusement Division of Federation, which has accepted a quota of $225,000 for 1938 in the campaign.

Eddie Cantor was chairman and toastmaster. He, too, was lauded, Will H. Hays describing him and Bernie as "great humanitarians." Mr. Hays urged business to get behind the drive, "which represents the finest type of human service in the Greater New York area."

Seated on the dais were Harry Brandt, of the Independent Theatre Owners; Raymond Massey, star of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"; Fred Stone; John Golden; Commissioner of Licenses Paul Moss; Murray Silverstone, of United Artists; Paul Felix Warburg, chairman of Federations' Business Men's Council; Frank Gillmore, Phil Baker, Max Gordon and Jack Cohn, of Columbia Pictures, besides Mr. Hays and the two honor guests.

David Bernstein, of Loew's, and Major Albert Warner are co-chairmen of the Amusement Division. Vice-chairmen are Barney Balaban, Paramount; Nate J. Blumberg, Universal; Mr. Cohn; Commissioner Moss; George J. Schaeffer, RKO, and Joseph M. Schenck, Twentieth Century-Fox.

More Artists Help Motion Picture Art Refugee Fund

The number of well known artists who have contributed their work to the Motion Picture Art Fund for German Refugees is already considerable, and rising, the fund announces. Over 100 pieces of art have already been submitted by such artists, illustrators and sculptors, as Abner Dean, Norman Rockwell, Dean Cornwall, Nat Karson, S. Shimin, Vargos, Seguso, George Petty, Max Kalish, Sam Berman, Frank Nicolet and Carl Hoff.

The organization will hold a drawing in New York City, February 12, tickets for which are being sold now. The winners of the drawing will receive the contributed art work.

THREAT OF GOVERNMENT CENSORSHIP RAISES ALARM IN BRITISH TRADE

Fear of Direct or Indirect Propaganda on Screen Aroused by Recent Instances of Home, Foreign Office Interference

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Forsaking for a spell its own domestic differences and internal dogfights the industry during the last few days, has found itself face to face with a problem which, for some time increasing in its intensity, has suddenly reached a state which many trade sections consider crucial. It is the question of censorship.

Brought to the forefront of both public and trade discussion by the Government's intervention in the Paramount newsreel case, it has, during the past week, by the India Office ban on a film devised around the Siege of Lucknow and further magnified into front page news by the washing of Parliamentary linen in full dress debate, become the most vital and vexed subject of current trade discussions, and stimulus to a state of sheer alarm.

Thanks to the Lucknow incident a demand is now crystallizing for a complete overhaul of the trade's own censorship body, the British Board of Film Censors. On the wider territory —which includes incidentally that of Wardour Street and its studio lots—the situation has been interpreted as a symptomatic of a subtle, sinister but strictly sotto voce Government censorship.

Concern synthesizes itself into three counts, that the authority of the British Board of Film Censors is being covertly undermined, that the B.B.F.C., has been a party to this process, that the British exhibitor is in danger of being victim of partisan propaganda, propaganda not so much of presentation as of elimination, and that producers and distributors of films whether British or foreign, are faced with an unseen factor the operations of which are incalculable until they have taken place.

Intervention by Government

The Lucknow film is the second reported instance in the last few months of direct intervention by a Government Department in regard to the production or showing of a motion picture. The film was one of a series dealing with the more glorious chapters in the Empire's story, to be directed by Maurice Elvey and to be distributed by Butcher's Film Service. The film was long announced and the script submitted and approved by the B.B.F.C. Preparations were advanced for the film, which was to have gone into production in a few days, when the India Office approached the B.B.F.C., who in turn discussed the matter with the producer. It was the Government Department's contention that any film dealing with this incident would arouse unhappy memories and hinder the spirit of goodwill between two nations. The B.B.F.C., thereupon advised the producer that they would not sanction any such film.

The Paramount incident, initial cause of the pother, occurred in September, but has more recently been the subject of Parliamentary question and debate. It is now admitted by the Prime Minister and his colleagues that the Foreign Office took exception to the critical comments of Messrs. Steed and Cummings in the newsreel, drew the American Ambassador's attention to them, and that he in turn "through a member of the Hays Organization in this country" inferentially suggested how Paramount could solve the problem. Paramount next morning asked subscribers to eliminate the sequence from the reel.

DISTRIBUTORS FIRM ON ITALIAN EDICT

All distributors without exception this week reaffirmed their stand against compliance with the Italian distribution monopoly decree after December 31st, when the decree becomes effective, and again declared their intention of not doing business in Italy after that date during a meeting of foreign heads at the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America headquarters in New York.

At the session, two important points were reaffirmed, namely, that the U. S. companies are being forced out of Italy by that country's stand, and that the American organizations will continue to present a united front to the Italian decree.

Achille Starace, secretary of the Fascist party, this week in Rome forbade newspapers to publish cartoons which caricature and satirize such socalled "bourgeois" customs as five o'clock tea, dinners of honor and men's evening dress. Several papers have been publishing cartoons lampooning the "middle class."

Debate in Parliament

Numerous questions on the two incidents by Members of Parliament, this week culminated in a full dress debate on a motion by Mr. Mander, M.P., for the manufacturing town of Wolverhampton, virtually reprimanding the Government for imposing a political censorship behind the scenes. It is Mander's contention that the censorship which, he claims, is exercised not only by the Government and its Departments, but by the Government Party Office, aims at muzzling viewpoints hostile to the Government or friendly to the Opposition. His principal criticism is not so much that such a censorship as he alleges, should exist, as that there should be pretense that it does not. In the Commons he raised the censorship of various March of Time reels notably dealing with Gibraltar, Algeria, France, Germany, Austria and Britain itself.

These cuts, of course, were made by the order of the B.B.F.C., but it would appear to be Mander's contention that the B.B.F.C., whether voluntary or under pressure, were acting as Government agents. He gave an instance of the Board having warned a producer that it would be undesirable to show anything of an anti-Fascist nature because it would not be possible to convince the Italian Government that the British Government were not in control of the films here and that it was not, therefore, Government propaganda. Every instance he quoted of excision by order of the Board appeared to be of excisions of sequences critical of the German and Italian Governments, of General Franco or Mr. Chamberlain.

Propaganda Feared

It is this voluntary watchdog work of the B.B.F.C., which has given rise to the current demand that the Censorship Advisory Committee should immediately go into the Board's present policy with a view to overhaul. The trade is not so much concerned with Mr. Mander's objection to Government propaganda, as with the dangers of any form of political propaganda covert or overt, whether by elimination or accentuation creeping into their films. Still more, however, are they anxious against any situation which may make it a dangerous gamble for a producer or distributor to embark upon the production of films which may contain matter to which the Government might take objection.

Vital as this point is it is complicated by the fact that there is no known Government policy on films, that the B.B.F.C. has no set of principles or policy which are known to guide these operations, and that judging by recent events it is quite likely to contradict itself and upon pressure from outside suddenly veto what it has already approved. Both producers and distributors, some of the former of whom have already abandoned pictures on their schedule, argue that they cannot be sure that any films they have made will not come under a ban.

It is true that pictures like "Bengal Lancer" and "The Drum," to mention but two of a considerable mass, came under no such guillotine as that suddenly operating against the modest "Relief of Lucknow," but that is thought to complicate matters rather than to clarify them.

Censors Under Act of 1909

The B.B.F.C., of course, is a purely trade body of no constitutional status, brought into being by the trade in 1909 by agreement of the Home Office and British licensing authorities in order to facilitate the workings of the 1909 Act. It has no status in law and, as already recorded, no accredited or admitted policy.

In the Lucknow instance the Board's change of mind had an economic effect, inasmuch as the producer had already spent much of his budget on sets and virtually contracted eight hundred people to be employed during production.

Not very many weeks back exhibitors, concerned at the subtle but pronounced creeping of propaganda into newsreels, challenged the newsreel bodies to a show-down and meeting them face to face told them point blank that they would not and could not afford to be party to propaganda in the form of news whether pro-Government or anti-Government. They pointed out that the constant gilding of Parliamentary lilies, satisfying as it might be to one political creed, was exasperating to the other. The fact that Mr. Chamberlain was in this instance the newsreel's lily was beside the point, they insisted that the newsreels be cleaned entirely of politics and of propaganda of any kind.

Insisting that they had the last word, they threatened—if cause for complaint arose—to advise their members that they book only on a weekly basis and that if this did not cure it they would cut newsreels from their programs altogether.

The incidents have raised once again what is, it would seem, a recurrent bogey, the idea of State censorship.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Third for MGM

Continuing their dramatic exploitation of the English scene, MGM has launched vigorously into work on their third British production "Good-Bye, Mr. Chips," a personal drama which will also be a pageant of English public school life from the Victorian era until to-day.

What is claimed to be one of the largest indoor sets to be erected in this country has gone up at Denham Studios, representing the quadrangle and buildings of Brookfield School. The set is a study in quiet dignity, the gravelled square fringed with rough grey stone buildings, dating back to every century since the tenth, the vaulted arch over the entrance gate, the secluded cloisters, daffodilled verges and stained glass windows bringing a venerable dignity to an English public school and the life within its walls. Art director Alfred Junge is responsible.

On this set a fortnight's shooting has already been concluded with Robert Donat playing the part of the Victorian schoolmaster and Greer Garson playing opposite him. Sam Wood is directing.

Rising Star

One of the most coveted roles of the season, the feminine lead in "Jamaica Inn," Charles Laughton's Mayflower production, has been awarded to Maureen O'Hara, an unknown Irish girl whom Erich Pommer had marked down for ultimate stardom.

For a year Maureen O'Hara has been under contract to Mayflower Pictures following a screen test given by Pommer after a trip to Dublin. Recently she has been groomed in elocution, singing and dancing and was last week selected by Alfred Hitchcock to play the role of Mary Yellan in the new Laughton film.

Maureen O'Hara will have no small task to stand up to a cast including—apart from Laughton himself—Leslie Banks, Emlyn Williams and Robert Newton. Pommer, however, promises that the name Maureen O'Hara will be soon world famous.

Christmas Story

A film recreating the story of the nativity of Christ and bringing to the screen sacred moments such as the visit of the Magi and the flight into Egypt, has recently been concluded at the Gaumont British Instructional studios at Shepherds Bush.

"The Prince of Peace" as it is titled, is a non-denominational film made in conjunction with the Cinema Christian Council and the Religious Film Society.

Figures from the Bible story appear in the film and include the Archangel Gabriel, Herod, the Wise Men from the East and the Virgin Mary. Cast for the role of the Virgin Mary was Pamela Kellino, young British actress and member of the Ostrer family. Other roles were filled by actors and actresses who have, from time to time, appeared in Nativity plays.

Donald Carter, director of the film, has sought to recreate pictorially and atmospherically the subjects from famous Italian paintings.

The picture is for non-theatrical release around Christmas time.

MAUREEN O'HARA who will begin what Erich Pommer has predicted will be a long and brilliant career as a star as the feminine lead in "Jamaica Inn," the Daphne du Maurier story soon to go into production for Mayflower. Miss O'Hara was selected for the part by Mr. Pommer, Charles Laughton and Alfred Hitchcock.

At Ealing

"Let's Be Famous" has been chosen as the title for the new Jimmy O'Dea, Betty Driver and Sonnie Hale comedy, recently completed at the Ealing Studios under the production eye of Michael Balcon. Walter Forde directed this musical which was written by Messrs. McDougall and McKinnon, the two young Scottish journalists responsible for the script of "This Man Is News."

Noel Gay, composer of "The King's Horses" and "The Lambeth Walk" wrote four numbers for the film.

"Let's Be Famous" is the story of an Irish shopkeeper and his romance with a Lancashire girl, the romance furthered by the desire of both of them to become famous singers. Sonnie Hale has the fruitful role of an advertising agent looking for talent for a radio programme sponsored by a soap manufacturer.

Illness

The illness of Mary Maguire has held up production for two weeks on the Associated British production "Black Eyes." Though director Herbert Brenon was able to concentrate upon scenes featuring Otto Kruger and Walter Rilla, there still remains work to be done which cannot be completed until Miss Maguire returns.

Preparations, meanwhile, are being speeded up for another Otto Kruger picture.

International

American, British and Swiss finance is behind Fairbanks International, a new production organization built around Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and which plans picture making on both sides of the Atlantic.

Associated with the administration of Fairbanks International which has, it is stated, $2,500,000 at its disposal, are Mr. Fairbanks, Mr. John Hay Whitney, Mr. David O. Selznick, Sir Adrian Baillie, Mr. Montagu Marks and Mr. George Archibald, director of United Artists in Britain and of Odeon Theatres.

Fairbanks will supervise all production which will be of films of international character to be made either in America at Culver City, in England at Denham or Pinewood, or on the Continent of Europe.

The first production, to be made at Culver City, is entitled "The Californian," final stages of which are now being completed and which will be directed by Raoul Walsh. Following this will be "The Tenth Woman," a story based on an episode in the life of Lord Byron—in color—and then will be made "The Three Musketeers," a re-creation of one of Douglas Fairbanks' earlier successes—but in which he will not appear—this will also be made in color. All the pictures will be released by United Artists.

Out of Egypt

Exactly according to schedule Zoltan Korda's "The Four Feathers" unit concluded work on the Nile and have sailed from Port Sudan for Liverpool, where they are scheduled to arrive on December 28th.

Zoltan Korda credits the collaboration of military and civil authorities with making it possible to conclude on the schedule date.

"The Four Feathers" location was probably the largest ever undertaken by a film company in Egypt, Korda having the co-operation of the 1st Battalion East Surreys, members of the Sudan Defence Force, the Camel Corps and 4,000 natives, including Hottentots and Fuzzie-Wuzzies.

Scenes filmed include the Battle of Omdurman and the hauling of the British Army, under Kitchener, over the Nile cataracts.

Used in one scene was the original warship in which Kitchener sailed up the Nile during the Sudan war to relieve Khartoum, rooted out from its placid moorings at the Khartoum Yacht Club to recreate once again its voyage over the Nile cataracts.

Vincent Korda to Morocco

Vincent Korda, art director for Alexander Korda, has left London for Marrakech, Morocco, to study local color and costumes for his brother's forthcoming color version of "The Thief of Bagdad."

Refugee Aid

All of the theatres in the city of London, on January 7, will contribute 10 per cent of their gross receipts to the Stanley Baldwin fund for refugee relief.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

Huckleberry Finn

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Comedy-Melodrama

"Huckleberry Finn" will follow closely the theme and spirit of the Mark Twain story which was written as a sequel to "Tom Sawyer." Briefly the story is a comedy-melodrama in which adventure, humor and pathos are the principal elements. It concerns a Mississippi River boy who, to escape his worthless father and help the widow who had been caring for him, runs away after first arranging things to make it appear that he has been murdered. With the old slave who has been charged and who has also run away, he starts up the river. The pair encounter several comic and dangerous adventures including the famous "Romeo And Juliet" episode, the one in which the pseudo-noblemen try to defraud the orphan girls. "Huck" aided by the boat captain finally dashes back to his home town to prove he is still alive and save the old slave from being lynched.

MGM's amazing Mickey Rooney will play the title role and that of the old slave will be filled by Rex Ingram, remembered for his "De Lawd" characterization in "Green Pastures." Walter Connolly, lately in "Too Hot To Handle" and "The Awakening Of Katrina" and William Frawley will be, respectively the "Duke Of Bridgewater" and "The Lost Dauphin Of France." Elizabeth Risdon is the "Aunt," and the other feminine roles have been assigned to Jo Ann Sayers who made her debut in "Young Dr. Kildare" and Lynn Carver now in "A Christmas Carol." Other featured roles will present Minor Watson, Harlan Briggs and Sarah Edwards.

Production detail and settings are faithfully reproducing the Mississippi River country of the story's time, with the race down the river in the old stern wheeler being built up as one of the film's most exciting action highlights.

Release date: February 10, 1939.

Ice Follies of 1939

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Romance and Spectacle

On the plot side, "Ice Follies of 1939" will tell a story of temporarily fustrated romance. It will detail the experiences of a girl who sacrifices love and marriage for a career as a motion picture star and then sacrifices career for love. Yet it is likely that the human appeal of the theme will prove secondary to the elaborately stage ice skating numbers, which will present the entire lead personnel of the now-touring "Ice Follies" show, including Bess Ehrhardt, Ted and Roy Shipstad, Heine Brock, Harrison Legg and the ice ballet of twenty-four girls. Early in the film several sequences will show noted ice hockey teams in speedy action, followed by an Indian Fantasy, a Circus Ballet, innumerable specialty numbers and an elaborate finale presenting the entire company in a flashing rhythmic version of the Mother Goose characters. Some of these numbers will be shown in color. Known for her ability as a dancer, Joan Crawford will be seen as an accomplished skater and will be heard singing three musical numbers.

The locales are Hollywood and New York. Miss Crawford, most recently in "The Shining Hour," will be starred with James Stewart, now in "You Can't Take It with You" and laterly in "Of Human Hearts" and "Shopworn Angel," and Lew Ayres, who made a notable comeback in "Holiday," "Young Dr. Kildare" and "Spring Madness." The principal supporting players are Lionel Stander, Charles D. Brown and Bess Ehrhardt.

The story: The skating team of Crawford, Stewart and Ayres is broken up when the management of the rink demands that she be fired. She marries Stewart and later learns from Ayres why the act was discontinued. She gets a picture contract, and when she discovers it contains a "no marriage" clause, Stewart steps aside. Meanwhile, although not all is happy between them, Stewart and Ayres go ahead with plans to produce their ice show in New York. It is to open simultaneously with the premiere of Miss Crawford's first picture, with which she is making a personal appearance. When the ice show goes on, the girl, who has announced her marriage and retirement from the screen, is its star.

The picture is being produced by Harry Rapf, who discovered Miss Crawford, and is being directed by Reinhold Schunzel, famous for his work in Europe and maker of "Rich Man, Poor Girl."

Release date: To be determined.

Arizona Legion

(RKO Radio)

Action Adventure

This will be a George O'Brien picture, the tenth he has made for RKO Radio within the last two years. It will tell how a young Westerner deliberately allies himself with a disreputable element and jeopardizes his life and honor in order to learn the secrets of an outlaw gang and capture its leader. A romance with a girl who scorns him as a criminal and the added complication of having to deceive the U. S. cavalry as well as the bandits will help to make "Arizona Legion" exciting and suspenseful as O'Brien pictures usually are.

The story is by Bernard McConville, who did "Border G Man" for the star and whose other credits include the current "The Old Barn Dance," "Public Cowboy No. 1" and "Riders of the Whistling Scull." The screen play is by Oliver Drake and is the fifth he has done for O'Brien. David Howard continues as O'Brien's director, with "Arizona Legion" the nineteenth film in which the pair has been so associated.

The heroine will be Laraine Johnson, previously seen with the hero in "Painted Desert" and "Border G Man." Comedy will be provided by Chill Wills, who played his first role with the star in "Lawless Valley." Carlyle Moore, O'Brien's companion in arms, has been seen in numerous Warner productions, and the supporting cast is made up of such Western specialists as Edward Le Saint, Harry Cording, Tom Chatterton, William Royle, Glen Strange, Monty Montague, Joe Rickson and Robert Burns.

The time is the 1870's. A frontier town, a cavalry post and the roads and trails of the surrounding country are the immediate backgrounds.

Release date: To be determined.

The Flying Irishman

(RKO Radio)

Career Story

The hero of "The Flying Irishman" will be Douglas Corrigan. His famous flying feat needs no reiterating. The picture will simply tell his life story. Thematically, it will be a sort of Horatio Alger yarn, endeavoring to show that dogged persistence, presumably a characteristic of every American youth, can triumph over every obstacle. It will have a development-of-aviation background, but unlike almost every other aviation picture but one (the one that had to do with Dick Merrill), it will be considering a real living hero and not one that is a figment of romantic imagination.

Corrigan, who thought of nothing but aviation, from the moment he was able to think at all, wanted to be a transport pilot. He was told that he couldn't; first because he was too small, physically; secondly he lacked transcontinental flying experience. It is a matter of record that the man flew the country and across the Atlantic in what legend now has it, was a lot of gasoline tanks attached to a box kite. To millions he is a romantic symbol of achievement.

Under the character name "Wrong Way," Corrigan will be in the show. He will be supported by some pretty capable screen personalities including Paul Kelly, Robert Armstrong, Eddie Quillan, Donald MacBride, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Appleby, Peggy Ryan (outstanding in "Top of the Town" as a child dancer) and Cora Witherspoon.

Corrigan's life story, to date, was adapted to the screen by Ernest Pagano and Dalton Trumbo. The picture version of it is being directed by Leigh Jason, who just made "The Mad Miss Manton." Pandro S. Berman, personally, is producing.

Release date: January 15, 1939 (tentative).

Cafe Society

(Paramount)

Sophisticated Romance

When the hero and heroine in this modern, sophisticated romance married, they promised to love and honor, but, although they did not realize it, fight was to be the third clause in their contract. It all happened because a frivolous society queen, a member of the cafe society set, who liked nothing better than to have her name prominent in gossip columns, decided that a ship's news reporter was her ideal.

The gulf in social positions and ways of thinking soon yawns menacingly and though they try to make a pretense of happy marriage all their public appearances wind up in fights. High lights in hilarity follow a yachting party episode which bores the groom. Both then land in the ocean. Demon jealousy raises its head for the now contrite bride when she thinks her mate is more than platonically interested in a blonde cafe entertainer. The inevitable separation looms until the couple, which can't get along together, discover that they cannot get along apart.

Madeleine Carroll, last in "Blockade," Walter Wanger production, and Fred MacMurray, presently in "Sing, You Sinners," are the featured artists in "Cafe Society." Shirley Ross will be seen as the entertainer who gives the heroine something real to worry about. While the supporting and extra cast includes a great many players, Jessie Ralph, Claude Gillingwater, Allyn Joslyn and Don Alvarado are the most prominent.

Settings are elaborate and in keeping with the tone of the places which the characters frequent. There will be music for MacMurray and Miss Ross to sing.

Based on an original screen play by Virginia Van Upp, who has been associated with the preparation of such film stories as "You and Me" and "Swing High, Swing Low," the picture is being directed by Edward H. Griffith, who did "I'll Take Romance" and "Cafe Metropole."

Burn 'Em Up O'Connor

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

New Series

"Burn 'Em Up O'Connor" will be the first of a series of sport features which MGM will make. Midget auto racing, with all the romance, melodrama, danger and surprise that go with the speedy sport will be the background of the love theme. The picture is being built upon a formula of mile-a-minute action, plus love interest, gambling, crime and melodramatic mystery.

The general background will be Gilmore Stadium in Los Angeles, which the weekly miniature auto race meetings have made the capital of midget racing on the west coast. Shots of the famous Indianapolis Memorial Day Race, the Roosevelt Road Race, the Vanderbilt cup and Grand Prix races will be included.

Dennis O'Keefe, who has gained a measure of repute via such films as "Bad Man of Brimstone," "Hold That Kiss," "The Chaser" and "Vacation from Love," will be seen as "Burn 'Em Up O'Connor," a country boy who becomes the terror of the speedways. The heroine is Cecilia Parker, widely popular from the "Judge Hardy" series. Half a dozen or more nationally known midget car drivers will be seen, and the film personalities in support of the leads will be Harry Carey, Nat Pendleton, Charlie Grapewin, Alan Curtus, Tom Neal, Truman Bradley, Addison Richards, Phillip Terry and Frank Orth.

A Harry Rapf production, "Burn 'Em Up O'Connor" is being directed by Edgar Sedgwyck, who has made several Joe E. Brown pictures, and such sport films as "Death on the Diamond" and "Slide, Kelly, Slide." Sedgwyck wrote the original story and collaborated with Byron Morgan on the screen play.

Jesse James

(20th Century-Fox)

Story of an Outlaw

Of all the vivid characters spewed from the ranks of those bordering guerrilla raiders who made war Hell during the Civil War, Jesse James is the most glamorous. In the imaginations of millions the name symbolizes all that is fiercely vicious in blackhearted scoundrelism and ruthless enmity against law and order. To other millions the name bespeaks a legendary Robin Hood and identifies its bearer as a chivalrous victim of his times and environment.

As Darryl F. Zancuk visions "Jessie James," the picture will neither further blacken nor whitewash the character of the notorious outlaw king. Being made in color the production will simply tell the story, taking full advantage of course, of the incredibly adventurous background that was the dangerous era in which he lived, of a man who lived, loved and died violently.

For name value "Jesse James" will star Tyrone Power. No one, with the possible exception of Mickey Rooney during the past year, has proved himself a better box office draw than Power. The supporting cast is star studded. It will feature Nancy Kelly, now in "Submarine Patrol," Henry Fonda in the kind of robust outdoor role which he handles so skilfully as was demonstrated by such films as "Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "Slim" and "Spawn of the North." Randolph Scott will be in the picture as will Slim Summerville, J. Edward Bromberg, Brian Donlevy, John Carradine, Donald Meek, John Russell and Jane Darwell. The extra and bit player personnel will run into thousands. Of these supplementary people, Charles Tenn, Claire Du Brey, Willard Robertson, Spencer Charters, Arthur Aylesworth, Charles Middleton, Ed Le Saint, George Breakstone and Lon Chaney, Jr., are the most important.

For a producer-director combination, Mr. Zanuck has placed the story in the hands of Nunnally Johnson and Henry King. Johnson produced "The Country Doctor" and "Prisoner of Shark Island." He wrote the screen stories for "The House of Rothschild" and "Cardinal Richelieu." King previously directed "The White Sister," "Tol'able David," "State Fair," "Lloyds of London," "Ramona," "In Old Chicago," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and many other successful 20th Century-Fox pictures. In preparing the original screen play, Johnson was aided in gathering historical data, separating fact from fiction and combining both by Rosalind Schaeffer and J. Frances James.

Mr. Moto's Last Warning

(20th Century-Fox)

Mystery Melodrama

"Mr. Moto's Last Warning," sixth picture of the series that has featured Peter Lorre as the mentally resourceful and small but physically powerful Oriental detective, will take its auditors to the exotic lands and waters of the Near East, particularly to Port Said, where he will become involved in a fight with a powerful enemy syndicate plotting to blow up the French battle fleet. Tense situations, close escapes and whirlwind excitement promise to make the film as lively as its predecessors, with mystery, melodrama, romance and intrigue.

An exceptionally strong cast has been selected to play along with Lorre. Ricardo Cortez, Virginia Field, John Carradine and George Sanders have had leading roles in some of the most important Twentieth Century-Fox pictures. Also to be seen are Joan Carol, a promising child actress, Robert Coote, the English actor who scored with Robert Taylor and Maureen O'Sullivan in "A Yank at Oxford," Margaret Irving, Leyland Hodgson and John B. Davidson.

A Sol M. Wurtzel production, the story is based on the character, "Mr. Moto," created by John P. Marquand, who first exploited him in The Saturday Evening Post. The screen play is credited to Philip MacDonald, who has done three previous numbers in the series, and Norman Foster, a collaborator on four of the earlier pictures. Mr. Foster also is directing a "Mr. Moto" for the fourth time.

Release date: February 24, 1939.

Mysterious Miss X

(Republic)

Comedy-Melodrama

All the ingredients of complicated comedy mystery melodrama are being stirred into "Mysterious Miss X." One angle, while not entirely new, is being used as the detonator by which all the other elements are exploded. An actor who has specialized in playing detective roles on the stage finds himself suspected of complicity in murder. He also finds the small town police believe that he really is a Scotland Yard Inspector.

So he must unsnarl the case, and unsnarl it he does. He is revealed as an actor, but also a pretty good Romeo.

Michael Whalen, for several years with Twentieth Century-Fox, will be seen in the actor-sleuth role, aided by Chick Chandler in the proverbial role of the dumb stooge. Mary Hart, one of Republic's promising young players, is part and parcel of all the melodrama and romance. Funny in "The Young In Heart," Mabel Todd is being depended upon to be amusing in the present instance. Other players who have important roles are Don Douglas, Regis Toomey, Wade Boteler, Dorothy Tree and Frank Thomas.

George W. Yates wrote the original story adapted by Olive Cooper, who numbers among her mystery story writing credits collaboration on "Jim Hanvey, Detective" and "The Return of Jimmy Valentine."

Midnight

(Paramount)

Comedy-Romance

Although continental in character, the story to be told in "Midnight" is based on a familiarly appealing plot. Paris is the setting, production detail will accentuate the allure of that romantic city in relation to themes romantic, and the time is modern. Substantially the plot stems from the "love in trouble" premise. But the treatment according to this story of an American girl among many Frenchmen is light and frothy. Hilarity should be the outcrop as the adventures of the showgirl who almost had too many bridegrooms is traced. That she herself poses as a titled aristocrat and that the taxi driver who adores her, tries to palm himself off, to save her, of course, from a fate worse than death, as a nobleman, adds to the show's potential amusement quality.

Well known as she is, Claudette Colbert, the star of "Midnight," will probably be more prominent in the public eye because of "Zaza" which should reach theatre screens before this arrives. Miss Colbert is well known to theatre-goers, as are practically all the artists who will be seen in support. Don Ameche's radio and 20th Century-Fox career have made him familiar. There are but few people who don't know something about John and Elaine Barrymore. Mary Astor, Hedda Hopper, Lionel Pape and Ferdinand Munier are seen on the screens quite regularly and Francis Lederer, who has been away from the Hollywood scene for sometime, will come back to it again in "Midnight."

While writing and screen play credits have not been awarded as yet, the picture is being directed by a specialist in comedy romance, Mitchell Leisen who made a couple of "Big Broadcasts," "Easy Living" and "Hands Across the Table," the romantic premise of which was somewhat similar to the "Midnight" story.

Sweethearts

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Musical Romance

Color film and tone-color combine to make a musical romantic holiday in "Sweethearts," the MGM opus starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Eye-filling and ear-entrancing media are merged expertly in this fifth co-starring vehicle of the screen's most notable singing team. The result is a lavish, scintillating production that swings blithely along to the lilting strains of some of Victor Herbert's most delightful music, punctuated by the sparkling dialogue of Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell, who wrote the screen play, utilizing Victor Herbert's famous operetta, "Sweethearts," as the background for a modern story of Broadway stage life.

While the production of the Herbert operetta is made incidental to the screen story, the music of the great master of the lyric stage dominates the melodic scheme. Actual stage production of the operetta in this "show within a show" presents the "Escape" number which is Act Two of the original Herbert opus, in which is featured the Dutch "Wooden Shoes" number. Miss MacDonald as "Nanette," Nelson Eddy as the Prince, Ray Bolger as "Hans" and the Albertina Rasch Ballet appear in the stunning and elaborate sequences that mark the opening scenes of the screen production.

Subsequently, other numbers from the Herbert musical are ingeniously worked into the development of the screen story. The "Pretty as a Picture" number becomes an integer of a party sequence. In a Victor recording studio scene, Nelson Eddy is heard in the rousing march number, "On Parade," accompanied by a marine band. A Herbert instrumental number, "Badinage," is used in a song arrangement sung by Miss MacDonald in an NBC broadcast from Radio City, accompanied by a symphony orchestra and a mixed chorus. In stage sequences of the operetta, Miss MacDonald and Mr. Eddy join their voices in "Every Lover Must Meet His Fate" and the "Sweethearts" finale.

The MacDonald-Eddy fans will have much to cheer about when their favorite musical team is exposed to them in this colorful musical romance. To the lovely cantatrice color film gives an enhanced vividness, not the least pleasing of which is the revelation of her gorgeous titian hair in all its natural beauty.

There is a Titianesque splendor also in the sumptuous stage scenes—and the ladies will gasp when they get an eyeful of color and design in the modiste shop fashion show sequence in which the lovely MacDonald is shown in a dozen changes, ranging from the ultra-ultra in evening gowns to sports clothes.

The story of "Sweethearts" is that of two Broadway musical comedy stars, "Gwen Marlowe" (Jeanette MacDonald) and "Ernest Lane" (Nelson Eddy) husband and wife in private life and still much in love with each other. After a run of six years in the operetta, "Sweethearts," they become fed up with the monotony of success and its consequent eternal round of broadcasts, functions and press agent stunts and yearn for a more unshackled outlet for their talents. Comes a Hollywood offer, and the producer of "Sweethearts," "Felix Lehman" (Frank Morgan) is desperate. A bright idea pops into the head of his librettist, "Leo Kronk" (Mischa Auer). He reads to Gwen a play he has just written, and leads her to believe it is based on "Ernest's" infidelity to her. "Gwen" and "Ernest" quarrel and form separate road companies for tour. "Kronk's" play is produced and proves a failure. "Gwen" and "Ernest" read the press reviews which reveal the plot, and realize how they have been tricked by "Kronk." Rushing back to New York, they confront "Lehman" with his perfidy. When "Lehman" tells them that after all they don't belong on Broadway and that Hollywood is the only place for them, they take it as a slur on their loyalty to their Broadway public and decide to remain. And everybody's happy.

Frank Morgan, charter member of the MacDonald-Eddy alliance, is at his best as the fluttery Broadway producer. Mischa Auer as the librettist and Herman Bing as the musical director-composer of "Sweethearts" provide hilarious comedy as they get into each other's hair and toss verbal brickbats in assorted dialects. Ray Bolger, Florence Rice and Reginald Gardiner complete the featured members of a distinguished supporting cast.

"Sweethearts" will please all types of audiences. It appeals to the eye, the ear and the yen for divertissement. Director W. S. Van Dyke II has paced it at a rapid tempo, and Herbert Stothart in the musical adaptation has another bright feather in his cap.

The enterprising showman will find many natural exploitation angles in this production.—JOSEPH O'SULLIVAN.

Kentucky

(20th Century-Fox)

Of Thoroughbreds, Equine and Human

The maturer observers of the Hollywood scene note and remark that one among Mr. Darryl Zanuck's numerous distinguished talents especially and peculiarly entitling him to a permanent niche in the cinema hall of fame is his precise knowledge of when and where to spend large amounts of money to ensure large results. If pictures were poker it would be said of him that "he plays 'em when he's got 'em." It's an ancient and honorable system and it has won him, and showmen who profit or lose by backing his play, an impressive sequence of imposing jackpots. Mr. Zanuck has been, and is, staking the poke on "Kentucky."

"Kentucky," it may be recalled, started out to be a fairly representative production in what is still referred to as the "A" bracket. A glance at the cast gives an idea of the original plannings. But "Kentucky" grew, as "In Old Chicago," "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and other films had grown before it, as the rushes shaped up in the Zanuck eye to form a pattern of greatness. Full color was decided upon, to give the Kentucky blue grass of song and tradition full effect. An innovational departure from dialogue into off-screen narration was contrived as a means of setting the factual story of Kentucky's perduring devotion to the blood horse fairly and squarely before the customers for the fine, sporting story it is. When the location unit brought back the close-ups of Gallant Fox, Omaha, Man O' War and other great thoroughbreds photographed in home pastures, together with sweeping panoramas of mares and foals roaming lush acres, he took the rubber band off the bankroll and threw it away.

As might be expected, these typically Zanuck decisions got him a great picture. But it is in the record book that Mr. Zanuck doesn't stop backing his hand as long as he can find takers. It is in the papers, and perhaps in the echoes, that the Zanuck party for the Governor of Kentucky on the occasion of the press preview—a 10-day cross-country tour for a dozen with stopovers in all the best places—cost as much as most better-class westerns. Slightly less than a year ago Mr. Zanuck told Quigley Award winners in Hollywood that exploitation is and should be an integral part of production. Today they know he wasn't just talking. They could buy themselves a pretty handsome circuit of theatres with the publicity and advertising overhead incurred for the purpose of making "Kentucky" the kind of box office attraction that buys theatre circuits for exhibitors.

"Kentucky" bears the indelible Zanuck mark. No one less loyal to the thoroughbred horse would have gone to such meticulous pains to present the species so faultlessly, its traits of character, manner of training, the man-animal relationship, so eloquently as he—no one less loyal would have known how. "Kentucky" is but one in a long sequence of pictures purporting to show that Kentuckians love horses just a trace less dearly than life. It is the only one in that sequence which has proved it, probably because Mr. Zanuck is the only one in that sequence of producers who believes it. Like every picture in the sequence, "Kentucky" ends with a horse race, upon the outcome of which depend the fortunes of the hero, heroine and so forth. Like none of them, the race in this one is run precisely as races are run and what happens does so because it would and has under the specified circumstances. Santa Anita on Handicap day is a quiet, peaceful place alongside the Carthay Circle theatre as of the first public screening of Mr. Zanuck's own Kentucky Derby.

But by no means only to his equine cast was Mr. Zanuck faithful. The mark of Zanuck is upon the story, which dips and soars in that characteristic Zanuck pattern of realistic unexpectedness, and it is upon nearly every speech in the dialogue. Lamar Trotti and John Taintor Foote are credited with the screen play, and Mr. Foote wrote the book, "The Look of Eagles," from which it was derived, but the subtle alibi for Richard Greene's accent and the slyly potent trivialities that slide from dusky George Reed's laconic tongue to tie plot threads together without seeming to are unmistakable Zanuck artistry.

If Mr. Zanuck owes more to any one of his associates than to another, or to himself, it is to Mr. Walter Brennan, Academician, character man and quite possibly the best actor in motion pictures. Mr. Brennan starts every picture under a handicap. His audience, especially if it be a Hollywood audience, bets him better than even money, sight unseen, that he can't beat his last best performance. He doesn't always take down the purse, but this is a time when he does. This time he makes all the other starts look like paddock parades. He plays an aged, aristocratic, irascible, impoverished Southern gentleman—and the best judge of horse flesh south of the Mason and Dixon line—as that notoriously overplayed character has never been played since Frank Keenan did it, if then. His performance, and a very brief but utterly heartbreaking bit by 10-year-old Bobs Watson at the start of the picture, are among this or any year's half dozen best reasons for the manufacture and exhibition of motion pictures.

Many others have right to share with Mr. Zanuck the credit that attaches to a production of this magnitude. The cast performs, under David Butler's studiously unstudied direction, as if in singularly congenial execution of every Zanuck thought and idea—Douglas Dumbrille and Moroni Olsen as staunch Kentuckians in the 1861 prologue, Karen Morley as a proud matron of the same period, Loretta Young as her 1938 descendant, and so on down the roster. A share of credit must go, too, to Gene Markey, who served Mr. Zanuck as associate producer, and there is pictorial glory enough to be distributed without stint to Ernest Palmer, Ray Rennahan, Natalie Kalmus and Henri Jaffa, of the camera department.

The story of "Kentucky" is not fairly to be told in brief synopsis. It is of Kentucky, its people, its feuds (not the hillbilly kind) and its horses. It is the best story of its kind ever told in pictures. Only in pictures can it be told correctly.

All of the action takes place in Kentucky. There is a short episode, practically a prologue, dated 1861. The rest of the picture is as of now.

Previewed December 14th at the Carthay Circle theatre, Hollywood, and a stormy night it was. Through the first rain of the California season, a gentle cloudburst and persistent, ladies and gentlemen of every estate and in everything from sables to slacks defied the elements to come out and see what wonder Darryl Zanuck had wrought now. A dampered lot, and none too easy to please when crisp, they were transported forthwith to Kentucky, saw the bluegrass, inhaled the scent of honeysuckle, thrilled to the sight of fine horseflesh, suffered and rejoiced with fine actors, pounded each other in frenzied fear as the horse with their money on its nose came down the stretch toward a wire a desperate second, and went away shouting that here was a picture to write the folks back home about.—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Tom Sawyer, Detective

Americana

The literary works of Mark Twain have been for years on "must" lists of young and old, and their occasional transfer to the screen meets with unfailing approval. This time it is "Tom Sawyer, Detective," in which Billy Cook and Donald O'Connor play "Tom" and "Huck" respectively. The offering is highly acceptable to Twain fans, particularly the younger ones. It has not been given the expensive mounting that certain predecessors received, but it is nonetheless entertaining, judging from preview audience reactions.

Youngsters Cook and O'Connor do creditable jobs in portraying the lovable rogues. They are supported by a capable cast, including Porter Hall, Philip Warren, Janet Waldo, Elisabeth Risdon, William Haade, Edward J. Pawley, Clem Bevans, Raymond Hatton, Howard Mitchell, Stanley Price, Harry Worth, Clara Blandick, Si Jenks, Etta McDaniel and Oscar Smith.

Lewis Foster, Robert Yost and Stuart Anthony wrote the screenplay, the story of which is climaxed by "Tom's" exposure of the criminals in a hectic courtroom scene. It is a concise script, ably written to make the most of the situations. Louis King directed the Edward T. Lowe production.

"Brace Dunlap," angered because "Uncle Silas" won't permit him to marry "Ruth," his daughter, embarks on a campaign of vilification. His long missing brother shows up, but is murdered by thieves coveting his diamonds, so "Dunlap" places the blame on "Uncle Silas," first substituting the identity of his brother's twin, who is "Silas's" hired hand.

Trade Winds

(UA-Wanger)

Romantic Melodrama

Out of Tay Garnett's yacht cruise across, around and about the Pacific, and out of the Wanger studio under Mr. Garnett's fond directorial hand, has come a picture of rare pattern and peculiar power. In it are Fredric March, doing his best performance of recent years, Joan Bennett, carried along serenely on the crest of extremely well wrought dialogue and finely matched performances by all hands, Ann Sothern in an unique comedy assignment setting a new high in pseudo-dumb blonde portrayal and Ralph Bellamy as the personification of the traditional plain clothes detective. These are names aplenty for marquee purposes and the story by the globe trotting director himself is of the sort that gets a picture talked about by one customer to another whether it contains ten marquee personalities or none.

Footage shot by Mr. Garnett in his leisurely travels provides extraordinarily effective background material for action that starts in San Francisco and moves to Japan, China, Hawaii and a dozen other Pacific places. Process artistry employed to superimpose the players' performances upon this, which is none of the customers business, has seldom if ever been duplicated in like quantity. Aware as it was of the history of the film's manufacture, the Hollywood preview audience found itself forgetting the Garnett mechanics in the spell of the narrative. It's a professional as well as a public triumph.

The story is an adroitly developed account of a detective's pursuit of a beautiful murderess, his attempt to make good her escape after he has fallen in love with her and, in a most unusual ending, his proving of her innocence after a jury has found her guilty as she believes herself to be. In synopsis it sounds like a thing that has been done before. As worked out and particularly as told in dialogue far above the established Hollywood level it is fresh as the proverbial daisy.

The screenplay by Dorothy Parker, Alan Campbell and Frank R. Adams is a superbly contrived fabrication carrying the story over the prescribed portion of the world's surface without once dropping anchor or leaving in view the benchmarks of shrewd designing.

Exploitation points of especial usefulness to showmen are, first, the fact that Mr. Garnett's camera really covered the ground; second, that Mr. March really turns it on again this time and, third, that Ann Sothern furnishes a performance. Worth the price of admission and more for its own sake.

Previewed December 19 at the Village theatre in Westwood in one of the seasons most unusual specimens of California climate to a nevertheless full house that gave the film a by no means damp reception.—W. R. W.

Charlie Chan in Honolulu

(20th Century-Fox)

A New Chan

Sidney Toler, a new name in an old picture series, does not seek to make himself a replica of the man who created the "Charlie Chan" character, the late Warner Oland. Nor does Sen Yung, who replaces Keye Luke, important in the last several "Chans," copy his predecessor's style or mannerisms. These two players, especialy Toler, obviously are the outstanding exploitation features of "Charlie Chan in Honolulu." Upon how exhibitors accept them and cause their patrons to accept them rests, to a great extent, the future of the "Chan" series. The work of the two in their first picture suggests that after the public has become accustomed to them the popularity and commercial value of the "Chans" will not suffer.

"Charlie Chan in Honolulu" adheres to the long established formula. Mystery, murder, melodrama, comedy, suspense, surprise and excitement are the principal ingredients. There is only the barest suggestion of romantic love interest. All action takes place on a liner in Honolulu Harbor. A murder has been committed and second son, "James," an ambitious sleuth, mixes things up. "Chan" comes into the case and, although confronted by a multiplicity of suspects and a snarled skein of possible motives, makes use of his Oriental sagacity and modernized detective abilities to untangle all the lead threads and, in the surprise climax, trap the heretofore unsuspected killer.

Previwed December 18th at Grauman's Chinese theatre, Hollywood. Did a camel gallop through a needle's eye it would be no greater wonder than the preview of a "Chan" in the Chinese. Consequently the event was an unusual one, attended by top ranking executives, the most sought after reviewers and commentators and invited guests, most of whom were familiar with the "Chans" only by reading about them. Demonstrating the special attention accorded them, quite a few of these strangers to "Chan" went into ecstasies. Having looked at about all the sixteen or eighteen that preceded "Chan in Honolulu," this observer could not help wondering what would have been their reactions had they seen some of those.—G. M.

Going Places

(Warner-F.N.)

Comedy with Songs

"The Hottentot" was such a hit the first time out that it appears logical for showmen to tell the folks at once that this is it. Warners' tell 'em so on the screen, so it's no secret.

The story of "Going Places" differs only slightly and in detail from the original version of the stage play by Victor Mapes and William Collier, Sr., and the original picture which made Douglas McLean famous. This time it is Dick Powell who rides the uncontrollable steeplechaser and this time a swing band (Louis Armstrong's) keeps the horse on the course by accompanying it, alongside, aboard a truck.

Sig Herzig, Jerry Wald and Maurice Leo wrote the present screen play, pointing it for laughable sequences rather than cumulative comedy, and four song numbers were provided by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer, two of them infectious. Anita Louise is the girl in the story, but the comedians, Allen Jenkins, Harold Huber and Walter Catlett, are more to the fore. Lusty Louis Armstrong is potent with trumpet and voice, as well as in a minor comedy assignment, and Maxine Sullivan may be advertised as also present although she doesn't get much opportunity to do her stuff. There is also a colored singing and dancing chorus, for one specialty number.

The story, it will be remembered, is about a young sporting goods salesman who poses as a famous gentleman rider at a fashionable resort by way of advertising his apparel. He is forced by circumstance and a pair of gamblers to ride in the steeplechase and, of course, wins.

Adventure in Sahara

(Columbia)

Legion Melodrama

The French Foreign Legion and the Sahara Desert once again serve as background for a melodramatic film. Here as in other pictures with the same backgrounds the motivating force is the cruelty of the Commandant. The Legionnaires revolt and after a battle with Arabs the leaders are brought to trial but are let off with a slight sentence when the only other officer at the post testifies for them.

A thin thread of romance skirts the story proper. The girl in the case is an aviatrix who follows Paul Kelly to the output in the desert, has a crack-up and consequently is billeted in the outpost. The girl is Lorna Gray. The Commandant is played by C. Henry Gordon, while other cast members include Robert Fiske, Marc Lawrence and Dick Curtis.

"Jim Wilson," an American employed as a pilot by a French airline, receives word that his brother, a Legionnaire, has died. Believing that a "Captain Savatt" is responsible "Wilson" joins the Legion and asks to be assigned to "Savatt's" outpost. After "Rene" dies from treatment ordered by "Savatt" and "Wilson" is released from solitary confinement the soldiers revolt.

"Savatt" and those who remain loyal to him are given rations and sent into the desert. Of the group "Savatt" is the only survivor. He reaches headquarters and troops are dispatched to quell the revolt. When they arrive at the outpost an Arab band attacks them but the mutineers come to their aid and drive off the Arabs. The mutineers are court martialed and receive a slight jail sentence.

Gambling Ship

(Universal)

Melodrama

Filmed without fanfare and played by dependable if not famous performers, this straightaway melodrama falls in the category of reliable entertainment, staple merchandise. Back of the young people who meet and marry, all quite after the gay fashion of contemporary romantics, such consistent actors as Ed Brophy, Irving Pichel and Joseph Sawyer are busy with gangsterish proceedings somewhat out of the usual lane of travel but realistic. Robert Wilcox and Helen Mack play the leads.

The story by G. Carleton Brown and Emanuel Manheim (screen play by Alex Gottlieb) utilizes that little used tool, the motion picture camera, effectively. Thus, and without straining, a key-speech in a suspenseful situation is, "Remember—motion pictures are your best entertainment." It occurs naturally.

"The Professor," a gangster who works out his plots mathematically, wants possession of a successful gambling ship, honestly operated, and murders its owner to get it. The dead man's daughter, "Mollie," comes home from school and takes over the ship as a means of obtaining revenue with which to finance an orphanage. "Larry," a handsome thug in employ of "The Professor," seems determined to wreck the young lady's financial scheme, but turns out be a State agent instead and ultimately proves "The Professor" guilty of the murder. Happy ending.

Produced by Irving Starr and directed by Aubrey Scotto, the film has directness, momentum and melodramatic punch.

Western Jamboree

(Republic)

Autry Western

The popular singing cowboy, Gene Autry, is the star of this western, which has a good story and good comedy to recommend it. Gene as usual sings several songs, one of which is the very tuneful Spanish air "Ay, Ay, Ay." The plot developments involve two angles. The first revolves around a penurious old rancher who talks Autry into making the Circle a dude ranch to impress the old man's eastern-bred daughter and her fiance and the ensuing complications, while the second has to do with the fight for control of a gas deposit on the ranch.

The first makes for comedy and romance and the second takes care of the necessary action and melodrama. Gene's partner is the same standby of all Autry films, the ever popular Smiley Burnette. Burnette, called "Frog," has with each picture of the series been given increased material with which to work. The two, Autry and Burnette, have reached the stage where instead of referring to the films as Autry pictures they rightfully should be called Autry-Burnette westerns, for without the plump comedian the pictures would not be the same.

"Gene" is the foreman of the Circle J. At round-up time one of "Gene's" hands discovers two men testing for gas deposits on the ranch but they escape. Returning to the ranch house "Gene" finds it occupied by "Dad Haskell," who reveals that his daughter is going to visit him with her fiance and his mother and that the daughter believes "Dad" owns the ranch. Since the real owner is away, "Gene" agrees to help and turns the place into a dude ranch.

The visitors are impressed at first but later doubt that "Dad" is as wealthy as is supposed. Meanwhile "Gene" trails the group that has been trespassing on the ranch, and finds that the gas deposit has been tapped for helium. In a knock-down and dragged-out fight "Gene," with the help of the sheriff and a posse capture the gang. Back at the ranch the visitors, haughty, depart when the real owner arrives but "Dad's" daughter stays on.

The Girl Downstairs

(MGM)

Romantic Comedy

Just at this season of the year when folks are in happy spirits and the mood for something light and gay, "The Girl Downstairs" should prove a pleasing bit of entertainment. It is a love story based on a formula premise, nevertheless one that is not routine. The setting is Switzerland, yet everything that happens is done in typical American style. Supplementing the value of the straight theme are two or three comic episodes inserted at just the right moments to give the yarn momentum.

Prevented from contacting his socialite sweetheart, "Rosalind," by her irascible father, "Mr. Brown," aristocrat "Paul" assumes the disguise of a chauffeur. As fate guides things, he is thrown into association with humble scullery maid "Katrina." She falls in love with him and when he tries to break up the affair by pretending he is broke, "Katrina" uses her savings to buy him a ramshackle taxicab. It takes a lot of rapid fire comedy maneuvering and romantic juggling to straighten out the mixup. But the climax has the aristocrat running after the maid with whom he is deeply in love.

The episode that has Franchot Tone and Franciscka Gaal in the decrepit taxi and Billy Gilbert's bit of business on the telephone are high comedy of the most amusing brand. Walter Connolly's vergings on apoplexy and the bit contributed by Reginald Owen, Franklin Pangborn, Robert Coote and James B. Carson do much to give the show added zip and pep.

The kind of picture that may take some convincing to make patrons think it worth their while, it can be expected that in a great many quarters word of mouth comment will have a favorable effect on business.

The Refugee—Today and Tomorrow

(RKO Radio-March of Time)

Extremely Interesting

A very effective subject. It is almost thoroughly objective; it shows and states facts, not opinions. Because of this its general effect is that of excoriation of certain outstanding developments in Germany.

There is an applied advocacy of the boycott against German goods, and there is practically the pleading of a cause when the narrator states that "observers feel" that Palestine can absorb a million more Jews.

The issue starts with a pictorial description of the Chinese situation: Japanese troops marching and celebrating in China, and Chinese refugees trudging and eating 'handouts." Following are some shots of the Spanish war, and of Spanish women and child refugees in France. These are introductory, building up to the Nazi situation, the rest of the subject dealing with German Jewish refugees.

Shown are episodes in the German campaign, the book burning, the proscription of music by German Jewish composers; shown are "scenes" in which apartments are ransacked, doctors deprived of practices and professors of their students. Shown are refugees arriving in England, in Switzerland, in Belgium. Shown are refugee camps in those countries. Shown is the violence of the German press campaign. The problem stated, then shown are the efforts to settle the refugeees: the Palestine effort, its growth and success, and the Arab campaign of retaliation; the Rublee committee in session; the limited welcome afforded the refugees in England, France and America; the boycott movement in America. The short covers the problem thoroughly, it being difficult to think of one angle overlooked.—Running time, 17 minutes. —FLOYD STONE

The Captain's Christmas

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Cartoon

Another in the "Captain and the Kids" series this cartoon is timed for the Christmas season. It's actually Christmas Eve at the Katzenjammer home and not a sound is stirring inside. Outside, however, the Captain, playing Santa Claus, is puffing away trying to get the family cow, playing reindeer, to the top of the house. Long John Silver decides he wants to play Santa Claus.—Running time, 9 minutes.

A Song Is Born

(Paramount)

Vocal Nativity

The most noteworthy point of departure to distinguish this orchestral number from the usual run of popular song novelty is the presentation of an original score from the keyboards and music sheets of a group of Hollywood's leading song writers. Rather than detailing the musical and lyrical development of a song, the specimens are presented full born and ready for baptismal treatment by Larry Clinton and his orchestra. Ralph Freed and Burton Lane collaborate to offer "Love Doesn't Grow on Trees," while Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin produce "I Fell Up to Heaven," and the old "Dipsy-Doodler" himself, Mr. Clinton, offers the swingy tune, "The Devil with the Devil." All the melodies are hum-able if not memorable, but the number sponsored by Hoagy Carmichael and Frank Loesser, entitled "Heart and Soul," has already been appointed a hit tune. Bea Wain and the chubby Ford Leary handle the vocals adequately if not spectacularly. The novelty of being dressed with an original score, one item of which is in the hit class, should solicit the inspection of our young moderns.

A Nag in the Bag

(Columbia)

Comedy

The comedy team of Charles Dale and Joe Smith are operators of a drive-in restaurant in this one. They become imbued with the betting fever and set off for the race track where they put all their money on a horse through a hunch. Because of dialectic trouble they bet on another horse. That horse wins, but, disgustedly, the ticket had been thrown away. Their wives find the tickets and get the money. The cast includes Dick Curtis, Stella Le Saint and Dorothy Vernon. Running time, 17 minutes.

Going Places, No. 57

(Universal)

Yellowstone Park Visit

The goal of this jaunt of the Going Places group is the wonderland of Yellowstone National Park. The scenic glories of the vacation spot are presented, and include sights and sounds of geysers, springs, waterfalls, bubbling pools of hot mud, lakes, broad expanses of mountains and forests and the four legged inhabitants of the game preserve. The high spot of the visit is witnessing the performance of Old Faithful doing its famed feat of natural magic. Matching the superlative camera reporting is an informative commentary.—Running time, nine minutes.

Ski Rhythm

(Columbia)

Sport Reel

This sports reel is quite appropriate for this season, dealing as it does with the wintry art of skiing. The shots of the snowcapped mountains with the skiers shooting downward with skill and speed are calculated to thrill sports enthusiasts. Cameras have obtained scenes from a variety of angles which adds much to the film. Running time, 10 minutes.

Frosty Frolics

(Lenauer)

Winter Sports

Directed by Walter Tennyson, this is a timely reel showing winter sports in St. Moritz. Figure skating, skiing and something of the life in this Swiss resort are shown against the magnificent background of the Alps. There is a tendency to cut short the action shots in order to put more emphasis on scenic views, but the exceptional beauty of the surroundings compensate for this. Running time 11 minutes

TOM SAXE, EXHIBITION PIONEER, DIES AT 64

General Manager for Saxe Amusement Built Circuit from Milwaukee Nickelodeon

Thomas Saxe, an Irish-born newsboy who with his brother, John, opened the first nickelodeon in Milwaukee and ran it up to a chain of nearly 100 theatres in Wisconsin and Minnesota, died December 16th at the age of 64. He had been ill for two years and last Saturday underwent an operation.

Mr. Saxe was general manager for the Saxe Amusement Management, Inc., the operating company controlled by Warner-Saxe theatres. He was also active in real estate in Wisconsin.

The two Saxe brothers, ready for any enterprise, saw a small picture show in Chicago in 1907. They returned to Milwaukee and established one in a downtown store.

With increased profits they bought bigger and better theatres, the Lyric, the Orpheum, and the Princess, and in 1912 the Alhambra, a popular legitimate theatre. They hired Samuel L. (Roxy) Rothafel, who later became famous on Broadway for his showmanship, as their first manager.

It was a big business when the brothers sold out to William Fox in the 1920's, retaining large real estate interests for themselves. They became active again in theatres through their Warner-Saxe Theatres.

Surviving are one son, Edward of Milwaukee, two daughters, three brothers and six sisters.

Toto, Famous Clown, Dies in New York

Toto the clown, one of the best known of all pantomimists, died December 15th in the Bronx, New York. His real name was Alfonso Novello and he was 50 years old. Mr. Novello toured Europe in circuses and when he came to this country Charles Dillingham engaged him to appear in the big spectacle he was putting on at the Hippodrome.

He made a hit with his act in which he came onto the stage in a tiny automobile which immediately began causing him trouble.

After two years with the Hippodrome he became a screen comedian, making films for Hal Roach. After two years of screen work he returned to vaudeville and musical comedy.

Jerry Collins Dies at 70

M. A. (Jerry) Collins, 70, of Pittsburgh, died there December 15th. He was well-known by nearly everyone in show business in the Pittsburgh sector and had been a member of the Harris circuit's technical staff for nearly 45 years. His last job was as stage electrician at the Alvin theatre.

He worked under three generations of the Harris family, starting under the late John P. Harris, founder of Pittsburgh's first moving picture theatre, and later worked for Dennis Harris and recently for Senator Frank J. and John H. Harris, president and general manager of the Harris Amusement Company.

Roy Pauls Dies

Roy Pauls, 45, for the last five years a projectionist at the Brin theatre in Menasha, Wisconsin, died recently. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and four sisters.

IN COURTS

Details Asked in Lloyd Case

Judge Alfred C. Coxe in Federal Court has directed Lowell Brentano and William Jordan Rapp to submit specific allegations in their $75,000 damage suit against Harold Lloyd and Harold Lloyd Corporation. The plaintiffs claim that they submitted a script to Lloyd and that parts of it were used in "Professor Beware." Judge Coxe directed the plaintiffs to file an exact copy of all their material submitted and explain what parts are claimed to be in the picture.

Bankruptcy Petition

The Kansas City Junior Orpheum Company has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal District Court. The company, of which Alex E. Reoch is president, owns the Mainstreet theatre, which RKO left several months ago in order to occupy the Orpheum. Judge Merrill E. Otis has allowed the company 30 days to submit a list of assets and liabilities.

Johnson Suit Filed

Osa Johnson, executrix of the estate of her late husband Martin Johnson, filed suit in New York Supreme Court Monday against Lima Pictures Corporation and Joseph Briskman for a permanent injunction restraining further distribution of the film "Across the World with the Johnsons," a return of the negative and an accounting of the profits.

"Mamlock" Writ Denied

New York Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook denied, on Monday, application for a temporary injunction against further exhibition of the film "Professor Mamlock," sought by Hans J. Mamlok.

Grand National Returns to Deal With Warner

E. W. Hammons, president, has cancelled the pending reorganization of Grand National's production setup to return to the former alignment with Franklyn Warner and Fine Arts.

To Make 32

Fine Arts Pictures will contribute 32 features to Grand National's 1938-39 schedule of 36. Apparently the arrangement means that Educational will produce no features this season for Grand National as contemplated when the company's schedule of 44 features was announced originally two months ago. The 32 from Fine Arts are six more than were announced at that time from this company. The remaining four will come from other Grand National producers.

Patching up of the Fine Arts-Grand National rift was accomplished in Hollywood by Loyd Wright, former co-trustee of Grand National, and Warner. The latter agreed several weeks ago to accept an offer from Hammons for Fine Arts' assets when differences between the two brought about the rift. The deal, however, was not consummated.

"Mutual friends, including Loyd Wright, one of the trustees for the old Grand National Films, Inc., feeling that existing differences could be adjusted on a mutually satisfactory basis, were instrumental in beginning a new series of discussions," said Mr. Hammons.

"In order to make up for its several weeks' suspension of production activities, Fine Arts will immediately put three production units to work."

This new contract cancels the agreement announced a few weeks ago, under which a newly organized production company was to purchase the assets of Fine Arts and take over its obligations under its contract with Grand National.

A new series of cartoons, featuring a chimpanzee and his nephews, characters which have appeared in Collier's magazine, will replace the former series of "Terry-toons," on the Educational schedule, it was announced this week by Mr. Hammons. The new cartoons will bear the Educational trade mark, and be distributed by the Grand National exchanges.

They will be made by the Animated Cartoons, Inc., studios, in Beverly Hills, will be known as David Biedermann Productions, and will be in the process called Cinecolor. Three cartoons have been completed, under U. B. Iwerks' direction, with the first scheduled for release immediately after January 1. Educational's contract is with the Biedermann company, lasts five years, and calls for eight cartoons this season, and 12 for each season thereafter.

Jeffrey Bernerd and Maurice Wilson are joint directors in the Grand National British distributing organization, GN has announced, confirming a rumor long-standing. Also announced was the company's plans to distribute 16 British and 32 American pictures in Britain. Edward Russell represents United States interests in the British company.

More Theatres Play Anthem

Other theatre circuits this week were following the Warner Brothers lead in having the national anthem played in houses, at the beginning or end of each day. In New York the Interboro, Brandt and Five-Boro circuits have ordered the anthem played and in connection with it show a trailer of the flag in color.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 137

Question No. 137 was: (A) Having computed the candle-power light production resulting from any given amperage, upon what would you base estimate of the proportion that is useful? (B) At what points and, in each instance, for what reason is light wasted or absorbed between the face of the collector lens, or reflection mirror, and the eyes of the audience?

Many apparently misinterpreted the meaning of these questions, hence I will omit publication of names. Also, I am using answers to Sections A and B even though they are somewhat similar; however, some important items appear in Section B that are not included in A.

Answering both Sections A and B, Brother Prater says, "Having computed the candle-power light production resulting from any given amperage, I would base estimate of the proportion that is useful upon the following factors:

"(1) Percentage of total light produced is available to the collector lens or mirror. For instance, a horizontal trim d.c. arc projects most of its light within an angle of 180 degrees. Most reflectors intercept only about 120 degrees, but the negative carbon obstructs a considerable portion of the light which would otherwise reach the mirror near its center. These losses usually amount to approximately 30 per cent, hence the angle of light actually picked up by the reflector is about 90 degrees or about 50 per cent of the total.

"(2) Percentage of light delivered at spot that can be made to pass through the aperture. By reference to Figure 31 of the Bluebook, we see that a spot diameter of 1.5" is as small as can be carried, in any case, with assurance of maintaining a constantly clear field of light at the screen, even though great care be exercised. Yet even with this minimum diameter, only 43 per cent of the spot is over the aperture, the remaining 57 per cent of area being over the cooling plate.

"If for any reason the spot diameter be increased, the percentage of loss mounts rapidly, until at 2.25" spot diameter it reaches 81 per cent of waste, as against 19 per cent of light available to the aperture.

"(3) Percentage of total light passing through aperture that can enter free diameter of projection lens. The beam diverges beyond the aperture according to the converger diameter and its distance from aperture. All light falling outside projection lens free diameter is lost. The amount of loss of course varies with each case.

"(4) Percentage of light incident upon surface of rear element of projection lens that can be transmitted to atmosphere beyond. Most projection lenses have four separate elements, two of which are cemented together, hence, in effect, so far as concerns loss, have only two surfaces. The total of lens surfaces therefore is reduced to six. There is a total, usually of about two centimeters of glass. Referring to pages 117-19 of Bluebook, we see that optical engineers set reflection loss at about 4 to 5 per cent at each lens surface when light rays strike the surface at right angle, with increase in such loss if the surface be met at greater angle. Also, each centimeter of thickness absorbes from 1 to 1.5 per cent. All this figures out as 33 per cent of loss, provided each lens surface be perfectly clean. The foregoing of course represents only an approximate average.

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 143

(A) What is volume? Harmonics? Resonance?

(B) Why are harmonics of importance?

(C) What is the range of frequencies audible to the human ear?

(D) What is the speed of transmission of sound through air?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answers to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

"(5) Percentage of the beam that may be assumed to reach the screen. Assuming the rotating shutter to be in front of the projection lens (if located elsewhere, the result is much the same), it cuts off approximately 50 per cent of the light emerging from the lens. If the projection ports be glass-covered, there will be an approximate loss of 5 per cent at each surface of the glass, plus a small absorption by about two centimeters of glass, amounting to 1 to 1.5 per cent. This loss is based upon the assumption of perfectly clean glass surfaces. They will be increased if this condition is not maintained.

"(6) Impurities in the air, such as dust or smoke, will absorb and disperse a proportion of the light, the exact percentage being, I think, impossible to estimate, much less measure. Unquestionably, however, such loss must occur.

"(7) Percentage of light incident upon the screen that is available to audiences. Regardless of light production at the arc, only that percentage reaching eyes of observers may be considered as useful light. Most screens lose approximately 10 per cent of their reflection surface by perforation, hence that amount of incident light loss occurs. An average screen reflection percentage of 80 per cent is something to be proud of. We therefore must accept a minimum of 20 per cent loss of light incident upon the screen reflection surface. It may be very much more if the screen surface be dirty or otherwise discolored.

"At first glance all this may seem absurd. We know 100 per cent always represents all there is of anything. The foregoing accounts for 50 per cent loss between arc and mirror (almost overlooked 8 per cent reflection and absorption loss at mirror itself, plus a small added loss due to positive carbon and its holder obstructing light), more than 50 per cent at the spot, 50 per cent at the rotating shutter, 33 per per cent at the projection lens, 12 per cent at port cover glass (if any) and a total of at least 30 per cent at the screen, all of which totals 225 per cent—or does it? Let us see:

"Presuming a 10,000 candle power light source, we have first off a 50 per cent loss, leaving 5,000 c.p. The shutter cuts off another 50 per cent not of 10,000, but of the 5,000, leaving 2,500 c.p. Then there is a 33 per cent loss, leaving 1,675 c.p., and if this be followed through we see that there still is 516 c.p. reflected to audience eyes, which in an almost dark auditorium is considerable illumination. Understand, please, all this is based upon ideal conditions. There still remains a big chance of heavy loss through dirty lenses, improper elements in projector optical train or improper adjustment of optical train elements, et cetera.

"(B) Light is wasted or absorbed between the face of the collector condenser lens, or reflecting mirror, and the front lens of the projection lens at the following points:

"(1) With the usual two-lens condenser combination, at least four to five per cent is lost by reflection at each of the four glass surfaces. Where the light strikes or leaves the surfaces at an angle other than perpendicular, the loss is heavier. The glass itself absorbs from one to five per cent centimeter of thickness through which the light must pass, according to the quality of the glass. The combined thickness of two condenser lenses may be several centimeters, and unless a good grade of glass is used, considerable loss may result from absorption.

"With the mirror collector, some light is lost by reflection from the glass surface, and some is absorbed by the silver backing as well as by the glass. Since light must pass through the glass to the backing, and then out through the glass again, a double glass loss occurs, even though the mirrors are unusually thin. The total mirror loss is usually at least eight per cent. The thin condenser sometimes used with mirror collectors loses about 12 per cent of the light, mostly by reflection. With either the condenser lenses or mirror, dirt or pitting add to both the reflection and absorption losses.

"(2) The present standard aperture of 0.600 inch by 0.825 inch has an area of 0.495 square inch. Even under ideal conditions, the spot at projector aperture can seldom be made less than 1.5 inches in diameter, and this size of spot has an area of 1.76 square inches, or more than three times that of the aperture. Since the spot is an image of the arc crater magnified a certain number of diameters, according to the focal length of the mirror or condenser combination, too large a crater or too much magnification will result in an excessively large spot, from which only a small percentage of the total light can be made to pass through the aperture.

"(3) The light beam diverges rapidly beyond the aperture, and since it is impossible to make projection lenses with a free diameter greater than one-half their focal length, and since the first surface of the lens must be located a considerable distance in front of the aperture, conditions are frequently met where the light beam is too large to permit all of it to enter the lens. Naturally all light falling outside the free diameter of the lens is wasted.

"(4) Most projection lenses consist of at least four separate lenses, two of which are cemented together. This leaves six separate glass surfaces, each of which loses four to five per cent of the total light by reflection. The glass absorbs from 1 to 1.5 per cent per centimeter of thickness through which the light must pass, making a total loss of something near 30 per cent. Dirt, oil or fingerprints on the glass surfaces adds to the losses."

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Columbia

GIRL'S SCHOOL: Anne Shirley, Nan Grey, Ralph Bellamy, Noah Beery, Jr.—Fine production convincingly portrayed. Fine cast.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie—I do not see how a picture could set up such a fast pace and keep it up for 83 minutes, but "I Am the Law" does just that. It kept my audience intense all of the time. Boost this feature and watch the $$$ roll in. Running time, 83 minutes. Played December 4-6. —Warren J. Gavin, Rio Theatre, Stevensville, Mont. Small town patronage.

LADY OBJECTS, THE: Lanny Ross, Gloria Stuart, Joan Marsh—You're O. K., Columbia. Although this isn't a name picture and the cast is nothing to speak of, it proved to be a darn nice picture and several patrons of my theatre went out of their way to see me and let me know how much they liked the picture. With your few sure fire pictures and your good B pictures which are so scarce these days, we exhibitors shouldn't fear playing Columbia pictures. Running time, 66 minutes. Played December 8-9.—Pearee Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

OVERLAND EXPRESS: Buck Jones, Marjorie Reynolds—Used this on a double feature. One of the poorest westerns in a long time. Why do these producers keep showing these stock shots of Indians and a cowboy and a horse jumping off a cliff into the river. Running time, 55 minutes. Played December 2-3.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Jean Arthur—The best picture that we have played for some time. You can go to town on this one, and pay the taxes at the same time. Everyone liked it; not a single complaint. Play it big. Running time, 127 minutes. Played November 13-15.—Warren J. Gavin, Rio Theatre, Stevensville, Mont. Small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Jean Arthur, Lionel Barrymore, James Stewart, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, Edward Arnold, Ann Miller—Some said grand and great, but young people said: "Heck, I am disappointed," and so was I. James Stewart looks dumb but not that dumb. Business fair. Running time, 107 minutes. Played November 24-25.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart, Allen Jenkins—Business was not very good on this picture. Played too late. Played December 8-10.—E. C. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

ANGELS WITH DIRTY FACES: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, "Crime School" Kids—A good picture but some were not enthusiastic about it. Fair at the box office, but I believe the holidays kept many at home. The "Dead Enders" steal the picture in their basketball sequence, But many thought that Cagney over-acted a bit in this one, and many of the patrons are wondering what kind of a part O'Brien will play next, whether it'll be Mickey Mouse or the Quintuplets, but the conscientious way in which O'Brien does his acting makes him a box office favorite here. Played November 24-26.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

ANGELS WITH DIRTY FACES: Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, "Dead End Kids."—Very, very good. Rather rough for the ladies. Men enjoyed every minute.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

BELOVED BRAT, THE: Bonita Granville, Dolores Costello, Donald Crisp—This pleased 100 per cent, and I had many favorable comments. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 15.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

BROTHER RAT: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Bryan—A very entertaining picture which did well at the box office and I would recommend it very highly as good picture material for all kinds of patronage.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

BROTHER RAT: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert—Diverting and thoroughly enjoyable. Outstanding performance by Eddie Albert. Excellent cast.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

CRIME SCHOOL: Gale Page, Humphrey Bogart, "Dead End Kids"—An outstanding picture everyone should see. "Frankie" was outstanding among all the kids. If you haven't played it, don't fail to do so. Running time, 86 minutes. Played November 12.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

Gaumont British

MAN WITH 100 FACES: Tom Walls, Lili Palmer, Noel Madison—Just a fair mystery story.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

TO THE VICTOR: Will Fyffe, John Loder, Margaret Lockwood—A well produced picture but not for American audiences. Unfortunately, we did not have the foresight to engage an interpreter to explain the meaning of the Scotch dialect. Pictorially, the technique followed the Hollywood pattern very closely but I was fooled by the excellent reviews the metropolitan critics gave this one. I might again respectfully suggest that those critics who praised this picture ought to throw their typewriters into the nearest sewer. My audience and myself had one thing in common and that was in viewing the picture the only word we understood was "Aye," of which there was enough to float a presidential election. I do not recommend this for small town theatres, although Will Fyffe does a wonderful if not masterful interpretation of a difficult role. Played October 26-27.—Charles Rossi, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

Grand National

ROMANCE AND RICHES: Cary Grant, Mary Brian—SIX SHOOTIN' SHERIFF: Ken Maynard, Marjorie Reynolds—Two of the poorest features that we have played to date. Where "Romance and Riches" was produced is easily seen—an English production, so poor that it couldn't stand up with the best show made. "Six Shootin' Sheriff" was a very poor western with poor sound. Don't book either. Played December 2-3. —Warren J. Gavin, Rio Theatre, Stevensville, Mont. Small town patronage.

SINS OF THE CHILDREN: Eric Linden, Cecilia Parker—In making this report we would advise you strongly to play this picture by all means. We kept children under age away and enjoyed the best midweek business in some time. I wish to thank you, Mr. Irving Cohen, for your advice. It did do business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CHASER, THE: Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morriss, Lewis Stone—A good programer. Ann Morriss is one of Leo's best bets. Running time, 75 minutes. Played November 4-5.—Pruit Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

CITADEL, THE: Robert Donat, Rosalind Russell—"The Citadel" is truly and without exaggeration a great picture. It's excellence was reflected in our box office receipts and judging by the reaction of our audience this picture should exceed expectations in every situation. It's the first time I ever had any occasion to praise a foreign production, which from an entertainment viewpoint sets an example for which it would be well for Hollywood to follow. If the British studios continue to maintain the high standards established in this production, our geniuses out on the coast better look forward to some stiff competition, for perhaps it may be possible that this particular production may be the advance of many more to come, but one compensating thought is the fact that it was directed by an American. Played November 17-19.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

CROWD ROARS, THE: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Morgan, Lionel Stander—Title is just a little misleading. They roar all right, but the crowds were not in the theatre. Hard to make a he-man of Taylor overnight. Played November 27-28.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST, THE: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon—I had read both good and bad reports on this picture and didn't know what to expect. This picture went over good and was well liked by everyone who saw it. Running time, 127 minutes. Played December 2-4.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST, THE: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon—A very good show of its kind. I only heard of five people caring for it. I starved out on this like all of Metro's shows. This may be great for the large towns, but the plow-jockeys don't go for it. Running time, 121 minutes. Played November 27-28.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GREAT WALTZ, THE: Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Milizia Korjus—This one surprised me greatly. In view of the foreign background I was tempted to pass this one up but now I am looking forward to playing it again and I regret not giving it extending playing time. No matter how hard I looked for a flaw in this one, I couldn't say other than that this picture is the essence of entertainment. Its tempo, set in waltz time, flows evenly throughout the entire picture and in Miss Korjus' performance I saw the same appeal that Garbo had when she made "The Temptress" years ago, not to mention the excellence of a voice which in my opinion surpasses that of any other singer I've heard thus far in my career. Another gratifying quality of this picture is Miss Rainer's performance, and the only way I can make any appraisal is by saying that she meritoriously exceeds the prize winning performance she turned out in "The Great Ziegfeld." My opinion of this picture was confirmed by our audience reaction and many came back a second time to see it twice. Played November 20-21.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

GREAT WALTZ, THE: Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet, Miliza Korjus, Hugh Herbert—A wonderful picture, good story, a wonderful singer, grand music but it don't do business anywhere. The old story, old world scenes and customs are poison to young America. Running time, 107 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

LISTEN DARLING: Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—A good B picture which didn't turn out to be another "Love Finds Andy Hardy." Played November 15-16.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cicilia Parker, Judy Garland, Ann Rutherford, Fay Holden, Lana Turner—Played this Sunday-Monday to good business. One nice $25 picture that pleased. Played November 13-14.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, Robert Morley, John Barrymore, Joseph Schildkraut, Anita Louise, Gladys George—One of the most perfect films I have ever seen. Art and class was this. Everyone thought the best picture yet. My lady patronage cried so much that I had to go to expense of buying handkerchiefs. Tieup with schools or PTA. They will do the work. Running time, 157 minutes. Played December 4-5.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Norma Shearer, Tyrone Power, Robert Morley, John Barrymore, Joseph Schildkraut, Anita Louise, Gladys George—No reason to mention business. If you have played it, you know. Anyway, the producer got it longer than his competitors have been able to produce so far this year. Played

December 4-5.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

OUT WEST WITH THE HARDYS: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Virginia Weidler—Good for the whole family. Wholesome and real to life.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Beal—Very fine picture and good performance by all. But Beery not as good as "Bad Man of Brimstone." Running time, 81 minutes. Played November 22.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Robert Young, Ruth Hussey, Lew Ayres, Guy Kibbee, Lana Turner—This comedy kept the audience in an uproar more than any feature in many months. Ayres' portrayal was excellent and just his appearance started the laughs again. Like Miss Hussey very much and Lana Turner is a comer. Played November 18-19.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SHINING HOUR, THE: Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Melvyn Douglas, Fay Bainter—We started off slow on this one but picked up very good the second and third day. It drew greatly amongst women and the audiences commented favorably upon it. Although this is supposed to be a picturization of a personally selected stage play, to me it seemed to be reminiscent of a picture the same producers made several years ago with Garbo, the title of which was "The Single Standards," which means nothing except the fact that "The Shining Hour" seems to be the same story excepting that the background is different and the characters reversed. I still don't know what "the shining hour" was in the picture. However, it was well acted and everyone turned in a gratifying performance. Played December 1-3.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

SPRING MADNESS: Lew Ayres, Burgess Meredith, Maureen O'Sullivan—One of those smart, young college pictures, snappy talk, clever situations, that got by nicely. Please all who see it. Running time, 67 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

STABLEMATES: Mickey Rooney, Wallace Beery —Swell picture and business very good. Played December 2-6.—E. C. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

THREE LOVES HAS NANCY: Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone—Nice picture that came within $4 of paying for itself. Gaynor is through. Shorts run with features not worth mentioning. Why are they talking so fast now? Are they trying to imitate Walter Winchell? I refer to Gable and Pat O'Brien. And why so much foreign dialect? We are still Americanized. Played December 7-8.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

TOO HOT TO HANDLE: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Walter Pidgeon, Leo Carrillo, Walter Connolly—This title is right. "Too Hot to Handle" for the allocation price. This picture will slow Clark and Loy up some. The fake motor noise in these pictures is very annoying, about as bad as the hoof noise in the horse opera. You can hear the horses' hoofs when they are traveling knee deep in sand. Played December 11-12.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

VACATION FROM LOVE: Florence Rice, Dennis O'Keefe—An excellent little comedy that just missed being a hit picture. These two aided by an excellent supporting cast turned in a swell performance. A show that went over big with the public. Running time, 65 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lynne Carver, Jo Ann Sayers—Another glorified B picture which did well the first day but fell down the next. Audience reaction was very good. Played November 27-28.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

Monogram

BOY OF THE STREETS: Jackie Cooper, Maureen O'Connor—Nice program picture. Running time, 76 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

HOOSIER SCHOOLBOY: Mickey Rooney, Anne Nagel—We expected better business of Mickey. Didn't do so well on this one but feel it wasn't the fault of the picture.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MEXICALI KID: Jack Randall—Just another cowboy picture, says Park. Running time, 54 minutes. Played December 10.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

WANTED BY THE POLICE: Frankie Darro, Evalyn Knapp, Robert Kent—A good Saturday night action picture.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, Jean Parker, John Beal, Irving S. Cobb—Nothing could be better except more like it. Just what a small town needs. Orchids to Fay Bainter for an outstanding performance. Running time, 85 minutes. Played November 13-14.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

THREE EXHIBITORS JOIN CONTRIBUTORS

Reports from three theatre owners not previously heard from have been received for the What the Picture Did for Me Department, and one who has been absent since last winter has resumed his reporting activities. The new contributors are:

M. D. Buxton, Garden Theatre, McCracken, Kan.

Newell Howard, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md.

Leslie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kan.

The prodigal contributor to the Department is:

Pruitt Sims, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala.

Read the reports of these exhibitors on recent pictures in these columns.

BAR 20 JUSTICE: William Boyd, Russell Hayden, Gwen Gaze—Not up to the usual Hopalongs. The story was different but the female lead was very poor, spoiling the show. So many scenes were laid in the interior of a mine and so dark that it was hard to see. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

DR. RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle, Beatrice Lillie, Andy Devine—Not so bad, but nothing big. Failed very badly at the box office. Running time, 75 minutes. Played November 20-21.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Betty Grable, Bob Hope, Jack Whiting—One of Martha Raye's best. Proves she can do something beside stretch her mouth and yell "Oh, Boy." The only thing Betty Grable needs is bigger parts. She couldn't be any better. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 1.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting—I can see your assistant manager's view, Mr. Irwin. The picture wasn't so hot. However, there were some darn good laughs in the show at that. I guess it's a 50-50 picture, all depending on the individual. Well, Mr. Exhibitor at the box office, this picture is only fair. Could be lots better. Running time, 77 minutes. Played December 3.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

IF I WERE KING: Ronald Colman, Basil Rathbone, Frances Dee, Ellen Drew—A fine historical drama and costume picture which failed to do the business I expected. Played December 4.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

IF I WERE KING: Ronald Colman, Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew—A very fine picture that took in just about rental, express and what I spent in advertising it. Heard many fine remarks about Mr. Colman concerning his ability and about everything else connected with the picture, but even so it didn't draw. Ronald Colman, in my opinion, is the greatest actor in Hollywood today and I believe I voice the opinion of the majority of my patrons. He doesn't make us money, but how we like his pictures. Running time, 100 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

IF I WERE KING: Ronald Colman, Basil Rathbone, Frances Dee, Ellen Drew—Patrons went out of their way to rave about this and it brought out the elite who make themselves content with seeing only the better pictures. In an all perfect cast Basil Rathbone manages to make his role ultra perfect! Don't lay down on the selling of this on account of any "costume" grudges. Efforts will be rewarded! Played week of December 5.—Newell Howard, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC: J. Carrol Naish, Mary Carlisle, Robert Preston—A fair programer. Preston is a coming star if they use him right. Running time, 68 minutes. Played November 4.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

IN OLD MEXICO: William Boyd, George Hayes—Very good picture. This was one of their best. OK at the box office. Running time, 63 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley—Pretty good but film rental too high. Fox will have to give Jane better story if they want high film rental from me next year. Played November 26.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Robert Preston, Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan, J. Carroll Naish—The best crime picture from Paramount this year. But where did they get the title. No scene of Alcatraz in the picture. Running time, 61 minutes. Played October 22.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Lloyd Nolan, Gail Patrick, J. Carroll Naish—Had a very nice draw and I believe it pleased all who came. Title is a bit misleading but it draws them in. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MEN WITH WINGS: Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell, Andy Devine—We sold this one way above average business in the face of terrible weather. Had model airplane display and gave away 60-inch model to child, using the wing cards in press book for chances. Beautiful color and swell flying sequences far overshadow occasional weak spots in the story. It will please vast majority who see it. Played week of November 28.—Newell Howard, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander—Just another show; drew some but it didn't please as it should. OK for bank night. Running time, 87 minutes. Played November 16-17.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SING, YOU, SINNERS: Bing Crosby, Fred MacMurray, Donald O'Connor, Ellen Drew, Elizabeth Patterson—An excellent picture. One of Bing's best, and nobody knows better than the public. All we need is more like it. "Small Fry" O'Connor was good as the kid brother. Played October 30-31.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Akim Hamiroff, John Barrymore, Louise Platt, Lynne Overman—A most entertaining and interesting production well made. Photography excellent; sound good. Pleased all who saw it but was not up to standard. In my situation this should have clicked.—Leslie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kansas. Rural patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett, May Robson—For a cowboy show this nose-dived terrible. Not suitable for Sunday. Very disappointing. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 13-14.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Joan Bennett, Randolph Scott, May Robson, Walter Brennan—A good historical picture that most of my audience enjoyed. It went over swell the first day but seemed to drop considerably for the second day. A good story and background, a nice cast and pretty good business. 'Nuff said. Running time, 94 minutes. Played November 27-28.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Republic

COLORADO KID: Bob Steele, Marion Weldon—Pleased the western fans. Played this on a double. Bob will have to wake up and get a singing companion if he expects to keep out in front with such stars as Autry and Baker. Running time, 57 minutes. Played November 25-26.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

MANHATTAN MERRY-GO-ROUND: Phil Regan, Ann Dvorak, James Gleason, Leo Carrillo, Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Max Terhune—A swell show and should draw with such a large cast. Don't advertise any one star too much. Running time, 84 minutes. Played November 23-24.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PALS OF THE SADDLE: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Doreen McKay—Average western melodrama which did very nice business and pleased. John Wayne replaced Bob Livingston in this one and no one complained. Played December 2-3.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

TENTH AVENUE KID: Bruce Cabot, Beverly Roberts, Tommy Ryan—Played this single and it held up pretty good. The entire cast, especially little Tommy Ryan, play their parts convincingly in a picture that will please most average audiences. Played November 29-30.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

AFFAIRS OF ANNABEL, THE: Jack Oakie, Lucille Ball—The worst picture I have seen this year and for many years. Everyone walked out. And the kind of picture all producers are releasing this season. If something is not done soon this business is ruined. Running time, 75 minutes.—W. E. McPhee,

Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

BORDER G-MAN: George O'Brien, Ray Whitley—Another western wherein the horses run in a different direction than the last western we played. Played November 1-2.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen, Irene Dare, Charles Ruggles, Dolores Costello—Played this one day and date with the key cities and did more on it than several of the top group specials. Customers all well pleased.—Leslie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kansas. Rural patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—Excellent. A goofy story but it pleased one hundred percent. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are tops; the supporting cast is good and the dancing incomparable. The dream dance is the best I ever saw. Running time, 83 minutes. Played November 25-27.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CRASHING HOLLYWOOD: Lee Tracy, Joan Woodbury, Richard Lane—We dusted this one off to fill a double bill but was surprised to note that this was one of the best comedy dramas we have ever played. Richard Lane, in spite of Lee Tracy's swell performance, walked away with the laughs in his interpretation of a screwball movie producer. His part was authentic. Played November 1-2.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

GUN LAW: George O'Brien, Rita Oehmen—Just another horse-opera. Skip it and you won't miss anything. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 26-27.—Ray S. Hanson, Fos Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MAD MISS MANTON, THE: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Frances Mercer, Whitney Bourne—Very good entertainment. It held the interest of the audience from start to finish with many good laughs in between. Played November 4-5.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

MAN TO REMEMBER, A: Edward Ellis, Anne Shirley, Lee Bowman—A very good and entertaining picture with a plot that was cleverly constructed and handled, but unfortunately we didn't need a wheel barrow to take our box office receipts home. Played October 30-31.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

MOTHER CAREY'S CHICKENS: Ruby Keeler, James Ellison, Anne Shirley, Ralph Morgan, Fay Bainter—Played this one early and gave it no special billing and did more business on it than on "In Old Chicago," which cost me twice as much. Give me more pictures of this caliber and my theatre will become a more necessary part of my community.—Lesllie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kansas. Rural patronage.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner, June Travis, Richard Lane—Used this one on my midweek change and to a good house. Audience reaction far above average. A well organized piece of nonsense that pleased everyone.—Leslie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kansas. Rural patronage.

RADIO CITY REVELS: Bob Burns, Jack Oakie, Kenny Baker, Ann Miller—Just one big laugh. A tonic for anyone who might feel "down." It was the first appearance here for Mr. Oakie in some time and the boys were very glad to see him again, excess avoirdupois and all. Many thought "Bazooka" Burns (the sleeping wonder) and Helen Broderick outclassed Oakie and Berle, but be that as it may, the dancing of Melissa Mason and Buster West was the highlight of the picture. (Watch out, Joan Davis.) Ann Miller is a very good "stepper," but it was the contention of most of the boys she still has a "couple of steps to take" before being placed on the same level with Eleanor Powell. Our patrons also expressed great satisfaction with the singing of Kenny Baker and are willing to trade Jane Frohman and six Dick Powells for him any time. "Radio City Revels" is a very entertaining picture and should prove remunerative to any box office. Running time, 85 minutes. Played Dec. 3.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

RENEGADE RANGER, THE: George O'Brien, Ray Whitley, Rita Hayworth—A nice western that pleased, but then all O'Brien's do. Wish that they would use some different photography in these westerns so one could see what it was all about most of the time but, as is, you just have to guess at what is happening in the dark scenes. A little more light on the subject, RKO, would be appreciated. Running time, 59 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

RENEGADE RANGER, THE: George O'Brien, Rita Hayworth, Ray Whitley—This is one of the best O'Brien pictures to date. Full of action. Rita Hayworth's acting was outstanding. She would be O. K. in almost any picture. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SAINT IN NEW YORK, THE: Louis Hayward, Kay Sutton—Did very well with this one, even though we resurrected it. A good underworld subject with not too much rough stuff in it. It pleased everyone and it seems to be these B pictures sometimes are better than the super-colossal epics with which exhibitors sometimes get stuck. Played November 9.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

MGM CONTRACTS 9,300 TO DATE

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sales to date total 9,300 exhibition contracts, about 1,100 more than last year at this time, the company has announced.

Every large circuit has already been closed, the sales department says. The Golden State circuit in San Francisco was signed by William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, and E. M. Saunders, western sales manager, on the trip to the coast. They returned to New York Monday.

Mr. Rodgers also visited the studio, but said that no 1939-40 plans have been discussed. It is probable, however, that MGM's sales meetings will be held earlier next year.

SKY GIANT: Richard Dix, Chester Morris, Joan Fontaine—Very slow and draggy or something. Not any too good and am afraid it didn't please any too well, either. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—A great picture. You can't praise it high enough. Excellent performances turned in by all. Enjoyed by old and young alike. Running time, 106 minutes. Played November 16-17.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, la. General patronage.

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Binnie Barnes—A very good show and all my patrons said so. Had many women stay over to see it twice. No box office draw. Running time, 65 minutes. Played December 2-3.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Hersholt, Claire Trevor, Joan Davis, Slim Summerville—I may be wrong but if I am I have a lot of company. But, these Quints seem stupid. Certainly, there is nothing in this picture that will refute it as far as I could learn. No one in the audience caught an intelligible word. As for the singing, that was pitiful. Certainly, they were no asset to a weak picture and Fox, I think, has a liability on their hands in this lot of kids. After so much publicity, the audience was disillusioned. Very much so. They seemed awkward and camera conscious.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

FIVE OF A KIND: Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Hersholt, Claire Trevor, Joan Davis, Slim Summerville—We found this picture very satisfactory. Nice little show that pleased. All the Quints pulled them in, and a nice little story got this by nicely. Running time, 84 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

HAPPY LANDING: Sonja Henie, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Cesar Romero—A good picture. One of Sonja's best. While we play them old here, possibly some of your exhibitors may play them even after us, and to you I say this is a darn good show. Running time, 101 minutes. Played December 4-5.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

JOSETTE: Don Ameche, Simone Simon, Robert Young, Bert Lahr, Joan Davis—A fairly good picture. Nothing to brag about but after a picture like "Boy Meets Girl," which we played on the same program, this one looks like an A-1 production. 'Nuff said. Running time, 73 minutes. Played December 6-7.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson—With the darling of the screen, Shirley Temple, what could help clicking? It's the poorest of the pictures she has made. But got by nicely and pleases. No knockout, but it will do business. Running time, 70 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson—This nice little picture failed to draw. Guess they are getting tired of Shirley. Running time, 70 minutes. Played December 7-8.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Bill Robinson, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr—Typical Temple picture that did just average business. It's okay. A little change in the scenario; she does not win over the hard-boiled aunt in this one. She gets Farrell set with his romance and establishes him with Uncle Sam, which is just about the same pattern, only this time he is male. With business down on each succeeding picture of both Withers and Temple, I think they have about run their course. We note a lot of regular adult patronage is not present on their pictures.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson—Shirley "just keeps rolling along" at our box office, seldom disappointing the customers. This picture has many new story angles that are refreshing. Play up the "Uncle Sam" angle that is the catchline throughout the mat composition in the press book. Played week of November 21.—Newell Howard, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley—One of Jane's best. I played it on Sunday and Monday to a fair crowd. It is a swell picture with some very good comedy. Running time, 77 minutes.—M. D. Buxton, Garden Theatre, McCracken, Kansas. Small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, Marjorie Weaver, Slim Summerville—A pretty good picture. Played it one day only on a double feature and people were fairly well pleased. Not too good; not too bad. Take your own chances. 'Nuff said, thinks Park. Running time, 85 minutes. Played December 14.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, Jimmy Durante, George Murphy, Edna Mae Oliver—I had the poorest business in a year on this. Story pretty weak. Temple doesn't draw for me. Running time, 71 minutes. Played December 4-5.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MR. MOTO TAKES A CHANCE: Peter Lorre, Rochelle Hudson, Robert Kent, J. Edward Bromberg—This series is O. K. and with Charlie Chan dead they should "click" even more than ever. Lorre his usual slick, suave self, a greasy, slinking foreigner that most everyone enjoys. Running time, 63 minutes. Played December 4-5.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

PASSPORT HUSBAND: Stuart Erwin, Pauline Moore—For a program picture one of the best. Erwin is liked here. Running time, 67 minutes. Played November 30-December 1.—Warren J. Gavin, Rio Theatre, Stevensville, Mont. Small town patronage.

RASCALS: Jane Withers, Robert Wilcox, Robert Kent, Borrah Minevitch's Gang—They gave me this one five months after release date and grossed more on it than on "In Old Chicago." Of course, when I got "'In Old Chicago" the fire was out. This Withers gal outgrossed Temple in "Little Miss Broadway."—Leslie F. Smith, Mayer Theatre, Westmoreland, Kansas. Rural patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—Fair family picture. Used on Pal Nites. Running time, 60 minutes. Played December 6-7.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

SHARPSHOOTERS: Brian Donlevy, Lynn Bari—Speedy action picture but overdone.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

SUBMARINE PATROL: Richard Greene, Nancy Kelly, Preston Foster, George Bancroft—A very interesting feature that pleased all who came. This is a natural for a small town and I would advise giving it your best time. In my opinion Mr. Greene has made very rapid progress since "My Lucky Star." He was good in this. Running time, 95 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SUBMARINE PATROL: Richard Greene, Nancy Kelly, Preston Foster, George Bancroft—One swell picture for all types of audiences. Nancy Kelly gets off to a good start in this one. Opening day comments good, which means good word of mouth advertising and always builds a picture for us. Whatever Zanuck did to this picture when it was suddenly withdrawn from release early in October surely turned it into a convincingly told story in its final form. Played week of December 5.—Newell Howard, Ulman's and New Theatres, Salisbury, Md. General patronage.

SUEZ: Tyrone Power, Loretta Young, Annabella, J. Edward Bromberg—Stirring historical drama. Realistic. Photography beautiful. Players played their part to perfection. Tyrone, Annabella, Young and Bromberg at their best.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

SUEZ: Tyrone Power, Loretta Young Annabella—A rather heavy bit of entertainment for a holiday but a grand show if you will forget all the minor details that they dragged in to give it length or something. We played it Thanksgiving Day to one of the biggest crowds in some time here. Had several walkouts due to length of feature and uninteresting details. Running time, 104 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TRIP TO PARIS, A: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Russell Gleason—Nothing big but pleased, and that's all we ask. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 22.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TRIP TO PARIS, A: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane—These Jones Family have acquired a nice following with us. Business fine.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF MARCO POLO: Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie, Basil Rathbone—A swell show and my customers raved about it. The only thing they didn't like is that it was too long. Running time, 110 minutes. Played November 2-3.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ALGIERS: Charles Boyer, Hedy Lamarr, Sigrid Gurie, Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart—This is different than the usual run of pictures and did not go over so good. Hedy Lamarr was the drawing card on this picture. This type picture may be OK, but you want them few and far between. Running time, 96 minutes. Played December 9-11.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

ALGIERS: Charles Boyer, Hedy Lamarr, Sigrid Gurie, Joseph Calleia, Alan Hale, Gene Lockhart—Not a small town picture. Our patrons just don't care for this type of picture. Poor at the box office. Running time, 90 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

BLOCKADE: Henry Fonda, Madeleine Carroll, Leo Carrillo, John Halliday—Who was who? What was what? And why was why? Just fair, but Henry Fonda's speech at the end was a masterpiece and left everyone something to think about. Running time, 84 minutes. Played November 29.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly, Alan Mowbray, Eugene Palette—A very entertaining picture. Patsy was a scream. Comedy in its best form. Don't pass it up. Running time, 85 minutes. Played November 23-24.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly, Alan Mowbray, Nancy Carroll, Eugene Pallette—What a comedy and a swell story. The skating scene is wonderful but I sure wouldn't try it myself. Business good. Running time, 86 minutes. Played November 20-21.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

Universal

BEHIND THE MIKE: William Gargan, Judith Barrett—Passed on a double and only as second feature. The stars are no draw here. Picture will not stand up alone. Played November 25-26.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

BOSS OF LONELY VALLEY: Buck Jones—Hello, brother exhibitor Pearce. Glad to see your reports. Buck Jones good to us yet here. Average western.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

DEVIL'S PARTY, THE: Victor McLaglen, Beatrice Roberts, Paul Kelly—A very good picture but not the special we paid for. Has a good story and will bring out much praise. Has a good plot, also. Running time, 65 minutes. Played November 28-29.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

DRACULA (reissue): Bela Lugosi; FRANKENSTEIN (reissue): Boris Karloff—These two pictures together have all the rest of the horror pictures cheated a mile. This did well at the box office the first day. Not so good the other two days. Running time, 147 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

DRACULA (reissue): Bela Lugosi; FRANKENSTEIN (reissue): Boris Karloff—Why it does business we do not know, but it certainly pulls them in. Play it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

DRACULA (reissue): Bela Lugosi; FRANKENSTEIN (reissue): Boris Karloff—Although we did not do the kind of business on this double feature as they reported in the larger cities we did above average. There is not much to say about these two pictures. Only advertising angle I could find was to dare them to come. We only had five walkouts and they did not complain. Just couldn't take it. Play it for extra dollars at the box office.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kansas. General patronage.

GUILTY TRAIL: Bob Baker, Marjorie Reynolds—Not any too good but not so bad that they would kick. Just another western with a cowboy who thinks he can sing, but my patrons think he's wrong there. Running time, 57 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

N. Y. CITY DRIVE AGAINST AUTOGRAPHS, SMOKING

Annoyed by the persistence of youthful autograph hunters, and also by the menace raised by smoking during intermissions in the area back of the orchestra seats, the League of New York Theatres is moving to eradicate both nuisances.

James F. Reilly has been conferring with officials of the New York City Police Department Juvenile Aid Bureau, endeavoring to have them proceed on the grounds that most of the autograph hunters are under age.

Fire Commissioner John McElligott, asked by the league for assistance in curbing the smokers, stated this week that he hoped the league would back the ordinance introduced by him into the City Council, which would forbid smoking in theatres or department stores.

JURY'S SECRET, THE: Fay Wray, Kent Taylor—Played this on a double and it pleased. As a single, it won't draw, so watch your step. Running time, 65 minutes. Played December 2-3.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

PRISON BREAK: Barton MacLane, Glenda Farrell, Constance Moore, Robert Wilcox—I can't see where the title fits the picture. Although the plot was well intended, I had to go out the side door on this one. Played November 3.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mischa Auer, Helen Broderick—Nice little program picture. If Universal keeps on giving Miss Darrieux good stories, she will be one of the coming stars. Running time, 79 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

ROAD TO RENO: Randolph Scott, Hope Hampton, Glenda Farrell, Helen Broderick, Alan Marshall—Very poor. Miss Hampton is no actress and whatever was saved from a total flop was done so by that grand little actress, Glenda Farrell, who is always good. The leads in this picture spoiled the picture. Running time, 69 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SERVICE DE LUXE: Constance Bennett, Vincent Price, Charles Ruggles, Glenda Farrall, Mischa Auer, Helen Broderick—The ladies liked it. Men just so so. —C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SERVICE DE LUXE: Constance Bennett, Vincent Price, Charles Ruggles, Helen Broderick, Mischa Auer, Joy Hodges—Very good entertainment with the entire cast turning in notable performances. However, Mr. Price did not seem to click, but this may have been due to the fact that the cast had several good picture stealers in Charles Ruggles and Mischa Auer, who would have stolen the picture had it not been for the excellent manner in which Joy Hodges handled her role. Played October 28-29.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

SINNERS IN PARADISE: John Boles, Madge Evans, Bruce Cabot—A very good picture and a good cast. Used three shorts with this and it made a splendid program. Running time, 63 minutes. Played November 21-22.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

SWING THAT CHEER: Tom Browne, Andy Devine, Constance Moore—Not dynamite at the b. o. but a clean cut picture that pleased. Played November 22-23.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

SWING THAT CHEER: Tom Browne, Andy Devine, Constance Moore—Nothing here and that's nothing. The same old story and a poor one at that. We double featured it and am very glad we did as it isn't strong enough to stand alone. Running time, 63 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Nancy Carroll—A typical Durbin picture, the type of entertainment for which our patrons wait anxiously. Played November 11-12.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Nancy Carroll—The first Deanna Durbin here and it didn't draw worth mentioning. We expected something a little better from this star but nothing doing here. She has a very fine voice but outside of that there isn't anything else, or am I wrong? Personally, I'm very sorry that I picked this up and wasted a good playdate, but then live and learn they say and how I'm learning this year. Running time, 100 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Nancy Carroll—A clever little comedy that made the patrons go away happy. This is the kind of pictures we like to show. The draw is nothing exceptional, but those who saw it were pleased. Miss Durbin's voice is excellent. Running time, 95 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin—Perfect. We ran into sleet and cold with a result that our attendance was about forty percent less than expected. Played November 23-24.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

WINGS OVER HONOLULU: Wendy Barrie, Ray Milland—A dandy picture and one that will please. Seen this months before playing. A mighty fine feature of the airplane and its thrills. Running time, 78 minutes. Played November 30-December 1.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

WESTERN TRAILS: Bob Baker, Marjorie Reynolds—Can safely say that Baker will be well out in front when they cast the most popular cowboy stars. Plenty of action in this picture with hardly a dull moment. Give us all the Bakers and yet you can't give us enough. Running time, 58 minutes. Played December 2-3.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BOY MEETS GIRL: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, Marie Wilson, Ralph Bellamy—Warner has come through again with another outstanding stupendous flop. What in the world happened to you, O'Brien and Cagney, to ever consent to play in a picture like this. We had several walkouts on the show and a number of complaints. It's just one silly ridiculous change of scenes from start to finish. By all means positively do not book it. You will never regret it. Running time, 86 minutes. Played December 6-7.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran—Very good musical; pretty well liked here. Business just fair. Running time, 90 minutes. Played December 1-2.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell—Just fair, only not a Sunday show or is it a Saturday show. If you have to play it, put it on Wednesday and Thursday.—A. H. Record, Majestic Theatre, Hebron, Neb. General patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—I think Flynn made this one between pictures. Not worthy of his ability.—Ivan W. Rowley, Ward Theatre, Pismo Beach, Cal. General patronage.

FOUR'S A CROWD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—Excellent comedy to good business. Played November 16.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

HARD TO GET: Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Charles Winniger, Allen Jenkins—Very good comedy. —Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

HARD TO GET: Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Charles Winninger, Allen Jenkins—Another good picture but which did not do too well at the box office. Highly entertaining but perhaps the premature cold weather kept some of them at home. Played November 13-14.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

MEN ARE SUCH FOOLS: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Humphrey Bogart, Hugh Herbert—Was Priscilla's and Hugh's picture by far. Priscilla in my opinion is one of the best and will soon prove herself at the box office. "Woo Woo" Herbert is tops for comedy. Running time, 70 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

NANCY DREW, DETECTIVE: Bonita Granville, John Litel, Frankie Thomas—This is a swell little picture and believe that the series will do good business. We did good business and Bonita draws the kids in. The boy that played in this was very good. Played December 7.—E. C. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, Alan Hale, John Litel, Charles Bickford—Color is a strong inducement to get them in although the picture is good enough to stand without it. I believe Claire Trevor is better in more sophisticated roles, but she is satisfactory. Wayne Morris is much better in this more serious type of role than in his flighty part in Brother Rat. Alan Hale is swell. Played, November 6-7-8. Running time, 79 minutes.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, John Litel, Charles Bickford—A swell picture with a good cast. The color in the picture was beautiful. I played it on a Friday and Saturday. It did very well alone. Everybody that saw it was well pleased.—M. D. Buxton, Garden Theatre, McCracken, Kansas. Small town patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, John Litel, Charles Bickford—Excellent picture; business good and patrons very much pleased. Played December 11-13.—E. C. Arnold, Avon Theatre, Hillsboro, Kansas. Rural patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, Charles Bickford, John Litel—A swell show just in order for small towns. Very beautiful, recording fine. Play it by all means. The few that seen it thoroughly enjoyed it. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 27-28.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

VALLEY OF THE GIANTS: Wayne Morris, Claire Trevor, John Litel, Charles Bickford—This fine action drama in color did big business for me in spite of its age. Played December 5-6.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BIG BIRDCAST, THE: Color Rhaphosdy—This was in color and boy was it clever. Had various birds pulling imitations of famous actors and actresses. Plenty of swing music too. An excellent short that deserves space on every exhibitors program. Running time, 7 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

CALLING ALL DOCTORS: Charlie Chase—Chase still gives our audience much cause for laughter. Seemed to please 100 per cent.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FISTIC FUN: Sport Thrills—A fine sports reel on boxing.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

KRAZY'S TRAVEL SQUAWKS: Krazy Kat—A very clever burlesque on travelogue in a fine Karzy Kat manner.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MIDNIGHT FROLICS: Color Rhapsodies—Just fair. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SCRAPPY'S TRIP TO MARS: Scrappy Cartoons—Not so hot. Just fair. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 2—This short subject always provides interesting audience entertainment.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SUE MY LAWYER: Broadway Comedies—A good two-reel slapstick comedy with Harry Langdon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TASSELS IN THE AIR: Three Stooges—Usual slapstick with no one hurt. Running time, 17 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

THREE MISSING LINKS: Three Stooges—Average "Stoogie" with Curley as star, the "Robert Taylor" type. Running time, 18 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

AWFUL TOOTH, THE: Our Gang—A very good Gang comedy that went over big with all. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX: Robert Benchley—Just a waste of film. Why don't they let Bob show us "How to Get Out of the Movies?" That would be good. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

HOW TO WATCH FOOTBALL: Robert Benchley—Benchley in a class by himself. This is a riot.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MADEIRA—ISLE OF ROMANCE: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Another excellent FitzPatrick travelogue in color.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MIRACLE OF SALT LAKE: MGM Miniatures—A very fine reel. Educational and entertaining. We would hate to see Metro stop making these historical reels.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: No. 22—Park says it O. K. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

POULTRY PIRATES: Captain and the Kids—Bring on more of these. You can have your Silly Symphonies and Mickey Mouses but, in my estimation, these cartoons are tops. Running time, 10 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

SHIP THAT DIED, THE: Historical Mysteries—Very good. Appreciated thoroughly.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SYDNEY, PRIDE OF AUSTRALIA: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Another fine travel from Metro. Nothing better of this type.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

THINK IT OVER: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—A darn good series this "Crime Doesn't Pay." Interesting, yes, but every time it points out that the law catches up with the criminal and that crime doesn't pay. More power to you, Metro.—Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

TRACKING THE SLEEPING DEATH: MGM Miniatures—A very good miniature that was a surprise to all who saw it. Very good. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

WORLD IS OURS, THE: This reel is a gratis film by the Movie Quiz Committee and it's very good. Play it if you can. Running time, 18 minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn.

Paramount

AQUABATS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Very good sports reel. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ala. General patronage.

HONEST LOVE AND TRUE: Betty Boop Cartoons—Good. A sweet little series. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

MEXICO: Color Cruises—Just a filler.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ORRIN TUCKER AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—A very nice musical short which pleased all.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS, No. 30: OK. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 32—Park says it's O. K. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

PLAYFUL POLAR BEARS: Color Classics—A nice color cartoon which pleased all.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE, NO. 2: Average science reel in color. It seemed to please.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RACING PIGEONS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Interesting; it pleased—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RUBE GOLDBERG'S TRAVELGAB: Paragraphics—A comedy riot. A takeoff on the usual travel reel. Many stopped over second show to see it again.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamoosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SALLY SWING: Betty Boop Cartoons—Average Betty Shop cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BROTHER GOLFERS: Six Turnesa Bros—A very good short on golfing by these famous brothers. Is interspersed with comedy. Very good for the golf enthusiast. Running time, 11 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

MICKEY'S TRAILER: Walt Disney Cartoons—One of the very best of Disney's Mickeys. Show it to your patrons that they might learn something about life in a real, up-to-date trailer. Running time, 8 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

MUSIC WILL TELL: Ted Fio Rito—A rather poor setting for a grand orchestra like Fio Rito's. All were disappointed in the short as a whole, but did enjoy the numbers played by the orchestra. Running time, 18 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

POLAR TRAPPERS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Good.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

QUINTUPLAND: Special—Fair but does not take the place of a comedy. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

STAR IS HATCHED, A: Merrie Melodies—Pretty good color cartoon. It pleased.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THERE GOES THE BRIDE: The Four Kraddocks—The best vaudeville act we have ever seen on the screen. Do not miss this one for a good short. Running time, 19 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

GOLDEN CALIFORNIA: Magic Carpet Series—Average travel talk—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: But I call them the football specials now. If the football will hold out till the skiing starts, I think we can expect a one reel of film to be called a News. This goes for all news.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: No. 22—Park says it's O. K. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

VILLAGE BLACKSMITH: Terry-Toons—O. K. for a black and white cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Vitaphone

CLEANING UP: George Campo—Very good two musicals which pleased.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DOUBLE TALK: "Charlie McCarthy," Edgar Bergen—A laugh getter and when you get them, then, you are sure that the fans must have enjoyed the short. "McCarthy" and Bergen are great. Running time, 10 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

HAVE YOU GOT ANY CASTLES: Merrie Melodies—A swell little cartoon in color. Another smash hit, very clever and it impressed me as it did the older people. Kiddish enough for the kiddies. Yet to understand it, it would get a real laugh from the older folks. Running time, seven minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

HAVE YOU GOT ANY CASTLES: Merrie Melodies—To sit down and watch these cartoons is like watching something happen in the line of a miracle. You can't beat them. This is a knockout. Running time, eight minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

HIS BUSY DAY: Clyde McCoy—What a short subject, if you have a college trade or many young people. Play it and bill it. It's one hundred per cent musical. We were in the midst of reseating when we played it, so let the young couples dance to it after the close of the show for ten minutes. The old folks joined in. Remember what we told you. Play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

UPS AND DOWNS: Broadway Brevities—This was swell and brought many laughs. Running time, 20 minutes.—George Khattar, Casino Theatre, Whitney Pier, Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada. General patronage.

Serials

Columbia

GREAT ADVENTURES OF WILD BILL HICKOK, THE: Gordon Elliot, Kermit Maynard—I am on my third chapter now and I can say it's without a doubt the best serial I have run. The serial has everything, action, comedy and suspense. This has all the earmarks of "Wells Fargo" or "The Plainsman" and my patrons are eating it up. On the first chapter I had a poor turnout, so I got permission from the exchange to hold it over for my two bank nights. It worked great. If this serial had had the publicity that was given "The Lone Ranger" I would be doing land office business every chapter. Book this on your off night and you'll be happy till the last chapter. Running time, 20 minutes each chapter.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND: Don Terry, Gwen Gaze—Played the opening chapter. I believe Columbia has got something in this one.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SPIDER'S WEB, THE: Warren Hull, Iris Meredith—A very good serial, especially suited for the chilren. Plenty of accessories. A nice press book with plenty of suggestion and ideas. The rest is up to you, Mr. Exhibitor. Running time, 19 minutes each.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

SPIDER'S WEB, THE: Warren Hull, Iris Mededith—A good serial. See my past reports on it. Running time, 18 minutes, each chapter.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Republic

DICK TRACY RETURNS: Ralph Byrd, Lynn Roberts—This is one of the poorest serials I have ever played. Very disjointed and hard to follow. Aroused little customer interest. Too much repeating.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

FIGHTING DEVIL DOGS, THE: Lee Powell, Herman Brix—A very good serial. Single interest and continuity follows through from chapter to chapter.—Harry Abbott, Circle Theatre, Circleville, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

LONE RANGER, THE: Lee Powell, Herman Brix—Ordinarily I lay off serials in order not to drive the sophisticates away and I've often been under the impression that a serial sometimes stops a patron from wanting to see a good feature, but with this serial I find that the tradition which serials used to establish in first run theatres is reversed, for instead of people coming in to see the feature and walking out on the serial I find that they say to see the serial and then walk out on some of the features we showed with it. In eyeing the audience from the rear of the theatre to watch their reaction, I often see many of our intellectuals sneakingly sitting on the edge of their seats, oblivious to their surroundings, and enjoying the picture just as much as the kiddies. Played every Friday-Saturday.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town patronage.

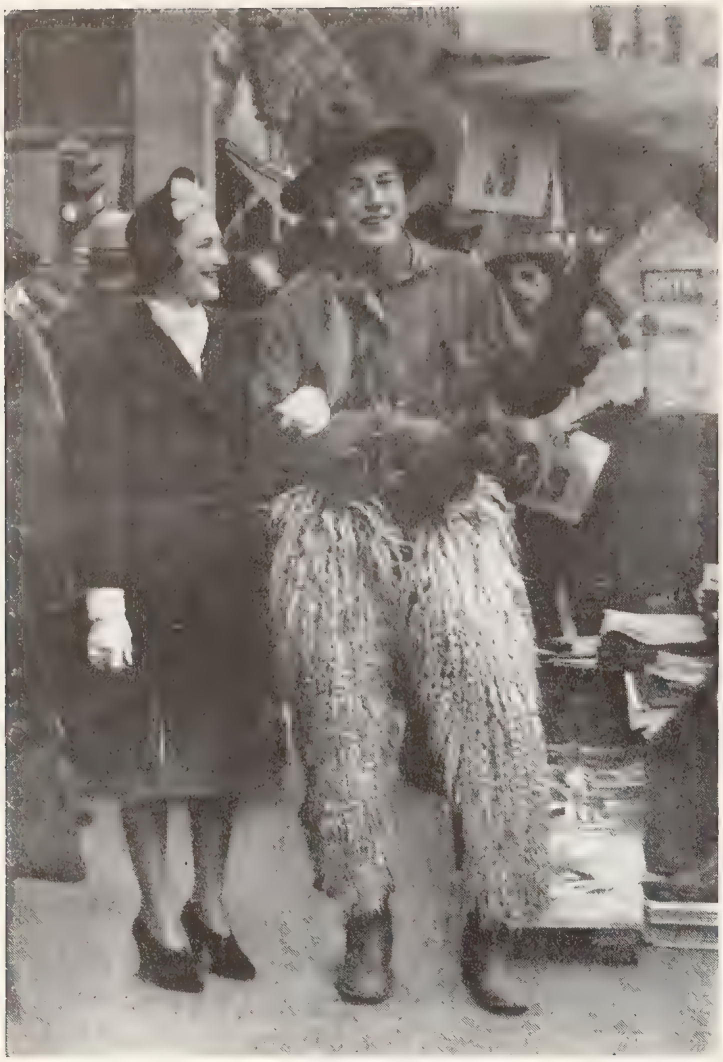
Round Table In Pictures



Street bally, which Les Pollock, Loew's Theatre, Rochester, N. Y., used for "Cowboy and the Lady" is reported to have been highly successful. Couple dressed as the title suggests walked through the crowded downtown streets, mingling with Christmas shoppers, attracting curiosity, since they carried no enlightening banners.

Old-fashioned electric automobile was resurrected by Tom Rogers of Loew's Valencia, Jamaica, L. I., to ballyhoo his date on "You Can't Take It With You" and his jitterbug session on stage. Two of the theatre's staff drove the antedeluvian relic throughout entire neighborhood.

Machine below was stationed in bowling alley adjoining the Cascade Theatre, Atlanta, by William M. Scruggs. Machine was secured on rental basis, recordings taken from current and coming attractions, and that's Scruggs himself standing at right.

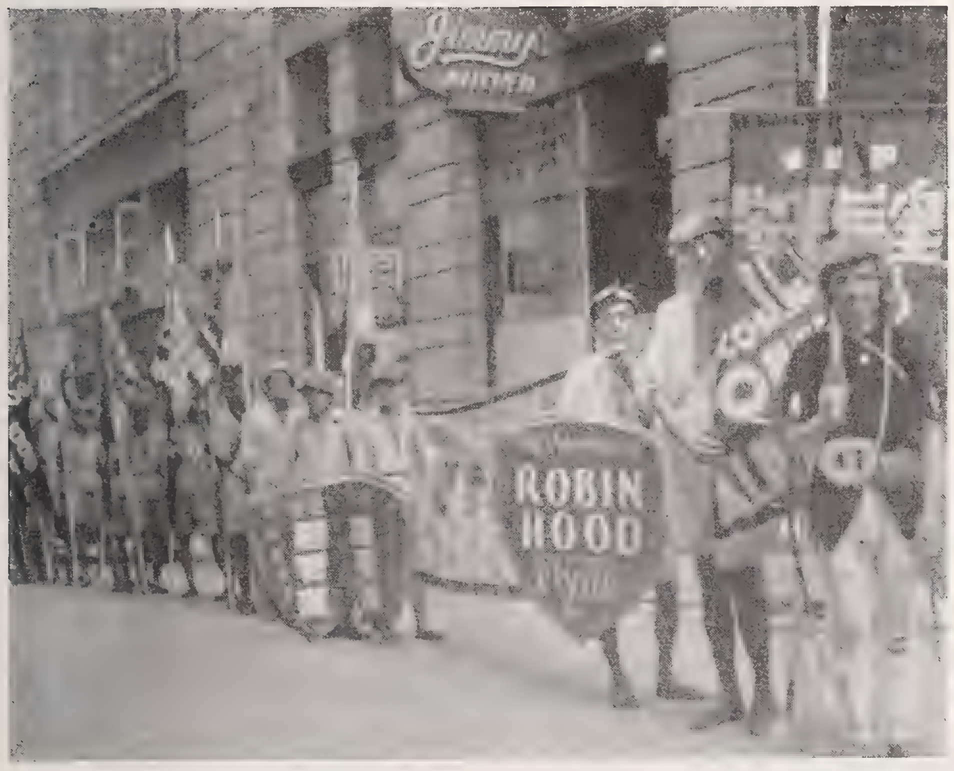
Numerous were the eye-arresting and attractive window displays promoted and planted in leading store windows by Sam Gilman, Loew's Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., for his engagement of "The Great Waltz". In addition, two weeks ahead, the theatreman constructed lobby display shown above, consisting of giant cutout violin, entire border of which was covered with musical notes. Cutout figures were planted at left, real violin and bow at right, in addition to cast and title letters.



Street ballys seem to be the order of the day in Hong Kong, China, too, for here is the way Terry Leung exploited opening of "Robin Hood" at the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres. Twenty-one native boys dressed as "Robin Hood" and his men, paraded through streets ahead and during run of picture, and giant size cutout of Flynn was planted in lobby.

Leading department store in Syracuse, N. Y., cooperated with Manager H. H. Unterfort, Keith Theatre, by devoting complete window to a "Ferdinand the Bull" display. The story books, scene stills and various cutout animal figures which appeared in the film completed the effect.

Corker Inaugurates Ice Breaking Contest

Through the cooperation of the sororities, weekly student publication and Dean of Women of the University of Georgia, an "ice-breaking" contest was held by Moon Corker, Georgia Theatre, Athens, Ga., in connection with the opening of "Breaking the Ice." Being the first contest of its kind ever held there, all local papers carried cut and stories concerning the event and giving the picture a great boost.

Each of the 12 sororities were allowed to enter one representative. Contest was held in street in front of theatre opening day and the Mayor ordered police to handle the crowds. Each girl carrying small hatchet was stationed before large tub containing cake of ice. At given signal girls started chopping, winner receiving an engraved loving cup donated by local jeweler. The 600 pounds of ice were promoted by ice company. Truck with public address was stationed in front of theatre announcing the contest.

The sponsorship of the Athens Fire Department was gained for the showing of "U. S. Firefighters," chief of the department giving the subject his personal endorsement through newspaper and radio. Three-column ad was donated by the newspaper, bannered fire truck patrolled the streets day ahead and was parked in front of theatre opening night where several firemen were stationed to explain devices in operation of the truck.

Mayor Proclaims

Highlight of Motion Pictures' Greatest Year drive was civic cooperation obtained for H. L. Stahl's, Drake and Lyric Theatres, Oil City, Pa., by John Ball, publicity director. Ball had the Mayor sign a proclamation for this special week, planting stories in morning and afternoon papers. Chamber of Commerce and other important organizations also endorsed the week.

Parading Army Tank Sells "Army Girl"

Forest Quinn, manager of the new Vogue Theatre in Indianapolis arranged with the manufacturers of the tank used in "Army Girl" to have one of their tanks parade the streets. Banners on either side carried copy reading: "This is the tank in which Madge Evans romances with Preston Foster" in, etc., etc.

During the evenings the machine was displayed on sidewalk in front of theatre, flood light playing on it to attract attention. Representative from the manufacturer was on hand to answer all queries.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Six-Page Spread Exploits "Waltz"

Put over by S. E. Benford, Boyd Theatre, Philadelphia, was the placement of six full pages of photos from "The Great Waltz," in the Philadelphia Record, consisting of scene stills accompanied by a running synopsis, as well as a production story and brief history of the waltz. This was preceded by a spread opening day, featuring scenes with the stars of the production. Paper's delivery trucks carried posters several days ahead of opening and during run.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Topsy-Turvy

Searching for something new to give his customers, Floyd Featherhuff, Mills Theatre, Lake Mills, Iowa, reports an idea that he says proved plenty amusing. Featherhuff suggests taking a one-reel subject, preferably a cartoon or comedy, running it off properly and then either backwards or upside down, so that even the screen folk may be heard talking backwards. So successful has this proven that the theatreman plans to make it a weekly event for a time.

Warnermen Stress University Tieins for 'Angel' Dates

Special sorority ballhoo on campus of local girls' college was engineered by Frank Austin, manager of Warner's Fairmont Theatre, Fairmont, West Va., for "Angels with Dirty Faces." All girls being initiated into sorority were required to wear tinsel halos over their heads with back signs carrying picture title. Highlight of the stunt was the fact that the girls were not permitted to wash their faces. Austin also interested the college paper in an essay contest on "Environment, It's Relation to Crime," entries limited to 500 words. Guest tickets were offered as prizes.

Contacting local Boy Scouts headquarters, Austin received special picture recommendation from area commander and district supervisor. These men called a special meeting with all scout leaders, requesting them in turn to hold meetings with all members. All local ladies' organizaitons were also contacted by letter and asked to recommend the film to their members.

Austin further communicated with the Board of Education which brought about mention on all bulletin boards in outlying schools, and each instructor in the Fairmont high school urged his students to attend. Daily radio plugs were promoted over WMMN, special signs were carried on all local express trucks and numerous window displays promoted.

Newspapers Aid Grimes

Various newspaper tieups were effected by Ken Grimes, Warner Theatre, Erie, Penna., amongst which was a classified ad contest in the Times which ran over a period of three weeks ahead of opening. The Dispatch-Herald ran a series of scene stills from various previous Cagney pictures, guest tickets going to those correctly placing each still, winners names and story running at close of contest. Same paper sponsored a "Radio Show"; latest models of radios were displayed in lobby in return for which, paper gave free display space which was used for "Angels."

Sports writer devoted column to the basketball sequence in the picture, recommending it highly, and movie columnist eulogized the' 'Dead End" kids and the film generally. Costless heralds were promoted and distributed house-to-house week in advance, bumper cards used on all the theatre employees' cars, newsboys carried signs on their backs and displays were planted in all leading hotels and clubs.

Krolick Gets Editorial

Doubtless inspired by the title "Angels With Dirty Faces," editor of the Rochester Times-Union gave that picture a two-column page one editorial for Art Krolick's opening at the Regent Theatre, Rochester, N. Y. Local lad locked up on a technical charge of vagrancy, was dismissed by the judge and guested by the manager to see the picture. Editorial carried cut of the youngster together with prominent mention of the theatre and playdates.

St. Louis Offered Guest Ride Coupon On Tiein by F&M

Folks in the uptown residential districts of St. Louis, usually not in the habit of coming downtown to theatre at night, have responded favorably to an inducement offered by the Fanchon & Marco first-run Ambassador and the local transportation company. Tiein, according to Les Kaufman, St. Louis advertising and publicity director for the circuit, is made by use of a guest ride coupon.

For a trial period of four weeks, all persons riding street cars or busses after six p.m. were given special "Ambassador Theatre Guest Ride Coupons" which rated a 10-cent credit the same night on the purchase of an adult admission. To take the idea out of the stunt class and give it a semi-civic importance, publicity described the tiein as an "experiment by the Traffic Research department" of the transportation company. On the credit side of the hookup for the Ambassador from the beginning was permission obtained by the theatre to imprint weekly programs on each coupon, the weekly number averaging about 100,000. While F&M provided the coupons, the transportation people furnished free weekly posters for inside and outside windows of every street car and bus, in addition to heralds in advance, explaining the tiein.

Returns in the trial period proved very promising. Continuance of the policy is contemplated with the possible extension of the service to include the Fox, Missouri and St. Louis, other F&M St. Louis first runs.

Parking Service Aids Grosses

Another stimulation for the Ambassador boxoffice, since early summer, is the special pick-up and delivery parking service offered patrons. Parking space on streets nearby is hard to find and parking lots are some distance away from the theatre, all of which hurts business. Theatre thus allows patrons to drive right to the boxoffice where their cars are whisked off to an inside fireproof garage by bonded, uniform drivers. Charge to patron is 10 cents, with theatre making up difference to garage. This service has proven distinctly profitable to the theatre, since it has been found that the average car parked nets three paying patrons.

Raft Endorsement

When W-Clyde Smith, Paramount, Hot Springs, Ark., discovered that George Raft was vacationing in that city during his theatre's engagement of "Tropic Holiday," the star was immediately contacted for exploitation tieups. Numerous interviews were given, papers carrying complete story of the star's life with art.

Entire front of the theatre was turned into a tropic holiday sidewalk cafe, various colored umbrellas and tables covering the entire front sidewalk of theatre. Drinks were served through the courtesy of local drug store and local society girls in beech costumes posed for photos. Other street bally was a cow led through main streets by lad dressed in Mexican regalia carrying special banner with copy endorsed by Raft.

THREE WEEKS

January 14, 1939—that's the deadline for entries in the Last Quarter of this year's Quigley Awards. To be eligible for consideration, entries on campaigns executed during October, November and December must be received at this office no later than the designated deadline date. Thus, from date of this issue, exactly 20 days remain for theatremen who wish to be represented in the Final Period to get their entries to Awards Headquarters.

All box-office material is eligible. This includes campaigns on individual dates, stage presentations, institutional advertising and publicity, campaigns on Motion Pictures' Greatest Year, special December and Christmas drives, campaigns for New Year's Eve shows, etc.

Since the Grand Awards will be voted on campaigns entered during the entire year of 1938, it is important that theatremen who have scored in the previous Quarters make sure they also are represented in the year's Final Period.

Immediately after the announcement of the Last Quarter winners, arrangements will be made for the Grand Awards Judging, and, to follow, the presentation of the Grand Awards Plaques.

More on this to come.

"Tropic Holiday" Gets Full Coverage

If residents of Cleburne, Texas, weren't "Tropic Holiday" conscious, it wasn't George Limerick's fault, who plugged that opening at the Yale, before leaving for the Aztec in Enid, Okla. Giant compo board sombreros with title, theatre and playdates were placed in all flagpole holes throughout city and were also hung under his marquee weeks ahead of opening. For his street bally boy covered town dressed in Spanish attire, strumming hit tunes; back banner carrying appropriate tiein copy on the preview.

Entire staff wore troubadour hats and imprinted sashes and a series of cartoons created by house artist Tom Kirkham were placed in drug stores, hotel lobbys and other prominent spots. Through tieup effected with drug store, window display was used in connection with the picture and a sale of cocoanut bon bons.

On "The Texans," Limerick dubbed 15 boys with the title "Junior Texas Rangers" and rigged them up in their own outfits to look as Western as possible. These lads then distributed advertising and "stooged" around the theatre two days ahead of opening.

Blood Donors Sought For "Yellow Jack"

Considerable newspaper publicity was given to Ronald Haynes' search for blood donors in connection with his engagement of "Yellow Jack" at the Colonial Theatre, Germantown, Philadelphia. Hospital officials cooperated, agreeing to type the blood and offering the services of a graduate nurse for lobby duty.

Entire staff of ushers was dressed as internes during date, wearing imprinted sashes; special screening was held for doctors, organizations, and local prominents, and all hospitals were circularized, urging attendance at the picture.

Honor Pupils Selected On "Boys Town" Tiein

Supervisor Pete McCarty and publicist Sam Coolick, Loew's Long Island theatres, lined up six different junior and public schools, by securing permission of the principals and had them designate an honor boy from each school to hold an executive job in the Boro of Queens for one day as a salute to the opening of "Boys Town."

Previously, the Borough President, district attorney, police inspector, supreme court justice, city editor of the Daily Star and the theatre manager of Loew's Triboro, all agreed to relinquish their jobs for the day. Daily Star-Journal gave the idea a four-day break with art, and a day ahead of opening a quarter-page break with all the officials posing with the boys was landed.

Parochial schools were contacted and a half-day holiday declared, entire student body marching to the theatres opening day. Pole cards electing Mickey Rooney for Mayor of Boys Town covered all important streets, department store devoted numerous windows to the film and distributed cards plugging the attraction.

Stockholm's Fashion Show Exploits "Mannequin" Date

Arranged by W. Fuchs, MGM exploiteer in Stockholm was a "Mannequin Week" promoted through cooperation of leading merchant to help publicize that date. Store devoted nine of its main windows to displays, each plugging the picture, playdates and cast.

Opening day a "Mannequin" parade was held at store for the fashion columnists, models wearing replicas of dresses featured in the picture; girls also appeared on stage. After premiere, cooperating store hosted press at a banquet held at leading restaurant, papers covering the opening following day.

OKLAHOMANS REPORT RECENT CAMPAIGNS

Widespread Tieins Executed by Standard Circuit Managers; Co-op and Contests Stressed

What's what and recently out in the Oklahoma City sector is outlined by Doug George, Standard Theatres advertising head who reports on doings in that circuit under the guiding hand of B. F. "Dinty" Moore, general manager. For instance, that smart radio tiein at the Criterion, by Manager Jimmy Burge.

With Station WKY, Burge has arranged tiein whereby at end of every newsreel showing, four times daily, station cuts in from studio to theatre auditorium with three minutes of the latest news. It is working out very well, says George, since there is no cost and patrons are commenting on getting the late flashes from the press radio bureau right with their entertainment.

Long-distance telephone interview with Tyrone Power for the benefit of "Suez" was put over for local picture critics and recorded. Platter was then broadcast over the theatre amplifying system and also used by the four local radio stations. In addition, newspaper breaks were in keeping with rest of the tiein.

Since the University of Oklahoma is situated a few miles from town, facilities of the Warner Theatre were offered to the school's drama society by "Dinty" Moore for the presentation of their productions. Success of the first play "The Drunkard" paves the way for the next, not the least of the buildup credited to the ad campaign executed by Hank Harold, staff artist.

Society Mailing Lists Used

When in town but a short time, Moore worked out an ingenious method of introducing himself to patrons on the mailing list through a personal endorsement over his signature of "If I Were King". Letterhead was also personalised to give the idea more prestige than the usual theatre announcement. Fathers of local Boy Scouts and members of leading women's clubs were also addressed with personal letters on "Angels With Dirty Faces".

The special mailing list of the local Civic Symphony society was promoted by George and Burge on "The Great Waltz", an individual and striking mailing piece on blue stock and blue envelopes forwarded to all subscribers. Announcement was a folder printed in invitation form, copy stressing the Strauss music, "twenty stars, symphony of 150, ballet of 300, a cast of thousands". Burge also had head of the associated women's clubs sign postcard endorsing the picture, mailed to all members. Local Scripps-Howard News was tied in by Burge to sponsor the "Great Waltz", for generous publicity including a page feature story and art.

Stores Sponsor "News"

The personal letter slant was also employed by Manager Spence Pierce, of the Tower, who used it on "Young Doctor Kildare". Messages were forwarded to doctors, nurses and other representative workers in the medical profession. To give the picture a different slant, Pierce wrote it "picture aspects of medical education, medical ethics and medical career never before shown on the screen."

Entitled "Movie News" is the four-page smart weekly for the Plaza, arranged for by Manager Bob Busch and sponsored by local chain of food stores. Busch has the assistance of the publicity office on material and layout with Harold lending a hand on on the art work. Over 20,000 are distributed and ads of other merchants are carried.

For "Brother Rat" at the Midwest, by Pat Patchen, George reports a novel number giveaway. Cards about nine inches long by two wide were distributed, each card perforated in two equal parts, both parts carrying the identical number. One part of each card was given to girls, the other to boys, copy instructing them to find member of the other sex holding part of card with same number. Couples matching their cards were given guest privileges to the picture.

Many Co-op Ads Obtained

Highlights of other campaigns put on by the Moore-men include a page one news shot of the girl who was the voice of "Snow White," run just before the repeat date on the picture, a full-page co-op ad by Sears' for store's free theatre party for children at the Criterion, quarter-page display taken by local dairy to announce free photos of Shirley Temple given by the dairy on tiein with "Just Around the Corner" at the Midwest. On same picture, local paper sponsored a special screening for group of children in advance, youngsters writing reviews which the daily ran on opening day.

For "Young In Heart" at the Criterion, full-page co-op was taken by seven leading stores in addition to quarter-page by style shop to advertise formal clothing, copy illustrated by cut of the stars in evening clothes. During December, George has hooked up with the News for 18 inches of display space daily to plug any of the circuit's attractions. In exchange, theatres give 20 passes daily to locals finding their names scattered through the classified page, and who identify themselves no later than 48 hours after names appear.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Chuck Ties Paper To "Yellow Jack" Date

Special contest was staged through cooperation of local daily by Chuck Shannon, Belmar Theatre, Pittsburgh, for "Yellow Jack," wherein contestants were asked the question, "What would you sacrifice for love?"; guest tickets to winners. Street bally consisted of lad with camera supposedly taking snapshots of pedestrians, after which he distributed cards reading "We really didn't take your picture, but how about seeing a reel one at the?", etc., etc.

For his kid matinee, special lucky number coupons were printed up and distributed with each admission week ahead in connection with the giveaway of four bikes. Through cooperation of local bottling works gratis pop was made available to children.

POINTING THE WAY TO ARMY TIEINS

Endorsement by high U. S. Army officials of United Artists' "The Duke of West Point" and possibility of further tieins along this line is indicated by the attendance of Brigadier General J. L. Benedict, Commandant of West Point, Mrs. Benedict and the Senior Staff of the Military Academy at the Radio City Music Hall premiere of the picture.

Theatremen making similar tieins can use this promotion in invitations to West Point graduates, officers of local military bodies and also, where tieup warrants, to the troops who no doubt will be glad to parade as ballyhoo for the date.

Hollister Plants "Clitterhouse" Contest

Each day for five days preceding opening of "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse," C. L. Hollister, Babcock, Wellsville, N. Y., planted a contest in local newspaper. Each day a two-column scene mat from a previous "doctor" picture was published, theatre tickets going to the first 25 "naming the doctor," and stating in what picture he had appeared.

"Peep show" was arranged for in vacant store window, divided in half by card. Left side was devoted to copy and photos showing the successful society physician by day and right hand side depicted Robinson as the daring master criminal by night. Copy across entire display read, "What thirst for knowledge caused this man to be a Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde? See the startling answer in," etc., etc.

For "You and Me," Holly distributed by losing on sidewalks, leaving on counters in stores, etc., 50 "me" halves of regular passes. On following day same procedure with 25 "you" halves were distributed with instructions that two patrons presenting a complete box between them at the boxoffice, cashier would gave a second pass permitting both to attend performance.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Contests Highlight "Time" Campaign

The Carpenteria Chronicle and Ledger cooperated with Howard Ralston, Warner's Granada, Santa Barbara, on a contest in connection with "Having a Wonderful Time." Cash prizes and guest tickets were awarded to readers submitting letters on best vacation stories. Winning entries were later run together with names. Second contest was over radio station, prizes going to those correctly identifying songs plugged over the air; picture and playdates were mentioned daily.

Attractive complete windows of vacation and hunting equipment were secured from four leading merchants and postcards with cut and hand-written with personal message were mailed direct to selected list, entire cost met because of small space on card sold to local sports shop. Also secured by Ralston were co-op ads secured from various merchants.

Individualized Displays Stressed at Roxy Theatre

Setpieces for Coming Attractions Aimed for Appeal to All Classes of Patrons

by HOMER H. HARMAN
Advertising and Publicity Director
Roxy Theatre, New York

In this modern day and age, there are many successful ways of calling Mr. and Mrs. Public's attention to our leading product, whether it comes under the classification of newspaper advertising, newspaper stories and general releases, radio or window and lobby displays. This holds true in the motion picture industry as well as with automobiles, furniture and even the grocery stores we all patronize every day.

It is a known fact that when an automobile dealer wants to sell his product he tries to reach each and every member of the family. It is also true that when our favorite grocer has a certain item that he wants to push during the season, he displays it to catch the eye of Mr. and Mrs. Public. The furniture dealer, likewise, uses the same tactics.

Adopts Same Methods

Newspaper advertising, radio programs and feature stories for newspapers and magazines are worked over very carefully so as to appeal to everyone. There are prospective customers and patrons in all classes. However, the smart advertiser takes care to arrange his ad and radio schedule so that one of each is sure to hit the different types of prospective buyers.

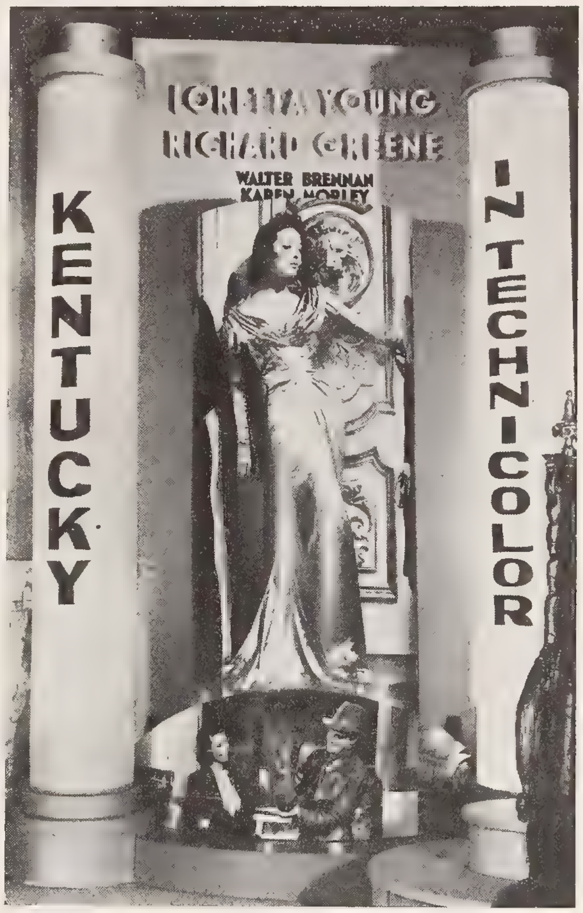
This same idea is also important in selling motion pictures and shorts. It has always been the practice of a smart advertiser to try to appeal to every class of movie patron. That thought of various appeals holds true in displays and set pieces. Today's theatre manager and advertising man spends considerable time going over the picture's theme, cast of stars and general sales points before the displays and set pieces are actually constructed and displayed. In back of it all we have but one thought. It is to sell our patron on our next week's program, the next and the next.

In a great many cases our efforts, as well as those of our display and poster department, are rewarded. Patrons do come back. Possibly, it was the newspaper ad that appealed to them directly. Maybe it was a radio program that they enjoyed that brought them in, and then again, possibly it was the sales angle of the lobby displays and set pieces. There's actually no direct way of determining this.

Various Treatments Used

By applying the same tactics used in theatre newspaper ads, newspaper and magazine stories and features—that of appealing to every member of the family, and to all classes of movie-goers, in posters and lobby displays, I sincerely believe that more can be accomplished in the way of success.

In this vein considerable thought was given to the various styles of displays and set pieces used in connection with the advance advertising campaign on "Suez" for its World Premiere showing at the Roxy Theatre. Analyzing the various types of patrons that attend the Roxy and every other theatre in the world today, we find that many enjoy seeing the performance from the main floor seats. Others prefer the Mezzanine Section; and then there are still others that would rather sit in the Balcony seats. Since these patrons have their own likes and dislikes, I believe they are also receptive to individual advertising methods.



ANIMATED SETPIECE IN ROXY LOBBY

To begin with, the Roxy Rotunda, considered the largest in the world, was designed, architecturally and decoratively, with but one thought: to give the feeling of intimacy. The interior of the Rotunda is designed in the early plateresque period, which prevailed in the early Renaissance in Spain and Italy. Naturally in such a setting care had to be taken so that the advertising displays or set pieces did not conflict with the background of the Rotunda and offset the beauty such a setting affords.

To fit into this general theme, a setpiece was especially designed. (Ed: Reproduced in Nov. 12 issue.) It was displayed between the Main Entrance to the Rotunda and the stairway leading to the Mezzanine Section, a location that has to be passed by every patron entering the Roxy. Two spirals were constructed of corrugated cardboard material for the base, becoming a part of the spiral stairway to the Mezzanine. Cutout letters on the important credits in "Suez" and the stars' names were mounted on these sweeping spirals. In the center of the spirals, a three-sided upright was installed. On each side was placed an enlargement of the pictures' stars, Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Annabella. This portion of the display was placed on a small turntable in order to give the setpiece movement.

Likes and Dislikes Considered

The idea behind this type of setpiece was simply to call the Roxy patron's attention to the fact that "Suez" was the next attraction. As shown in the photo, the copy served as merely an announcement. (Editor: This was also carried out in the animation in the same place, used in advance of "Kentucky," illustrated on this page. Center cylinder showing Loretta Young is on a revolving wheel.)

For the Roxy patrons who enjoy seeing the performance from the Mezzanine Section, other set pieces were designed for the Ladies' Lounge on that floor and the Men's Lounge rooms right off the Mezzanine floor. Enlargements again played an important part of the display intended to sell the men. Beauty, inasmuch as the display for the ladies was shaped like a bouquet of flowers, and stars.

The balcony patrons were given something different again, something to appeal directly to their likes and dislikes. The display installed in the Ladies' Balcony Lounge rooms sold romance, and another installed in the Men's Balcony Lounge, sold action more than anything else.

To Continue Procedure

Another displayed in the Main Lounge rooms for both men and women and located just off the Rotunda and Main Floor section followed through in more detail the sales angles features in the Rotunda setpiece.

Thus, throughout the Roxy Theatre, actually six different sales approaches were used in as many set pieces. Those that like the Main Floor found their style of advertising in the displays most convenient for their view; the patrons that enjoy Mezzanine seats found styles and copy that appealed to them in that portion of the theatre, and the Balcony patrons were reached by still another style—one that was designed to their liking.

As in the case of every newspaper ad, story, feature and radio program, this means of display advertising on "Suez" proved successful. I feel certain that this idea will also prove just as successful in other theatres, since the patrons of every theatre in the country have their own personal likes and dislikes and this display approach simply appeals to them in their language. It will certainly be given every opportunity in future campaigns at the Roxy.

THE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Three Outstanding NEW FILMS

EASTMAN announces three important new negative films for the professional motion picture field. . . . Plus-X: fast, fine-grained. Unsurpassed for general studio work. . . . Super-XX: super-speed, surprisingly small grain. For difficult newsreel shots, or for use wherever exposure is a problem. . . . Background-X: ultra-fine grain, ample speed. For backgrounds. Also excellent for all-round exterior work. . . . These films not only make dramatic advances along their particular lines, but offer the high reliability and photographic quality typical of Eastman sensitized materials. Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Distributors, Fort Lee, Chicago, Hollywood.)

KEEPING THE FAITH

If through all his days a man in business tells the truth as he sees it, keeps his word as he gives it, works for his industry, for its own sake along with his, he gets what is known as a good reputation. « « «

It is like that, too, with journals of business. Publications that matter have many of the attributes of personality. « « «

MOTION PICTURE HERALD is happy in the consciousness of, and responsibility to, a good name. « « «

THE CODE and ART

INTERESTINGLY divergent from so much of the frequent complaint of alibi seekers concerning the Production Code, is an expression to be found in the syndicated remarks of Mr. Harold Heffernan of the Hollywood correspondents brigade, quoted in this instance from the Springfield Republican:

¶ "The code has performed at least one brilliant service for the movies. It has cleaned out the lazy writer of questionable ability who relied on a smutty situation when the literary going became tough.

¶ "This type of movie penman has disappeared and studio writing departments today are populated for the most part by men of education, intelligence and good taste—not (as you've been popularly led to believe) by eccentrics who attain fame and big money by playing practical jokes.

¶ "One of the most successful of the new group of moderns is John Twist. . . . Twist thinks the Hays office 'shall-nots' in dialog and situations have been directly responsible for the screen's better crop of writers. . . .

¶ "The only really unjust restriction on the writer, and the most handicapping one, Twist believes, has been imposed by producers themselves through fear of jeopardizing certain foreign markets. This is the self-imposed ban on political and racial subjects."

NATIONAL BOARD CHOOSES

SPECIAL approach to its annual selections of "best" pictures of the year by the exceptional photoplays committee of the National Board of Review is made manifest in the announcements for 1938. The Board has, for instance, this time recognized the motion picture public with: "On the basis of popular appeal the review committees of the National Board have chosen the following in the order of preference: 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs,' 'The Citadel,' 'You Can't Take It With You,' 'Boys Town,' 'Marie Antoinette,' 'Alexander's Ragtime Band,' 'The Adventures of Robin Hood,' 'Algiers,' 'In Old Chicago,' and 'Four Daughters'."

That comes very near to saying that Hollywood knows best how to make pictures—for people.

It is doubtless for some other audience that the Board decided that "Grand Illusion" was not only the best foreign film but also the best film of the year. The exotics and esoterics must be served.

GLASS MIRACLE

PROMISE of the possibility of improving the light efficiency of lenses by as much as 35 percent is conveyed in an announcement from the General Electric research laboratory in Schenectady.

It is reported that Dr. Irving Langmuir, and his associate, Dr. Katharine Blodgett, have come upon a method of coating glass with a film which increases its transmission of light from a present maximum transparency of 92 percent to 99 percent. For multiple element lenses, such as those used in motion picture photography and projection, a gain of seven percent per element could readily give an over-all total of 30 percent or more. This would obviously be of most immediate importance in the studio, but could prove of large service in theatre illumination in the event the treatment were available for all glass surfaces.

It is said that the effective film applied to the glass is about four millionths of an inch thick. The films are applied by dipping the glass into a liquid bath on the surface of which the materials float in a layer one molecule deep, requiring 44 dips. The substance used is a metallic salt, described as "an insoluble soap." Its commercial and practical availability is yet to be explored. Its future may be importantly illuminating.

APPEAL

OUR friendly correspondent, Mr. Harland Rankin of the Plaza theatre up at Tilbury in Ontario, is having baby trouble. The other day he volunteered to help a distressed mother by taking her infant in hand for a moment. She left him and lost him, sitting down to enjoy the show. It was a long bill and the exhibitor was the guardian ad litem of an unhappy infant all afternoon. He seeks suggestions for future guidance, in view of the Canadian birthrate.

"FILMS FOR DEMOCRACY" is now announced in a "drive for a million audience members." Audiences of that size are not to be had by solicitation. To get a million people to look at anything requires that they be led to expect something profoundly, acutely interesting — entertainment, in fact.

YEAR'S end brings us the year's best sardonic laugh, with the reading of a federal report that the American Indian is doing much better now under a policy of not trying to "Americanize" him. That is dangerously near expression of opinion on "planned economy."

Then there's a tinge of another sensation besides sympathy when one reads that some person, impelled no doubt to share-the-wealth, invaded the home of Mr. Norman Thomas, number one Socialist, and made off with antique heirloom jewelry and Mr. Thomas' Phi Beta Kappa key.

YANKEE winter has settled into the Valley of the Silvermine, and the grey fox which lives over the hill came to call the other night, leaving his finger prints in the snow of the back patio. He likes roast beef bones, the softie.

This Week

British Money-Makers

Polled separately in the annual review of money-making stars of the year conducted by MOTION PICTURE HERALD and FAME, British exhibitors placed George Formby, Britain's outstanding comic star, as their first preference. Gracie Fields, first last year, placed second in the 1938 poll. Following in order were Will Hay, Jessie Matthews, Sandy Powell, Jack Buchanan, Charles Laughton, Anna Neagle, Will Fyffe, and George Arliss. In the British vote for preferences among both their own and the American stars Shirley Temple retained the leadership she attained in the American ballotting.

Results of both these sections of the 1938 poll as well as England's preferences among the western performers are listed, pictured and commented upon on pages 12, 13, 14 and 15.

Arrested

Bernard Natan, real name Tanezapf, formerly important in the French film industry as chief of Pathe Cinema from 1935 to 1938, was arrested in Paris Tuesday in what police called a 7,000,000 franc swindle, together with his friends, Simon Cerf and Alexandre Johannides.

Pathe Cinema was under Natan management when it was declared bankrupt in 1935 at the request of a shareholders committee headed by Robert Dirler, for non-payment of dividends.

It is reported in Paris that these three arrests are only the beginning.

Mr. Dirler said the arrests were the results of a six years' fight and that swindling reaching 400,000,000 francs had taken place.

Natan, who is credited in the main with producing the best French films at the beginning of sound, was one of the biggest enemies of American film companies and fought vigorously for the restriction of American film imports into France.

Headlines

Pressures exerted by special groups, including some within the fabric of the industry itself, and by Government, federal and state, constituted the most prolific single source of industry news during 1938. Leading them all in headline space and continuous development was the problem of trade practices, with subheadings for legislation proposed and enacted, litigation initiated by individuals and the Government, and the movement for voluntary and internal regulation. Other important chapters in the year's history covered the subjects of increasing constriction of the foreign market and the progress of labor organization.

A week by week summary of the headlines starts on page 45.

INFORMATION, PLEASE!

IN sequel to editorial expressions presented in Motion Picture Herald have come certain criticisms of what has been deemed the attitude of this publication toward "Films for Democracy", which some contend is a constructive, patriotic movement for the preservation of the traditional democracy of the United States of America.

Motion Picture Herald therefore considers it appropriate to ask "Films for Democracy" clearly, officially and publicly to declare its position with respect to:

1—The political theories commonly known as Communism.

2—The political theories commonly known as Fascism.

3—The political theories characteristic of both Communism and Fascism, and commonly described as Totalitarianism, under which the state reserves to itself complete rights over the life, liberty and pursuits of the individual, denying to the individual those rights held under the traditional American system as a natural and inalienable heritage.

MARTIN QUIGLEY.

More Propaganda

One more government, acting on the theory that the citizen exists to serve the state, and that the citizen should understand that fact more fully, has extended its sway to the motion picture industry. This week it is Mexico; that government's publicity department will produce 200 propaganda shorts in the coming year, chiefly two reel subjects.

Allied News

Sidney Samuelson, former president of the national organization of Allied Theatre Owners and then of the Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey, is reported taking managership of the new Philadelphia Allied organization. Official announcement is believed forthcoming after January 1st, coincident with membership drive in that territory with dues ranging from about $100 to $260 a year.

Wages and Hours

First payments for accumulated overtime under the retroactive features of the Federal Wages and Hours law were made this week to "white collar" workers in Hollywood studios, carrying out a decision reached after a series of conferences of studio attorneys and managers over the applicability to employees. The total amount was impossible to estimate due to the various bargaining agreements with office employees' associations at the different studios, covering different classes of workers. Payments made this week were for time and a half for hours work over 44 in any one week since October 24th.

New Erpi Pact

After an interlude of almost two years, studio attorneys are working on the new recording license agreements with Electrical Products Research, Inc. Practical phases of the agreements were concluded in the summer of 1936, and placed in effect at that time with reductions in recording fees of almost one-third the former rate. The agreement, however, never was formally concluded. Retroactive to June 1st, 1936, the agreements expire in 1944. The indemnity clause of the contract is all that remains to be decided to complete the pact.

New "Cavalcade"

Darryl F. Zanuck, production head for Twentieth Century-Fox, has decided to make, for next season, a picture tracing the history of the film industry, to be called "Hollywood Cavalcade." Ernest Pascal has been assigned to write the original story. This follows discussions among film executives in New York concerning a Golden Jubilee celebration of the industry next year. Sol Lesser has had in his files for some time, "Celluloid," a story by Rupert Hughes of the origin and development of the industry, but no definite plans have been made for its production.

Wooden Champion

A ventriloquist's dummy, the irrepressible and incorrigible Charlie McCarthy, "whom" Edgar Bergen has endowed with a character and personality of universal appeal, remains the favorite radio personality in the opinion of 600 radio editors and columnists polled this year by MOTION PICTURE HERALD and FAME to determine the champions of the air waves. Paralleling the McCarthy record, most of the top stars and programs of last year retained their positions in the 1938 voting.

The story of the survey, by Jack Banner, is on pages 17 and 18.

"Movies and Motor"

The Studebaker Corporation and its 4,000 automobile dealers in the United States are undertaking a nationwide car sales campaign during all of January, featuring tieups with the motion picture industry, keynoted "Movies and Motor."

The automobile people are using colored broadsides, billboards, newspaper and other forms of advertisements and exploitation and have devoted the entire issue of January's "Studebaker Wheel," to material on Hollywood pictures and persons, and studio scenes. The magazine goes regularly to some 250,000 prospective car purchasers, through the dealers.

Buys Company

Adrian Murphy was named temporary president of American Record Corporation this week following the purchase of the company by Columbia Broadcasting System from Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., for $700,000. Other officers named, also on a temporary basis, were Frank K. White, treasurer, C. C. Boydston, assistant treasurer, and Ralph F. Colin, secretary.

The purchase included the subsidiaries, Columbia Phonograph Company, Inc., Brunswick Record Corporation, American Record Corporation of California, Master Records, Inc., and several inactive companies.

SEC To Publish WPA Survey of All Registered Film Companies

A statistical study of all motion picture companies whose securities are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington is being made for the SEC by the Works Progress Administration, and the SEC will, if funds are available, make the results public in printed form.

The study will cover the history of the companies from 1934 to June 30, 1938, and will comprise the first survey ever made, for Governmental publication, of the organization and finances of the corporations.

The project will cover every corporation in general business whose securities are registered, but only a few industries will be selected as a subject for printed reports and within these industries only those lines in which there is greatest public interest.

SEC officials on Wednesday were unable to predict when the survey will be completed, pointing out that it is a complicated task involving a study of voluminous records and reports which have been prepared for the SEC.

The report to be published will give a general picture of both the producers as a group and the individual companies, together with the parent companies and subsidiaries of each, balance sheets and analyses of various financial statements.

Thumbs Down

With no move to the contrary having been made by the Italian Government, and none expected, American motion picture companies will have withdrawn from Italy by midnight on Saturday.

The list grows; there is no longer any market for the industry in Russia or Germany, in addition to Italy; and only a limited market in China and Japan.

On Tuesday the United Press reported from Rome that a movement had been started to eliminate all Hollywood types, including those listed by the critic of the Giornale D'Italia as "vamps," elderly aristocrats with white spats and monocles, and young, rich and spoiled "good for nothings."

Self-Regulation

Approval of the pending draft of trade practices for self-regulation was voted this week by the United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, the board of directors acting for the organization, fifth exhiibtor organization to do so. Previously, the program was rejected by the ITO of New York, Rocky Mountain Theatre Owners, Los Angeles Independent Theatre Owners and Allied of Northwest, while the Buffalo MPTO accepted it.

The UMPTO of Pennsylvania board said that while it considered the concessions "small," they were a step in the right direction, representing something never before given exhibitors by distributors.

BRITISH SELECTIONS IN ALL STAR POLL

THE INTERNATIONAL MONEY-MAKERS

FOR the third year in succession Shirley Temple is rated by British exhibitors as their biggest box office draw. By more than a fifty per cent lead over her runner-up, Jeanette MacDonald, Miss Temple has, in the third poll undertaken over the entire motion picture theatre territory of Britain, emphatically consolidated her position at the head of the British box office, a position she would seem to have held since her films began to permeate the British market.

Her hold is obviously on the increase, for even more votes have been polled for her than in the two previous years and a clearer lead established over her fellows, male and female, juvenile and adult.

The MOTION PICTURE HERALD questionnaire was issued to every picture house in Great Britain, and, with some 5,000 houses and managers approached, can be registered as representative in the last degree. The results, therefore, from replies received, are all the more interesting inasmuch as they once again emphasize the affinity of the British and American picturegoing publics in their loyalty to firmly established screen favorites, the stars. Miss Temple was head of both the American and the British polls last year, as she is again this year. The voting, this year, as already recorded, reveals a solidification of that position. On the wider field, however, and taking the other nine leaders as evidence, it is clear that the star system is in no danger of decline as a magnet of popular appeal on this side of the Atlantic.

Positions Changed

Comparisons of the 1938 results with those of 1937 are significant.

Jeanette MacDonald, down at seventh place last year, rises to second this year.

Spencer Tracy, not among the chosen last time, rockets to the eminence of third this time.

Clark Gable, last year's runner-up, recedes to fourth position.

Deanna Durbin, the recent and scarcely mature, earns the distinction of rising from virtual oblivion to sixth.

Robert Taylor, with one British film and a great deal of British publicity behind him, advances one pace from ninth to eighth.

Ronald Colman, Englishman still to English audiences, this year comes into the first 10.

Gary Cooper slips back from position four to position nine.

William Powell, ever a favorite with English audiences, though he steps back four paces, just slips into the final position of the chosen 10.

Comparing last year's American Poll with this year's British Poll likewise is interesting. Shirley Temple, as already recorded, stands firm. Gable, Taylor, Powell and Cooper, ever firmest of male favorites, were last year selected by American votes. They are selected this year by British votes. All, however, are down two or three places each. Bing Crosby, Jane Withers, Sonja Henie and Myrna Loy do not appear among Britain's selected 10. Those who appear in last year's American list and last year's British list and again on this year's British list are surely not the least significant figures. They are Shirley Temple, Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, Gary Cooper and William Powell.

> Imaginary characters born of the cartoonists' mind and pen are as real to the exhibitors as Hollywood's scintillants when Money Makers are up for discussion.
> Many a showman named Walt Disney's Snow White a money making star. Others wrote that Mickey Mouse and his Minnie belong among the ten leaders of the season. Popeye, too, came in for frequent mention, exhibitors emphasizing that their votes for Olive Oyl's Sir Galahad were not spinach but seriously made.

In many respects the choice of these first 10 is a barometer of popular taste, for though obviously it is a triumph of personalities rather than of pictures, the selection does seem to indicate a steady appeal of the more wholesome brand of picture, of the unbroken pull of youth, of music, of clean comedy and of the heroic.

Type of Product Important

An examination of the pictures in which the selected stars have appeared will make that abundantly clear. The sustained appeal of Shirley Temple, of course, is the appeal of childhood and unspoiled personality, ever potent entertainment magnets in this country. Similar reasons, together with the noted partiality of British audiences for good music, are probably behind the votes gained by Deanna Durbin. Not far removed, too, are the reasons for the slight advance of Robert Taylor, whose "Yank at Oxford" has been shown in Great Britain with distinct box office success. The clean cut personalities of Gary Cooper and Clark Gable, of William Powell and Ronald Colman, are also indicative of the directness and sobriety of British taste. Spencer Tracy's leap to the eminence of third position follows MGM's development of him as a star on newer and higher lines.

The popularity of George Formby is the popularity of an essentially British figure, featured in essentially British films, not only of comedy itself but of that native brand of comedy which has a consistent and emphatic appeal to British audiences. He supplants a former leader of film fashion, Miss Gracie Fields, whose recession into the background may be due partially to a temporary deviation from her particular brand of low comedy, but more likely to the current infrequency of her screen appearances.

The rise of Jeanette MacDonald cannot be taken as in any way a compensation for the retreat of Miss Fields, for her territory, once again that of music, and class music at that, is on a somewhat more Olympian plane. Apostles of Nelson Eddy, who has starred with Miss MacDonald, may find it illuminating to learn that it was the lady who was the draw. A not inconsiderable factor in the rise of Miss MacDonald to this position may have been the general release, during the balloting period, of "Girl of the Golden West," a picture which, coldly received by the press, and by no means a West End sensation, has, nevertheless, done exceptional business up and down the country.

Quality Is Test

It would seem that the test made by British audiences in regard to their screen favorites is quality, quality above all of personality and character. The quality of the stars chosen this year is definitely one of character which penetrates the artifice of publicity, quality of entertainment. In almost every instance the films in which their selected favorites have played have been highly graded as to human and story values, and above all wholesome, and quality of production, since the production values of every one of the companies concerned, including the English ones, have been consistently superlative.

The qualities mentioned are those which endear stars and films to the family audience, and the family audience is the foundation and basis of English picture theatre business.

Anent the disappearance from the lists of certain stars to whom the British audience long has offered loyalty, the creeping in of indifference of story or questionable subject, the fall from production perfection which has marked the economy period, are even more potent killers of a star's popularity than his or her own personal whimsies or temperaments. A big picture and a big name in America are a big picture and a big name in Britain for the most part. Nationality would hardly seem to matter at all.

1938 MONEY STARS IN BRITISH FILMS

AN ALL - BRITISH POLL

THREE years ago in fourth position, last year runner-up, this year George Formby, famous son of a famous father, strictly-English, almost regional English comedian, heads the MOTION PICTURE HERALD Poll of Money Making Stars in British films. He beats the winner of last year and the year before, Gracie Fields, by a margin which can scarcely be called narrow.

Formby's success is significant on its own merits. It is even more so in relationship to the recession to second position of Miss Fields. He is, as already suggested, a strictly local phenomenon, whose comedy is limited even in his native Britain, unknown to the London West End, and possibly coldly received in the more select feudal circles. Yet vis a vis the competition of "Our Gracie," recently commandeered by Twentieth Century-Fox for grooming into an international star, with Hollywood on her horizons, he has captured the laurels.

It is true that Miss Fields' screen appearances have been fewer than ever before, and but one of her films has been seen by the British public since the last Poll—the Twentieth Century Fox, Pinewood-made "We're Going to be Rich." This must have had a vital relation to the voting. On the other hand, the virtual change of character in her comedy as evidenced in this film, marking a slight tangent towards the melodramatic, may also have weighed the balance one way or another. She remains a terriffic box office draw. Formby, on the other hand, has been fortunate in meeting his audience in more than that number of films within that period, though wisely his producers are not bent on choking the public cat with an excess of screen butter.

Local Characteristics

The comedy of Formby is notedly a native product almost provincial in matter and appeal, with dialect and North Country institutions playing a leading role in the entertainment. Much the same, of course, must be said of his runner-up, Miss Fields, and a like constituent recorded in the vocalism of both, vocalism not essentially the same, but for that matter not essentially different. A certain human quality and simplicity of personality mark both artistes, with Formby, however, more partial to the sheer slapstick element.

Formby, however, has been more frequently before his screen public than Miss Fields. His personality is naturally comic, nearer to the clown, and like all true clowns sympathetic and likeable. Further, and perhaps most significantly his films have sought to keep him simple instead of surrounding him with an aura of glamour.

The Winners

George Formby	First
Gracie Fields	Second
Will Hay	Third
Jessie Matthews	Fourth
Sandy Powell	Fifth
Jack Buchanan	Sixth
Charles Laughton	Seventh
Anna Neagle	Eighth
Will Fyffe	Ninth
George Arliss	Tenth

Of the remainder of the chosen ten, all but two of last year's elect remain. Robeson and Hulbert, both of whom have passed into a partial or temporary retirement, recede to the lesser "Honour Group." Into the limelight come two new faces, Sandy Powell and Will Fyffe, both again regional comedians, one talking in the warm accents of Yorkshire, the other with the burred speech of Glasgow.

Changes Significant

Will Hay, still a favourite with British audiences, steps up from position four to position three.

Jessie Matthews, a quiet personality during the last theatre year, and now retired from films, goes down from third to fourth.

Jack Buchanan recedes one place from fifth to sixth.

Charles Laughton's popularity remains precisely where it was.

So, too, does that of Anna Neagle.

Down to tenth place goes number six of last year, George Arliss.

There is significance in all of these movements and immobilities. The continued appeal of Will Hay, a consistent and steady favorite with vaudeville, radio and screen audiences, indicates once again the loyalty of British cinema audiences to those personalities who remain loyal to them. Hay's brand of comedy never has changed, and his unpretentious personality has remained the same.

Jessie Matthews probably more than any other British star approaches the glamour of the Hollywood variety, and her recession one place does not indicate, it would seem, any less regard for her unaffected personality and musical and terpsichorean brilliance, only the dawn of new personalities on the entertainment horizons.

Sandy Powell, who comes abruptly from the lesser ranks to fifth place, strengthens the thesis that the brand of English film which is soundest at the box office is that which depends upon the English scene and does not dare go beyond the frontiers for inspiration and material. His comedies, for the most part very unsophisticated and plebeian in matter and manner, happily have exploited to the full his genial, essentially English, personality, made fun of and with the racecourse and the football pool, the back garden and mother-in-law, never being above the appreciation of the lowest common denominator in the screen audience.

Buchanan, Laughton Steady

Jack Buchanan, matinee idol, prince of musical comedy, stage producer and polished screen playboy, goes back one pace but still retains what is obviously a vast feminine following.

Charles Laughton, whose appeal has, of course, always been that of the character actor, retains exactly the same total of following as last year. English audiences relish the superlative in character acting, and the recent Laughton films have given him ample scope for displaying his undoubted histrionic genius. Probably the star would be the first to admit that his steady stance in the Poll is a triumph of ability rather than of personality.

Anna Neagle's "Victoria the Great," an acknowledgedly superlative performance, has helped her retain her position in spite of the challenge of others. More screen appearances probably would have lifted her into a more eminent position in the Poll.

Another new entrant to the chosen 10 is Will Fyffe, Scots character comedian whose performance in "Owd Bob" earned him fame on both sides of the Atlantic. Another radio and vaudeville top liner, Fyffe, and a specialist, in homely down to earth characters, with equal shades of sentiment and comedy, his progress is steady and unabated in the lists of popular favor, and yet another argument in favor of the thesis that British films are best when they remain British in material and treatment.

The recession of Arliss from sixth place to tenth synchronizes with the gradual recession of the veteran thespian from screen appearances. That he should not have fallen further back is probably a testimony to the respect English audiences have for the aristocrats.

Though in the wider international Poll it has been made clear that the nationality of the star and the origin of the film are of secondary significance, that it is the personality and the quality which count, on the purely British field the balance weighs in the vast majority of cases in favor of those stars who are essentially British and who appear in the less imitative and more racially local films.

British exhibitors, as shown by the ballot percentages above, were in agreement on the leaders and the honor stars, but the theatre men also named more than a hundred other players who, because of the frequency with which their names were mentioned, must be considered among the leading box office money makers of the year. BRITONS NAME BIGGEST WESTERN DRAWS

The ridin', shootin' western, wholly American in origin and locale, has a wide appeal in England, and the British theatre-going public, reflecting its preferences through the poll of exhibitors in England, votes vociferously for almost all of the stars who have popular followings in America. Also, their preferences remain nearly constant, eight of last year's first ten having again placed in that category although in slightly different order.

Only two of the cowboy heroes remain in the order of placement last year, Gene Autry who again is first and Dick Foran who retains his third position. Bill Boyd, fourth last year, moves up to second place, displacing Buck Jones who moves down to fourth. Tim McCoy and Ken Maynard, with a close division of votes, are fifth and sixth, an advance from their 1937 positions of seventh and eighth.

The Three Mesquiteers and Tex Ritter are the only two new names in the first ten. The trio, placing seventh, were not mentioned last year and Ritter, an honorable mention in the 1937 list, moves up to eighth.

George O'Brien and John Wayne, fifth and sixth last year, are ninth and tenth. The two stars of last year's favorites who are displaced are Harry Carey and Hoot Gibson.

VERMONT OWNER SUES UNDER ANTI-TRUST LAW

Charges Conspiracy by Distributors; "Missing Documents" Sought in Suit Against B&K

Kenneth M. Gorham, operating the independent Town Hall theatre in Middlebury, Vt., has filed an anti-trust suit against the eight large companies, asking $100,000 damages, in United States district court at Burlington. The law firm of John T. Conley, Middlebury, and George S. Ryan, Boston, is acting for Mr. Gorham, who also names as defendant Samuel Kurson, of Bangor, Me., and Middlebury.

Mr. Gorham asks that a preliminary injunction be issued restraining the distributors from refusing to enter into contracts with him for their films, and requiring delivery to him of an adequate supply at reasonable prices.

The final injunction is sought to prevent the continuance of the combination and conspiracy laid to the defendants and the continued monopolization of first-run films charged to the defendant Kurson.

Mr. Kurson is an official of the Graphic Circuit which operates 16 theatres in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, among them the Campus theatre in Middlebury.

In September, 1936, the Graphic Circuit is said to have conceived a plan to restrain and to monopolize interstate trade and commerce in motion picture films in Middlebury, according to the writ.

Mr. Kurson erected the Campus theatre and in December of 1936 entered into an agreement for the purchase of the apparatus, equipment and furnishings of Town Hall theatre, according to the complaint which adds that the Town Hall theatre then ceased to do business.

Equipped Theatre

Prior to May 27, 1937, the plaintiff, Gorham, secured the lease of the Town Hall theatre and equipped it. He says that profitable operation of the house requires approximately 200 films a year, first-run, of which it is necessary to obtain not less than 175 from the defendant distributors.

At that time in violation of the anti-trust laws of the United States, according to the plaintiff's claim, Mr. Kurzon entered into a combination with the other defendants to restrain and monopolize interstate trade and commerce, particularly the right to contract for and to exhibit first-run pictures in Middlebury.

Seek Contracts in Chicago Trust Suit

"Missing documents" are being sought from Chicago film exchanges as photostatic copies of contracts and letters pertaining to film deals are being forwarded to Rosenberg, Stein & Rosenberg, attorneys for the independent theatremen who are suing Balaban & Katz and the major companies under the trust laws.

The "missing documents," according to the attorneys for the independents, are parts of the contracts which have not been included in the material supplied thus far. Rosenberg, Stein & Rosenberg allege that they have not been given the complete records in some cases and they state they have written the attorneys for the major companies to supply the parts they claim are missing. The attorneys for the major companies and B&K state that the papers the plaintiff's attorneys seek, just don't exist.

Depositions in this suit will be taken by both sides soon. So far more than 1,200 photostated documents have been sent to the independent's attorney's. But the information regarding clearance allowed in some contracts is still missing, the independents claim.

As yet no final decision has been made as to just who will hear the case when it comes up for trial. Whether it will be Judge Wilkerson or a master-in-chancery has not been determined.

This matter will be settled after the plaintiff's legal staff have time to study the answers which were filed by the defendants last week. The answers in general denied the principal allegations made by the independents charging monopoly, restraint of trade and violation of the anti-trust laws.

On the Government's Chicago trust suit against the major companies and B&K for violation of a consent decree handed down in 1932, no further action is expected until January 16 at which time Judge Woodward will decide whether or not the defendants will be granted bills of particulars, etc.

NBC Billings $40,000,000

Network radio had its greatest prosperity in 1938, with the National Broadcasting Company gross billings for the year estimated at more than $40,000,000, Mutual Broadcasting System accounting for slightly under $3,000,000, and the Columbia Broadcasting System gross for the year amounting to more than $27,000,000.

NBC's figure is the highest in all network history. The company's cumulative 11-month total amounts to $37,575,607, and the December billings will boost the company's gross beyond the $40,000,000 mark, based on December expectations. Last December NBC's billings for the month were more than $3,000,000, and this December the gross is expected to surpass the previous December total by almost $1,000,000, according to estimate.

NBC's gross income for 1938 has been estimated by Mark Woods, treasurer, at $38,432,170. This figure represents the official gross income of the company. In arriving at the gross income figures, discounts as well as company revenue from sources other than time sales are taken into account.

Mutual's gross billings for 1938 are estimated at $2,932,955, which will represent an increase of over 30 per cent for 1938 for this network. Mutual's December billings will amount to approximately $327,000, it is estimated.

The CBS gross for 1938 is estimated at $27,343,337, which compared to the 1937 total of $28,722,118, will represent a decline of 4.8 per cent for Columbia. The total for the first 11 months of 1938 amounts to $24,816,337, with the total for December expected to amount to $2,527,000.

Doob and Toll To Study Games

New York exhibitors met Wednesday and appointed Oscar Doob, Loew's publicity chief, and Lionel Toll of the Independent Theatre Owners of New York as a subcommittee to conduct a study of cities in which chance games have been stopped, or have never existed, with attention to the box office effect.

The exhibitors, comprising the committee for the elimination of chance games, will meet again January 11th.

Paul Moss, license commissioner of New York City, may have an opportunity to carry out his threat to cancel the operating license of the Jewel theatre, on West 116th Street, Manhattan, when the case in which the Cinema Circuit, operator of the theatre, is charged with violation of the lottery laws, comes up January 9th in the special sessions court. The threat to cancel the license if a conviction is obtained was voiced by Commissioner Moss at the meeting of exhibitors in the Hotel Astor several weeks ago, called to devise a method of eliminating chance games and to hear Commissioner Moss emphasize his determination to enforce the laws if the industry did not "behave."

Meanwhile, in other territories, the drives against games have met with varying success.

In Philadelphia, operators Nathan Abelove and Alfred Shrier, of the Ritz met sympathetic treatment at the hands of Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell in that city's Municipal Court, in a case involving the game of "Quizzo." Said Judge Bonniwell in dismissing charges against the two theatre men, of violation of local lottery laws: "The spirit of chance is in every red blooded man or woman," and he added that the poor had the right to play numbers games, if the rich could play the stock market.

On the "grounds" that games such as "Bingo" were falling into the grasp of racketeers, Andrew J. Duch, prosecutor of Mercer County, New Jersey, banned such games altogether, and was immediately backed by William H. Dooling, chief of police of Trenton. Mr. Duch said he had received complaints from merchants and churchmen, and charged that the games had "degenerated" into open lotteries.

"We condoned the idea in the beginning, when the nature of the game ("Bingo") was very different," Mr. Duch stated.

In Hope, Arkansas, Elmore Dougan, of the town of Emmet, has filed suit for $300 damages in the circuit court against the Richards-Lightman Theatre Corporation, charging that when his name was called from the registration list in a "cash night" at the local Saenger theatre, the management refused to give him the money. The defense questions Mr. Dougan's presence in the theatre at the time of the drawing.

Justice of the Peace E. D. Lawrence ruled in chancery court in Biloxi, Miss., that "Bank Night" has not been proved a lottery and is therefore not illegal in that state. His ruling disposed of the state's case against M. E. Ferrera, manager of the local Saenger theatre, charging violation of the lottery laws for advertising a "Bank Night."

Theatre managers in Baton Rouge, La., have warned patrons to hold their game stubs until "such time as awards will be allowed," following the local sheriff's statement that arrests would be made in accordance with Governor Richard Leche's order classifying "Bank Night" with slot machines, race horse betting, and lotteries.

F. L. Koppelberger, general manager and treasurer of the La Crosse Theatres Company, went directly to the public by advertising an appeal for support and an exposition of "Bank Night's" benefits, in the La Crosse Tribune and Leader Press.

CHAMPIONS OF RADIO CHOSEN BY EDITORS

Leaders Retain Top Positions in Third Annual Popularity Poll

by JACK BANNER

Charlie McCarthy, Edgar Bergen's chief caviar-winner, again has been declared the "Radio Champion of Champions" by a majority of the 600 radio editors and columnists who were asked to nominate their favorite air performers in FAME'S third annual popularity poll. The return of the fresh little splinter of wood to the thronedom of radio was not accomplished as easily as his victory of last year, but he did manage to stay a comfortable span ahead of Jack Benny, his closest competitor.

Comparatively little change has taken place in the realm of radio since last year's competition, the poll reveals, for in practically all major instances the 1937 victors have been returned as the leaders of 1938. However, the year did produce two personalities whose marks may yet prove to be indelible. One, Orson Welles, is a comparative newcomer to the air; the other, H. V. Kaltenborn, is a veteran of the microphone who, most deservedly, has finally come into his own as radio's foremost newscaster and editorialist.

Mr. Welles and Mr. Kaltenborn are superb artists in their own particular fields, the one a leading figure in the theatre and the darling of the playgoers, the other a respected and honored member of the newspaper profession who turned his talents to radio. Yet, in the radio procession, they were but a couple of inconspicuous marchers until Chance, that unpredictable mistress of human destinies, centered the spotlight on them by leading Europe to the brink of war. With the precipitation of the German-Czech crisis, to every American within earshot of a loudspeaker was brought a continuous view of the shifting strategies of the European diplomats. CBS, following every broadcast from abroad, placed Mr. Kaltenborn on the air to interpret the news.

The war scare "made" Mr. Kaltenborn, and in an indirect fashion the same scare "made" Mr. Welles, for had not listeners been made vulnerable to a case of jitters by what they had undergone during the "20 critical days," it is inconceivable that they would have succumbed to the "Martian" fright that the now memorable Welles' broadcast induced.

Crosby, Allen Named

Returning now to the "Champion of Champions" division, we find the forceful and youthful Mercury Theatre leader in third place, a spectacular climb from his "not mentioned" placement last season.

Below Welles is Bing Crosby, just nosed out of the third place groove, with Fred Allen in fifth place.

And here, by the way, is a good place to indicate that the poll listings this year are to be confined to the first five artists in each division and not, as in previous contests, trailing with full complements of names. This is being done to make the poll more selective.

Bing Crosby's unorthodox baritoning apparently has perpetual appeal, for again Bing is a handy winner as the best vocalist, popular, in radio. His closest competitor—not too close—is Kenny Baker, with Nelson Eddy third, Rudy Vallee fourth, and Frank Parker fifth. This is the third consecutive year Bing has led this division.

Eddy Leads Vocalists

Indicating how frequency of appearance on a popular program builds personality popularity, Nelson Eddy leads radio's male vocalists, classical. The Charlie McCarthy program soloist noses out for top place Richard Crooks, star of the Firestone Hour series. Lawrence Tibbett, who has been abroad a great part of the year on a concert tour, is a strong runner-up. John Charles Thomas and John Carter trail in that order.

Kate Smith is the titlist of the popular songstress contingent, winning handily over Frances Langford, who last year upset Miss Smith's leadership. Appealing Connie Boswell follows Miss Langford, with Jane Froman next and dusky-skinned and voiced Maxine Sullivan, who "rags" the standard American folk tunes, is in fifth place.

Margaret Speaks Winner

The first real upset occurs among the feminine classical singers. Absence from the airways of such performers as Lily Pons, Jeanette MacDonald, Grace Moore and Jessica Dragonette has taken its toll, and consequently we find such regular radio performers as Margaret Speaks and Lucille Manners dominating the division. Miss Speaks is the winner, with Miss Manners such a close second that only three votes separate them. Lily Pons is third, and Kirsten Flagstad is fourth. Gladys Swarthout, who has been off the air for some time, closes the division in fifth place.

Fred Allen seems perennially destined to run second to Jack Benny as the air's top comedian, and this is the way they finish again in

U. S. Leads the World in Radio, Listing 737 Stations; NBC Has 159

There are 737 radio stations in this country, a figure far beyond that of all other nations, seven of the largest foreign countries having a combined total of only 323, including their short wave broadcasters.

The National Broadcasting Company owns or operates 22 percent of the total, some 159 of the 737 stations in the U. S. Columbia Broadcasting System owns or operates 16 percent, 115 stations, while Mutual Broadcasting and its affiliated Don Lee network on the coast have 15 percent of the total, with 108 stations, of which the Don Lee group operates 27.

There are 80 stations in Canada. England has 17, all under direct control of the government (British Broadcasting Corporation), and 16 short wave stations, also B. B. C. In France there are 14 government stations, 11 privately operated stations and one short wave. Russia has 77 stations, of which three are short wave, all government controlled. Germany, Japanese and Italian governments also control their air waves, with Germany having 28 stations operating in regular channels, and 12 in short wave; Japan has 40 regular channels and three short wave, and Italy 19 regular channels and five short wave stations.

FILM SPONSORED SHOWS NEAR TOP

1938. Charlie McCarthy (or Edgar Bergen, take your pick) is the third choice, with Eddie Cantor and Fibber McGee closing the quintet.

Popularity of the "Baby Snooks" characterization on the MGM Hour has brought Fanny Brice to the top spot as the air's premier comedienne. In winning she supplants Gracie Allen, the titleholder in previous elections. Shouting Martha Raye is third, and Mary Livingston and Jane Ace follow.

Burns and Allen Top Team

The dominant comedy team—try to displace them—are Burns and Allen, who annually take the votes in this division. Bergen and McCarthy is the number two team; Jack Benny and Mary Livingstone, third; Amos 'n' Andy are fourth; Fibber McGee and Molly, fifth.

The most popular dramatic series in radio is the Lux Radio Theatre, followed by Orson Welles' Mercury Theatre of the Air, One Man's Family, the Columbia Workshop, and Edward G. Robinson's Big Town series.

The Jell-o series, with Jack Benny, is ranked the best comedy program. Town Hall Tonight, with Fred Allen, is second, taking the number two spot away from Amos 'n' Andy, whose program was ranked second in last season's poll. The Easy Aces are third, Fibber McGee's show is fourth, and Amos 'n' Andy come under the wire in fifth place. Votes for Bob Hope's show were coming in strong at the time the poll closed.

Special Swing Class

Dance orchestras in this year's poll are divided into two divisions—popular and swing. Orchestras of Guy Lombardo, Horace Heidt, Kay Kyser, Richard Himber, Hal Kemp and Eddie Duchin lead the popular orchestra brigade, with Duchin and Kemp tied for fifth place. The swing leaders are Benny Goodman, Tommy Dorsey, Kay Kyser, Art Shaw and Bob Crosby, finishing in that order.

The NBC Symphony over which maestro Toscanini presides is the outstanding choice as the best liked classical musical unit, with CBS's New York Philharmonic in second place. The Ford Symphony is third, the Philadelphia Orchestra fourth, and Frank Black's NBC Symphony fifth.

Kay Kyser's engaging series, "Kollege of Musical Knowledge," scores as the best popular musical program, with the Fred Waring show in second place. The Hit Parade and Vallee shows are in a tie for third; Kraft Music Hall is fourth, and the American Album of Familiar Music coupled with the Heidt Brigadiers, fifth.

Ford Hour Leader

Undoubtedly the program about to be listed here as the best classical musical series will occasion some surprise, for the choice is not, as one might conclude, the NBC Symphony with Toscanini. Rather, it is the Ford Sunday Evening Hour. It may appear especially surprising in view of the choice of Toscanini's Symphony as the best liked classical musical unit. Nevertheless, that is how the radio editors voted. The Ford Hour is first, the Toscanini series second, the New York Philharmonic broadcasts third, Firestone Hour fourth, and the Cities Service program fifth.

Editors declared the best of the children's series to be Let's Pretend, a CBS sustaining program conducted by Nila Mack, CBS director of children's programs. The other four, in order, are Orphan Annie, Lone Ranger, Singing Lady, and American School.

Lux Radio Theatre, the radio editors have reiterated, is the best Hollywood program radio has to offer. The "Theatre" seems to have taken root as the best all-time Hollywood series in radio. Now in its fifth year on the air, the Radio Theatre has fashioned a secure hold on affection of the nation's listeners. In 1938—as you may expect in '39 and '40—the program scores with even greater emphasis than in previous elections as the best Hollywood program, as well as the best dramatic series.

Still "The Queen"

The fame of the amusement world is commonly as fragile and short-lived as a flame. Surprise comes with indications in the career of Jessica Dragonette and evidences of the abiding nature of the impress that she has made on her audiences. Despite the fact that she has been off the air since the autumn of 1937, going after ten years of radio, and voluntarily, to concert, she is winning votes, position and acclaim in radio polls.

Miss Dragonette was named "radio queen" of 1938 by the readers of Radio Guide magazine, and she has been a leader in other national polls such as those of Fame and the Scripps-Howard and Hearst newspapers.

In 1939 Miss Dragonette is to give her voice to the screen, completing a round of three principal media—radio, concert stage, and film—with a fame founded on ten years of radio.

Presenting Hollywood

There is, of course, an explanation for the "Theatre's" consistent popularity. The hour has presented glamorous Hollywood with creative imagination as well as a high standard of showmanship. Recognizing that the radio audience is composed of movie-minded listeners, the "Theatre" presents Hollywood in its most fascinating aspects from the standpoint of stars, the material it selects for dramatization, and behind-the-scenes glimpses of the interesting Hollywood of reality. These are the factors which have contributed toward winning for the Lux Radio Theatre millions more listeners than any other dramatic program in the history of radio.

MGM's "Good News" is the second best film series on the air, according to the editors balloting. "Good News" is increasingly forging ahead as one of the best of the Hollywool offerings, and it promises to make its presence felt even more forcibly as time elapses. The Chase and Sanborn Hour is third, Kraft Music Hall is fourth, and Hollywood Hotel, now off the air and replaced by Orson Welles' show, is in fifth place.

Don Wilson is by far the editors' nominee as radio's foremost announcer—a third straight win for Don in this poll. In order follow Ken Carpenter, Harry Von Zell, Milton Cross and Graham McNamee.

H. V. Kaltenborn is undoubtedly the radio personality of the year. Laboring importantly but obscurely at CBS as news analyst for a number of years, this season saw him emerge as the man to whom the entire country paid rapt attention as, during the critical 20 days preceding the Munich Pact, he brilliantly and accurately analyzed and interpreted the pulsating news from across the sea. He is the stand-out selection among commentators. Next in order are Lowell Thomas, Edwin C. Hill, Gabriel Heatter and Boake Carter.

Don Ameche is the choice of the editors as the most effective film player in radio. Closely following Ameche is Edward G. Robinson, now almost as great an attraction on the air as he is at the boxoffice, and following, Bing Crosby, Frank Morgan, William Powell, and Charles Boyer, the two last-named equal choices.

Approximately 95 per cent of the editors who participated in the poll awarded to CBS the palm for providing the year's best special events job, and of course the nomination was for the network's outstanding coverage of the Czech crisis. Significantly, the majority of the ballots bore the citation—"CBS Czech coverage with Kaltenborn." The handful of remaining citations in this division were for NBC's and Mutual's coverage of the same events; the hurricane coverage by all the networks, and the handling of the Howard Hughes flight.

Most painless commercial readings, the editors declare, are those heard on the Jell-o, Ford, Johnson Wax, Kraft, and the Sherwin-Williams "Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air" programs.

FAME's 1938 poll concludes with a special citation and award to "Information Please," the audience participation program now delighting listeners every Tuesday evening.

Hart to Coast on Production Code

Vincent G. Hart left for the coast last weekend to spend three months in the Production Code Administration Headquarters there. His assignment is in line with the policy of rotating members between the eastern and west coast offices to further a uniform interpretation of the Production Code.

Upon his return to New York in April, Mr. Hart will undertake further efforts to extend Production Code service to foreign producers. The Eastern office of the Code reviews foreign films and has been making a continuous effort to advise foreign producers of Code regulations and interpretations in advance of production, rather than to be placed in the position of having to request deletions in a finished film.

Winnipeg Is Winner In S. R. Kent Drive

Twentieth Century-Fox's Winnipeg branch placed first, and the Montreal branch second in the 18-week S. R. Kent Drive which ended December 17th. The contest was on accumulated delivery for the period against quota. Winnipeg branch employees will receive five weeks salary, with proportionate prizes for the other prize winners. In addition to the Montreal branch, which placed first last year, the other winners in order were Des Moines, St. John, Omaha, New Orleans, Chicago, Calgary, Seattle, Memphis, Minneapolis and Toronto.

William C. Gehring's central division led the others, being responsible for nine of the 12 winners. In the overseas division, China took top money, leading 36 other countries.

Lester Tietjen, head of the Warner home office playdate department, died Sunday at the Post-Graduate Hospital in New York after a long illness. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Tietjen.

"What the Industry Faces in 1939"

IN the issues dated December 17, Martin Quigley, editor-in-chief and publisher of MOTION PICTURE HERALD and Motion Picture Daily, presented concurrently in those journals a discussion of the motion picture situation under the heading of "What the Motion Picture Faces in 1939." Attention and reaction from the readers reached by this all-industry coverage is reflected in letters reproduced herewith.

CALLS DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM "VICIOUS"

DEAR MR. QUIGLEY:—

I have just read your splendid article appearing in the December 17th issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD.

For the past year now I have been well aware of the many things that you point out in this editorial, but who am I that could be so bold as to point out these flaws to mighty Hollywood, and their high powered salesmen.

All of Hollywood's shortcomings, and there are many, can be traced directly to the vicious and unfair distribution system that is in vogue at the present. They say to Wilmington, Ohio, that you will take and play what we give you or else.

What you say about radio competition is correct, and to think that Hollywood has actually sponsored this unfair, free competition.

What does Hollywood care about economies? The exhibitor dollars are earned by sweat and blood, and Hollywood throws them out the window and demands more. Then the distribution system goes to work and more customers are driven away from the box-office as the result.

Again I say, Mr. Quigley, you are on the right path and you are very, very close to the thoughts of thousands of exhibitors.—CLARK C. RADER, New Lamax Theatre, Wilmington, Ohio.

"THE HANDWRITING ON THE WALL"

DEAR MR. QUIGLEY:—

I feel quite sure that you are glad to know just how your editorials are registering with your vast number of readers, not alone for the satisfaction of knowing that your readers agree with the timeliness and value of what you have written, but also that you may feel that you have editorial pen on the nerve center of the industry and that you have a correct understanding of the strength or weakness or fluctuations in the pulse and heart action of this industry.

I want to express to you my appreciation for your editorial in the December 17th issue of the MOTION PICTURE HERALD. It is worthy of a reprint in the HERALD and every other trade paper. Many paragraphs should be put in bold black type and underscored; it should be framed and put on the desk of every executive that plays a part in How Pictures Are Made, How Many Are Made, How They Are Distributed, and, last but not least, How They Are Sold to the Public by the Theatre.

The third paragraph of that editorial sounds as true to me as did the message spoken of in the Bible, "The Handwriting on the Wall," that was interpreted by Daniel to the King. We are headed for "A Change!" It's coming just as sure and just as certain as the sunrise of another day is certain to come. And as you have prophesied, the results to some will be disastrous. The change is likely to be as sudden and powerful in scope as were the reforms caused by the "Legion of Decency Storm," and many of the wise ones, in the high as well as the lower ranks of this industry, had said, such a thing could not happen—but it did!

May I say, as an exhibitor, that I believe that your fourth, fifth and sixth paragraphs should give every producer something to think about, and to those who refuse to take this warning seriously, they are headed for a fall.

Hollywood must recognize the fact that they are "Out of Step" the same as we in the exhibiting end of the business.

The last paragraph of your editorial, on page eight, should be reprinted in type large enough to cover the whole page. Radio is not an ally! And hundreds of exhibitors, like myself, have cried to the high Heavens that the industry should recognize and treat it as a mighty competitor.

The public is not fooled by a system of exhibiting that provides an outlet for pictures that have little excuse for ever having been made. Such a system cheapens the whole industry, lowers the chances of worthwhile product making a better profit, and thus decreases public confidence and appreciation for motion picture entertainment.

Any system or method that tries to force the public to take or like something that it does not want, is bound to fail ultimately. Inferior pictures (some of which should have never been made or released) have been shoved down the throat of the public on double bill programs—the good feature burdened with carrying the dud along. It has been said that one rotten apple will spoil a whole box of apples in a short time, and I honestly believe that producers have damaged much good product by mixing in the stuff they know to be inferior, pictures that were made deliberately for double billing.

The second paragraph on page nine should command a 24 sheet billboard reproduction and posting in the center of every (lot) of every company producing pictures. I will give a gold medal, to be presented by the HERALD, to the producer who will be the first to erect such a billboard on the studio grounds as an incentive for a higher standard of entertainment values in motion pictures, a command to the writers, directors, actors and all concerned with turning out a product that will restore motion picture entertainment to the ranks of leadership and public esteem.

The last two paragraphs of your editorial are a prophesy, and I am ready to bet two to one that it will rank high in the history of this industry starting with the year 1939.

Chronic ills of mankind do not get that way overnight, neither are they cured in a day; drastic measures are required sometimes to save the patient. This same truth can well be applied to any business.

Competition has often been credited with being the life of business, the incentive to develop a finer product, raise a higher standard of service. It looks as though something had gone wrong with this formula in the motion picture business. Many fine pictures are turned out month after month and there are theatre palaces in every worthwhile city in the land from coast to coast. But it looks as though the formula for selling pictures to the theatres, as well as the method of selling entertainment to the public, has gone haywire.

A poor grade of "apples" has been mixed too freely with the good apples, many other substitutes for picture entertainment have been mixed in wholesale quantities with what should have been a picture program only. Motion picture entertainment has been subordinated, had to take a back seat all too often, and the cash customer has been gorged on a diet that has not agreed with him. Picture palaces have stooped to the level of the "Grind Houses" in adopting a double and triple bill program.

We are headed for "A Change"! Forcibly or voluntarily, it's coming! Business will get better after the patient has gone through with the "operation."

Thanks for the editorial.—B. P. MCCORMICK, McCormick Theatres, Canon City, Col.

Copyright Suit Filed

Bernard Huff and Forest G. Bobitt have filed a copyright infringement suit in federal court in South Bend, Ind., charging that "I've Got a Pocketful of Dreams," sung by Bing Crosby in "Sing, You Sinners," was taken from "Just an Old Romance." Named as defendants with Mr. Crosby are Santly-Joy Select, Paramount Publix Corporation and W. C. Kolhurst, who operates the Fairy theatre in Napanee.

Paramount has filed an action in Los Angeles against Walter Catlett for $8,000 and costs, charging that the actor failed to appear for work on December 12th.

M. and L. Hess, Inc., has filed suit in New York supreme court against Newsreel Theatres, Inc., for $4,350. The plaintiffs claim real estate brokerage commissions for obtaining a site on 34th Street, New York, for the defendant.

A GREAT 1938 IS OVER!

This is the time to examine pledges and the faith with which they were kept • Through the medium of Motion Picture Herald's annual nationwide poll, the exhibitors have rendered their verdict • With Shirley Temple again voted Number One boxoffice star . . . with five 20th stars in the First Ten money-makers . . . with 20th awarded more monthly Box Office Champions than any other company . . . never before has one company been recognized as so completely pre-eminent as 20th Century-Fox in 1938!

"HAPPY NEW YEAR" HAS A MEANING!

During the dark days of 1932-33, it was a hard problem just to keep this company alive.

It was important to us and it was equally important to thousands of our customers that the company continue as an important production source. By devotion to its task, a loyal organization pulled the company through to health and strength, but this could not have been done had we not also received the support and confidence of exhibitors throughout the world.

A little more than three years ago, Messrs. Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck and William Goetz were invited to come with us, because of their outstanding production achievement.

Within those three years, without agitation or legislation, but by sticking strictly to the business of producing and selling pictures, Twentieth Century-Fox has steadily forged ahead until today the world's exhibitors vote it undisputed leadership.

But Darryl F. Zanuck and his production associates are not the kind of men to rest on past accomplishments. They recognize the responsibility of leadership. They appreciate their continuing obligation to our theatre customers

Accordingly, the thousands of exhibitors who depend on us for their product will be glad to know that the pictures our studio has produced for release in the first three months of 1939 are the strongest in this company's history.

I am sure you will agree that they represent a sincere and intelligent effort to give your theatre the greatest possible attractions.

We wish you a happy and prosperous New Year—and are doing our best to see that you get it.

S. R. Kent

President, 20th Century-Fox Film Corp.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Smashing Idols

With several studios already announcing that they no longer will bow to the decrees of foreign dictators, our own particular varieties of public figures are finding that they no longer can find sanctuary from satire in the dignity of their positions or personalities. The tendency to consider public affairs and public men, fictionalized for purposes of screen entertainment, has grown rapidly of late and promises to be expanded further.

Satiric slants at official pomposity shot up sharply in "Hold That Coed." Stuff-shirted civic and political wheelhorses took a beating in Sam Goldwyn's "The Cowboy and the Lady." Unsavory civic affairs were exposed in "Disbarred" and "King of Chinatown." It may be expected that Glenda Farrell's "Torchy for Mayor" will toss plenty of jibes at small town politicians. "Battle of the City Hall" will throw further light on what goes on when politicians, grafters and municipal officials get together. "One Third of a Nation" is based on a presidential dictum anent the under-privileged. In "The Great Man Votes," John Barrymore finds himself the sole voter in a pivotal precinct and emerges a national hero. One episode in Cecil De Mille's "Union Pacific" will picture how Abraham Lincoln cut red tape to set in motion the machinery that spanned the continent with railroad tracks. Frank Capra has in mind a story called "The Gentleman From Montana" dealing in a large part with activities under the Capitol dome.

Holiday Production

As would be expected, pre-holiday production was light. The studios were not very busy the week before Christmas, nor will there be a great deal going on before New Year's Day. After that date, however, things will be quite different, as present plans call for an unprecedented production rush.

Two studios dominated the week's work, Columbia and Monogram. At the first named, three pictures were started. Most important, "Plane Number Four," will feature Jean Arthur and Cary Grant, with Richard Barthelmess, Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell, Noah Beery, Jr., and Sig Rumann. Charles Starrett, Linda Winters, Bob Nolan, Robert Fiske and Vernon Steel will be seen in "Mounted Police" (tentative title). "In "Romance of the Redwoods," Charles Bickford, Jean Parker, Ed Laughton, John Tyrell and Lloyd Hughes will be featured.

Monogram Launches Two

Monogram started two pictures. "Navy Girl" will present Grant Withers, Fay Wray, Dewey Robinson, Andre Cheron, Robert Frazer, Craig Reynolds, George Sorell, William Von Brincken, Joseph Crehan, Duke York and Arthur Housman. Tex Ritter will be the star of the Ed Finney production "Sundown on the Prairie." The supporting cast lists Horace Murphy, Dorothy Fay, Karl Hackett, Charles King, Dave O'Brien, Bobby Terry and Hank Worden.

"Forged Passport" was started at Republic. It will present Paul Kelly, June Lang, Lyle Talbot, Billy Gilbert, Maurice Murphy, John Hamilton, Ivan Miller and Christian Rub.

SHADOWS CAST BY EVENTS

Producers deem themselves particularly fortunate when news events endow their pictures with unique topical significance.

Twice recently luck has smiled on Larry Darmour. Just as "Whispering Enemies," story of which has to do with business wrecking whispering campaigns, was finished, a whispering campaign broke out against a nationally known article. While "Sabotage," which has to do with enemy spy rings operating within the United States was being made, the series of arrests and prosecutions of actual spies was making sensational news headlines.

For Paramount distribution, Dario Faralla started the Spanish "Papa Soltero." Tito Guizar is the star and the supporting company includes Armanda Varela, Tana, Barney Norton, Paco Moreno, Sarita Wootan, Paul Ellis, Rose Terrich, Martin Harralaga, Arroyito, Carlos Villarias, Paul Lechua and Daniel Rea.

20th-Fox Finishes Three

Twentieth Century-Fox completed three pictures. "The Jones Family In Hollywood" will present the familiar players. The important players in "Winner Take All" are Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Slim Summerville, Henry Armetta, Bob Allen, Kane Richmond, Robert Allen and Johnnie Parrone. "Mr. Moto in Porto Rica" will present Peter Lorre, Armanda Duff, Jean Hersholt, Leon Ames and Robert Lowery.

MGM finished "Honolulu." It will present Eleanor Powell with Robert Young, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Judith Allen, Jo Ann Sayers, Eddie Anderson and Rita Johnson in the featured roles.

Italian actress Isa Miranda will make her American screen debut in Paramount's "Hotel Imperial." The supporting cast lists Ray Milland, Reginald Owen, Gene Lockhart, Rudolph Foster and Curt Bois.

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," Warner Bros., teams Priscilla Lane and Jeffrey Lynn in the leading roles supported by Fay Bainter, Roland Young, Genevieve Tobin, Ian Hunter, May Robson, Paul Panzer and Clem Bevans.

Columbia finished "Lone Wolf," in which Warren William, Ida Lupino and Virginia Weidler are featured.

Principal players in Republic's "Pride of the Navy" are James Dunn, Rochelle Hudson, Gordon Oliver, Horace MacMahon, Gordon Jones, Charlotte Wynters, Joseph Crehan and Charles Trowbridge.

The star of "The Flying Irishman," RKO-Radio, is Douglas Corrigan. Paul Kelly, Robert Armstrong, Eddie Quillan, Donald McBride, Joyce Compton, Dorothy Appleby, Peggy Ruan and Cora Witherspoon will be seen with the flyer.

Camera Improvements

In no branch of production have so many improvements been made as in that which has to do with the photographing of pictures. A new mounting invented by John Arnold, chief of MGM's photographic department, is being used on "The Wizard of Oz." Called, for want of a more scientific term, the "sloth camera," the mount hangs down from the arm of the travelling crane instead of being placed on top of it, as has been the method heretofore.

The mechanism can be operated from a point within six inches of the ground or stage floor or be raised to an elevation of thirty-five feet. It can "pan," tilt and turn in any direction and, like a pendulum that covers a complete circle, can be focused from any angle and at any height within its scope.

The "sloth" was used first to photograph the spectacular Munchkin set, in which it rose from the floor to take in the entire miniature city populated by midgets who play the Munchkin people. It can be adapted to the standard camera equipment to the the massive housing of color cameras.

Opportunities

As part of its expansion program, Universal has launched ambitious plans for the development of new screen personalities. Drawing on its own contract list, the company already has elevated several younger players to rôles of prominence and others who have displayed promise in recent films are to be given greater opportunities in the near future.

In line with its policy of developing star material from within its own ranks, Universal has given Constance Moore, who has been a member of the studio's stock company for the past year, the feminine lead opposite Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy in "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man."

Helen Parrish, another Universal potentiality, heretofore seen in comparatively unimportant parts, is given the opportunity of her career in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," in which she shares the title roles with Deanna Durbin and Nan Grey.

Dorothea Kent, another of the younger actresses, who has been seen a few times with Frank Jenks, will be co-starred with him in a series of comedies. A young leading man in whom the company executives have great faith is William Lundigan, who, having completed his training school duties in secondary productions, will make his featured bow as one of the two romantic leads in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." Stories are being studied for newcomer Vincent Price and for tiny Juanita Quigley, who gave a standout performance in "That Certain Age."

Lawrence W. Fox, Jr., president of General Film Company which produces the "Crime Club" short subjects for Universal release, has formed the General Commercial Film Company to produce advertising films. He will continue with the "Crime Club" productions.

FILM STOCKS' VALUE UP 96 MILLIONS, BUT VOLUME OF TRADING DECREASES

Values Push Ahead with Other Stocks in Last Half of Year Despite Government's Suit And Loss of Foreign Markets

by THE ANALYST

Motion picture stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange gained $96,202,500 in market value during 1938 from $623,738,750 to $719,941,250. At the same time, there was a sharp decrease in volume of trading. (See the opposite page.)

Both developments coincided with the action of the general market, which in 1938 made a sharp advance in the second half of the year while stock dealings dwindled to the smallest total in 14 years.

The market's rise, and a substantial pickup in general business, were predicated largely on governmental "pump-priming," but by the end of the year there were evidences that trade and industry would go ahead farther on their own initiative.

Lowest Level in March

The month of March witnessed the lowest level in film stock prices for the year, as it did for the general list. There was a brisk pickup after Congress adjourned in June. This gained momentum when the effect of latest recovery measures at Washington began to be felt, including the release of gold in the "sterilized" fund and the reduction of reserve requirements for Federal Reserve banks.

Despite the filing of a government suit against major motion picture producers in July to force segregation of theatre holdings, film stocks pushed ahead with the general list in the last half of the year.

This process was not an uninterrupted one. The stock market felt the weight of the Czech crisis during the summer months when central European developments threatened to plunge the world into war. With the postponement, at least, of an immediate showdown between the democracies and the dictatorships, however, there was a recovery in financial sentiment and the major trend during the late summer and fall was upward.

See Business Gain in 1939

In view of the international situation, the consensus of financial opinion at the year end was that business would continue to gain during 1939, while the stock market could be expected to engage in a nervous and irregular, but predominantly upward, trend.

As a result of the year's transactions on the New York Stock Exchange, leading motion picture shares completely reversed their showing of last year, although only one, Eastman Kodak, rallied sufficiently to wipe out all the 1937 loss and show a gain in valuation over 1936. Kodak, as of the close Dec. 24, 1938, had a total market value of $418,600,000, compared with $369,150,000 at the end of 1937, and $402,500,000 at the end of 1936.

Loew's Inc., despite legal difficulties, including the government case and a stockholders' action, gained $12,800,000 in market value during the year to a total of $84,800,000. The largest point gain was in Universal Pictures preferred, which rose from a 1937 close of 29 to 76 at the close of Dec. 24, 1938.

Other film stocks on the big board which gained sharply in market value in 1938 were Twentieth-Century-Fox, up $9,000,000; Twentieth-Century-Fox preferred, up $7,625,000; Paramount, up $5,200,000; and General Theatre Equipment, up $2,175,000.

Substantially increased earnings helped make Technicolor a feature on the curb market in 1938, the stock showing a net gain of about 5 points over the close of 1937. A wholly-owned subsidiary, Technicolor Motion Pictures Corporation, reported for the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1938, a net income of $863,000, compared with $451,000 for the corresponding period of 1937. Earnings of the company in the first eight months of 1938 were larger than for the entire preceding year.

Universal pictures common, listed on the curb, showed a sympathetic action with its preferred stock on the Big Board by rising 3 points for the year.

Bond Market Upward

Bond market action of film securities was mainly upward. The largest gain was in Warner Brothers 6s, which are convertible into stock of the company next year. The bonds rose 17 points to a price of above 91. Paramount issues were strong, the convertible 3¼s showing a gain of about 16 points to around 87.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum stock and bonds reflected uncertainties surrounding the company's reorganization proceedings, the stock showing a loss for the year of about 2 points, while the bonds, at a price of around 70, were off almost 8 points from the 1937 close.

Film Shares Join in Rise

The post-congressional-adjournment rally in the stock market during the summer months was fully shared in by the motion picture stocks, which jumped to new highs for the year after declining from 33 to 75 per cent from the year's opening prices.

Prices were sustained thereafter because the industry entered the new season with definitely more encouraging prospects than were apparent in 1937. Although earnings of motion picture companies from the beginning of 1938 to the fall were lower than in the corresponding period of 1937, and theatre admission prices, on an average, were lower, industry costs were reduced sharply, while box-office receipts in the latter part of the year were beginning to show the effects of increased consumer income. Higher payrolls, coupled with Government projects to provide employment, further enhanced the prospect of continued box office improvement as the year drew to a close.

The action of motion picture securities in the face of the Government suit to force the industry to divorce production and distribution from exhibition, and revise other practices, suggested that the development, the most pertinent of the year affecting the film business, was not one to cause alarm to holders of motion picture company stocks and bonds.

Sees Long Study

Indicators of the average investor's reaction to the suit may be found in the comments of financial and statistical advisory services. Standard Trade and Securities, published by the Standard Statistics Co., said:

"Because of the complexity of the subject it may be concluded that a long time, possibly years, will be required to investigate thoroughly present trade practices and customs. It should also be understood that many elements within the industry are in sympathy with the major portion of the Government's aims, and that through cooperative efforts, many reforms may be accomplished under the guidance of the court which could not be effected without some such authority because of the need for concerted action.

"Thus, this suit may prove beneficial through clarifying present uncertainties, eliminating certain undesirable practices which developed during the period of the industry's rapid growth, and defining clearly the rules and regulations under which the trade must operate in the future. . . ."

Discussing the possibilities of a Government victory in the suit, the Fitch Publishing Co., in a bulletin, said:

"Segregation of theatre properties from production and distribution probably would be accomplished in most instances by issuing to stockholders of the parent company stock of the subsidiary or affiliate now owning or controlling the exhibiting division. In cases where properties are owned directly rather than through a subsidiary, separation would be accomplished by issuing present stockholders a share of theatre stock and of producing stock for each share now held. Consequently, the investor would continue to hold interests in all divisions and if the production division were adversely affected, this might be offset by gains in the distribution division so that the net result would be the same."

INDUSTRY DESERVES SUPPORT: SCHENCK

The motion picture industry, observing its Golden Jubilee next year, is no longer solely a medium for mass entertainment, but has become "the most effective salesman of American products and the American way of life that the world has ever known," and therefore the Government should give it "the utmost in encouragement and support," Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, said Thursday night in a radio address, part of a symposium of business leaders, over National Broadcasting Company networks.

Classifying the motion picture among the five largest industries, Mr. Schenck also said:

"In the past, the film industry has never permitted business recessions to keep it in check for long. Thus, though business conditions in the last half of 1938 were none too good, the industry plans greater expenditures for production in 1939 than ever before in its history.

"Americans have always been proud of the supremacy of their motion pictures throughout the world. It is our purpose in 1939 to maintain that supremacy beyond question. But we propose also during the coming year to make the American public more proud than ever of their nation, their history and the system of free government under which we are privileged to live.

"And so we of Hollywood look forward to the New Year of 1939 with renewed confidence, resolution and pride."

Change to Afternoon Prices Brings Suit, But Theatre Wins

When a bargain hunting patron steps up to a boxoffice only to find that the cashier is just changing the signs to higher prices, it is usually a situation. To the patron it is always "an outrage," to some bystanders it is funny, to the exhibitor it may mean trouble. Cartoonists, columnists and the films themselves have used the gag successfully.

When it happened to John S. Zvirin, he went to court. (People on complaint of Zvirin vs. Roxy Theatre, Inc. N. Y. Law Journal, Dec. 19, 1938.)

Mr. Zvirin, while looking through his Sunday newspaper, saw a Roxy theatre advertisement which read, ". . . Any Day. Any Seat 25 cents to 1 P. M. Children always 15 cents. Show value of the Nation."

Finds Price Changed

Taking Mrs. Zvirin and their daughter, age 12 years, he arrived at the Roxy at 12:15 P. M. There was quite a line and they did not reach the boxoffice until one-half minute past one o'clock. Mr. Zvirin offered 65 cents, for three tickets; 25 cents each for his wife and himself and 15 cents for his daughter. It was refused. When he offered $1.25, which was 55 cents each for the adults, but still 15 cents for the girl. He was told that his daughter was "too big," and that it was $1.65 or nothing. Mr. Zvirin said, "Nothing doing."

In court, he charged the Roxy with violation of section 421 of the Penal Law, headed, "Untrue and Misleading Advertisements," first, on the ground that there was plenty of room inside, but that admission was purposely delayed to get the higher price. Second, that as he was on line at 12:15 P. M. he was entitled to the lower price, even if he did not reach the window until 1:00½. Third, that his daughter was a child within the meaning of the advertisement and entitled to enter for 15 cents.

Cleared on All Points

On the first charge, Mr. Zvirin's nephew testified that he was inside looking at the picture, and that he saw a number of vacant seats. However, records of ticket sales and other evidence disproved this contention and the magistrate ruled for the defense on this point.

Eliminating unnecessary wordage, section 421 reads:

"Any firm who, with intent to sell merchandise, real estate, securities, service, or anything offered by such firm to the public for sale, publishes in a newspaper an advertisement regarding merchandise, real estate, securities, service, or anything so offered to the public, which advertisement contains any statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor."

Section Not Applicable

The court ruled that the section does not apply to theatres and dismissed the case. Said the court:

"A theatre does not sell merchandise nor render service. It admits or licenses its patrons to view the performance. It is not required to grant the privilege to all comers, and is free to admit only those it chooses to admit, except that under the civil rights law, it may not make race, creed or color as the basis of exclusion. Admission tickets are not merchandise or securities, but only a convenience the theatre uses between the cashier's stand and the entrance to the theatre proper, instead of following a practice of requiring payment to an entrance usher." Continuing, the court ruled that a "promise" to admit patrons at 25 cents at stated hours was not a "statement of fact" and therefore did not come under the section. By implication, it was held that an exhibitor could advertise a lower price and then, later, change his mind.

Further, said the court, with reference to the daughter's admission, since no age was specified in the advertisement, the exhibitor thereby reserved the right to judge for itself as each case "might arise at the boxoffice."

Universal Production Ahead of Schedule

Universal studio is slightly ahead of its production schedule for the 1938-'39 season and will have no difficulty either in completing the full schedule or meeting regular release dates in the immediate future, Nate J. Blumberg, president, said on his return to New York from a four weeks' visit to the studio.

Mr. Blumberg was accompanied from Chicago by W. A. Scully, general sales manager, and several of the company's division managers who gathered with the latter at the office in New York for discussions on Universal's coming product and selling plans for it.

Censorship in Gastonia

The City Council of Gastonia, North Carolina, has instructed City Attorney Ernest R. Warren to draw up an ordinance forbidding indecent, immoral or salacious entertainment in any form in the town. Councilmen are slated to pass the ordinance at their next meeting in January, and as soon as it is passed the mayor will appoint a board of censors to exercise power over stage and film attractions.

Poli Heads Assessments

Poli New England Theatres, Inc., heads the theatre assessments with one of $1,516,925. Among the 264 taxpayers who have assessments in excess of $100,000 are also the Arena Co., $509,000; Bernhart E. Hoffman et al, $137,450; Howard Theatre Co., $105,460, and Harry L. Lavietes, $114,680.

Milburn Kenworthy, of Moscow, Idaho, has been named as president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association of the Pacific Northwest.

Rudolph Bach, formerly with Gaumont British, has joined the foreign features department of Columbia Pictures as New York salesman, under Budd Rogers.

Distribution Set In South Africa

Expansion of distribution in South Africa by Twentieth Century-Fox through the granting of long term franchises to a series of independent theatres to be erected in the territory under a plan which has been maturing for a year, was explained in detail this week by Walter J. Hutchinson, director of foreign distribution, on his arrival in New York at the end of a 30,000-mile journey through South America, Africa and Europe.

60 Theatres To Be Built

Within a year and a half, Mr. Hutchinson said, there will be a total of 60 new houses in South Africa served by Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists. Both companies are establishing their own exchanges in Johannesburg. Six theatres of the new group are completed, in Durban, Bloemfontain and three suburbs of Johannesburg. Except for a new house to be built in Jonannesburg in which Twentieth Century-Fox will invest $200,000 the company will have no investment in any of the houses to be constructed by independent groups. The Johannesburg house, on which construction is to start in March, will cost approximately $1,000,000 and will seat 2,100.

Mr. Hutchinson praised Otto Bolle, who has been in South Africa for a year as Twentieth Century-Fox representative, for his work in opening the field and encouraging the building of the new houses.

Before sailing for South Africa Mr. Hutchinson spent several weeks touring South American exchanges. He reported business there unchanged except for an increasing demand in the smaller towns for Spanish language pictures. In Argentina, he said, demands for increased restrictions on foreign trade are being heard but these are not directed solely at motion pictures, being part of a trade situation that involves Argentine pressure to obtain markets for its products.

From eight to ten films will be made in England in 1938 by Twentieth Century-Fox under an arrangement recently concluded with the Gainsborough studios as Islington involving the expenditure of over £1,000,000. The films will be made under the supervision of Maurice Ostrer and Edward Black. Robert T. Kane, managing director of Twentieth Century Productions in England will work with the studios in an administrative capacity.

New Goldstein House

Nathan Goldstein, president of Western Massachusetts Theatres, Inc., has announced that if conditions remain favorable his company will build a new theatre at Utica, New York, as well as erecting a new marquee and remodeling the front of the Paramount in Springfield, Mass. If the new theatre is built, it will bring the number of houses in the chain up to 21.

"Gordon Ellis" Drive

With the absence of Gordon Ellis, managing director of British Empire Films, Ltd., who is expected in New York shortly after the holidays, the company is planning a "Gordon Ellis" month as a tribute to Mr. Ellis. The company handles Republic's product in Australia.

John Considine, Jr., Seattle-born Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer, is back in Seattle making preparations for a film to be made early next year. The picture will be built around the Alaska gold rush days of 1898.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Signs-of-the-Times Department:

A boom in the armament business was disclosed this week by J. S. Stembridge, head of the largest arsenal in Hollywood. He has sold 17,000 rounds of ammunition for picture purposes in the past two weeks alone.

The biggest flurry in Hollywood musketry for 12 months has kept a dozen men at the Stembridge "armament works" busy cleaning and repairing 4,000 rifles and pistols, mixing 683 pounds of assorted powders and filling thousands of shells for three Paramount pictures now filming. Hundreds of other military rifles are on the location set where Paul Muni is the focal point for Warner cameras. Four hundred odd rifles are being used at RKO and a similar number will be needed for a fourth Paramount picture. One hundred and seventy-five pistols and rifles are being filmed in scenes at Walter Wanger's studio and Gary Cooper and a large cast of war fighters are fighting for Samuel Goldwyn and his film.

Various other smaller gangsters, western, outdoor and miscellaneous pictures are shooting it out elsewhere.

Herbert Goren, hockey reporter for the New York Sun, while snooping around in pursuit of the puck, skated into a piece of rather embarrassing information anent our Mr. Clark Gable.

Seems that Clark, hell-for-leather man from the North woods, was supposed to go to Madison Square Garden sports arena with Myrna Loy to enact scenes for "The Great Canadian," the background of which was to be furnished by the hockey teams of the Rangers and the Canadiens and Garden fans.

To make this possible, arrangements were made for the two big-league teams to play there the other night instead of in Montreal, as scheduled. But somebody discovered that Gable couldn't even stand on a pair of ice skates, much less do some heroics, such as splitting the defense while waving a merry howdy to pretty Myrna, sitting in a box.

Some Fun

J. A. Sander, managing the Chief theatre in Gallup, New Mexico, went to town in an exploitation campaign for Warners' "Angels with Dirty Faces," not forgetting some choice out-front ballyhoo, which he describes in the following note:

"On the Friday before playdate, we constructed a scaffold with a hangman's noose on it in front of the theatre on the sidewalk . . . nailed some handbills on the scaffold . . . of course this attracted the kids after school . . . some of the boys were playing around with the noose . . . one of them climbing up on the box, putting his head in the noose . . . and another boy kicked the box out from underneath him . . . of course the rope was long enough that it didn't hurt the boy, but it caused a lot of fun . . ."

Recipients of annual press passes to New York's Embassy Newsreel theatre are asked to sign the following "TEST-O-MONEY":

A couple entered Manager Richard Kirsh's "Jitterbug Contest" at the Stanley-Warner Queen theatre in Delaware, the other evening, went through several minutes of hilarious dancing and went on to capture the first prize. The large audience, Manager Kirsh and contest officials failed to detect the masculine leg muscles and truck-driver-calloused hands of the "girl" until the dancing Henry Swarter, garbed in a pretty green dress and silks, knocked the silk bandana from his head, revealing his identity.

Because he wanted to win a good-size chunk of that $250,000 "Movie Quiz" contest prize money, a young man went on a four-hour spree the other day. He had lost the "Quiz" booklet in which he had written his answers to the contest questions after seeing the required 30 features. His memory was short, so he had to start seeing them all over again with another booklet. But he ran out of money in a Kansas City hotel after having gotten along 27 pictures worth in the new booklet. In an effort to collect the admissions still required, he kidnapped a car owner and attempted a holdup.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

The Three Musketeers

(20th Century-Fox)

Dumas a la Hollywood

Alexandre Dumas' swashbuckling "The Three Musketeers" is regarded as the classic adventure story. Printed millions of times in scores of languages, thousands of times as a stage show, it has been several times a moving picture.

Some pictures based on literary classics have had great appeal; so have musicals, spectacles and bizarre comedies. This 1938-9 version will be a combination of all four. The preparation of something that never has been done before engaged the attention of humorists M. M Musselman, William A. Drake and Sam Hellman, who did the screen play. It was the inspiration for the special interpolations concocted by the Ritz Brothers and the special material conceived by Sid Kuller and Ray Golden. To give the picture melodic content there will be musical numbers composed by Samuel Pokrass, Golden and Kuller. Picturesque spectacle will form the backgrounds for the dances arranged by Nicholas Castle and Geneva Sawyer. Alan Dwan, who made Douglas Fairbanks' "Robin Hood," and "Josette" and "Suez," is the director.

Don Ameche will be the "D'Artagnan" of this picture, but the Ritz brothers will be the crazy characters. Other name values are those of Binnie Barnes, Gloria Stuart, newcomer Pauline Moore, Joseph Schildkraut, Lionel Atwill, Miles Mander, Douglas Dumbrille, John King, Gregory Gaye, Lester Matthews, Egon Brecher, Moroni Olsen, Georges Renavent and Fredrik Vogeding. Raymond Griffith ("One in a Million," "Thin Ice" and "Heidi"), is producing the picture, but Darryl F. Zanuck is giving it considerable personal attention.

Release date: Feb. 3, 1939.

12 Crowded Hours

(RKO-Radio)

Melodrama

All the action of this modern story will take place within the time specified in the title. The locale is New York; the most important sets are a newspaper office, a night club and apartment house, a dancing school and several street scenes.

The theme of the story, an original by Garrett Fort and Peter Ruric which was transcribed to the screen by John Twist, concerns the bigness of a man in admitting his mistakes and in his efforts to rectify them. How the man conducts a one-man crusade against a crime ring and how he and his sweetheart are caught in a net of underworld intrigue provides the romantic byplay for the melodramatic premise. The "numbers racket" is vividly treated.

Richard Dix and Lucille Ball will be presented in the principal roles. The featured support cast includes John Arledge, Cy Kendall, Donald MacBride, Allan Lane, Dorothy Lee who has been away from the screen for a couple of years, Granville Bates, Murray Alper, Addison Richards, Joseph De Stefani and Bradley Page.

Robert Sisk is producing the picture, which Lew Landers is directing.

Release date: Jan. 27, 1939 (tentative).

Dodge City

(Warners)

Western

Robert Lord is producing "Dodge City." "Dawn Patrol" is his last previous effort. He has numerous other important films to his credit. The director is Michael Curtiz and the top stars are Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland. One does not quickly forget the features in which these three combined their talents, especially "Captain Blood," "The Charge of the Light Brigade" and "Adventures of Robin Hood."

"Dodge City," which is being made in color, will not glorify a community in the way that "San Francisco" and "In Old Chicago" did. Dodge City will serve as the background. At the time of the story, 1872, it was said, "west of Chicago there is no law; west of Dodge City no God." Thus "Dodge City" is established as a western. An elaborate western it will be; nonetheless it will merely, but expertly, make use of those elements common to all western pictures. They may be tersely summed up as romance, melodrama, comedy, action, excitement and adventure.

Robert Buckner, a contributor to such stirring screen stories as "Jezebel" and "Gold is Where You Find It," spent much time in research before he completed the screen play.

In exploiting the picture, the fame that is attached to Curtiz, Flynn and Miss de Havilland because of previous outstanding productions will be useful, as will the name value of Ann Sheridan, lately in "Angels with Dirty Faces," Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Alan Hale, Guinn Williams, Cora Witherspoon, Thurston Hall, Monte Blue, Gloria Holden and a small army of favorably known players.

Release date: To be determined.

Sudden Money

(Paramount)

Comedy

When Charlie Ruggles heads the cast, it cannot be expected that the picture will be anything but a comedy. Thus, geared to be an amusing film, aptly titled "Sudden Money" will detail what happens to a man and his family when the sweepstakes ticket he holds wins the capital prize. The winner rounds up all the boys who played in a band with him years ago and tries to make them "swing conscious." His wife goes for society and art in a large and gruesome way; the daughter attends exclusive schools and goes millionaire-husband hunting.

Ruggles, presently in "His Exciting Night," will also be seen in "Two Weeks With Pay" before "Sudden Money" is ready for release. His family will consist of wife Marjorie Rambeau, grandfather Charley Grapewin, son Billy Lee and daughter Evelyn Keyes. Others who come under the influence of the suddenly affluent household are William Frawley, Broderick Crawford, Philip Warren, John Gallaudet, Mary Punkins Parke and Richard Denning.

Nick Grinde who made "Down In Arkansaw" for Republic recently and who has had much experience in handling comedy material through such productions as "Love Is On The Air," "Stop Look And Love" and "Ladies Crave Excitement" is directing.

Release date: April 14, 1939 (tentative).

Pride of the Navy

(Republic)

Service Story

Like practically every other Army, Navy, Marine Corps, West Point or Annapolis service picture, "Pride of the Navy" will have a romantic love interest theme. This is expected and necessary, but as all the ancestors of the present effort have had a different thrill action background, so will this.

The Navy is experimenting with and trying to perfect a splinter torpedo boat, a small swift speed boat that can launch a torpedo and escape. Trials are unsuccessful until an ex-Annapolis man, who has become a famous speed boat driver since resigning from the Academy, is called in. The proposition baffles him until he adapts an airplane device. While the story of these experiments is being developed, the comedy and drama subsidiary to the romantic theme has its moments. Eventually the radically designed boat is ready for demonstration. This, of course, brings on the thrill action episode in which the speed boat runs down and explodes a run-away torpedo before it can do any damage.

Principals in the picture will be James Dunn, Rochelle Hudson, Gordon Oliver, Horace MacMahon, Charlotte Wynters, Joseph Crehan, Gordon Jones and Charles Trowbridge.

James Webb and Joseph Hoffman prepared the original story and Ben Markson and Saul Elkins did the screen play. Charles Lamont is directing.

Release date: January 22, 1939 (tentative).

Stage Coach

(United Artists-Wanger)

Western

Long the almost exclusive property of independent producers, outdoor action adventure stories, commonly called in trade parlance "westerns," abruptly became subjects of major producer interest a few years ago. Since that time there have been, among others, such pictures as "Wells-Fargo," "The Plainsman," "Girl of The Golden West" and "The Bad Man of Brimstone."

"Stage Coach" is Walter Wanger's first pretentious outdoor effort since "The Trail of The Lonesome Pine." It is based on "Stage To Lordsburg," a Collier's magazine story written by Ernest Haycox. To prepare the screen play and direct the picture, Wanger reunited the famous team of Dudley Nichols and John Ford. Pictures from "The Lost Patrol" down to "Hurricane" are samples of their collaborative abilities.

Time of the story is 1885, when Geronimo's Apaches were on the warpath; the locale is the southwest desert country. All the action, its romance, melodrama, humor, pathos, terrorized fear, adventure and excitement, happens aboard a stage coach which is making the dangerous journey from Tonto, Arizona, to Lordsburg, New Mexico.

For prime name value the picture will present Claire Trevor, John Wayne who has been seen in many Republic pictures. Andy Devine, John Carradine, Thomas Mitchell, Louise Platt, George Bancroft, Berton Churchill, Donald Meek and Tim Holt. There will be tribes of Indians (and thus fights galore) regiments of soldiers and whole communities of pioneers. Secondary name values are represented by Francis Ford, Walter McGrail, Elvira Rios, Yakima Canutt, Florence Lake, Chris Martin and Cornelius O'Keefe.

In its making the picture had the cooperation of the Navajo-Apache Indian Agencies and the Department of Interior and backgrounds will present spectacular natural scenic formations that heretofore have been unpictured on the screen unless in an obscure travelogue.

Release date: February 22, 1939.

Hotel Imperial

(Paramount)

Wartime Romance

More than ordinary importance, especially from an exploitation standpoint, attaches to "Hotel Imperial," as it will mark the debut of a noted foreign artist on the American screen. Isa Miranda, practically unknown in this country, was and probably still is the ranking box office personality in Italy and in the domains served by Italian production. A tall blonde, acclaimed by the Paramount studio publicity department as an "accomplished dramatic artiste," she was starred in "Scipio Africanus," which was given some distribution here, and played opposite Fernand Gravet in "The Life of Nina Petrova."

The story, which will engage her talents as well as those of Ray Milland, Reginald Owen, Gene Lockhart, Curt Bois and another newcomer, Rudolph Forster, is a 1916 war romance, the locale a small Galician town alternately captured and lost by Austrian and Russian soldiers.

"Hotel Imperial" is being produced on an extensive scale. The settings and backgrounds are faithful replicas of the original locale. While the featured cast is small, the number of incidental and extra players, peasants, soldiers is large. The film is under the directing guidance of Robert Florey, who has made many melodramatic romances for Warner Brothers and Paramount.

Release date: February 17, 1939 (tentative).

Broadway Serenade

(MGM)

Romance and Music

With the exception of "San Francisco," "Broadway Serenade" is the only picture which Jeanette MacDonald has made for MGM in which she has no opposite singing lead. In theme the story is a romantic love story. It concerns the experiences of a Gay Nineties song and piano team. The girl goes on to stage fame. Her fighting pianist husband, also a symphonic composer, fearing that her success is parting them drops further and further down the social scale and is only kept busy on his composition by the influence of a kindly old friend. Meanwhile the wife, thinking she has found a new love with her producer, plans a divorce. But when the husband's symphonic fantasy becomes a commercial success, the other man gracefully steps aside and the song and piano team is reunited, professionally and romantically.

Lew Ayres, last in "Young Dr. Kildare" and "Spring Dance" will appear as Miss MacDonald's husband. Frank Morgan will be seen as the producer who sacrifices his love to the happiness of his star and her husband. Other important personalities in the story are Ian Hunter, now in "Comet Over Broadway," William Gargan, Rita Johnson, Virginia Grey and Katherine Alexander.

The music to be featured ranges from operatic melodies to those popular favorites of the Gay Nineties and a group of modern topical numbers. These were composed by Edward Ward and Herbert Stothart and Gus Kahn and Sigmund Romberg. The picture is based on a story by Charles Lederer who collaborated with Lew Lipton and Hans Kraly on the screen play. A Robert Z. Leonard picture as were "Maytime," "The Firefly" and "Girl of The Golden West," it will feature picturesque production effects.

Release date: not set.

Never Say Die

(Paramount)

Comedy

When a hypochondriac person who thinks he has many ailments, any of which is fatal, tries to help a lady in distress, amusing things are bound to happen. When the fancied sick man's worst malady is the unwanted attention of a muchly married siren and the lady in distress is working amain to rid herself of the amours of a penniless nobleman and the two sufferers come together, the occasion is rife in humorous possibilities. Complications that threaten to wind up disastrously eventuate as the theme progresses, but in the climax real love is again proved a panacea for imaginary afflictions.

A capable coterie of screen personalities, having a good time while they are doing it, is working to bring this potentially amusing screen property to picture realism. Directly concerned are Bob Hope, presently in "Thanks for the Memory," Martha Raye who doesn't need any more identification than Andy Devine, Gale Sondergaard who is teaching an Academy Award winning actress how to be an actress in "Dramatic School" and Alan Mowbray who has labored much of late for Hal Roach. There will be a lot of other people in the picture, but of these Ernest Cossart, Paul Harvey and Siegfried Rumann are the most important.

The film had its origin in a play by William H. Post which Don Hartman, Frank Butler and Preston Sturgess adapted to the screen. Elliott Nugent is directing.

Release date to be determined.

Arizona Bracelets

(Paramount-Harry Sherman)

Hopalong Cassidy

The record of William Boyd, Russell Hayden and George Hayes in the "Hopalong" pictures is long and notable. The series has provided solid and fresh entertainment for widely diversified audiences. Exhibitors have found the shows commercially valuable.

This time "Hopalong" and "Lucky," intent on a vacation visit with their old pard, "Windy," soon find themselves in a predicament that has romantic and melodramatic complications. A young woman rancher is menaced by a worthless convict husband. To keep his father's identity secret from her son, the girl is passing him off as someone else. "Windy" and "Lucky" fear that "Hopalong" is falling in love, the convict husband becomes involved with rustlers. That situation sets the stage for the hero to wipe out the rustlers and eliminate the threat to the woman and her son.

Me and My Gal

(Paramount)

Human Interest

Fox Films once made a picture under this title. But one's memory does not have to run back very far to recall that in midsummer, 1932, Paramount released a picture called "Lady And Gent." Then George Bancroft, Wynne Gibson, Charles Starret and James Gleason were the stars in the Grover Jones-William Slavens McNutt story which, now called "Me And My Gal," will feature Buck Jones, Helen Twelvetrees, John Hartley and Robert Armstrong.

Tersely, as also may be recalled, the Jones-McNutt story, for which Lillie Hayward and Brian Marlowe have prepared a more or less modernized screenplay, majored in human interest. As in 1932, this feature, to be released in 1939, is about a prize fighter who knew he was finished, his lady whom he never got around to marrying until the last act and the orphan son of his old manager. The fighter and the girl educate the boy who becomes an All-American football player, and unlike the present generation of football players, who either turn pro or take up wrestling, wants to be a prize fighter. With his fists the old pugilist convinces the youngster that the prize fight racket is no game for an up-and-coming youngster. Then he marries the woman who the boy always believed was his mother.

Aiding the above mentioned players in next year's version of "Lady and Gent" will be Donald O'Connor, Dorothy Howe, Grant Withers, John Hartley (who is O'Connor grown up to be the All-American). Ed Pawley, Sidney Blackmer and Philip Warren.

Kurt Neumann, who undoubtedly has taken many looks at the siring picture which Stephen Roberts directed, made "Touchdown Army" for Paramount and Joe E. Brown's "Wide Open Faces" recently.

Release date: March 31, 1939 (tentative).

I'm from Missouri

(Paramount)

Comedy

Bob Burns found his real place in pictures in "Arkansas Traveller." "I'm From Missouri" will be his first opportunity to demonstrate that he intends to make his new found spot permanent. The whole essence of the story is comedy.

In the beginning the hero is a Missouri mule raiser. With prosperity, he becomes a banker and his wife suddenly becomes socially ambitious. Then the bottom drops out of the mule market. Deciding to do something about this sad state of affairs, he flies his pet mule to a stock show. There he meets an English officer who has been sent to America to buy tractors for the army. Bob has no difficulty in proving that mules are better than tractors. To complete the deal, however, he and his family journey to London. All that happens thereafter is fun which culminates successfully for the mule raiser, after a hilarious party when he sells mules to the army that wants tractors.

Burns will have the assistance of a small regiment of capable performers in portraying the story. Except for a few of the names all are more or less familiar to audiences. Included are Gladys George, Judith Barrett, William Henry, E. E. Clive, Doris Lloyd, Barry Mackay, a newcomer just seen in "A Christmas Carol"; Patricia Morrison, Ernest Cossart, Dennie Moore, Tom Dugar, Spencer Charters and James Burke.

The picture is being directed by Theodore Reed who made "Tropic Holiday" in which Burns was featured.

Release date: April 7, 1939 (tentative).

Paroled to Exile

(Monogram-Crescent Production)

Melodrama

Convicted of crime and sent to prison on framed-up circumstantial evidence, the hero of this story, upon being paroled, sets out to learn who made him the victim. Unaware of his employer's identity, the boy gets a job in his secretly conducted gambling ring and falls in love with the sister. Participating in another crime for the purpose of gaining information, he learns that his boss was responsible, but his love for the girl is so great that he refuses to incriminate her brother. He goes back to prison, but before the exposed gambler czar dies he writes a confession exonerating the hero.

"Paroled to Exile" will present Robert Kent as the boy, Anne Nagel the girl and Sidney Blackmer the conspirator. The supporting cast will include Norman Willis, Victor Kilian, Maude Eburne, Ben Alexander, Pat Flaherty and Carleton Young.

The picture, which is being produced by E. B. Derr, is based on an original screen play by John Krafft and John T. Neville, two of Hollywood's most prolific writers.

Lambert Hillyer, long experienced in handling melodramatic screen material in more than six years' association with Columbia, and maker of Crescent's recent "My Old Kentucky Home," is directing.

Release date: To be determined.

CIRCUITS ADDED 410 HOUSES IN THE YEAR

But Independents Led Affiliated Circuits by Estimated Ratio of Seven to One in Expansion

Expansion by independent circuits was greater than that of affiliated circuits in 1938 by an estimated ratio of seven to one. Complete returns for the year probably will show an aggregate of 3,830 independent circuit theatres. This is a rise of 360 houses over the total in 1937, which was 3,470.

Affiliated circuits indicate a gain of approximately 50 theatres, which brings the aggregate number of affiliated circuits in the country to 2,400. From these figures, with four or more theatres regarded as a circuit, it is deduced that there are 9,000 theatres in operation in the country, under independent auspices, according to Motion Picture Daily.

Of the affiliated circuits, Paramount expanded most. Paramount theatres are operated on a decentralized basis through partnerships and management participation arrangements. The company, through affiliates, acquired 40 additional houses. Only one theatre acquired by Loew's in 1938 was listed. Fox West Coast (National Theatres) added seven. Warner Brothers acquired six new houses.

The only affiliated circuit to finish the year with fewer theatres than in 1937 was RKO. This company completes its 1938 calendar with three houses less than the number it operated the previous year.

Paramount's principal acquisitions were through the Malco Circuit (Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas); Butterfield (Michigan and Ohio); Sparks (Florida) and Blank (Iowa and Nebraska).

The Griffith Circuit of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, Roy Martin (Georgia) and the Schine Brothers (New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Maryland), acquired about 50 per cent of the aggregate gains made by independent circuits during the year. They added among them approximately 180 theatres.

The independent circuits comprise 370 individual organizations operating in 2,084 cities and towns of the country. Their growth has been fairly constant for the last five years. In 1933 there were 233 independent circuits, with 1,968 theatres operating in 1,006 cities and towns.

It was in 1930 that the affiliated theatres reached their peak in numbers. Since 1933 the average gain per year has been under 100 theatres for the five national circuits, Paramount, Fox West Coast, Loew's, RKO and Warner Brothers.

New Haven Area

Compared with new theatre construction of an estimated $500,000 for the year 1937, covering eight new houses, the year 1938 produced only two newly-built theatres for the New Haven territory, at an approximate cost of $250,000. The new structures this year were the 1,060-seat Dixwell Playhouse, completely rebuilt when a fire destroyed the Fishman House on the same site last spring, and the 750-seat Arch Street Theatre, built on a new site by George LeWitt, of the Strand, Plainville. Michael Cascioli, now leasing the Park Theatre, in the Allingtown sector of West Haven, is nearing completion of a new 900-seat Forest Theatre one block from the former house. Joseph Faith is building a new house in Unionville; Joseph Quittner has announced plans for a new theatre in Jewett City, to succeed the Finn's, damaged completely by the recent hurricane; A. M. Schuman will build a 1,000-seat house in the Black Rock section of Bridgeport; and Nathan Lampert, another suburban 600-seater in Wethersfield.

Theatre improvement has taken in the neighborhood of $350,000, twice the $175,000 for 1937, which represented unusual modernization activity in that territory. Whereas last year's figure was composed largely of Independent expenditure, this year's total is represented by Loew's and Warner expenditures for new sound, complete modernization, marquee and other items along the two circuits.

Five-Year Survey Of Kansas Area

In the five years ending December 31st, an independent survey shows, 32 new theatres have been built in Kansas, representing 18,160 seats, and 32 have been constructed in western Missouri with 18,000 seats. This is a total of 64 houses and 36,160 seats for the Kansas City area.

About half of the new houses constructed in Missouri represents new theatres in the strict sense of the term; that is, the seats were not in existence before. The percentage of new seats runs a little higher among the theatres built in Kansas in the same period.

Dowling Leaves RKO

Matt Dowling, head booker at the RKO exchange in Oklahoma City, has resigned to join Griffith Amusement Company as a booker out of the Dallas office. Frank McCabe, former manager of the Criterion in Oklahoma City and head booker for Standard Theatres Corporation, has also joined Griffith.

Colman on Kellogg Hour

Ronald Colman is the latest addition to the cast of the Kellogg program, which starts on the NBC Red network January 15, J. Walter Thompson managing. This is the first time Mr. Colman will appear on radio. Others to appear are Lawrence Tibbett, Cary Grant, Carole Lombard.

Film Council Formed

The Motion Picture Council of Denver has been organized with Campton Bell as president. The organization plans to recommend better films to member bodies, among which are the Parent-Teacher Association, Denver Women's Press Club, National Council of Jewish Women, National Council of Catholic Women and the Denver Council of Church Women.

Lasky Appoints Two

Jesse L. Lasky has named Hobart Bosworth and Bryant Washburn as his personal representatives for the "Talent Quest" program which makes its debut January 8th over the Columbia Broadcasting System network.

FAMOUS - CANADIAN REPORTS GAINS

An interim report of Famous Players Canadian Corporation indicates that gross theatre attendance, as reflected in gross revenue of the company, will have a slight margin at the end of the current calendar year as compared with 1937. It is estimated that net profit for the year ending December 31st will be higher than the $861,646 which was recorded one year ago after payment of all charges, this being equal to $2.10 a share of common stock.

No major changes in the physical properties of the Canadian circuit have taken place this year. While several new theatres have been opened and additional houses secured, others have been closed with the result that the extent of the circuit remains virtually unchanged for 1938.

"Life Dances On" Bookings

"Un Carnet Du Bal" (Life Dances On) has been booked for first run bookings into 18 key spots, including Detroit, San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, and Worcester, Massachusetts. The film, being released by Columbia Pictures' newly created Famous Foreign Features department, has already played New York, New Haven, Boston, Syracuse, Buffalo, Hartford, Conn., Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington.

Tri-National Has Guitry Film

Sacha Guitry's newest picture, "Champs-Elysees," in which he plays five parts, in addition to having written and directed the film, is being prepared for early American release by Tri-National Films. The picture traces the history of the famous boulevard from the time of its inception in 1617, down to the present. This is linked to the story of a single family.

Fabian Acquiring Seven

The Si Fabian circuit will take over seven Staten Island, New York, theatres from Parland Theatres on long term leases. One of the theatres is the Paramount, 2,274-seat house at Stapleton, which is owned by Paramount but pooled with the independent circuit. Harry Shiffman is general manager of Parland.

New Post for Ament

Walton C. Ament, news editor of Pathe Newsreel for the past year, is to be named managing editor of the newsreel. He replaces Allyn Butterfield, who resigned recently. Mr. Ament was formerly a member of the RKO trustee's legal staff at the home office.

Pathe "Goodwill" Tour

Questioning bookers and exhibitors on their preference for various types of shorts, Louise Rousseau, assistant to RKO-Pathe production manager Frank Donovan, is touring the country's exchange centers.

Pressures from Without Headline Film Year

CLOSING a year notable for a multiplicity of troubles at home and abroad, some boiling up from within but most of them initiated and encouraged by forces external to its fabric, the motion picture industry found reassurance in recent indications that some at least of its financial problems in the final weeks of 1938 showed marked signs of improvement. Financial statements, seriously affected by the spring and summer slump, gave indications of returning strength in end of the year predictions.

Other industry problems remained unsettled. Criticism of present trade practices, external and internal, rose to a crescendo which could not be ignored. Paralleling the threat and final realization of sweeping Government action in the courts against distribution and production as at present constituted was a movement, long sought by organized exhibition, for voluntary regulation which resulted in the formation of negotiating committees, the submission of tentative proposals, and criticism of those proposals by theatre owners organizations. No decision has been reached. Accompanying the bass thunder of the Government suit in equity were overtones of Congressional and state legislative activity pointed toward regulation by legislation.

The growth of the totalitarian influence and lowering war clouds in Europe quickened the decline in receipts from the foreign markets. Anschluss in Austria and the victory of Nazi influence in the Balkan states removed those markets from the books. The Italian situation, long difficult, ended in a complete break when the Mussolini Government set up an official bureau to handle all film distribution and American companies refused to participate. The new British Films Act, passed in April after long controversy, added new restrictions to American operations in that country.

At home, labor gained new strength and consolidated the organization gains begun in 1937. The International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees completed organization of exchanges and announced plans for complete unionization of the industry, precipitating jurisdiction quarrels with Hollywood talent guilds and independent unions. The Screen Writers' Guild won official certification by the National Labor Relations Board and began a long court fight to force producers to accept the decision.

The chorus of voices demanding access to the audience commanded by the entertainment screen grew louder in volume and more varied in origin. Educators, propaganda groups ranging from left to right, and vendors of shoes and ships and sealing wax who long have sought to hawk their wares from the industry's ready-made forum redoubled their efforts. Their success was notably small.

Double bills, and chance games were debated, attacked and defended but remained in approximately the same proportion as in 1937. Hollywood took to heart the maxim that good pictures are the best and only universal answer to besetting problems. The quality curve continued its upward trend, stories of adventure and derring-do received extensive and expensive treatment and were as remunerative as always, homely themes and family life stories grew to the proportions of a trend, and Shirley Temple led all the rest in the annual poll to determine the ten best money-making stars with two other juveniles, Mickey Rooney and Jane Withers, not far from the pinnacle.

J. FRANK BROCKLISS DIES; OWNED EQUIPMENT FIRM

Briton Formerly Headed Manufacturers Group and Committee of Censors in London

J. Frank Brockliss, former chairman of the British Cinematograph Manufacturers Association and for several years chairman of the Committee of the British Board of Film Censors, died December 23rd in London. Mr. Brockliss was 59.

Born in Kensington, London, Mr. Brockliss was educated at St. Charles College in Kensington and at London Polytechnic. He entered the motion picture industry in 1909, and became managing director and owner of J. Frank Brockliss, Ltd., London, and S. A. Brockliss-Simplex, Paris, France, European concessionaires of Simplex Projectors, Peerless Arc lamps and other projection specialties.

During the World War Mr. Brockliss was in charge of the British Military Cinema.

He established the Paris office of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and was managing director from 1921 to 1925. From 1925 to 1927 he was managing director of First National Pictures, Ltd., London.

In the years from 1927 to his death, Mr. Brockliss devoted practically all his time to the Brockliss accessories organization covering Great Britain and Continental Europe.

J. FRANK BROCKLISS

Harry Myers, Silent Film Actor, Dies

Harry Myers, 56, celebrated for his portrayal of the star role in the silent version of "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," died in Hollywood, December 25th. He had been ill for three days. In "Connecticut Yankee," released shortly after the World War, he helped bring a new vein of satire to the screen. The picture was later remade with the late Will Rogers in the title part.

With the advent of sound Mr. Myers faded gradually from the scene. He scored a hit in Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" as a man-about-town who took up with a tramp and appeared in the Bing Crosby film "Mississippi" and also in "Hollywood Boulevard."

George Lawrence Dies; Camera Experimenter

George R. Lawrence, 70, "the father of flashlight photography," died in Chicago, December 15th. Mr. Lawrence's first experimented with flash powder in 1893, took the first aerial photographs ever made by a commercial photographer and in 1900, in the days before enlargements, invented the world's largest camera, weighing 1,400 pounds, taking pictures eight by four and a half feet in size and requiring 15 men to operate.

One of his achievements was a kite which carried his cameras 2,000 feet in the air and by which he made pictures of the ruins of San Francisco after the 1936 earthquake. He sold $15,000 worth of copies of these photographs.

Richard Cummings Dies

Richard H. Cummings, 80, retired actor, died December 25th, in Los Angeles. He was a native of New Haven, Conn. An actor on the stage he started in motion pictures in 1912 in New York with the old Tannhauser company, later going to Hollywood for a role in D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation." He retired several years ago.

Raymond Sooy

Raymond R. Sooy, 59, superintendent of recordings for RCA Victor Company, died in Merchantville, N. J., December 20th, from a heart attack. In the last thirty-five years Mr. Sooy had recorded the voices of dozens of famous singers and the music of symphony orchestras, first for the old Victor Talking Machine Company and then for RCA Victor.

William F. Granger

William F. Granger, 84, stage and screen actor who appeared in "Lightin'," died in Hollywood, December 23rd. Born in Philadelphia, Mr. Granger began his stage career at an early age. He met Frank Bacon in Chicago while he was appearing in "Fortune Hunter" nearly twenty-five years ago, and became associated with him in theatrical ventures.

O. J. Astry

O. J. Astry, 71, who owned and operated two of the first film houses in Salem, Ohio, died there last week of a heart attack. His wife, a daughter and two sons survive.

Gaumont British Pictures Corporation of America has filed suit in New York supreme court against United Theatres, Inc., a Puerto Rican corporation, for $3,500 damages for alleged failure to accept films contracted for.

Loew's, Schenck File Denials

Charges that excessive compensations are provided under contracts of Loew's, Inc., with various executives and others to the detriment of stockholders have been denied in separate answers filed in chancery court at Wilmington, Del., by Loew's and Nicholas M. Schenck, president, to the bill of complaint filed recently by three New York stockholders.

Loew's and Mr. Schenck ask that the bill of complaint be dismissed and they be discharged with costs. Answers were filed by former United States Senator Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, solicitor for the defendants.

Additional denials were filed Wednesday by Norma Shearer Thalberg, Edwin J. Loeb and the Bank of America, National Trust and Savings Association, trustees and executors of the Irving Thalberg estate.

The complainants are Edgar F. Stiner, Hana W. Goldstein and Louis Susman. They charged excessive compensation, including fixed and percentage payments and stock options as provided under Loew's contracts. They asked an accounting, cancellation of contracts, injunction against continued payments and a decree awarding damages to Loew's against the various defendants.

The stockholders' suit against Loew's in New York supreme court was concluded last Thursday. Justice Louis A. Valente allotted one week for briefs and promised an early decision.

Fox Court Decision Not Due Till Spring

The decision on the $500,000 compromise to settle the All-Continent Corporation's recapture of assets suit, an important element in the $9,535,000 William Fox bankruptcy, is not expected before spring, Allen B. Endicott, Jr., federal referee in bankruptcy, revealed this week.

Mr. Endicott explained that negotiations and dickerings have been going on between lawyers for leading creditors, for Mr. Fox, and for the former producer's wife and two daughters, who own All-Continent. He felt that opportunity should be had for possible settlement of disputed points out of court, before he orders the cash offer accepted or rejected.

Trailer-Made Sued By National Screen

National Screen Service this week filed suit in federal court in New York for an accounting, damages and penalties against Trailer-Made, Inc., charging that Trailer-Made has taken sound tracks owned by National Screen and put them in its trailers. Of 30 Trailer-Made trailers examined by National Screen, 10 were found to have appropriated National's sound tracks, according to the complaint. National seeks to have Trailer-Made submit for examination all of its 500 or more trailers already produced.

National Screen owns, in its music library, many hundreds of original copyrighted works which it has orchestrated and recorded in its own sound tracks at great expense, it is claimed. The company asks for an injunction against further distribution and use of all trailers with its music. Isadore Schwartz and Pathe Film Corporation, which processes many of Trailer-Made's products, are made defendants.

BRITISH FILMS COUNCIL READY TO RULE UPON COOPERATIVE BOOKING

Silence of Circuits Makes CEA's Report a Case for Independents, While KRS "Passes Buck" to Producers

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Whatever be the criticisms which the British industry applies currently to the 1939 Films Act, most of them bitter, many of them justified, there would seem already to be more than one roseate indication that the Films Council created under the Act, for all its lay nature and film industrial inexperience, is taking its functions and role seriously. Whether it does so from an inner urge to serve or from the genial cracking of the highly elegant Board of Trade whip is a matter for conjecture.

Not least significant consideration is that whatever may be the complainings and regrets of producers, British exhibitors are not being neglected.

A hopeful augury of the Council's goodwill and constructive aim—indication, too, that the claims that the Council will function as a species of trade arbitration board are not unfounded—comes now in its readiness to explore and examine, if not ultimately to pass judgment on, cooperative booking as a principle and as a practice.

Evidence from Both Sides

Asked to consider the whole question of cooperative booking, a practice frowned on and dismissed by the Kinematograph Renters Society, the Films Council is now in full process of taking evidence from both sides of the dispute, evidence chartered by them with the purpose and end of passing final judgment upon one of the trade's most vexing problems.

The Cinematograph Exhibitors Association already has submitted its case, and the Kinematograph Renters Society has offered its apologia. In turn the CEA and KRS are each invoked to criticize further the memoranda of its opposing camp. Upon these the Films Council will decide, and if action is considered imperative, will act.

Problem in Politics

Here, however, arises a problem in politics. Should the Films Council, an elected body voicing public opinion and not the views of one trade section or even one trade, express a leaning towards the British exhibitors' view and away from that of the mainly American renters, it is still problematical whether legislation would be necessary. In all likelihood the renters politically and diplomatically would be advised that the adoption of a new policy would obviate the odium and publicity of Parliamentary action or administrative legislation. In all likelihood, too, they would, as in the case of the grading dispute, fall into line.

The memoranda presented and to be presented to the Films Council on cooperative booking have not been published, in some cases not yet considered.

The CEA was invited to present its comments in two sections, independents and circuits. So far the circuits would not seem to have offered their viewpoint, certainly not through the accredited official organization, the CEA itself. The CEA case thus becomes for once in a way the case for the independent exhibitor.

It is the determined contention of this camp that the three circuits dominate the entire exhibitor section of the industry. By their numerical strength they colour and manipulate the whole booking of films. The fact, however, is made a subject for complaint by the CEA, not so much on national grounds as on purely local. In certain districts they contend that, although the independents have a considerable majority of booking interests, they are debarred from pooling their resources by the KRS policy, which refuses to book films to interests not holding 51 per cent of the theatre shares. This 51 per cent test, they point out, is not applied to circuits.

TRADE ISSUE MADE ASSET TO THEATRE

A resourceful example of a current trade controversy being turned to the ultimate ends of local picture houses, comes from Weston-Super-Mare, England, coastal resort on the Bristol Channel, where joint work between local theatre managers and the district's newspaper has manipulated the discussion over double feature programs into an all round debate on films which has helped make local inhabitants film conscious.

Launched officially by Jardiniver, film writer in the Weston-Super-Mare Gazette, it originally took the form of discussions in his columns on film tastes and interests, particularly with reference to the question of two features, or one, in the cinema program. Ultimately a questionnaire was launched and circularized to 18,000 patrons, whose opinions were sought as a guidance on present and future theatre policy. Every local house collaborated.

The ballot has been discussed at length in the English film trade press. The questions cover quality of "second" features, program lengths, shorts, Westerns, favorite players and stories.

In another survey the London News Chronicle says 31 per cent of the British population averages once a week at film theatres, 13 per cent twice a week, 2 per cent four times or more.

What is the result of this, ask the independents? For answer they contend that they, the independents, have frequently to sell out to the circuits in order to prevent themselves from financial extinction and that the public itself suffers in the district from a plethora of mediocre films. The establishment of a legal right for the independents of the district to pool their resources would enable them to support better product, thus balancing their own budgets and doing justice to their patronage. No national policy is demanded by them, not even the right to establish a national scheme of cooperative booking. They ask merely the right to book locally on a cooperative basis.

To substantiate their contention that no "super" can be booked singly by the independent, they will present a tabulated series of examples of super films allegedly bookable only with other product.

Insistently the independents reiterate that it is not a question of reducing rentals, but exclusively of the even more vital one of obtaining product. The circuits, being allowed to pool their bookings nationally, may demand the right to do so locally.

The KRS, whose position is in some respects a delicate one, will probably not have an easy time in defending their position, and it is reported in informed circles that some of their members are dissatisfied with their official apologia. It is the KRS contention that innocuous as the cooperative booking principle may seem, the actual machinery is rather more sinister. They pass the buck back to the producers, most of whom, they point out, are currently not making profit, averring it is they who first of all would be hit by any cooperative scheme which was aimed, as they contend it is, at the reduction of rentals. The move is a wily one, bringing to the forefront of the battle the producer for whose benefit the Films Act purportedly was brought into being and in whose interest the Films Council deliberate. They have presented a historical survey of various cooperative schemes marking the past, endeavouring to point out the sinister purpose thereof. Their opposition to cooperative booking is allegedly a genuine effort to keep the market free. As a test of their sincerity they offer to consider each case on its merits.

Circuits Silent

Such an answer will be considered by the CEA as no answer at all, and exhibitors will be of the opinion that they have completely riddled the opposition. On the other hand the KRS seem aware of the difficulties facing the introduction of the cooperative scheme and probably are even inclined to the view that exhibitors may not find it easy to convince a lay body like the Films Council of the subtleties of such a pure technicality.

The silence of the circuits may be tactical, though one school of thought inclines to the view that it presages an ultimate widening of the principles of cooperative booking by all the circuits collectively. The establishment of a joint booking agreement, such as exists between Odeon and Gaumont, to include, for instance, ABC, and the Bernstein group, not only would have immeasurable effects on the reduction of film prices, but would obtain a much wider market for the British films sponsored by the circuits' production associates.

Long shot betting would seem to be in favor of a change in the renters policy and against the need for actual legislation.

Topper Takes a Trip

(United Artists—Hal Roach)

Ectoplasmic Comedy

"Topper" was no fluke. Any who thought the notable box office success of the first Hal Roach return to first principles of cinematic diversion was a result of mere novelty were in error. The same first principles are relied upon in this second picturization of a novel by the late and impishly irreverent Thorne Smith and the same professional preview audience filled the same theatre with the same kind and amount of laughter.

It would seem to follow that showmen are justified in promising their customers more of the same kind of entertainment in anticipation of the same profitable kind of satisfaction.

It is quite clear that Mr. Roach can continue making "Topper" pictures as a series, if he chooses to do so, with reasonable expectancy of continuing popularity. The second "Topper" picture is described as a sequel to the first, and is in reality a straightforward extension of the first story. This one deals with a divorce action brought by the name character's wife and the means by which the deceased lady, whose claim upon eternal reward derives from post mortem intercession in his domestic affairs, staves off final separation.

Roland Young again plays "Topper" as though he were indeed he, and Billie Burke is even better this time than last as "Mrs. Topper," with better lines to speak and more of them. Constance Bennett again displays a fine evaluation of point and tone as the lightly earthbound sophisticate, and Alan Mowbray is potently if briefly occupied as the butler. Franklin Pangborn and Alexander d'Arcy are proficient in support, and Paul Hurst adds one of his deeply etched characterizations. The ectoplasmic aspect, much more pronounced than in the first picture, is varied by the addition of a recently departed wirehaired terrier, and Cary Grant appears via flashback in the early sequences.

Milton Bren produced the film as lavishly as "Topper," or more so. Norman Z. McLeod's direction is effective in a degree plainly indicating increased confidence in his materials.

The screen play by Jack Jevne, Eddie Moran and Corey Ford is of a sort to suggest that these three merry men are quite able to carry on indefinitely in the same direction.

As in "Topper," the physical appearances of the now-you-see-her-now-you-don't heroine are productive of the loudest and longest laughter. A number of the situations are individually worth the admission price and collectively they equal a full evening. The story starts in New York and moves to Paris, and the time is the present. The film is appropriate for any place and right now.

Previewed at Grauman's Chinese theatre in Hollywood, where a professionally interested audience foregathered in evident professional defiance of Mr. Roach's efforts to make it laugh at "Topper" again, and forthwith laughed its head off.—William R. Weaver.

Crossroads

(Tri-National)

Story of Shell Shock

Just what the directive title of this French film importation means is not made clear either in the unfoldment of the story or in the translation of the Gallic dialogue into English subtitles. Perhaps the significance of the picture's label is to be connected with the dramatic crisis before the cast's chief character as he faces the problem of solving his true identity. However, in spite of its enigmatic appellation, the story of a man living the respectable life of a family man and a financier, who is revealed as a former Parisian bad boy, is told interestingly enough, even if the treatment of the problem of dual personality is more melodramatic than psychological.

Much of the picture's entertainment value can be credited to the moving and restrained performance of Charles Vanel in the role of the gentleman with a past. Supplementary assistance is given by the performance of Jules Berry as a blackmailer, Tania Fédor as the man's staunch wife and Suzy Frim as the other woman. An effective bit is supplied by Marcelle Geniat in the role of the mother. Except for some introductory court room scenes, which are necessary for the story's introduction but which are detailed in a slow and unimaginative style of reporting, the production has been directed by Kurt Bernhardt with a tension building pace.

De Vetheuil brings suit against a Paris paper for repeating in print charges of blackmailers that he is really Jean Pelletier, a fugitive from the police. The case is won for the contestant through the testimony of Sarrou. However, the motive behind Sarrou's move becomes clear when he reveals to de Vetheuil (or Pelletier to give him his right name) that his evidence was perjured. In settling upon a sum of "hush" money, the two men fight and de Vetheuil is injured. Tracked by the gendarmes to the night club apartment of his wife, who back in Pelletier's shady past was his heart interest, Sarrou threatens to tell all about his victim but is prevented by a well aimed shot. The wife turns the revolver upon herself but before a theatrical demise dictates a false death bed confession that the couple had been blackmailing de Vetheuil on the trumped up charge that he was Pelletier.

Pacific Liner

(RKO-Radio)

Melodrama

"Pacific Liner" is a different kind of sea story. Its basic plot brings two men into conflict, yet allies them in a battle against a lethal plague which rages in the ship's stokehold. All the action takes place aboard a liner making a trans-Pacific crossing, and most of it in the fireroom. Essentially the show is straight melodrama, but with the rough and robust comedy common to seafaring men. There is a trace of love interest, but that element is only subsidiary to the personal warfare between the ship's engineer and doctor.

Proud of his record, "Crusher McKay" drives his black gang with demoniacal fury to bring the SS Arcatus into port on schedule. A mysterious malady claims a member. "Dr. Craig," diagnosing the disease as cholera, quarantines the fireroom. The plague mows down man after man. While battling with "Craig," who he thinks is trying to spoil his record as well as get the inside track to nurse "Ann's" affections, "Crusher" gets a touch of the disease himself. With only a few of the crew to help him, he keeps the fires burning and the pressure up. Meanwhile the passengers, unaware of the danger, have been having a gay time. Finally, through "Craig's" medical skill, the plague is halted, and through "Crusher's" superhuman efforts the boat docks on time.

For principal name values, "Pacific Liner" offers Victor McLaglen and Chester Morris. Both handle types of roles in which they appear to best advantage with customary skill. The sole woman in the story is Wendy Barrie. Capable support for the leading trio is contributed by Alan Hale, Barry Fitzgerald, Allan

Long Shot

(Grand National-Fine Arts)

Horse Race Story

"Long Shot," a story of horse racing and particularly of the Santa Anita Handicap, in all probability will be released by the time the sports world is talking about which bangtail has the best chances of winning the $100,000 event, the richest stake race in the world. Exhibitors have available then, a veritable fount of ideas for exploitation. "Long Shot," the fifth Fine Arts production to be released by Grand National, is 69 minutes crammed full of entertainment which, though not purveyed by names of great marquee strength, is nevertheless of satisfying caliber.

Executive producer Franklyn Warner and associate producer-director Charles Lamont, who have collaborated on other Fine Arts pictures, retain the high quality of showmanship exhibited in previous vehicles, obtaining a maximum of entertainment from the material at hand. The cast is composed of Gordon Jones, Marsha Hunt, C. Henry Gordon, George Meeker, Harry Davenport, George E. Stone, Dorothy Fay, Frank Darien, Tom Kennedy, Earle Hodgins, Emerson Treacy, Gay Seabrook, Lee Phelps, Ben Burt, James Robinson, Joe Hernandez and James Keefe.

"Clayton," injured saving "Martha Sharon" from a truck, gives up his racing stable to go to Arizona to recuperate. His horses are placed with "Martha's" uncle, who goes broke and, feigning death, wills the pair his last possession, a thoroughbred which has been turned out on the range. They race the horse to victory in the Santa Anita Handicap, despite crooked gamblers.

40 Little Mothers

(National)

French Melodrama

An importation from France, directed by Leonide Moguy from a story by Jean Guitton, "Le Mioche," (The Kid), released in this country under the title of "40 Little Mothers," is entertainment of melodramatic nature.

Sponsored by the Child Adoption Committee, the picture is built on the theme of love for a child, the 18 months old "Little Philippe," and his smile and actions captured the hearts of the audience. With a clever plot and the superimposition of English titles the story is easy to follow.

"Prosper Martin," (Lucien Baroux), unemployed professor, finds "Pierrot," (Little Philippe), abandoned on his doorstep. He plans to turn "Pierrot" over to the orphanage the next day, but gains employment in an exclusive finishing school for girls. "Prosper" smuggles the child into his room.

His students, who have discovered his secret and believe him a kidnapper, confront him with the evidence. When "Prosper" explains, the classmates realize his deep love for "Pierrot" and plan to help him mother the child. But the principal finds "Pierrot" and the girls in "Prosper's" room. Rather than give up the child, "Prosper" prefers to leave.

"Pierrot's" real mother has traced the child and arrives in time to explain. The picture ends happily with the marriage of "Prosper" and "Pierrot's" mother in sight.

With the supporting cast of Madeleine Robinson, Gabrielle Dorziat, Pauline Carton and Jean Perier, who keep the picture rapidly progressing, "40 Little Mothers" should prove real entertainment to those who enjoy human interest stories.

Reviewed at an early afternoon performance, at the 55th Street Playhouse in New York, the audience seemed to enjoy the picture.—George Spires.

Marusia

(Ukrafilm)

Musical Drama

This Ukrainian folk drama was produced in New York, New Jersey and on Long Island. Regardless of its production on American soil it is distinctly Slavic in appearance and appeal. Its story is a simple one and according to American standards overly long drawn out for what it has to tell. Interspersed throughout the enactment of the story are musical interludes with the star, Stephania Melnyk, who plays the title role, the principal singer.

There is little comedy in the film and except for the musical portions the picture grimly goes ahead with telling its tale without much relief from the dramatic side. Even the folk dances and New Year's Eve party are not the gay affairs of expectancy. However, the picture probably has quite a deal of appeal for the Slavs in this country. For others there are English superimposed titles.

The story is set in a village where everyone knows each other and where four friends, two boys and two girls are happily awaiting the day when they will marry. Into the scene comes "Khoma," a hunch-back who owns a few wheat fields and accordingly is one of the wealthier men in the village. He is infatuated with "Marusia," one of the two girls and wants to marry her himself.

"Khoma" sows the seed of discord among the friends with great success. In time he talks "Hrytz" into leaving the village for greener pastures, has "Potap" arrested on a trumped-up charge and succeeds in placing "Marusia's" parents under obligation to him. "Hrytz" and "Potap" iron out their differences and show up "Khoma" for the man he is but "Khoma," realizing he is caught, mortally poisons both "Marusia" and "Hrytz" in a depressing ending.

Reviewed at the Miami theatre, New York. The house specializes in foreign films and is located in the torn up sector of Sixth Avenue where a new subway is in process of being constructed and where the famous old "El" is about to come down. A very small audience sat through the picture without comment.—Paul C. Mooney, Jr.

The Ware Case

(Capad Production) (A.B.F.D.)

Murder Trial Drama

This second Capad production, a new version of the earlier film, a dramatic success in its day, has a polish of production and treatment which lift it at once out of any purely local category, and stand it beside its fellows on an international market with by no means discreditable consequences. The film, for all its laggard paces in the early stages, wakes to a very powerful trial scene, with a compelling climax, and Clive Brook has probably never registered a better performance in his considerable career. Brook may still be a name to sell; coupled with the film's marketable title, showmen would seem to have something they can offer their patrons without the nervousness customarily associated with pictures—especially British pictures—of this kind.

Exhibitors will remember the story of the film, of the spendthrift elusive Englishman who loses his wife and possessions through his own mercurial inconsequence, of his trial for murder of a vexatious brother in law, of his acquittal and his gesture of self-destruction to clear the way for his wife's and her lover's future. Robert Stevenson's treatment of the theme is, maybe, a little fanciful in its earlier stages, though thought and conscientiousness are apparent in every scene. It is when the narrative comes to court that the drama excels, with apt timing of the dramatic moments, a careful weaving of atmosphere and a rising peak of tragedy thundering at the close. It is arresting stuff, but especially so for Brook's brilliant performance, for his easy powers of nervous expression and his mastery of significant dialogue. His may not be a character the fans will necessarily like, but they will believe in it.

Stevenson's choice of cast is notable, Barry K. Barnes is no more than Barry K. Barnes as the barrister lover, but Jane Baxter's wife has a flame of feminity in her, Edward Rigby's irresolute little Cockney bookmaker, Francis Sullivan's ruthless Attorney General and C. V. France's imperturbable Chief Justice, are other portrayals which bear fidelity to type and show conviction of characterization. The trial scenes and settings are as flawless in accuracy as they are compelling in atmosphere, and there are tasteful, if a little tiresome, garden scenes to decorate the dialogue.

Though not an obviously expensive production, it has finish about it, and, as already suggested, can be exploited on two lines—the personal and the titular.

Previewed to a trade show audience at the Cambridge Theatre it obviously gripped in its FIGHT PICTURES!

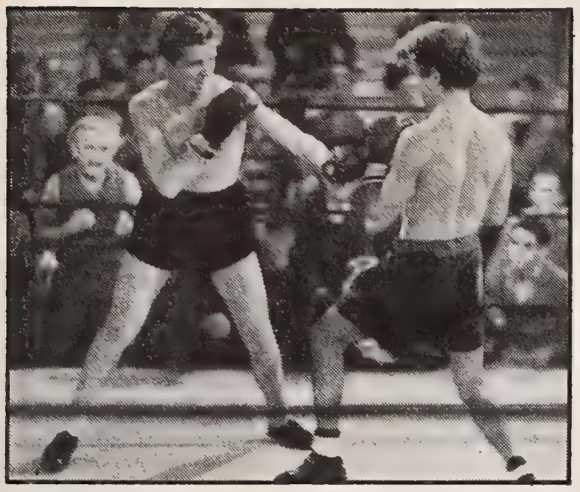
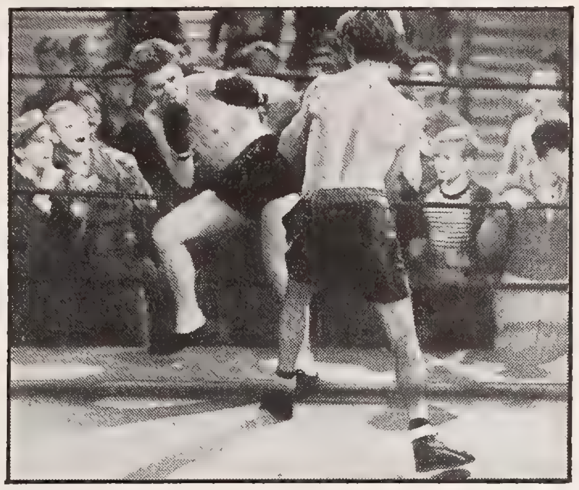
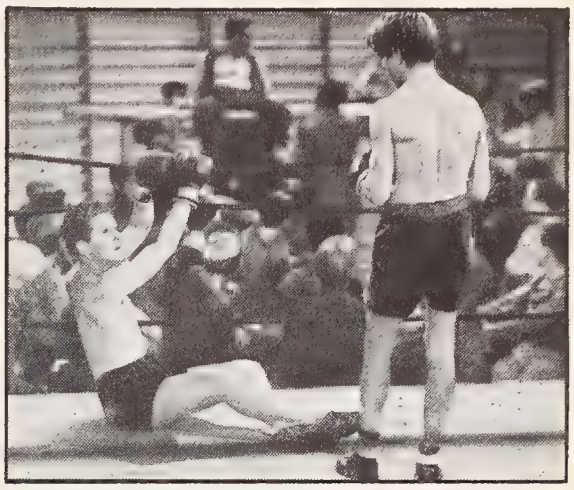
—From the season's drama smash of youth!



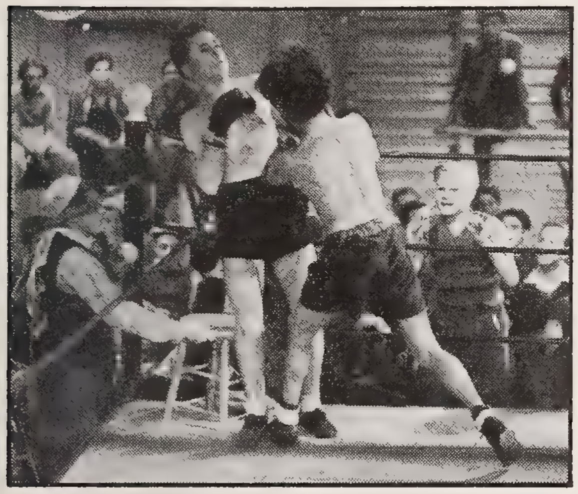
1. They square off. Cooper is new to this gang of kids. Somebody kidded him . . . he was tired, hungry, so he snapped back. Now he's got a fight on his hands.



2. A left cross gets Cooper before he knows what happened. His opponent drives in hard figuring on an easy take. The kid in front of him seems daffy, no fight to him at all!



3. He's down! That left and then a hard right did the job. Cooper seems dazed, unaware that he's in a fight with a boy out to do damage—not to win a decision!



4. The round's over but the bell means nothing to Cooper's opponent. He drives hard and the yell of the mob covers up the sound of the gong, the weak protests of the few that want fair play!

The Return of the Frog

(Imperator-British Lion)

Crook Mystery Melodrama

The sensation-seeking patron who would sacrifice plausibility for the sake of a thrill should get his money's worth in this melodramatic and inventive variation on the old Edgar Wallace theme, for Director Elvey, an old hand at the genre, seems to have used most of the gags in the mystery-murder box of tricks. Many a serial has fewer extravagances and excesses, and the appeal of Herbert Wilcox's production, an essay for him in a less than usually epic style, is directly to the brand of audience that can take a tale of terror and like it.

Though no more implausible than the average Wallace yarn, this adaptation of "The India Rubber Men" runs the whole range of the crook "meller," with television apparatus in the Chief's hideout, time bombs tied to the river police launches, telephone booths designed to blow the Yard's ace inspector to blazes, poison gas in cellars, riverside pubs run by odd crooks, all piled on top of one another in breathless succession.

Gordon Harker, bowler hatted to the last, is the picture's second element of British appeal—the first of course is the Wallace angle—and his reading of the character of "Inspector Elk," set to unmask the mysterious "Frog Gang," is on his noted lines of Cockney crosstalk, an element of exclusively native comprehension and consumption, Harker it is who trails the "Frogs" up river and down, aided by a Chicago policeman played with suave bravado by Hartley Power. There is also a romantic concession.

Una O'Connor is cast as a pub-owning virago and Rene Ray as her effervescent daughter.

The technical qualities of the film—it was made at British Lion's Beaconsfield Studios—are satisfactory, but the film is not a super and was not intended to be.

The British tradeshow audience at the Cambridge preview, a hardboiled agglomeration at that, accepted the film genially, exhibitor reaction being that it had more moneymaking potentialities with the appropriately unsophisticated audience than many more pretentious contemporaries.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

Yes, Madam?

(Associated British)

Inheritance Comedy

Though the fame of the spirited Bobby Howes may not extend beyond the British Isles, his popularity as a star of musical comedy is undimmed. This screen adaptation of one of his more successful stage pieces certainly makes the most of his effervescent, Leprecaun-like personality, and if it still bears a very close affinity to stage material, nonetheless it is graced with plenty of mobility, and registers a succession of laughs in the more unsophisticated native manner. The naivete of the comedy material and the frank slapstick treatment indicate a direct aim at the exclusively popular audience, and it is this audience which is likely to find its humors most palatable.

The plot calls upon Howes and his desirable cousin to spend a month as menials in order to inherit a fortune, and the fun centers around their efforts to hold the role and to parry the sinister thrusts of a rival claimant for the money.

Howes makes an odd but entertaining manservant and a very poor burglar, and is at his best in cabaret dancing with the monumental Vera Pearce.

Norman Lee's down-to-earth direction gets the maximum of laughs at the fastest possible tempo.

Diana Churchill is a lively and intelligent foil to Howes, Vera Pearce's experienced hand shows through the elephantine calisthenics, and Wylie Watson's North Country humors have a homely warmth.

Such offerings as this have little if any appeal outside the country of origin, but they show an understanding of the English market.

Shown at the Cambridge theatre to a British trade audience, the film registered constant laughter, and Howes' personality probably never got over better with a screen audience.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

Produced and distributed by Associated British Pictures. Director of production, Walter C. Nycroft. Directed by Norman Lee. From the novel by K. R. G. Browne. Screen play, Clifford Grey, Bert Lee and William Freshman. Photographed by Walter Harvey. Film editor, Walter Stokvis. Settings, Cedric Dawe. Running time, 79 minutes. Classification, General Patronage.

Arabian Bazaar

(United Artists)

Pages from the Arabian Nights

When this excursion into the exotic land of the Near East was seen, the itinerary lacked a vocal commentary. The effectiveness of the Oriental jaunt can be calculated by the fact that the enjoyment of the screening was not diminished by the absence of the spoken word but seemed to gain in dramatic power and pictorial strength. The amazing color, the activity of the camera, the variety of native life and the effective musical background were sufficiently eloquent to produce an exceptionally striking tradelogue. The range of visit takes the spectator into the marts of the town and depicts the commerce of the place. Shown are cloth makers, shoe cobblers, fortune tellers and street entertainers. Through some magic of direction, the foreign folk are depicted in natural close-ups without any indication of camera consciousness. These studies are so intimate and detailed that they seem to be animated canvases from a museum wall. A rather familiar and close at hand inspection of a native girl's umbilical gymnastics may threaten to spoil the general appeal of the material. However, the remaining sections are composed to make an artistic and likable scenic experience.—Running time, one reel.

(RKO Radio-Pathe)

Behind the Scenes

Without the glamorous presence of Mr. Clark Gable and Miss Myrna Loy, who recently in "Too Hot to Handle" have been revealing for the enlightenment of the picture patron the lives and loves of the daredevil cameraman, this sensible unhokumed account of the birth and development of an issue for the screen's newspaper should prove as interesting as the feature and fictionized treatment and, in fact, more instructive. Beginning with a coverage assignment, the tip for which comes from the daily papers, the camera crew move out onto the field of action, set up their equipment and shoot their story. Rushed back to the laboratory, the film is given editorial treatment that covers scene pacing and continuity, dialogue and musical dubbing and, then, is packed in its can to be rushed by boat, train and plane to the international screen of the world. Material that has a "behind the scene" coloring is by its nature interesting and when the composition has been given the additional benefit of intelligent and newsy direction, expert camera manipulation and an informative, non-technical and swift commentary, the subject becomes a parcel of high grade entertainment.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Porky the Gob

(Vitaphone)

Salty Porky

In this latest cartoon adventure or misadventure, the porcine character is depicted as a nautical member of a battle cruiser. In accordance with the patriotic principle that "now is the time for all good men (and pigs) to come to the aid of their country," Porky distinguishes himself in a feat of bravery that could happen in the "wacky" world of cartoons. The pen points should have a widespread appeal, although educational and better picture groups, who arrange for special children matinees, may not approve of the militaristic motif in the material.—Running time, seven minutes.

Getting Your Money's Worth

(Lenauer)

Merchandise Analysis

In an entertaining way, high priced razor blades and expensive cold creams are shown to be, in many cases, no better than cheaper varieties. The film portrays laboratory tests for blades and offers suggestions as to how the most effective shave may be obtained. Cold creams, it is pointed out, are often as effective in less expensive brands because the cost typically comes from the scents added, which, it is claimed, disappear in a few hours anyhow. Tests on face powder reveal that more expensive brands are often no better than the less costly.—Running time, 11 minutes.

A Legend of Norfolk

(A.B.F.D.)

Documentary

Made by a British theatre manager—Arthur Leslie—in his spare time, this lyrical and sincerely treated little film has a great deal more entertainment than many of its fellows, and infinitely more technical polish and artistic sheen than most. It traces the legend of the Virgin's shrine in Walsingham in Norfolk, lightly skims the surface of history, telling of the vision of the Virgin which came to Walsingham, of the pillage and destruction of Cromwell's soldiery, of the Faith which has rebuilt the shrine, and the pilgrims to-day who follow in the footsteps of their medieval brethren. A sensitive and inspiring little film no less moving for its lustrous glimpses of the thatched cottages and winding hedgerows of Britain lucently photographed by Joseph Leslie and cut and

Rome Symphony

(United Artists)

Roman Splendor

The ancient and glorious city that is built on the seven hills has been visited before by several motion picture globe trotters but no camera visitors have paid such splendid tribute to the famed spot as has been painted in the picture accounts of the Count and Countess Keller. The material is familiar enough and includes shots of such Roman landscape as the Forum and St. Peter's. But the handling of the prospectus has been done with such artistic and intelligent taste that the well known sites take on a new and more beautiful appearance. Much of the subject's outstanding excellence is due to the magnificent application of color, particularly to the section devoted to an inspection of the treasure trove of St. Peter's. Camera angles are exceptional and the shots of playing fountains against a wide, blue sky are breathtaking in their aspect of beauty. Musical background completes the formation of a well rounded travel jaunt miniature.—Runnning time, one reel.

Viking Trail

Travelogue

In this travelogue the "Magic Carpet of Movietone" with Lowell Thomas as narrator visits Norway, the land of the Vikings. It is noted in the film that Norway is now one of the most peaceful of countries while in their day the Vikings were a race of warriors. The Norwegian country with its many fjords is pictured as is also the Lapland country with its oddly costumed natives. Running time, 11 minutes.

Little Moth's Big Flame

(Columbia)

Color Cartoon

This Charles Mintz Color Rhapsody delves deeply into the realm of fantasy to tell the story of a little moth who disregarded the old adage of playing with fire and had her wings burnt. It is cleverly devised animation in which a good deal of effort has been spent and profitably so for the cartoon is excellent entertainment. Running time, 8 minutes.

Jaipur—The Pink City

(FitzPatrick-MGM)

Traveltalk

This is another in the series of Traveltalks, produced in color by James FitzPatrick. Jaipur, known as the Pink City because of the pink hue which marks all of the city's buildings, is in India and its people practice Hinduism with variations. For instance, their religion prohibits the destruction of anything that has life. The narrator says not even flies are brushed off a baby's face. Despite the filming in color, the subject is not exciting. Running time, 8 minutes.

Scouts to the Rescue

Scout Serial

The showman exhibiting this Boy Scout saga obviously has a natural appeal not only to the Scouts but to fraternal organizations such as the Junior Naval Marines, the sister clubs of Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, and to all those adults who still remember their past Scout days. The three first instalments of the chapter play carry a grade of entertainment and thrill that should be welcomed by the average American youngster. There are bits of scout lore and business, and there is the story of a G-Man's efforts to round up a gang of counterfeiters, a ghost town and a band of inhospitable Indians. Jackie Cooper heads the troup and is surrounded by a band of healthy and energetic youngsters. Release date, January 17, 1938. Running time, for first three chapters, 21 minutes each.

Two Boys and a Dog

(Paramount)

Different Grantland Rice Sportlight

The lads and their hound of titular designation are two youngsters and a wire haired pup from out western way. Aged nine and eleven, the boys are expert horsemen and hunters as a study of this Grantland Rice Sportlight subject will reveal. First pictured on a lone camping trip, the kids, armed with their trusty camera, shoot with a quick lens some interesting shots of animal life. Later on they embark on a coyote hunt and bag the catch to win from their appreciative dad a trip to a local rodeo show. The subject is given a simple and natural treatment with the youngsters being their regular selves, the dog just a dog, and the scenic background of the wild west remaining as beautiful and unspoilt as God intended it to be.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Miracle of Salt Lake

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Miniature

Tracing the migration of the Mormons to what is now Utah, this short subject poses the question of whether the appearance of sea gulls so far inland at the exact moment when grasshoppers, also making their first appearance, were devastating the wheat fields, was a miracle or a coincidence? At any rate the sea gulls destroyed the grasshoppers and the Mormons' food supply was saved. The subject has been handled with the same efficiency that is typical of all these Miniatures. Carey Wilson is the commentator. Running time, 11 minutes.

Province of Quebec

Travelogue

In this travelogue of Quebec the narrator takes the theme of the old French order in the Province contrasted with modern innovations from America to the south. The French language is still the predominant tongue and the historical structures date back to the planning and effort of the early French settlers. Montreal is the main attraction with its plethora of ancient landmarks. Also shown are scenes from the adjoining countryside and the St. Lawrence River. Running time, 10½ minutes.

Man's Greatest Friend

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Pete Smith Specialty

Pete Smith in this Specialty delves into some of the reasons why the dog is credited with being "Man's Greatest Friend." The dog is shown as aide to man in primitive days, in wartime as carrier of first aid supplies. The subject also takes up the case of mad dogs, and then goes on to trace briefly the life of Louis Pasteur, who discovered a cure for rabies. Running time, 10 minutes.

Fashion Forecast

(20th Century-Fox)

Excellent

This is the second of the Vyvyan Donner "Fashion Forecasts." Like the first it has been excellently photographed in color and the models are described as "America's most beautiful," having been selected from a list of girls most in demand as models. Winter sport and evening wear and beach modes are displayed by the girls and also by the men models while Ilka Chase, stage actress, in a cleverly written and narrated commentary, tells about the clothes in seriocomic manner. Birgir Ruud, famous skier, makes a brief appearance modelling the latest in ski outfits. Running time, 10 minutes.

Count Me Out

(Vitaphone)

Punch Drunk Pen Pug

One of the screwiest of the Schlesinger comic compositions is this pen depiction of Elmer, the aspiring pug. Equipped with a pair of gloves, a book of instruction and assorted paraphernalia from a correspondence school on the manly art of self defense, the ambitious youth embarks upon his preparations for fame and fisticuffs. In the course of a hectic workout, the zealous Elmer knocks himself out and, while in the comatose stage, he dreams of meeting the real ring champ. The decision of phantasmagoric combat is against the unfortunate contender. The realization of consciousness induces Elmer to forsake his rosin ring career. From the material of flying fists and punching bags the action draws a fast pace. The gags and especially the Joe Penner voice imitations match the punch drunk fun.—Running time, seven minutes.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

ADVENTURE IN SAHARA: Paul Kelly, C. Henry Gordon, Lorna Gray—This one may do for a double bill; not too good for that. We played it alone. Didn't make rental. What the small town showman will do is beyond me. These programmers aren't worth booking and there aren't enough specials to run a theatre. I really believe the exhibitors are to blame as we all run double features so much the producers decided two poor pictures would do. Running time, 58 minutes. Played December 6-7.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kansas. General patronage.

GLADIATOR, THE: Joe E. Brown, June Travis—A real fine slapstick that pleased all but Kenos played havoc at the box office.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Lew Ayres, Doris Nolan, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon—A real high class drama. Some of our patrons are not so high class but they all gave this drama close attention. This is the kind of a picture that a special effort should be put forth so patrons can see this from the start by showing the other picture of the double bill first. 95 per cent of our patrons saw it from the start. While it had no special drawing power for us, we did a fair average on this.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. General patronage.

First National

COMET OVER BROADWAY: Kay Francis, Ian Hunter—Good picture which did average business. Kay Francis pictures are getting better. Running time, 69 minutes. Played December 11.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch—One of the best Friday-Saturday runs we've had in a long time and there's plenty of thrills and entertainment in this. Another sixty minute feature.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Tex. General patronage.

SECRETS OF AN ACTRESS: Kay Francis, George Brent, Ian Hunter—Ouch! What a bore this one was. Why do they waste three good performers on a mess of tripe like this. Played December 7.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

SECRETS OF AN ACTRESS: Kay Francis, George Brent—Kay proves in this picture that she is still a great artist. Played this on cash night to a very nice business. Running time, 70 minutes. Played December 9.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BOYS TOWN: Spencer Tracy, Mickey Rooney, Henry Hull, Bobs Watson, Leslie Fenton—You all know the excellent quality of this picture. Our concern was with its results at the box office and we must admit that to have been most satisfactory. It did the third largest business of the year and the largest of any regular type story not built on unusual or sensational lines. We must add our praise, however, for the remarkable performances of Tracy, Rooney, "Pee Wee" Fenton and many others. Running time, 93 minutes. Played December 11-13.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

CITADEL, THE: Robert Donat, Rosalind Russell—An excellent picture. Book very widely read so we mailed out a postal card calling attention to the showing and did a nice business midweek. However, it needs promotion to make it draw.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice, Claire Dodd, Nat Pendleton; WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN: Virginia Bruce, Herbert Marshall, Mary Astor, Janet Beecher—Played this double bill. While I consider this a real good program, many of our patrons stayed away and we did below average business. Played December 13-14.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. General patronage.

LISTEN DARLING: Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—A fair little comedy that did not draw. This company has made lots of better pictures than this one. It did please those who saw it but it had no draw. Another good picture from this company that all who see it will enjoy. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

LISTEN DARLING: Judy Garland, Freddie Bartholomew, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon—We were very agreeably surprised at the box office draw of this picture. Probably they like these two little stars better than we thought they would. It is a dandy picture, very clean and has lots of laughs. Played December 4-5.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

LOVE IS A HEADACHE: Mickey Rooney, Gladys George, Franchot Tone, Ted Healy—This is decidedly a good all around picture. It was no "headache" as far as box office returns are concerned. It drew above average both Sunday and Monday.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

RICH MAN, POOR GIRL: Lew Ayres, Ruth Hussey, Robert Young, Guy Kibbee—A picture that a great many of our audience liked better than "You Can't Take It With You." Ayres is exceptionally good. All in all, we will say that this is worth top dates for a short run. This cast should be put into a series the same as Judge Hardy's and the Kildaires. MGM does not let you down. Still the number one company of the industry. Running time, 74 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SPRING MADNESS: Lew Ayres, Maureen O'Sullivan, Burgess Meredith—I heard about this picture so after seeing it screened I canceled it. It has about enough material for a two reeler. Might go over in a college town but certainly not in a small town.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STABLEMATES: Wallace Beery, Mickey Rooney—Another fine one from our lion friend but no business on this one. Running time, 90 minutes. Played December 8-9.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

TREASURE ISLAND (reissue): Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper—This reissue still had drawing power for us, as it drew above average. I played it as it was a new picture, did not show the trailer, as these trailers dwell on the fact that it is a return engagement, and this particular trailer showing Jackie Cooper as a little boy would definitely date it as an old picture. No one commented that they had seen it before.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

Paramount

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, Jean Parker, John Beal, Irvin S. Cobb—We played this with Walt Disney's "Ferdinand the Bull" and advertised the short, consequently a nice business. They don't go strong here on Bob Burns. Where they like him, this picture should go over. It's a mistake to try and make the public think Bob is another Will Rogers.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

ARKANSAS TRAVELER, THE: Bob Burns, Fay Bainter, Jean Parker, John Beal, Irvin S. Cobb—Excellent. Here is a picture that pleased as near 100 per cent as any of them. A down to earth picture with a good story, good acting and good directing. What more can anyone ask Good luck to you, Mr. Burns, hoping that your next picture will be as good as this one is. Running time, 83 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

CAMPUS CONFESSIONS: Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney—Good program picture. Will please young folks.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

FRONTIERSMAN: William Boyd, Russell Hayden, George Hayes—Good western which did average business. Played December 16-17.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GIVE ME A SAILOR: Martha Raye, Bob Hope, Betty Grable, Jack Whiting—Think Paramount was very smart in putting Raye right back in the roles which made her famous. Certainly it is our opinion that she will never be a glamour girl on the screen. We were very much disappointed in this and its draw as well. Played December 2-3.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC: J. Carroll Naish, Mary Carlisle—Fair program picture.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

ILLEGAL TRAFFIC: J. Carroll Naish, Mary Carlisle—Pretty good action picture. Running time, 67 minutes—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

KING OF ALCATRAZ: Lloyd Nolan, Gail Patrick, J. Carroll Naish—We were terribly disappointed in this picture. We had to pay as much for shorts as the feature cost us in order to fill out a program. We don't want to run double features but it looks like they are going to force us to it with these sixty minute pictures. Lloyd Nolan and Gail Patrick deserve better stories. Played December 7-8.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Raymond Walburn, Lionel Stander—Not so hot. Should have been cut down a reel at least. It was slow in starting but afterwards the picture was entertaining when it gained momentum. Just a fair picture. Running time, 87 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SAY IT IN FRENCH: Olympe Bradna, Ray Milland—A dandy comedy drama, good on any day of week. Played December 9-10.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: Dorothy Lamour, George Raft, Henry Fonda, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—Paramount will try a long time before they make another picture with the appeal of this. Everybody wanted to see it and they were all well pleased. Played November 27-29.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Dorothy Lamour, Henry Fonda—Extra good show. Will please anywhere.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

SPAWN OF THE NORTH: George Raft, Dorothy Lamour, Henry Fonda, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Louise Platt—Excellent picture with plenty of action. Did a fine business. Played December 2.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Gene Raymond, Olympe Bradna, Lewis Stone, Glenda Farrell—Return engagement requested. Played November 23. This is a picture you want to step on. Extra good. Lewis Stone was extra special. Also Gene Raymond and Olympic Bradna. Everybody loved her in this picture. Don't miss this. Play it by all means.—Levi F. Roberts, New Theatre, Faulkton, S. D. General patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Joan Bennett, Randolph Scott, May Robson, Walter Brennan—An extra good western with a fine cast, which did extra business but not in keeping with the extra price paid. Running time, 90 minutes. Played December 9-10.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORY: Bob Hope, Shirley Ross, Charles Butterworth—Extra good. Everybody liked it. This is the kind of a picture I like to play. Step on this one. Don't miss playing it. Good entertainment. Good Sunday show.—Levi F. Roberts, New Theatre, Faulkton, S. D. General patronage.

BILLY THE KID RETURNS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, Smiley Burnette—Roy is coming along nicely. Did nice pre-Xmas business. Not as big as "Under Western Stars."—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

I STAND ACCUSED: Lyle Talbot, Helen Mack, Robert Cummings, Thomas Beck—Good little action drama which failed to draw. Running time, 63 minutes. Played December 12-13.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PALS OF THE SADDLE: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Doreen McKay—We advertised the fact that with John Wayne as one of the Mesquiteers, these westerns would be better than ever. Our patrons took us at our word and attended in larger numbers than usual. A husky star like John Wayne won't hurt this series at all as John Wayne is somewhat popular on his own account. We doubled this with "Young Fugitives," Universal, which I would class as an above average program picture.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

RHYTHM OF THE SADDLE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—To comment on this is foolish other than to say they get the business and please.—G. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

RHYTHM OF THE SADDLE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Up to the usual Autry standard. It pleased above average business. Running time, 58 minutes. Played December 5-8.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

UNDER WESTERN STARS: Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette—This young western star should go places; has a good voice and it's a dandy good western. Smiley Burnette helps these westerns, also.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

RKO Radio

BREAKING THE ICE: Bobby Breen—An extra good picture. You can't go wrong on this one.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

CAREFREE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Ralph Bellamy—Will get by; not one of their best by any means.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

I'M FROM THE CITY: Joe Penner, Kay Sutton—This is without a doubt the lowest picture I have ever shown. Had more kicks on this than people that saw it. Running time, 66 minutes. Played November 30-December 1.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN TO REMEMBER, A: Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis—I consider this picture one of the ten top pictures this year. No star value, a small budget picture, but just one of those things that happen once in a while. It's grand.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

MR. DOODLE KICKS OFF: Joe Penner—Lots of good laughs. One of his best.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

ROOM SERVICE: Marx Brothers—Just fair. One of their poorest to date.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

SAINT IN NEW YORK: Louis Hayward, Kay Sutton—A good gangster action drama that pleased the ones that came. Running time, 72 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SKY GIANT: Richard Dix, Chester Morris, Joan Fontaine—A very good picture but entirely too slow. Most people think Dix is washed up. All he needs is a good picture such as "Cimarron" to bring him back. Running time, 80 minutes. Played December 10.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

VICTORIA THE GREAT: Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook—This is a splendid production. You have to do lots of advertising to get them in to see it. Pleased those who saw it. Did good business considering time of year. Had a hard time controlling sound on this one. Running time, 112 minutes. Played November 28.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche—Good for any run. I consider it very outstanding, far above the regular run and different. Played December 6-8.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman, Jack Haley—I can't see what all the exhibitors raved about in this picture. Lots of stars, but where was the acting? And as for Alice Faye's singing, the less said the better. As a musical production it was superb but as for calling it an American Cavalcade, that's a trifle far fetched. Sound in this picture could be a lot better. Running time, 106 minutes. Played December 8.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

BIG TOWN GIRL: Claire Trevor, Donald Woods—A very fine program picture that was well received on a dual bill for week-end.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HEIDI: Shirley Temple, Jean Hersholt, Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley, Mary Nash, Thomas Beck—Shirley at her best. That this little lady rates very high with the men here needs no certification by "Believe It or Not" Ripley. The comments and applause proved the popularity of this picture which, although somewhat changed from the original story, managed to retain the charm which made the book famous. Mary Nash is deserving of special mention for her very excellent portrayal of the deceiving, heartless "Fraulein Rottenmeir." Her acting was of such high caliber every man here despised her and actually applauded when Jean Hersholt rescued Shirley from "mean Fraülein," Twentieth Century-Fox wisely surrounded Miss Temple with an excellent cast to make this simple but heart appealing picture an outstanding production. Jean Hersholt, Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley, Thomas Beck (he looks like a very good prospect), et al, combined to make this "family picture" a money maker for every theatre owner. Running time, 90 minutes. Played December 10.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, N. J. Prison patronage.

HOLD THAT CO-ED: John Barrymore, Marjorie Weaver, George Murphy, Joan Davis, Jack Haley—Don't believe a picture has had our patrons howling like this one did at the close of the story. The second night we took a point of observation and it was a treat to see them eat up that slapstick finish. The picture pleased generally and did extra business. Played November 30-December 1.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

JOSETTE: Simone Simon, Don Ameche, Robert Young—This picture was very good and drew extra business. It's worth playing.—Verne H. Coffman, Lyric Theatre, Moweaqua, Ill. Rural patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson—About as good as the usual run of Temple pictures. For some reason my patrons are fed up on this little star. If something isn't done to bring her back, she will be on Bargain Night or double bills in less than a year. Business below average. Running time, 70 minutes. Played December 11-12.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

JUST AROUND THE CORNER: Shirley Temple, Charles Farrell, Joan Davis, Armanda Duff, Bert Lahr, Bill Robinson—The best Shirley Temple picture for a long time. Pleased everyone.—Leon C. Bolduc, Majestic Theatre, Conway, N. H. General patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley—A fair picture that did not register at the box office.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SAFETY IN NUMBERS: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—Equally as good as any of these subjects but it didn't hold up as well as most of them at the box office. Maybe it was just the pre-Christmas slump but it usually doesn't hit that soon. Running time, 58 minutes. Played December 7-8.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

United Artists

BLOCKADE: Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda, Leo Carrillo, John Halliday—One of the finest stories of the year. Splendid acting, good plot. A very timely picture. Too bad U. A. didn't give this one a bigger play. Found that most of our patrons never heard of it and consequently stayed away. Hope we get more like this one. Running time, 84 minutes. Played December 4.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage

BLOCKADE: Henry Fonda, Madeleine Carroll, Leo Carrillo, John Halliday—A swell picture with wonderful acting by Fonda and Miss Carroll. Why the Legion of Decency could honestly condemn the picture I have yet to learn. True, it may have a little Communism in it, but the other things offset it. Fonda's closing speech against war has them clapping in their seats. A beauty of a picture. I knew several Catholics who signed the pledge. Yet they went to see this one and after doing it did not feel the least bit guilty about it, and in fact they were glad they did. Boy, oh, boy, I sure do think Fonda is tops. He plays a marvelous role and puts it over in great fashion. Our audience was so pleased with him we put on "Spawn of the North" within two or three days after he played in "Blockade." Running time, 84 minutes. Played December 8-9.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

DRUMS: Raymond Massey, Sabu, Roger Livesey, Valerie Hobson—Very good picture that did a nice business. The only drawback is the lack of known names in the cast. Played December 9.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. General patronage.

Universal

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds, George Murphy—This outstanding picture did not do so well at the box office; being so close to the holidays may have had something to do with it but at that it did not do well considering the effort we put forth to put this over. I do not like to find fault with so fine a picture but the death of Menjou in my opinion was a great fault. His death was not needed to develop this story. If Menjou had been permitted to go on with the play and at the finale announced to the audience that Andrea Leeds was his daughter, what a grand scene that would be and the audience could leave with that fine feeling that a fine ending gives instead of witnessing a harrowing death scene but then Mr. Stahl is so accustomed to death scenes in his pictures that it would not appear natural to him unless he could finish with a death scene. In "Back Street" a death was necessary to break up a triangle. "Parnell" he may have had to follow history, but in this death was not needed. On the contrary it hurt the picture but it is a swell picture in spite of it.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

MAD ABOUT MUSIC: Deanna Durbin, Herbert Marshall, Gail Patrick, Arthur Treacher, Marcia Mae Jones, Helen Parrish—A fine picture from any standpoint, rich in superb Deanna Durbin singing, threaded with pathos and adroitly combined with clever comedy. No one can view this picture without enjoying it completely. When the picture reached the part when Miss Durbin gives out on Gounod's "Ave Maria," well, you could have heard the proverbial pin drop. Acting citations go to Marcia Mae Jones and Helen Parrish, who carried two difficult roles to perfection. Top honors, of course, go to Deanna Durbin who continues to keep intact her faultless singing and acting abilities. It was a welcome sight to see that long absent veteran of the screen, Herbert Marshall, back in action once more. This picture is recommended for the entire family and should be popular wherever shown. Running time, 110 minutes. Played December 17.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

SINNERS IN PARADISE: John Boles, Madge Evans, Bruce Cabot—Good program picture. Running time, 70 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

THAT CERTAIN AGE: Deanna Durbin, Melvyn Douglas, Jackie Cooper, Irene Rich, John Halliday, Nancy Carroll—Did you ever have a picture which, after you played it the first night, you felt like shouting from the house top to let the world know what you have? If you haven't, get Deanna Durbin in "That Certain Age." You won't have to shout; your patrons will do it for you. This is Deanna's best to date. Jackie Cooper and Melvyn Douglas also play a wonderful part. Universal is not letting Deanna Durbin outgrow her part. They make the show to fit Deanna. Although we did not do a big business on account of the Christmas slump and conditions in this locality, we did above average. Advertise it big. Running time, December 9-11.—Ruff Bros., Mainstreet Theatre, Logan, Kansas. General patronage.

YOUNG FUGITIVES: Robert Wilcox, Dorothea Kent—Doubled this with "Pals of the Saddle," which I would class as an above average program picture.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

Warner Brothers

HARD TO GET: Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Charles Winninger, Allen Jenkins—Very good picture. Average business. One of the funniest pictures we have played this season. Kept the audience in stitches. Running time, 80 minutes. Played December 14-15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SISTERS, THE: Bette Davis, Erroll Flynn, Anita Louise, Jane Bryan, Dick Foran, Ian Hunter—A very good picture that will hold up on your best days. Running time, 95 minutes. Played December 14-15.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

ATHLETIC YOUTH: Special Sport Thrills—Very good for any spot.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GRACIE AT THE BAT: Andy Clyde—A real comedy. Book it. A real baseball laugh.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MIDNIGHT FROLICS: Color Rhapsodies—A dandy colored cartoon and deserves your best time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SNOWTIME: Color Rhapsodies—Well received and most seasonable.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

VIOLENT IS THE WORD FOR CURLY: Broadway Comedies—As usual, audience in a riot most of the time. For slapstick the best on the market.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

MEN IN FRIGHT: Our Gang—Amusing; it pleased.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MODELING FOR MONEY: Peter Smith Specialties—Fair with very little comedy. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pruitt Simms, Dale Theatre, Ozark, Ark. General patronage.

MUSIC MADE SIMPLE: Robert Benchley—Shelved it after playing it once. We do not understand why a producer should make such shorts and then ask the exhibitor to pay for them. It is alright for those who want them but to force them down an exhibitor's throat is all wrong. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: OK. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, State Theatre, Torrington, Conn.

STORY OF DR. CARVER, THE: Pete Smith Specialties—Most interesting and instructive.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Paramount

BUSSE RHYTHM: Headliners—Just a band act. Not so hot.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CHAMPION AIRHOPPERS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Amusing.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HAL KEMP AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—A fine orchestra short. Two little girls who sing are good.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WIN, PLACE OR SHOW: Grantland Rice Sportlight by Ted Husing. Excellent shots of beautiful Hialeah Park and some fine horses including the one and only "War Admiral." Will be enjoyed by any sporting audience. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

RKO Radio

DONALD'S OSTRICH: Walt Disney—Equally as good as all the rest. We just know we are going to have an outstanding cartoon when we book a Disney.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

FERDINAND THE BULL: Walt Disney Cartoons—We were lucky in getting this while there was so much publicity on it and we're glad it wasn't a percentage short. It will live up to its reputation. More power to you, Walt. Running time, eight minutes.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME: No. 2—One of our proudest moments is when we show "March of Time." This one on the "British Dilemma" really was a masterpiece.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CHRIS COLUMBO: Terry-Toons—Very entertaining short. Music splendid. Don't pass it up. Running time, eight minutes.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

FASHION FORECASTS: Autumn Styles—Do not believe these shorts will ever get very far in small towns. Too much of the same thing for 10 minutes will eventually hurt the fashion section of Fox News. This was a very beautiful subject for those who go for them.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

GANDY GOOSE IN DOOMSDAY: Terry-Toons—A good colored cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TIMBER TOPPERS: Ed Thorgersen—Grand for horse lovers. This was a grand story of the training of horses for jumping. Held the interest to a marked degree.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW: Lew Lehr—Leave it in the can. "What Every Boy Should Know" was bad enough but this buttons us up on this series.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

United Artists

DOG CATCHER, THE: Skippy Cartoon—Although this short wasn't too bad, it certainly wasn't worth the price. Running time, nine minutes.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Universal

GOING PLACES, NO. 53: Silver Springs—Not so good as in "Where the Old South Still Lives." It is not the worst but "Where the Old South Still Lives" spoilt us on this series. This locale has been done so many times it is getting tiresome. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SIDE SHOW FAKIR: Mentone Musical Comedies—Another good Mentone Musical. This series is tops in two reel musicals and we warn yon not to waste them. Excellent. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

HIT AND RUN: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—An excellent Floyd Gibbons single auto reel.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

JOHNNY SMITH AND POKER HUNTAS: Merrie Melodies—Another good color cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ZERO GIRL: Broadway Brevities—As good a short as we have ever played. It has excellent skating (provided by Evelyn Chandler), good music and hilarious comedy. The skating comedian (Eric Wait) in this picture had the boys in a constant uproar. His actions, synchronized with appropriate music, were the funniest seen in many a day. It's a swell short for any program. It will certainly add its share of fun and laughter for your patrons. Book it, everybody! Running time, 20 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Recreation, Prison Theatre, State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

All Best Wishes

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor
GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

A Personal Letter to Every Round Tabler

DEAR FRIEND .... :

Before you start reading, will you please fill in the blank space above, between "friend" and the colon, with your first name? Thank you. Now, it's truly a personal letter.

Here we are on the "threshold of a new year" and, since so many of you folks (well, not too many) have cooperated in keeping these pages as bright and helpful as we hope they have been considered, it may be well to give here a bit of an account of our stewardship in the past year and to ask how we can increase the usefulness to you of these pages. We might also speak some of conditions in the industry that have to do with the manager, among other things.

Let's say this immediately. There is definite opinion in best informed quarters that the theatreman will be coming "into his own" more than ever in the next year. That should be obvious. The industry has been trying too long to operate successfully with everything but showmanship. Yes, most everything else has been tried with much less than sensationally successful results. By now, even the most ledger-bound executive must realize that "a dollar saved" is often "a dollar lost" when that dollar is saved on advertising and exploitation. If business is off, then exhibitors who kid themselves that showmanship is nothing more than a three-syllable word must take some of the blame. Even the most shortsighted among them, in desperation if nothing else, will turn to showmanship as the only salvation.

But, of course, the theatreman can't sit by awaiting this millennium. It's an urgent "must" that he keep fighting with everything that he's got to wring every possible admission out of his dates. He has got to keep his chin up with the best grade of showmanship he knows of or can borrow. That's where the Round Table comes in.

When members are queried for an opinion of this department, they tell us what a great job we are doing and—etc. That's all very fine. Kind words are appreciated, but we are not kidding ourselves that your Round Table is the most perfect instrument for which it is intended. Granted, it is the industry's accepted clearing house for advertising and exploitation ideas. For that reason, we are desirous of doing an even more progressive job. Thus, when we ask you what can be done to improve the Round Table, please sit down and do us and yourself a favor by spilling what's on your mind, and not necessarily for publication.

With the cooperation we have been receiving from the managers and their superiors, the Quigley Awards still continue to function as this project was originally intended. Winners continue to receive promotions and other substantial rewards. Names, new to the Competitions, break into the winning columns with pleasing regularity. Managers declare the Awards spur them on to greater effort. Superiors endorse the project as a consistent boxoffice stimulator.

You no doubt will be interested to know that in 1939 the Awards will cover even a wider area than before. With the announcement of the coming year's plans, there should be no reason for any theatreman anywhere to feel that he does not have an equal opportunity for recognition.

Folks tell us that the articles written by the members which we have been running through 1938 were interesting and informative. This feature will be continued. That means you are invited to write us a piece about some subject that has to do with operation and is near to your heart. Probably more of the members would like to cooperate were they not faced with some sort of head-office objection.

There is undoubtedly a "thumbs-down" attitude in certain quarters as has to do with your Round Table. Members eager to cooperate are not allowed to do so. Other Round Tablers are discouraged by the kidding (sometimes, kidding on the level) they receive from brother-managers and executives when their contributions appear in these pages. Unfortunately, the old and somewhat monotonous cry of "three-sheeting" is still heard in the land.

Often, the "thumbs-down" are most pointed and the "three-sheet" cry loudest in those operations where the manager is whipped the hardest to produce business. In answer, the manager studies the Round Table for boxoffice ideas he obtains that frequently bring in extra profits to the bossman. The theatreman tries to repay by reporting his own activities. And for that he is spanked. Curious, isn't it?

Another problem is the member who, as free as the wind to do as he pleases, somehow does not get around to "pay-

Model Airplane Show Sells "Men With Wings"

Local chain drug stores tied in with Al Weiss, Jr., Olympia Theatre, Miami, Fla., and put on a model airplane show in connection with the opening of "Men With Wings." Models were displayed in windows week ahead with tiein copy appropriately spotted. Promoted prizes went to winners.

Also effected was tieup with the Aviation Department of the local Miami Herald. Theatre donated some model airplane kits and an autographed script of the picture. In return, paper gave reviews and plugs in the aviation column, also furnishing some excellent model planes for lobby display. Air Lines loaned complete new motor and propellor for foyer display in exchange for credit cards.

Scott Greets Newcomers With Hearty Invitation

Sid Scott, Capitol Theatre, Sudbury, Canada, in the heart of a mining town, reports that since there is a large influx and exit of families, he mails all newcomers a postcard of greeting. Front carries cut of front, foyer and auditorium of the theatre with his name and the theatre's directly below.

Correspondence side has message reading "Welcome to Sudbury and welcome to the showplace of the north. Won't you come around and get acquainted? We would love to have you as our guests as soon as it is convenient. Please get acquainted." Sid says he used the same gag 24 years ago and that it still works well.

Trips to Miami Offered by Boucher

Fourteen local merchants have cooperated with Frank Boucher, Linden Theatre, Baltimore, in connection with an all-expense trip to Miami for the winner. Ballot blanks are available at stores, cash purchases entitling entrants to certain number of ballots. Person holding largest amount is winner. Stores' ads and theatre plug the event and current attraction.

Among other activities engaged in by Boucher are a series of preview nights each Tuesday night; tieup has been made with confectioner in the theatre building, whereby coupons are distributed entitling holder to two sundaes for the price of one. For the kids, promoted ice cream is given each Saturday matinee and cash prizes to those holding lucky numbered heralds.

Warners Give "Dawn Patrol" National Advertising Campaign

Warners will launch a national newspaper advertising campaign for "Dawn Patrol" in 30 key cities this month, simultaneously with the engagements of the film in each situation. Ads run to 1,000 lines and the entire cost of the campaign will be borne by Warners. Each ad will be timed to break in each city so that the local engagement will reap the greatest benefits from the ad, which will be used in addition to the regular national newspaper campaign.

Ads come as the final gun in the national campaign laid down for the film, consisting of fan maganize ads in 14 of the cost influential publications plus full pages other publications with notional circulaiton.

'Sweethearts' Taxi Offers Free Rides To License Bureau

At this writing some twelve couples who have seen MGM'S "Sweethearts," now at the New York Capitol, have taken advantage of the theatre's offer posted conspicuously in the lobby, a free ride in a specially provided taxi cab to the New York City Marriage License Bureau. The unique publicity slant on the picture's behalf was considered sufficiently newsworthy for breaks in the metropolitan dailies and was also carried by the various wire services. According to Ben Serkowich, Capitol publicity director, and Manager Herman Landwehr, the honeymoon taxi is expected to be kept continuously in motion between the theatre and City Hall for the rest of the engagement.

Other sweetheart tieups reported include the successful planting by Dale McFarland, Capital Theatre, Davenport, Iowa, of three newspaper contests. The Davenport Times awarded $10 in prizes for the photos of sweethearts of 40 years and over, sweethearts from 20 to 40 and sweethearts from 10 to 20. Money was divided among the three groups. The Davenport Democrat ran the pressbook contest on sweethearts of 20, 10 and five years ago. Folks whose names appeared in the newspaper that respective number of years ago were invited to be guests of the theatre.

Uses Unusual Ads

Using the same pressbook contest was Hal Sheridan, manager of the Paramount Theatre, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who arranged with the Gazette for his publicity. Sheridan also made up a series of special ads, first showing middle-aged couple with caption, "We were sweethearts 25 years ago and still are"; in the second was shown a college couple coming through a door, arm-in-arm, swinging books, with copy reading "We are sweethearts." The third illustrated a couple of four-year-old children captioned "We will be sweethearts."

Other promotions included giveaway of "Sweetheart" roses and candy, Jeanette MacDonald fashion tieups and cooperative arrangements with the Postal Telegraph for messages selling the picture and company's holiday greeting service.

Waltz Contest Featured By Murphy in Syracuse

In conjunction with the national "Great Waltz" contest, Frank Murphy, Loew's Syracuse, secured over 2,000 lines of free publicity from the Journal-American, carrying over eight days. Newspaper ran layouts of applicants together with daily entry blank with feature story. Local members of the Dance Masters Association cooperated in the distribution of the blanks and plugged the event generally.

Local hotel donated the use of their band and terrace room for the finals, band leader acting as master of ceremonies, and daily papers running stories. Artist sketched heads of stars in picture in window of leading music store three nights ahead of opening.

Friedl, Ludwig Sponsor Circuit Christmas Shows

Major good will activities during the holiday season were effected in practically every city of the Minnesota Amusement Company circuit.

Climaxing a year of quiet unpublicized good will activities, key managers of the circuit were instructed by John J. Friedl and L. J. Ludwig to plan gratis Christmas shows at which toys, canned food and articles of clothing would be accepted for admission, and proceeds would be turned over to local charitable organizations.

Many variations of good will parties have been reported to date. In St. Cloud, the Paramount, Eastman and Grand Theatres, in cooperation with the Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce, staged an Annual Rural Children's Christmas Party. Invitations for rural children were handled through school teachers.

All Organizations Cooperate

In Huron, South Dakota, the Huron Theatre cooperated with the Salvation Army in staging a Benefit Show as a means of collecting food stuff to help fill Christmas baskets. Another special matinee was held in conjunction with the American Legion in which discarded toys were accepted as admission fees. The Legion repaired these toys and then distributed them to needy children.

In Duluth, Minnesota, the Lyceum Theatre, in cooperation with the Duluth Herald and News-Tribune, and the Duluth-Superior Transit Company, staged a theatre Christmas party for orphans. A similar plan was carried out by the Lyric Theatre, Watertown, South Dakota, in conjunction with the Cosmopolitan Club's Annual Toy Project Drive. Toys collected as admission at a special theatre matinee were taken to the Fire Department, where firemen repaired and repainted them for Christmas distribution.

The Paramount Theatre, Mitchell, South Dakota, cooperated with its service clubs in a similar toy matinee.

Other towns in the Minnesota Amusement Company circuit that staged special Christmas Good Will activities included, in Minnesota: Minneapolis, St. Paul, Austin, Mankato, Rochester, Winona, Hibbing, Moorhead and Virginia; in North Dakota: Fargo, Grand Forks, Jamestown and Minot; in Wisconsin: Eau Claire and Superior, and in South Dakota: Aberdeen, Sioux Falls and Madison.

Issues Movie News

Another Round Tabler added to the ranks of those publishing their own theatre publications is Robert Busch, manager of the Plaza Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. Called the "Plaza Movie News", leaflet is four pages and printing and distribution costs are entirely met by ads sold to local merchants. To be published bi-monthly, Busch reports that judging by its initial success, expects big things for the News.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE

ing his dues." This boy puts on a lot of smart boxoffice campaigns but hardly ever tells about it. He's the manager who reads the Round Table religiously and swears by it. No kidding. Wonder if these lads ever realize that the success of this department comes from the voluntary cooperation of those who use it. It's all right to "take" but to even it up, pal, a man's got to "give" sometime, don't you think?

There will always be a to-do, we suppose, about limited latitude in operation. Too many good men complain of it. How much head-office restriction is justified where applied cannot of course be decided here. There is evidence, however, that operators allow their men all the latitude they can handle. For instance, on a following page detailing activities among Lucas and Jenkins theatremen is a quote taken from an article by Willis J. Davis, circuit public relations head. Mr. Davis points out that Arthur Lucas and W. K. Jenkins, circuit heads, emphasize: "Theatres are local community enterprises—let those locally in charge run them."

Without doubt, this attitude has no little to do with that company's consistent leadership and the excellent morale of the managers. Other leading circuits, also firm believers in the Round Table and its aims, base a goodly part of their success on this same freedom of action.

Of course, there are different ways of interpreting "freedom of action" and that depends a lot upon the ability of the individual manager. No one ever said that every manager in every situation is a "ball of fire." Some men can operate on their own. Others, as willing and conscientious, must be given a helping and frequent hand. That brings in the district manager or supervisor, the lad who is subject to pressure from above and below. We know of countless situations and you do, too, where the district manager is the best friend the manager ever had, where the D. M. works himself into flat feet on the managers' behalf. If the other kind of D. M. doesn't rate that high, at best, his job is a full-size headache. So let's give him the benefit of whatever doubt exists and a flock of sincere thanks for the good guys who make the job worthwhile.

On the subject of the old dough-dough, things are picking up. As you are aware, certain operators have always taken good care of their men. Some employ a form of profit-sharing. Some pay satisfactory salaries plus bonuses. Usually, there is plenty of opportunity for advancement. (Incidentally, our Personalities Page carries frequent notice of these promotions. Many are Round Tablers, more than a few winners of Quigley Awards.)

Compensating the manager over and above his salary for extra business he brings in is spreading, even if slowly. In the final analysis, it's nothing but good business, isn't it? Wouldn't be at all surprised to find the practice adopted generally, and not in the far distant future, either.

The welfare and future of the manager is also being given wider consideration. Only recently Balaban and Katz announced comprehensive insurance for their theatre personnel. The Griffith and Famous Players Canadian circuits are working on pension plans and other circuits which provide insurance for managers are numerous. Which is as it should be. After all, the most contented manager is the one with the least domestic worries. Taking care of him in sickness, providing for his future when too old to work, guaranteeing substantial family insurance when he passes on—all go a long way in keeping a man happy on the job and more profitable to his bossman.

The prospect for next year? Well, what's your thought? With world conditions as they are and so much uneasiness everywhere, we believe returns are to be had from showmanship that gets away from routine operation. More screwballery to take folks away from their griefs is what we have in mind. Theatremen who have taken down their hair, so to speak, in advertising and ballyhoo, find profit in these unconventional didoes. Successful exploitation of the Horror Shows, Jitterbug Contests, Hallowe'en Midnight Spook Shows, April Fool's Day Crazy Parties and suchlike in the past year indicate that odd and unusual campaigns will pay off as satisfactorily in 1939.

Well, we'll say goodbye now, until next week. Looks like we spoke us a mouthful and hope you will do the same soon. If you have been sending in your campaigns and other contributions, thanks so much, and please continue. If you haven't—then please do your best to do so.

You are sincerely advised that the resources of your Round Table are, as always, yours to command with ye Chairman and ye Associate Gert Merriam standing by to lend a hand.

Trust you had the swellest Christmas ever and may 1939 be everything you hope it will be for you and yours.

HIGH-POWER EXPLOITATIONS MARK L&J CIRCUIT ADVANCE CAMPAIGNS

Lucas & Jenkins Men Score with Contests, Street and Air Stunts to Lift Grosses on November - December Dates

Much boxoffice activity at the Lucas & Jenkins situations down in Georgia is reported here by Round Tabler E. E. "Whit" Whitaker, district manager, via "Spotlight," the circuit weekly house organ ably guided by the genial "Whit." The L&J boys have been covering lots of territory, not the least of which is the successful sale of circuit Christmas gift books. Highlights of recent picture campaigns from various points:

The "Voice of the Sky" aid bally put on by Manager A. D. Robertson, at the Lucas, Savannah, on behalf of "Men With Wings." The local Strachan Skyways was tied in for a Taylor Cub plane to which was attached a regular P. A. set, speakers lashed to each wing. Daily flights were made over the city while pilot read announcements of the date to a craning-necked public. A "first-time" for this stunt in Savannah, it checked in as an effective stimulator for the date.

Wilson Addresses Clubs

Added prestige for the Lyric, Waycross, has come about through the addresses made by Manager Bill Wilson at various civic clubs. Recent talks by the Round Tabler at the Lions' Club on the part his theatre takes in building local trade was constructively received. On the occasion of the installation of new sound equipment, Wilson invited the Club to visit the booth after he spoke on sound pictures. The manager took further bows in the local press for his Book Matinee when children were admitted for five cents plus one book. The gift volumes were turned over for the benefit of the newly organized rural library sponsored by the Waycross women's clubs. These and additional civic cooperations have netted him unlimited space in the local papers, reports Bill.

Corker's Explanation Unusual

Profitable goodwill comes to the Georgia, in Athens, through the cooperation displayed by L&J City Manager Moon Corker in entertaining monthly the high school R.O.T.C. unit, free admission given to the platoon showing the greatest improvement during the month. Colonel of the unit personally leads the troop into the theatre and aids in making it an event to arouse more than casual interest. Due to the theatre parties the federal standing of the unit has risen appreciably, according to the U. S. A. officer.

That Corker can be depended upon for the unusual in exploitation is proven further by his Corn Shucking contest in front of the theatre as advance for "Arkansas Traveler," at the Palace. The local press was wide open for this novelty idea, running daily two-column stories about it and also display ads asking for corn shuckers, etc., applicants referred to the Arkansas Traveler, care of the paper. Competitors included coeds from the university in addition to students from the agricultural college, each contestant given two bushels of corn to shuck, winner decided on time basis. Prizes were offered by Corker and the agricultural school.

Animals in the news were reported by the Macon theatres, with Manager Morgan, at the Strand, using a pair of puppies as a bally for "That Certain Age." Tiein line was to the effect that the picture represented the age of puppy love. At the Capitol Manager Warren Bailey walked a bannered turkey 'round town on Thanksgiving, copy reading: "The axe missed me and I'm happy. You'll be happy, too, when you see Little Miss Broadway."

For "Four Is a Crowd," at the Paramount, Atlanta, Manager Tommy Reed used a candid cameraman on the streets to take shots of passersby. Cards were given to those photoed with copy to say that their pictures would be on display in the theatre lobby with ducats for those who could identify themselves in the group shots.

Robertson Aids Local Drives

Close communal cooperation is the aim of A. D. "Robby" Robertson, L&J City Manager, Savannah, in listing some of the recent events held at the circuit's theatres to aid movements inaugurated by the Mayor's Committee, such as celebration of Georgia's adoption of the Constitution with a rally at the Lucas. Also held at the house was Rotary party for underprivileged children. The Bijou was made available to both the Eagles and Elks for memorial services and at the Lucas was shown a special film describing what the Masonic Shrine Club was doing to aid crippled children. The annual D.A.R. Americanization program is also held at the Lucas.

Tiein with the locally important Turkey Day football game, Manager O. H. Bradbury sponsored special football nights, wherein the teams of the opposing schools were guests of the theatre. Students of the various institutions piled in to boost their teams, which of course did no harm to the boxoffice. "Brad" spread the news widely on school bulletin boards and planted banners on students' cars in parade before game.

An elaborate advance for "Brother Rat" at the Fox, Atlanta, was executed by Manager Hudson Edwards, the top stunt being a contest between the local Georgia Tech fraternities. Each frat that entered was given a space ten feet square to decorate as they pleased with patrons voting for the display they favored. Displays included a 1921 collegiate Buick, a fraternity house room on Sunday morning after a wild night and a Rube Goldberg invention—to pull off bed covers and pull up windows when an alarm went off.

"Theatres Community Enterprises— Those Locally in Charge Run Them"

Not the least of the services available to the men in the field from the headquarters of Lucas & Jenkins is a public relations department under the able guidance of Willis J. Davis. In "Spotlight" Mr. Davis speaks of the "reasons why" for this important department and points out the importance of goodwill relations between the manager and his community. He also stresses the confidence of the circuit heads in the manager, as follows:

"The whole policy of this company is based on the idea that local managers be managers in fact as well as in name. No instructions as to operations are sent out from the Home Office. The very best pictures that are produced are booked into the various Lucas & Jenkins theatres just as soon as it is possible to get them there—bearing in mind the necessities that experience dictates. Beyond the actual booking, the city and house managers with this company are free to operate practically as they wish. . . . If they do something which is not thought well of in the Home Office, and even if it does not produce the results you hoped for, you get no letter of criticism. It is only when you do not do—when you just rock along in the same old rut, show no spirit of initiative, no enterprise . . . that your operations are questioned here. Mr. Lucas and Mr. Jenkins say over and over again: 'Theatres are local community enterprises—let those locally in charge run them'."

Brien Promotes Scout Tiein for "Yellow Jack"

Local Boy Scout troop celebrated its first anniversary by attending en masse the opening of "Yellow Jack" at the Prince Theatre, Ambridge, Pa. Marching to the theatre, with banners, the troop was a walking ad for the picture. Contest was run in local daily for which guest prizes were awarded to those submitting best letters on the Panama Canal. Campaign engineered by Lige Brien.

In addition to pasting a one-sheet in his lobby, effective use was made of critics' rave reviews which were blown up and also planted on floor. Special letters were mailed to doctors, nurses, clergy and prominent businessmen heralding the opening. Copy of "Microbe Hunters" was placed in lobby, copy calling attention to the fact that for further information on the dread disease, book was available at the public library.

Erpi, Motiograph In Foreign Tie-up

Electrical Research Products, Inc., will handle the distribution of Motiograph projectors in certain foreign territories. Joseph B. Kleckner, president of Motiograph, Inc., in revealing the new tie-up, predicted that the new ERPI policy would mean powerful expansion of the world market for American made theatre equipment.

ERPI will represent Motiograph in Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, British Honduras, Panama, the U. S. Canal Zone, Cuba, the islands of Bermuda, the Bahamas, Santo Domingo and Haiti, Jamaica, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands and the Lesser Antilles, including Tobago and Trinidad; Venezuela, British, Dutch and French Guiana and the Netherlands West Indies, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay and Paraguay.

"Americanism" Trailers For All Theatres

In line with the growing practice in theatres to play the "Star Spangled Banner," an idea adopted by Warner Brothers, Brandt, Hoblitzelle-O'Donnell and other circuits, National Screen Service will produce a series of patriotic trailers for all houses, starting with one on the National Anthem.

To further the move, National Screen says it will charge exhibitors only the actual cost of raw stock and printing, paying itself for production, studio recording, art work, research, film editing and distribution.

Nazis Charge "Plot" in Charlie Chaplin Film

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, in Germany, made the assertion this week that Harold L. Ickes, American Secretary of the Interior, has conspired with Charlie Chaplin to spread propaganda against Germany, according to a United Press dispatch.

The newspaper asserted that Secretary Ickes had "commissioned" Chaplin to make a motion picture denouncing dictators, and said this was "propaganda against a state with which the United States is at peace."

Charlie Chaplin is now preparing his next feature picture, to be called "The Dictator," for United Artists release, in which Mr. Chaplin will talk for the first time in films.

Exhibitors Pledge Aid To Nazi Refugees

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania, in Pittsburgh, this week passed a resolution condemning strongly the oppression and mistreatment of minority groups of all religious affiliations, and to support the U. S. Government in its policy of "maintaining and fostering our traditional democratic institutions." The organization also pledged itself to aid refugee victims of persecution.

National Decency Legion Approves Nine Productions

The National Legion of Decency approved all of the nine films reveiwed this week. They are "The Arizona Wildcat," "The Girl Downstairs," "Red River Range," "Shine on Harvest Moon," "Smashing the Spy Ring," "The Strange Case of Dr. Meade," "Sweethearts," "The Terror of Tiny Town" and "Wings of the Navy."

Smith with Meglin-Fanchon

Earle Smith, former independent producer and recently eastern divisional manager for Screen Broadcast, has been named director of the Talent Procurement Division of the Meglin Kiddies, in association with Fanchon and Marco. This is coincident with the announcement recently in Hollywood of the contract signed by Ethel Meglin with Maury Cohen, independent producer, for the production of a series of films. Headquarters of the company are in the Orpheum Building in Brooklyn, New York.

S. Edwin Graham, formerly with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Major Edward Bowes, and producer of the Kiddie Troupers, has also been added to the talent procurement division, which is conducting a search for talent in the east.

RKO plans to make "The Saint in London" at an English studio, with William Sistrom as associate producer, it was announced this week. George Sanders will be starred.

D. A. Doran, former story editor for Columbia, and Tim Durant have formed a producing company. They have acquired the rights to "Variety," a German silent film.

Columbia Dedicates New Sales Drive

Characterizing its annual sales drive as "Columbia's Personal Achievement Campaign," Columbia Pictures will run its drive for the ten week period from January 9th to March 18th. The company claims that it is the first time in motion picture history that a campaign has been dedicated to the film salesman and booker, who, in this drive, will be responsible for its success.

During the period covered by the campaign, the company will release many of the top features on its 1938-39 program. These include the tentatively titled "Plane Number 4." co-starring Cary Grant and Jean Arthur, and directed by Howard Hawks; "Let Us Live," also a tentative title, co-starring Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Sullivan; "There's That Woman Again," with Melvyn Douglas and Virginia Bruce; "Coast Guard," and "Old Mrs. Leonard and Her Machine Guns."

Also being made ready for quick release are "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," with Warren William and Ida Lupino; "First Offenders"; "Blondie Steps Out," second of the Blondie series; "Homicide Bureau"; "The Thundering West," and "Frontiers of '49."

During the campaign, a large number of one and two reel subjects also will be released.

Much RCA Sound Equipment at Fair

Much of the coordination of staff functions and the transmission of information to the expected huge influx of visitors at the New York World's fair, which opens in April, will depend upon the improvisations, inventions, and installations of the Radio Corporation of America engineering staff.

The Perisphere, which, with the Trylon, forms the theme of the Fair, will be utilized as the horn of what is claimed will be the largest loudspeaker "ever constructed." Thirty-six high and low frequency sound reproducers will be installed at the base of the perisphere. The perisphere itself and the surrounding ground surface will form a horizontal 360 degree circular speaker, with thousands of people being able to gather around it. The huge horn will reproduce sound cycles from 20 to 10,000. Some of these cycles are so low that they will be felt rather than heard.

The theme show in the interior of the Perisphere will operate with an RCA specially designed sound system.

RCA and its various services, the National Broadcasting Company, RCA Manufacturing, RCA Communications, will occupy 15,000 square feet in the Electrical and Communications Building at the San Francisco Golden Gate International Exposition, opening February 18, it was announced. The results of RCA television experiments, facsimile, and ultra short wave transmission will be shown for the first time on the Pacific Coast, at the Exposition.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

Following the title is information regarding the classification of the subject matter of the feature. A comedy is denoted by the abbreviation Com.; Melodrama by Mel.; Comedy-Melodrama by Com-Mel.; Musical by Mus.; Musical Comedy by Mus-Com.; Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parentheses after the classification. Thus: Com-Mel (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1938-39 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Three Outstanding
NEW FILMS

EASTMAN announces three important new negative films for the professional motion picture field. . . . Plus-X: fast, fine-grained. Unsurpassed for general studio work. . . . Super-XX: super-speed, surprisingly small grain. For difficult newsreel shots, or for use wherever exposure is a problem. . . . Background-X: ultra-fine grain, ample speed. For backgrounds. Also excellent for all-round exterior work. . . . These films not only make dramatic advances along their particular lines, but offer the high reliability and photographic quality typical of Eastman sensitized materials. Eastman Kodak Company, Rochester, N. Y. (J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Distributors, Fort Lee, Chicago, Hollywood.)
